Canada.

Introduction.

The Dominion of Canada now comprises the Provinces of Alberta, British Columbia, Manitoba, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Ontario, Prince Edward Island, Quebec, and Saskatchewan, the North-West Territories (now consisting of the districts of Ungava, Franklin, Mackenzie, and other territories not included in any province or in the Yukon Territory), and the Yukon Territory. Geographically it comprises all of the British possessions on the continent of North America, except the Labrador Coast, which is politically a part of the Colony of Newfoundland.

History and government.

Canada was discovered by Sebastian Cabot in 1497, and formally taken possession of by the French in 1525. The first settlement (Quebec) was founded in 1608. From 1629 to 1632 Quebec was in the possession of the English. In 1763, by the Treaty of Paris, Canada was definitively ceded by France to England. Nova Scotia, a part of Acadia, was taken by the English and granted in 1621 to Sir William Alexander, but was restored to France in 1632. By the Treaty of Utrecht (1713) it came again into the possession of England, and under the Treaty of Paris (1763) France finally renounced all rights to this territory. New Brunswick formed a part of the French Province of Acadia and followed the fate of that territory. In 1762 and 1783 a large body of English subjects came to New Brunswick from New England, and in 1784 New Brunswick was made a separate Colony. Prince Edward Island, which was annexed to Nova Scotia after the Treaty of Paris, was, in 1769, made a separate Colony. Ontario and Quebec were divided into two Provinces in 1791, under the names of Upper Canada and Lower Canada respectively. In 1840 they were united under the name of the Province of Canada, and again separated in 1867.

The Dominion was formed in 1867 under the British North America Act<sup>1</sup>), and originally comprised the Provinces of Quebec, Ontario, Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick. Rupert's Land and the North-West Territories were admitted in 1870, British Columbia (including Vancouver Island) in 1871, and Prince Edward Island in 1873. The Province of Manitoba was created in 1870, and the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan in 1905, out of the Territories. The Yukon Territory was constituted in 1898.

In the Dominion the executive power is vested in a Governor-General appointed by the Crown, assisted by a Privy Council appointed by the Governor-General. The Cabinet is chosen as in England. The legislative power is vested in a Parliament consisting of the King, a Senate, and a House of Commons. The members of the Senate are nominated for life by the Governor-General, the members of the House of Commons are elected for five years by the voters in the several Provinces. The franchise is regulated by the Provinces.

In the Provinces the executive power is vested in a Lieutenant-Governor, appointed by the Governor-General, assisted by an executive council. The legislative power is vested in local legislatures consisting of a single chamber, except in Quebec and Nova Scotia, where the organization is bi-cameral.

The North-West Territories and the Yukon Territories are governed under Dominion Acts. In both there are a Commissioner and a Legislative Council.

Canada has been given almost complete autonomy in matters affecting the commercial interests of the Empire. Even a protective tariff directed not only against the competition of foreign nations, but also against the competition of British manufacturers, has not been interfered with by the Home Government.

<sup>1</sup>) 30 & 31 Vic. c. 3 — cited as B. N. A. Act, 1867. Amended by 33 & 34 Vic. c. 28, 49 & 50 Vic. c. 35.

It is, of course, within the power of the Imperial Government by Act of Parliament to resume a part or the whole of the powers conferred on the Dominion, or to override by means of a treaty with foreign countries the provisions of a Canadian Act. But in fact the tendency has been to accord ever-increasing power to the Canadian government and in diplomatic negotiations affecting Canadian interests to act only after ascertaining the wishes of the Dominion Government.

The Dominion and the Provinces.<sup>1)</sup>

The fundamental principles embodied in the British North America Act, 1867, are: "a federation with a central government exercising general powers over all the members of the Union, and a number of local governments having the control and management of certain matters naturally and conveniently falling within their defined jurisdiction, while each government is administered in accordance with the British system of parliamentary institutions<sup>2)</sup>."

The constitutional relations between the Dominion and the Provinces have been frequently likened to those between the Union and the States in the United States. Upon this point a high authority says: "A careful comparative review of the powers distributed between the central and State or Provincial governments shows us that in certain essential features there is in the Constitution of the Dominion of Canada a more marked division of legislative authority than in that of the United States. An important distinction exists between the powers given to the central government of Canada and those placed by the constitution of the United States under the jurisdiction of the federal authority. The powers of the Dominion government cover all those not expressly given by the Constitutional Act to the Provinces, the very reverse of the principle at the basis of the United States instrument"<sup>3)</sup>.

In relation to all matters not coming within the classes of subjects assigned exclusively to the Provinces the Dominion Parliament is empowered to make laws relating to the following matters of a commercial nature<sup>4)</sup>: 1. The regulation of trade and commerce. Uncontrolled by the context these words are sufficiently wide to include every regulation of trade, ranging from political arrangements in regard to trade with foreign governments down to minute rules for regulating particular trades. But it seems that a narrower interpretation must be given. They cover, however, the regulation of trade in matters of inter-provincial concern, and possibly general regulations of trade affecting the whole Dominion. But they do not comprehend the power to regulate by legislation the conduct of a particular business or trade, such as the business of fire insurance, in a single Province<sup>5)</sup>. The Provinces retain the power of local taxation<sup>6)</sup>, and, in the absence of any general Dominion Act, the regulation of particular trades and commercial transactions is within the jurisdiction of the Provinces<sup>7)</sup>. The fact that Provincial legislation prejudicially affects trade and commerce<sup>8)</sup> does not render it ultra vires<sup>9)</sup>; 2. Navigation and shipping. These words must also be restricted in their interpretation in the same manner as the words "regulation of trade and commerce," supra<sup>10)</sup>. The Provinces may not authorize obstructions to navigation amounting to a nuisance<sup>11)</sup>, but still retain certain police jurisdiction over the navigable waters. But for the purposes of navigation the Dominion Parliament may enact necessary laws<sup>12)</sup>. In the exercise of its power the Dominion Parliament has enacted a Shipping Act<sup>13)</sup>, a Bills of Lading Act<sup>14)</sup>, and an Act relating to marine bills of lading<sup>15)</sup>. It must also be recalled that the Imperial Shipping Acts are in force; 3. Seacoast and inland fisheries; 4. Ferries between a Province and any British or foreign country, or between two Provinces; 5. Currency and coinage; 6. Banking, incorporation of banks, and the issue of paper money. The legislative authority conferred by these words is not confined to the privilege of carrying on the business of banking, it extends to the issue of paper currency, and comprehends every transaction coming within the legitimate business of a banker<sup>1</sup>). It includes the power to make laws in reference to collaterals held as securities for loans. The power has been exercised in the enactment of the Dominion Bank Act, and in other Acts; 7. Weights and measures; 8. Bills of exchange and promissory notes; 9. Interest; 10. Legal tender; 11. Bankruptcy and insolvency. These words describe the "provisions made by law for the administration of the estates of persons who may become bankrupt or insolvent, according to rules and definitions prescribed by law, including, of course, the conditions on which that law is to be brought into operation, the manner in which it is to be brought into operation, and the effect of its operation"<sup>2</sup>). There is no Dominion Act at present in force relating to bankruptcy and insolvency, except the Dominion Winding-up Act, which is confined to companies. In the absence of Dominion legislation the Provinces may pass insolvency laws<sup>3</sup>); 12. Patents of invention and discovery; 13. Copyrights.

The Provinces are empowered to make laws relating, inter alia, to the following subjects<sup>4</sup>): 1. Local works and undertakings other than such as are of the following classes: a) Lines of steam or other ships, canals, telegraphs, and other works and undertakings connecting the Province with any other or others of the Provinces, or extending beyond the limits of the Province; b) Lines of steamships between the Province and any British or foreign country; c) Such works as, although wholly situate within the Province, are before or after their execution declared by the Parliament of Canada to be for the general advantage of Canada or for the advantage of two or more of the Provinces; 2. The incorporation of companies with Provincial objects. The incorporation of companies with objects other than Provincial falls within the general powers of the Dominion Parliament<sup>5</sup>). A company chartered under the Dominion Act may, however, in fact limit its operation to a single Province<sup>6</sup>). "The difference between a Dominion and a Provincial company is in the territorial sphere, within which the company's powers may be, not in that within which they are actually, exercised"<sup>7</sup>). The Dominion Winding-up Act is in the nature of an insolvency law, and consequently companies organized under Provincial Acts are subject to its Provisions<sup>8</sup>). But where a company is not insolvent, it may be wound up under the Provincial Acts. Dominion companies, at least in the absence of Dominion legislation, are subject to the local laws of the Province in regard to the trade in which they are engaged<sup>9</sup>). The holding of land would be subject to Provincial regulation. The extent to which the Province may regulate Dominion companies by requiring them to take out licenses in order to carry on business within the Province has not been fully determined; 3. Property and civil rights in the Province. As to the meaning of the words "civil rights" it has been held that they include contracts and the rights arising from them, except in so far as these matters are within the scope of the powers of the Dominion Parliament<sup>10</sup>).

Organization and Jurisdiction of Courts. Limitation of Actions.

The judicial system comprises the Dominion Courts and the several Courts of the Provinces or Territories.

I. Dominion Courts.

The Dominion Courts are the Supreme Court of Canada and the Court of Exchequer. The Supreme Court consists of a Chief Justice and five Puisne Judges, and exercises appellate jurisdiction throughout the Dominion. An appeal lies to the Supreme Court from the Exchequer Court of Canada, in cases in the Provincial Courts arising under the Winding-up Acts, and in certain other cases. The conditions of appeal from the Courts of the Provinces to the Supreme Court of Canada vary greatly. An appeal lies to the Supreme Court from any final judgment of the highest Court of final resort in the Province, whether such Court is a Court of Appeal or of original jurisdiction, in cases in which the court of original jurisdiction is a superior court; and also in cases in which the court of original jurisdiction is not a superior court in the following cases: 1. In Quebec if the matter involves some right of His Majesty, or future rights in lands or tenements, or amounts to $ 2000; 2. in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, British Columbia, and Prince Edward Island if the sum involved is $ 250 or upwards, and the court of first instance possesses concurrent jurisdiction with a superior court; 3. in Saskatchewan and Alberta by leave of the Supreme Court of Canada or a Judge thereof.

In Quebec an appeal lies to the Supreme Court of Canada from any judgment of the Superior Court in Review, where that Court confirms the judgment of the Court of first instance, and its judgment is not appealable to the Court of King's Bench, but is appealable to the Privy Council.

Except under special conditions the appeal must be from the highest court of last resort in the Province, and ordinarily only from a final judgment. In Quebec the amount involved must be $ 2000 or over, in Ontario, $ 1000 or over.

The Court of Exchequer consists of a single Judge, and has jurisdiction in cases where relief is sought against the Crown, suits by the Crown, in revenue cases, patents, copyright and design cases, and is a Colonial Court of Admiralty. An appeal lies to the Supreme Court where the amount involved exceeds $ 500, and by leave of a judge of the Supreme Court in certain other cases.

II. Provincial and Territorial Courts.

In Alberta there are a Supreme Court and a number of District Courts. The Supreme Court consists of five Judges, three of whom constitute a quorum. The jurisdiction is exercised by single Judges and in banc, and extends to all civil and criminal matters, except small debt cases. The District Courts presided over by a Judge, have jurisdiction in civil cases where the amount involved does not exceed $ 400. Appeals lie to the Supreme Court of the Province.

In British Columbia there are four Courts with civil jurisdiction: the Supreme Court, sitting as a Court of Appeal, the Supreme Court, sitting as a Trial Court, the Supreme Courts, and Small Debt Courts. The Small Debt Courts have jurisdiction concurrent with the County Courts and the Supreme Courts at Nisi Prius, where the amount involved does not exceed $ 100, but no jurisdiction in cases where the title to land is involved, or in probate. An appeal lies to the County Court or to a Judge of the Supreme Court. The County Courts have jurisdiction, concurrent with the Supreme Court, in personal actions for debt or damages where the amount involved does not exceed $ 1000, equitable jurisdiction (e. g. accounts and specific performance) where the amount does not exceed $ 2500, and in certain other cases. By consent of parties the jurisdiction may be extended to cases otherwise not within the jurisdiction of the Court. An appeal lies to the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court, sitting as a Trial Court, has general jurisdiction, civil and criminal, throughout the Province, with an appeal to the Supreme Court sitting as a Court of Appeal.

The judicial organization of Manitoba comprises the Court of Appeal, the Court of King's Bench, County Courts, and Surrogate Courts. The Surrogate Courts have jurisdiction in probate and related matters. The County Courts have jurisdiction in actions on contract and in tort where the amount involved is less than $ 500. The Court of King's Bench is a Court of record of general original jurisdiction. The Court of Appeal has appellate jurisdiction.

In New Brunswick there are Justices' Courts with jurisdiction in actions of debt up to $ 200, Parish Courts, with similar jurisdiction up to $ 80, County Courts with jurisdiction up to $ 400, and the Supreme Court, with general jurisdiction, original and appellate.

In Nova Scotia the Supreme Court has original jurisdiction when the amount involved is not below $ 20, and appellate jurisdiction over the inferior Courts. The County Courts have jurisdiction inter alia in cases of debt where the amount involved is not less than $ 20 and not in excess of $ 300. Magistrates' Courts have jurisdiction up to $ 80.

The judicial organization of Ontario comprises the High Court, County and District Courts, and Division Courts. The High Court has general jurisdiction throughout the Province. An appeal lies to a Divisional Court of the High Court and thence to the High Court sitting as a Court of Appeal. The County and District Courts are presided over by a single Judge, and have jurisdiction, inter alia, in actions arising out of contract where the sum claimed does not exceed $ 800, partnership actions where the capital of the partnership does not exceed in value $ 2000, and actions and contestations for the determination of the right of creditors, where the claim of the creditor does not exceed $ 500. An appeal lies to a Divisional Court of the High Court. The Division Courts are presided over by a Judge of the County Court. They have jurisdiction in personal actions where the amount claimed does not exceed $ 60, or by consent of the parties, where the amount does not exceed $ 100, on balance of account not exceeding $ 100, in actions of debt up to $ 200 where the amount claimed is ascertained by the signature of the defendant. Subject to certain exceptions, an appeal lies to a Divisional Court of the High Court.

In Prince Edward Island the Supreme Court exercises appellate jurisdiction, and also original jurisdiction in claims over $ 32. The County Courts have original jurisdiction in claims up to $ 150.

In Quebec the Commissioners' Courts have jurisdiction up to $ 25, and the Circuit Courts up to $ 200 (except in the Districts of Montreal and Quebec, where the limit is $ 100). Cases exceeding the above limits are instituted in the Superior Court. An appeal lies from the Commissioners' Courts to the Circuit Court, and from the Circuit Court and Superior Court to the Court of Review. In appeals where the amount involved is less than $ 500 the determination of the Court of Review is final. Appeals from the Superior Court, where the amount involved is more than $ 500 may be taken either to the Court of Review or to the Court of Appeals. There is no appeal from the Court of Review to the Court of Appeal in cases where the Court of Review affirms the judgment of the Court below, but if the amount exceeds $ 5000 there is an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada. If the Court of Review reverses the judgment of the lower Court, and the amount is $ 500 or upwards there is an appeal to the Court of Appeal. An appeal lies from the Court of Appeals to the Supreme Court of Canada where the amount involved is $ 2000 or upwards.

The judicial organization of Saskatchewan is similar to that of Alberta. In the North-West Territories jurisdiction, civil and criminal, is exercised by stipendiary magistrates. In the Yukon Territory the Territorial Court is a court of general jurisdiction, civil and criminal. Where the amount involved exceeds $ 500 an appeal lies to the Supreme Court sitting as a Court of Appeal, and thence to the Supreme Court of Canada. An appeal also lies direct to the Supreme Court of Canada.

III. Appeals to Privy Council.

IV. Limitation of Actions.

In all of the Provinces, except Quebec, promissory notes and acceptances of bills of exchange are subject to a six-year period of limitation. In Quebec the period is five years. This is calculated from maturity of the instrument or from the last payment of principal or interest made thereon, or from the date of formal acknowledgment, or in the case of demand paper from the date of the instrument in the case of a note, or from the date of the acceptance, in the case of a bill of exchange. As against the indorsers of demand instruments the period of limitation does not begin to run until due presentment for payment and dishonour of the instrument.

Merchants' accounts and other contracts not under seal must be sued on within six years next after the cause of action arose, except in Quebec, where they must be sued on within five years. This period is calculated in the case of accounts on each item of the account, and not from the date of the monthly or other statement. On an account stated the period begins to run from the date of such account. Part payment or formal acknowledgment of indebtedness will cause a new period of limitation to begin.

In Quebec the lapse of the period of five years extinguishes the obligation itself, and no part payment on or acknowledgment of a debt so barred will revive the rights of the creditors.

Imp. § 295.

Part I. Joint Stock Companies.

Application of Part.

New companies. Old companies. 2. [As amended by 7 & 8 Edw. 7, c. 16, § 1.] This Part applies to: a) All companies incorporated under it; b) All companies incorporated under the Companies Act, chapter one hundred and nineteen of The Revised Statutes of Canada, or to which that Act applied before the fifteenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred and two, excepting loan companies; c) All companies incorporated under The Companies Act, 1902.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 2. As to the jurisdiction of Provincial Legislatures to legislate respecting the licensing of companies incorporated under this Act see notes to Ontario Extra Provincial Corporations Act (63 Vic. c. 24), §§ 3, 6, infra. In Cooper v. McIndoe, (1887), 15 Rev. Leg. 276, it was held that a company incorporated by the Dominion Parliament can not exercise its powers in the Province of Quebec without conforming to arts. 364, 365, and 366 of the Civil Code. In Colonial Buidling, etc., Association v. The Attorney-General of Quebec, (1883), 9 A. C. 157 it was held that the fact that a company incorporated by an act of the Dominion Parliament chose to confine the exercise of its powers to one Province and to local and provincial objects, did not operate to render its original incorporation illegal as ultra vires the Parliament of the Dominion. For other cases defining the powers of the Dominion Parliament see: Tenant v. Union Bank of Canada, (1894) A. C. 31; Citizens Insurance Co. v. Parsons, (1881), 7 A. C. 96; Maritime Bank v. Receiver-General, (1892) A. C. 437; In re Ontario Power Co., (1903), 6 O. L. R. 11; Bessemer Gas Engine Co. v. Mills, (1904), 4 O. W. R. 325; McDiarmid v. Hughes, (1888), 16 O. R. 570.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, §§ 3, 53, 79; Imp. § 285. For cases defining "shareholders," see note to Dominion Winding-up Act, §§ 2, 51.

Preliminaries.

Are directory only. 4. The provisions of this Part relating to matters preliminary to the issue of the letters patent or supplementary letters patent shall be deemed directory only, and no letters patent or supplementary letters patent issued under this Part shall be held void or voidable on account of any irregularity in respect of any matter preliminary to the issue of the letters patent or supplementary letters patent.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 4. A shareholder cannot avoid his liability as a contributory by setting up defects and irregularities in the organization of the company, which can only be taken advantage of at the instance of the Attorney-General.—Common v. McArthur, (1898), 29 S. C. R. 231. See also cases cited Dominion Winding-up Act, § 51, infra. Cp. Quebec, etc., Railway v. Dawson, (1851), 1 L. C. R. 366, where it was held that a shareholder, in an action brought by the company, might plead a non-compliance with its act of incorporation, and that by reason of such non-compliance the company was not legally organized. And see Page v. Austin, (1882), 10 S. C. R. 133, holding that where a statutory liability is attempted to be imposed on a party which can only attach to an actual legal shareholder, he is not estopped, by reason of having received a transfer of a certificate of stock, from questioning the legality of the issue of such stock.

Formation of new companies.

Companies incorporated for certain purposes. Exceptions. No power to issue paper money or for banking. 5. The Secretary of State may, by letters patent under his seal of office, grant a charter to any number of persons, not less than five, who apply therefor, constituting such persons, and others who have become subscribers to the memorandum of agreement hereinafter mentioned and who thereafter become shareholders in the company thereby created, a body corporate and politic, for any of the purposes or objects to which the legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada extends, except the construction and working of railways or of telegraph or telephone lines, the business of insurance, the business of a loan company and the business of banking and the issue of paper money. 2. Nothing in this Part shall be construed to authorize any company to issue any note payable to the bearer thereof or any promissory note intended to be circulated as money or as the note of a bank or to engage in the business of banking or insurance.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, §§ 5, 24; Imp. § 2.

Seal. 6. The Governor in Council may, from time to time, designate the seal of office to be used by the Secretary of State as the seal under which letters patent may be granted under this Act.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 5.

Application; what to be stated. 7. The applicants for such letters patent, who must be of the full age of twenty-one years, shall file in the Department of the Secretary of State an application setting forth the following particulars: a) The proposed corporate name of the company, which shall not be that of any other known company, incorporated or unincorporated, or any name liable to be confounded therewith, or otherwise, on public grounds, objectionable; b) The purposes for which its incorporation is sought; c) The place within Canada which is to be its chief place of business; d) The proposed amount of its capital stock; e) The number of shares and the amount of each share; f) The names in full and the address and calling of each of the applicants, with special mention of the names of not more than fifteen and not less than three of their number, who are to be the first or provisional directors of the company; g) The amount of stock taken by each applicant, the amount, if any, paid in upon the stock of each applicant, and the manner in which the same has been paid, and is held for the company.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 6; Imp. §§ 3—5.

Form of application. 8. The application shall be in accordance with form A in the Schedule to this Act and may ask to have embodied in the letters patent then applied for, any provision which could under this Part be contained in any by-law of the company or of the directors approved by a vote of shareholders, which provision so embodied shall not, unless power is given therefor in the letters patent, be subject to repeal or alteration by any by-law.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 7.

Memorandum of agreement. 9. The application shall be accompanied by a memorandum of agreement in duplicate under seal which shall be in accordance with form B in the Schedule to this Act.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 7.

Condition precedent to issuing of letters patent to be established. 10. Before the letters patent are issued the applicants shall establish to the satisfaction of the Secretary of State the sufficiency of their application and memorandum of agreement and the truth and sufficiency of the facts therein set forth, and that the proposed name is not the name of any other known incorporated or unincorporated company or one likely to be confounded with any such name; and for that purpose the Secretary of State shall take any requisite evidence in writing by oath or affirmation or by solemn declaration and shall keep of record any such evidence so taken.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 7.

Averments to be recited. 11. The letters patent shall recite such of the established averments in the application and memorandum of agreement as to the Secretary of State seems expedient.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 8.

Name of company. 12. The Secretary of State may give to the company a corporate name, different from that proposed by the applicants if the proposed name is objectionable.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 9; Imp. § 8.

Notice to be published. Further publication. 13. Notice of the granting of the letters patent shall be forthwith given by the Secretary of State by two insertions in the Canada Gazette, in the form C in the Schedule to this Act; and thereupon, from the date of the letters patent, the persons therein named, and such persons as shall have become subscribers to the memorandum of agreement or who thereafter become shareholders in the company, and their successors shall be a body corporate and politic, by the name mentioned in the letters patent. 2. A copy of every such notice shall forthwith be, by the company to which such notice relates, inserted on four separate occasions in at least one newspaper in the county, city, or place where the head office or chief agency of the company is established.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 10.

As to existing companies.

Existing companies may be incorporated. Effect of letters patent. Names of shareholders. Effect of letters patent. 14. Any company heretofore incorporated for any purpose or object for which letters patent may be issued under this Part, whether under a special or a general Act, and now being a subsisting and valid corporation, may apply for letters patent to carry on its business under this Part, and the Secretary of State, with the approval of the Governor in Council, may direct the issue of letters patent incorporating the shareholders of the said company as a company under this Part. 2. Upon the issuing of such letters patent all the rights, property, and obligations of the former company shall be and become transferred to the new company, and all proceedings may be continued or commenced by or against the new company that might have been continued or commenced by or against the old company. 3. It shall not be necessary in any such letters patent to set out the names of the shareholders. 4. After the issue of such letters patent the company, shall be governed in all respects by the provisions of this Part, except that the liability of the shareholders to creditors of the old company shall remain as at the time of the issue of the letters patent.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 11; Imp. § 249.

Scope of letters patent. 15. If a subsisting company applies for the issue of letters patent under this Part, the Secretary of State may, by the letters patent, extend the powers of the company to such other objects for which letters patent may be issued under this Part as the applicant desires, and as the Secretary of State thinks fit to include in the letters patent.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 12; Imp. § 249.

First directors. 16. The Secretary of State may in any letters patent issued under this Part to any subsisting company name the first directors of the new company, and the letters patent may be issued to the new company by the name of the old company or by another name.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 12.

Existing companies incorporated by Act may be incorporated under this Part. Proceedings continued. Name of shareholders. Effect of letters patent. 17. Any company incorporated under any general or special Act of any of the Provinces of Canada, and any company duly incorporated under the laws of the United Kingdom or of any foreign country for any of the purposes or objects for which letters patent may be issued under this Part, and being at the time of the application a subsisting and valid corporation, may apply for letters patent under this Part, and the Secretary of State, upon receiving satisfactory evidence that the Act of incorporation or charter of the company so applying is valid and subsisting and that no public or private interest will be prejudiced, may issue letters patent incorporating the shareholders of the company so applying as a company under this Part, limiting, if necessary, the powers of the said company to such purposes or objects as might have been granted had the shareholders applied in the first instance to the Secretary of State for letters patent under this Part, and thereupon all the rights, property, and obligations of the former company shall be and become transferred to the new company, and all proceedings may be continued or commenced by or against the new company that might have been continued or commenced by or against the old company. 2. It shall not be necessary in any such letters patent to set out the names of the shareholders. 3. After the issue of such letters patent the company shall be governed in all respects by the provisions of this Part, except that the liability of the shareholders to creditors of the old company shall remain as at the time of the issue of the letters patent.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 13; Imp. § 249.

Proceedings for incorporation of chartered companies. 18. Every company desirous of obtaining letters patent under the last preceding section shall first file in the office of the Secretary of State of Canada a certified copy of the charter or Act incorporating the company, and shall also designate the place in Canada where its principal office will be situated and the name of the agent or manager in Canada authorized to represent the company and to accept process in all suits and proceedings against the company for any liabilities incurred by the company therein.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 13; Imp. § 249.

Return to Minister. 19. Every such company to which such letters patent have been granted, when so required, shall make a return to the Secretary of State of the names of its shareholders, the amount of its paid-up capital, and the value of its real and personal estate held in Canada, and, in default of making the said return within three months, the letters patent may be cancelled.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 13.

Publication of notice. 20. Notice of the issue of such letters patent shall be published in the Canada Gazette.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 13.

Change of name.

Minister may change name by supplementary letters. 21. If it is made to appear to the satisfaction of the Secretary of State that the name of a company, given by original or supplementary letters patent issued under this Part, is the same as the name of an existing incorporated or unincorporated company, or so similar thereto as to be liable to be confounded therewith, the Secretary of State may direct the issue of supplementary letters patent, reciting the former letters and changing the name of the company to some other name which shall be set forth in the supplementary letters patent.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 14; Imp. § 8.

Company may obtain change of name. 22. When a company is desirous of adopting another name, the Secretary of State, upon being satisfied that the change desired is not for any improper purpose, may direct the issue of supplementary letters patent, reciting the former letters patent and changing the name of the company to some other name, which shall be set forth in the supplementary letters patent.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 15.

Change not to affect rights or obligations. 23. No alteration of name under the two sections last preceding shall affect the rights or obligations of the company; and all proceedings may be continued or commenced by or against the company under its new name that might have been continued or commenced by or against the company under its former name.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 16; Imp. § 8 (5).

Fees and forms.

Tariff by Governor in Council. Must be paid before letters issued. 24. The Governor in Council may, from time to time, establish, alter, and regulate the tariff of the fees to be paid on application for any letters patent or supplementary letters patent under this Part, the amount of which may be varied according to the nature of the company, the amount of the capital stock or other particulars as the Governor in Council thinks fit. 2. No steps shall be taken in the Department of the Secretary of State towards the issue of any letters patent or supplementary letters patent under this Part, until after all fees therefor are duly paid.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, §§ 13, 17; Imp. § 237.

Forms to be prescribed by Governor in Council. 25. The Governor in Council may prescribe the forms of proceedings and registration in respect to letters patent and supplementary letters patent issued under this Part, and in respect to all other matters requisite for carrying out the objects of this Part.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 17; Imp. § 118.

Commencement of business.

Ten per cent of capital to be paid. 26. The company shall not commence its operations or incur any liability before ten per centum of its authorized capital has been subscribed and paid for.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 18; Imp. §§ 16, 87. Where a company's charter provided that the company should not commence operations until 50% of its capital stock was subscribed, and 25% of such subscription paid up, it was held, that the words "commence operations" were not intended to prevent calls being made on the stock subscribed for, nor to prevent the provisional directors from acting in the name of the company, so long as their acts fell short of what might be properly termed commencing operations.

Forfeiture of charter.

Forfeiture of charter for non-user. 27. In case of non-user by the company of its charter for three consecutive years or in case the company does not go into actual operation within three years after the charter is granted, such charter shall be and become forfeited.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 19; Imp. § 242. In Brooke v. Bank of Upper Canada, (1867), 4 O. P. R. 162, it was held that a forfeiture of the charter did not operate as a total dissolution of the bank; that the bank was still a corporate body liable to have its property administered for satisfaction of its debts and that some "formal" process" was necessary finally to determine and put an end to all the functions of the corporation. See also La Compagnie du Cap Gibraltar v. Lalonde, (1889), M. L. R. 5 S. C. 127.

General powers and duties of the company.

Powers given subject to this Act. 28. All powers given to the company by letters patent or supplementary letters patent shall be exercised subject to the provisions and restrictions contained in this Part.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 20.

As to real estate. Loans. Property and power vested by incorporation. 29. The company may acquire, hold, mortgage, sell, and convey any real estate requisite for the carrying on of the undertaking of the company. 2. The company shall in no case make any loan to any shareholder of the company. 3. The company shall forthwith upon incorporation under this Part, become and be vested with all property and rights, real and personal, theretofore held by it or for it under any trust created with a view to its incorporation, and with all the powers, privileges, and immunities, requisite or incidental to the carrying on of its undertaking, as if it was incorporated by a special Act of Parliament, embodying the provisions of this Part and of the letters patent and supplementary letters patent issued to such company.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, §§ 21, 70; Imp. § 16 (2). A statutory company has power to mortgage, unless its incapacity to do so is either expressly declared or to be gathered by implication from the terms of the act of incorporation. "In other words no enabling power is requisite to confer the authority to mortgage, but, prima facie, every corporation must be taken to possess it." — Per Strong J., in Bickford v. Grand Junction Railway Co., (1877), 1 S. C. R. 696, at pp. 729 and 730. But a disposal of the entire property of a company so as to prevent the carrying on of the objects for which it was formed, is an ultra vires act. — Montreal Telegraph Co. v. Low, (1883), 27 L. C. J. at p. 277. In Farrall v. Carribou, etc., Co., (1887), 30 N. S. 199, it was held that a trading company had power to borrow money and mortgage its property, and so long as the terms of the mortgage were not illegal, there could be no objection to paying a bonus for the accommodation obtained. In Waterous Engine Co. v. Palmerston, (1892), 21 S. C. R. 556, the Court held that a contract under corporate seal for the purchase of a fire engine which was not authorized by the by-laws and not completed by acceptance, could not be enforced against the company. A corporation is liable on an executed contract for the performance of work within the purpose for which it was incorporated, and of which it had received the benefit, though the contract was not executed under its corporate seal. — Adams & Burns v. Bank of Montreal, (1901), 32 S. C. R. 719. In Neelon v. Thorold, (1893), 22 S. C. R. 390, a company which had received a loan of money from a shareholder was estopped from setting up the defence that the loan was unauthorized; but see McArthur v. Portage la Prairie, (1894), 9 Man. R. 588. Where directors had bought goods on the credit of the company, which by the act of incorporation the company had no power to purchase, they were held not liable on a warranty of authority. — Struthers v. MacKenzie, (1897), 28 O. R. 381. A parol agreement entered into by the "duly authorized agents" of an insurance company to refer questions of the company's liability to arbitration is not binding on the company, since it is not a contract relating to the purposes for which the company was incorporated. — Calvin v. Provincial Insurance Co., (1870), 20 U. C. C. P. 267. If a company enters into an ultra vires transaction, and in the course of litigation a judgment is entered by consent, such judgment is as binding upon the parties as one obtained after a contest, and will not be set aside because the transaction was beyond the scope of the company's powers. — Charlebois v. Delap, (1896), 26 S. C. R. 221. The Legislature may give a local corporation authority to borrow money at any rate of interest already legalized as to other persons having the right of borrow. — Royal Canadian Insurance Co. v. Montreal Warehousing Co., (1880), 3 L. N. 155. Where the bonds of a company provided for the payment of interest at the rate of 10%, and, upon default in payment, the trustee, under a mortgage given to secure the bonds, issued a declaration calling in the principal and interest under an acceleration clause in the mortgage, it was held that interest at the rate provided for, and not at the statutory rate, was payable after the date of the declaration. — Eastern Trust Co. v. Cushing Sulphite Fibre Co., (1907), 3 N. B. Eq. 392; 2 E. L. R. 93. It is ultra vires the powers of a tug company incorporated under this Act for the purpose of carrying on a general carrying and salvage business to guarantee payment of a boiler purchased by the owner of a tug, who was employed by the company, where the boiler was to be used by him to operate the tug. — William's Machinery Co. v. The Crawford Co., (1908), 16 O. L. R. 245. But a guarantee of bonds issued by a company for the price of an elevator, given by a railway company to which the elevator is leased, and amounting in effect to an undertaking to pay the rent of the elevator to the trustee of the bond holders, is valid and binding, and may be enforced against such railway company. — Royal Trust Co. v. Great Northern Railway Co., (1906), Q. R. 35 S. C. 494. A company is liable for torts committed by its employees to the same extent as principals are liable for the torts of their servants. — Harris v. Brunette Saw-mill Co., (1893), 3 B. C. 172. — Under Criminal Code, (R. S. C. c. 146), § 241 a corporation may be indicted for omitting, without lawful excuse, to perform the duties of avoiding danger to human life from anything in its charge or under its control. — Union Colliery Co. v. The Queen, (1900), 31 S. C. R. 81. A Justice of the Peace cannot compel a company to appear before him; nor can he bind a company over to appear and answer an indictment. — In re Chapman v. City of London, (1890), 19 O. R. 33. The Court has no power to interfere with the internal management of the company. Thus, it has no power to declare a dividend to be paid, or to regulate the mode of investing the profits of the company. — Burland v. Earle, (1902) A. C. 83; reversing Earle v. Burland, (1899), 27 O. A. R. 540.

Offices, agencies, domicile. Notice. 30. The company shall, at all times, have an office in the city or town in which its chief place of business in Canada is situate, which shall be the legal domicile of the company in Canada; and the company may establish such other offices and agencies elsewhere as it deems expedient. 2. Notice of the situation of such principal office and of any change therein shall be published in the Canada Gazette.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 22; Imp. § 62.

Acts of attorney binding. 31. Every deed which any person, lawfully empowered in that behalf by the company as its attorney, signs on behalf of the company and seals with his seal, shall be binding on the company and shall have the same effect as if it was under the seal of the company.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 23; Imp. § 78.

Contracts of agent binding on company. Cases where seal not necessary. No individual liability. 32. Every contract, agreement, engagement or bargain made, and every bill of exchange drawn, accepted, or endorsed, and every promissory note and cheque made, drawn or endorsed on behalf of the company, by any agent, officer, or servant of the company, in general accordance with his powers as such under the by-laws of the company, shall be binding upon the company. 2. In no case shall it be necessary to have the seal of the company affixed to any such contract, agreement, engagement, bargain, bill of exchange, promissory note, or cheque, or to prove that the same was made, drawn, accepted, or endorsed, as the case may be, in pursuance of any by-law or special vote or order. 3. No person so acting as such agent, officer, or servant of the company shall be thereby subjected individually to any liability whatever to any third person.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 24; Imp. §§ 76, 77. In a suit against the company for wages, where it was shewn that there was no contract under defendant's corporate seal, but that plaintiff was employed by the manager of the company with the knowledge of three directors, the company was held liable. — Milue v. Ontario Marble Quarries, (1909), 13 O. W. R. 1137. A writing sous seing privé signed by the manager and secretary of a company, without special authorization of the board of directors, is not signed by a competent officer, and is not available as a valid confession of judgment authorizing the defendant's attorney to confess judgment in its behalf. — Bessette v. Equitable Insurance Co., (1907), 10 Q. P. R. 260; see also National Malleable Castings Co. v. Smiths Falls, etc., Co., (1907), 14 O. L. R. 22; 7 O. W. R. 436. In Paquet v. Mitabetchonam Pulp Co., (1907), Q. R. 29 S. C. 535, it was held that the secretary of a company having been authorized by resolution to sign notes in settlement of undisputed accounts due, could validly sign a note for a debt in respect of which he had been by special resolution directed to "make arrangements" with the creditor, and the company could not in an action on the note deny his authority to do so. In Vulcan Iron Works v. Leary, (1905), 1 West. L. R. 453, the manager of a company to be formed was held liable for goods purchased for the use of the company but charged to him personally. "Under these sections contracts made by agents, officers, or servants of the company in general accordance with their powers are binding on the company, and this provision will be construed broadly and a reasonable latitude allowed in ascertaining the agent's authority." — Masten, Company Law, p. 235, citing Taylor v. Cobourg, etc., Co., (1874), 24 U. C. C. P. 200; Thompson v. Brantford, etc., Co., (1898), 25 O. P. R. 340; Clarke v. Union Fire Insurance Co., (1884), 10 O. P. R. 339.

Name with word "limited" required to be used in certain ways. 33. The company shall keep its name, with the word "limited" after the name, painted or affixed, in letters easily legible, in a conspicuous position on the outside of every office or place in which the business of the company is carried on, and shall have its name, with the said word after it, engraven in legible characters, on its seal, and shall have its name, with the said word after it in legible characters, mentioned in all notices, advertisements, and other official publications of the company and in all bills of exchange, promissory notes, endorsements, cheques, and orders for money or goods purporting to be signed by or on behalf of such company, and in all bills of parcels, invoices, and receipts of the company.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 25; Imp. §§ 3, 4, 63. For penalty for violation of this section, see §§ 114 and 115, infra.

Obtaining of further powers.

Company may authorize directors to apply for extension of powers. 34. The company may, from time to time, by a resolution passed by the votes of shareholders representing at least two-thirds in value of the subscribed stock of the company, at a special general meeting called for the purpose, authorize the directors to apply for supplementary letters patent, extending the powers of the company to such further or other purposes or objects for which a company may be incorporated under this Part, as are defined in such resolution.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 26; Imp. § 9.

Application by directors. 35. The directors may, at any time within six months after the passing of any such resolution, make application to the Secretary of State, for the issue of such supplementary letters patent.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 27; Imp. § 9.

Evidence of resolution. 36. Before such supplementary letters patent are issued, the applicants shall establish to the satisfaction of the Secretary of State the due passing of the resolution authorizing the application, and for that purpose the Secretary of State shall take any requisite evidence in writing, by oath or affirmation, or by statutory declaration under the Canada Evidence Act, and shall keep of record any such evidence so taken.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 28; Imp. § 9.

Supplementary letters patent granted. Notice of issue. Effect of letters. Publication of notice. 37. Upon the due passing of such resolution being so established, the Secretary of State may grant supplementary letters patent extending the powers of the company to all or any of the objects defined in the resolution; and notice thereof shall be forthwith given by the Secretary of State in the Canada Gazette, in the form D in the Schedule to this Act. 2. From the date of the supplementary letters patent, the undertaking of the company shall extend to and include the further or other purposes or objects set out in the supplementary letters patent as fully as if such further or other purposes or objects were mentioned in the original letters patent. 3. A copy of every such notice shall forthwith be, by the company to which the notice relates, inserted on four separate occasions in at least one newspaper in the county, city, or place where the head office or chief agency is established.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 29; Imp. § 9.

Liability of shareholders.

Limited to amount unpaid on stock. 38. The shareholders of the company shall not, as such, be responsible for any act, default, or liability of the company, or for any engagement, claim, payment, loss, injury, transaction, matter or thing relating to or connected with the company, beyond the amount unpaid on their respective shares in the capital stock thereof.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 30; Imp. § 123. See notes § 39, infra. Where four parties described not in their own names but as a collective body, which was not shewn to be corporate, signed and sealed a deed with their own names and seals, they were held to be individually bound. — Cullen v. Nickerson, (1861), 10 U. C. C. P. 549. In case of a nominal corporation which has no legal status as such, the ostensible corporators are partners and their liability as partners on contracts of the company is joint and not joint and several. — Gildersleeve v. Balfour, (1893), 15 O. P. R. 293.

Liability of shareholders. Action when. Amount recoverable. Application. 39. Every shareholder, until the whole amount of his shares has been paid up, shall be individually liable to the creditors of the company to an amount equal to that not paid up thereon; but he shall not be liable to an action therefor by any creditor until an execution at the suit of such creditor against the company has been returned unsatisfied in whole or in part. 2. The amount due on such execution, not exceeding the amount unpaid on his shares, as aforesaid, shall be the amount recoverable, with costs, from such shareholder. 3. Any amount so recoverable, if paid by the shareholder, shall be considered as paid on his shares.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 31; Imp. § 123. A contract between the company and a person who makes application for shares must be dealt with as ordinary contracts; there must be an offer by one to take shares and an acceptance of such offer by the company. — In re Bolt & Iron Co., Hovenden's Case, (1884), 10 O. P. R. 434. Therefore a subscription obtained by fraud or misrepresentation is voidable. — Provincial Insurance Co. v. Brown, (1860), 9 U. C. C. P. 286. An offer under seal to take shares in a company, the deed being delivered to the agent of the company, is not revocable as a parol offer would be. Where the subscription was conditioned upon the company's selling a certain amount of stock, and such amount was not sold, the subscriber was released from his liability as a shareholder. — Ontario Ladies College v. Kendry, (1905), 10 O. L. R. 324. But where the agreement of the company is merely collateral, the shareholder is liable on his shares, and must resort to his right of action for damages for breach of such agreement. — Clarke v. Union Fire Insurance Co., Caston's Case, (1884), 10 O. P. R. 339; see also Kingston Street Railway v. Foster, (1879), 44 U. C. Q. B. 552. In the following cases in which defendant was sought to be charged with the statutory liability of a shareholder under this section, the question at issue was whether or not defendant had entered into a valid contract of membership. The liability sought to be imposed in these cases was one accruing while the company was solvent and should be distinguished from the liability which arises under a winding-up proceeding. See Dominion Winding-up Act, § 51, and notes, infra. Smart v. Bowmanville Machine Co. (1875), 25 U. C. C. P. 503, (estoppel to deny ownership of shares); Long v. Guelph Lumber Co., (1880), 31 U. C. C. P. 129, (condition of subscription ultra vires); Nasmith v. Manning, (1880), 5 O. A. R. 126, (proof of allotment of shares); National Insurance Co. v. Egleson, (1881), 29 Gr. 406, (allotment of shares); Coté v. Stadacona Insurance Co., (1881), 6 S. C. R. 193, (acquiescence by receipt of dividend); Page v. Austin, (1882), 10 S. C. R. 132, (shareholder not estopped from questioning legality of issue); Beatty v. Neelon, (1886), 13 S. C. R. 1, (misrepresentation by promoters: delay in bringing action); Magog Textile Co. v. Price, (1887), 14 S. C. R. 664, (subscription before incorporation; no allotment); Halifax Carrette Co. v. Moir, (1895), 28 N. S. 45, (sufficiency of acceptance by the company); North Sydney Mining, etc., Co. v. Greener, (1898), 31 N. S. 41, (conditional subscription); Cazelais v. Picotte, (1900), Q. R. 18 S. C. 538, (conditional subscription); Ottawa Dairy Co. v. Sorley, (1904), 34 S. C. R. 508, (alleged payment for stock on goodwill); Sourlay v. Chandler, (1906), 1 East. L. R. 433, (rescission of agreement to take shares; misrepresentation; laches); Farrell v. Portland Rolling Mills Co., (1908), 38 N. B. 364, (delay in rescission of contract for shares induced by fraud); Anglo-American Lumber Co. v. McLellan, (1908), 14 B. C. 93; 9 West. L. R. 469, (conditional subscription; no allotment); Farmers' Bank v. Lunstrum, (1909), 14 O. W. R. 288, (attempted withdrawal of application). The holder of shares which had been issued illegally below par is liable for calls for the unpaid balances of them at par value. — Northwest Electric Co. v. Walsh, (1898), 29 S. C. R. 33. In McKenzie v. Kittridge, (1879), 4 S. C. R. 336, it was held that, under §§ 33, 34 and 35 of c. 63 Cons. St. Can., payment in full for shares and registration of a certificate to that effect, releases the shareholder from all liability for the debts of the company, except debts due to employees. The above cases have been superseded by the provisions of this Act. A person purchasing shares in good faith without notice from the original shareholder, as fully paid up, is not liable to an execution creditor of the company, whose execution has been returned nulla bona for the amount unpaid upon the shares. — McCracken v. MacIntyre, (1877), 1 S. C. R. 479. A mortgagee, who takes a transfer of shares absolute in form and entered on the books of the company as an absolute transfer, may show the real nature of the transaction. — Page v. Austin, (1882), 10 S. C. R. 132. Shares in a company may be paid for in property and if so paid for they must be treated as fully paid up. — In re Hess Manufacturing Co., Edgar v. Sloan, (1894), 23 S. C. R. 644. Stock may also be paid for in goodwill of a business taken over by the company. — Ottawa Dairy Co. v. Sorley, (1904), 34 S. C. R. 508. But where subscribers agreed to pay a part of the price of the shares in cash, the balance to be paid in future services, it was held, in the winding-up proceedings, that as there was no agreement in writing for payment of the differences in services instead of cash, that the shareholders were liable to the liquidator for the balance of the purchase price of the shares. Disorganization of the company does not discharge the shareholder from the obligation to pay balances on shares. The rights of creditors against shareholders are still preserved, — Hughes v. La Compagnie du Cap Gibraltar, (1889), M. L. R. 5 S. C. 129.

Set-off against creditor's action. 40. Any shareholder may plead by way of defence in whole or in part to any action by any creditor under the last preceding section any set-off which he can set up against the company, except a claim for unpaid dividends, or a salary or allowance as a president or a director of the company.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 31; Imp. § 123.

Trustees not personally liable. Estate liable. Holder of stock as collateral security. 41. No person, holding stock in the company as an executor, administrator, tutor, curator, guardian, or trustee of or for any person named in the books of the company as being so represented by him, shall be personally subject to liability as a shareholder; but the estate and funds in the hands of such person shall be liable in like manner, and to the same extent, as the testator or intestate would be if living, or the minor, ward, or interdicted person, or the person interested in such trust fund would be, if competent to act and holding such stock in his own name. 2. No person holding such stock as collateral security shall be personally subject to such liability, but the person pledging such stock shall be considered for the purposes of such liability as holding the same and shall be liable as a shareholder accordingly.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 32; Imp. § 126.

Trustees represent stock and pledgor. 42. Every such executor, administrator, curator, guardian, or trustee shall represent the stock held by him, at all meetings of the company, and may vote as a shareholder; and every person who pledges his stock may represent the same at all such meetings and, notwithstanding such pledge, vote as a shareholder.

Prospectus.

Prospectus must specify contracts entered into by company, or promoters. Unless specified prospectus fraudulent. 43. Every prospectus of the company, and every notice inviting persons to subscribe for shares in the company, shall specify the date of and names of the parties to any contract entered into by the company or the promoters, directors, or trustees thereof before the issue of such prospectus or notice, whether subject to adoption by the directors or the company or otherwise. 2. Every prospectus or notice which does not specify such date and names shall, with respect to any person who takes shares in the company on the faith of such prospectus or notice without notice of such contract, be deemed fraudulent on the part of the officers of the company who knowingly issue such prospectus or notice.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 34; Imp. §§ 80—84. Where after a prospectus for the sale of shares in a company has been issued, a mortgage was made to secure an indebtedness existing at the time of the issue of the prospectus the failure to communicate the existence of the mortgage to the purchaser was not such a concealment or misrepresentation as would entitle him to rescind. —

Petrie v. Guelph Lumber Co., (1886), 11 S. C. R. 450. For an example of a misrepresentation which will entitle a purchaser of shares to rescind, see Temperance Colonization Co. v. Fairfield, (1885), 16 O. R. 544. A purchaser of shares must act promptly upon discovering the misrepresentation; a short delay has been held sufficient to deprive him of his right to rescind. — Petrie v. Guelph Lumber Co., supra; Farrell v. Portland Rolling Mills Co., (1907), 3 N. B. Eq. 508. But see Farrell v. Manchester, (1908), 40 S. C. R. 339, where a delay of nearly a year was held not a bar in a suit for rescission. The fact that plaintiff has sold a part of his shares will not preclude him from obtaining rescission as to the remainder. — Nelles v. Ontario Investment Association, (1889), 17 O. R. 129. As to when the right to rescind for misrepresentation will be waived, see Bank of Hamilton v. Johnston, (1908), 11 O. W. R. 111; McCallan v. Sun Savings & Loan Co., (1902), 1 O. W. R. 226. Where an agent of a company by false representations induced a purchaser to buy shares belonging to a director, the directors were held responsible for the fraud practised on the purchaser, and in an action against the purchaser on a note given for the shares, defendant was held not liable. — Goold v. Gillies, (1908), 40 S. C. R. 437. But see Farrell v. Portland Rolling Mills Co., (1908), 38 N. B. 364, where it was held, upon the facts of the case, that the directors were not liable for misrepresentations in a prospectus issued by a broker to a holder of shares who purchased relying on the prospectus, it having been issued by the broker without their authority; see also Gourlee v. Chandler, (1908), 41 N. S. 341. In Kennedy v. Acadia Pulp & Paper Mills Co., (1906), 38 N. S. 291, where it appeared that the directors had employed competent managers upon whom they were depending for information, it was held that they were not responsible for representations which were not discovered to be mistaken until some time after the prospectus had been issued. Shareholders in a company cannot bring an action as individuals against promoters for damages caused by illegal misrepresentations by the latter in the prospectus of the company, the injury, if any, being an injury to the company and not to the shareholders. — Beatty v. Neelon, (1886), 13 S. C. R. 1. Where the undertaking for which the company was incorporated had not been proceeded within the time announced in the prospectus, it was held that defendant could not be held bound by his subscription to take shares. — Patterson v. Turner, (1902), 3 O. L. R. 373.

Holding stock of other companies.

Conditions on which company may purchase stock of other companies. Proviso.

44. The company shall not under any circumstances use any of its funds in the purchase of stock in any other corporation, unless nor until the directors have been expressly authorized by a by-law passed by them for the purpose and sanctioned by a vote of not less than two-thirds in value of the capital stock represented at a general meeting of the company duly called for considering the subject of the by-law: Provided that if the letters patent authorize such purchase it shall not be necessary to pass such by-law.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 35.

Capital stock.

Stock to be personal estate. 45. The stock of the company shall be personal estate, and shall be transferable, in such manner and subject to all such conditions and restrictions as are prescribed by this Part or by the letters patent or by the by-laws of the company.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 36; Imp. § 22. Stock in a building society may be taken in execution. — Robinson v. Grange, (1859), 18 U. C. Q. B. 260. Shares may be seized and sold under execution though no certificate may have been issued. — European, etc., Railway Co. v. McLeod, (1875), 16 N. B. 3. Shares, while registered in the books of the company in the name of the judgment debtor, are liable to execution as being his property, and do not pass to his trustees under a deed of assignment to them. — Brock v. Ruttan, (1869), 1 U. C. C. P. 218. Stock in a company is only bound from the time when the notice of the writ is given to the company by the sheriff, and not from the time of the delivery of the writ to the sheriff. — Hatch v. Rousland, (1889), 5 O. P. R. 223. Where stock has been transferred, and the transferee registered in the books of the company, such stock cannot be seized under an execution against the transferor, even though there has been no formal acceptance by the transferee. — Woodruff v. Harris, (1883), 11 U. C. Q. B. 490. A bona fide assignment or pledge, for value, of shares is valid as between the assignor and assignee, notwithstanding that no entry of the transfer has been made in the books of the company; and after such assignment the shares cannot be seized under an execution against the assignor. — Morton v. Cowan, (1894), 25 O. R. 529.

Allotment of stock. 46. In so far as the stock of the company or any increased amount thereof is not allotted by the letters patent or the supplementary letters patent and when no other definite provision is made by such letters patent or supplementary letters patent such stock shall be allotted at such times and in such manner as the directors by by-law shall prescribe.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 37; Imp. §§ 85, 86.

Preference stock. Provisions as to control of affairs. 47. The directors of the company may make by-laws for creating and issuing any part of the capital stock as preference stock, giving the same such preference and priority, as respects dividends and in any other respect, over ordinary stock as is by such by-laws declared. 2. Such by-laws may provide that the holders of shares of such preference stock shall have the right to select a certain stated proportion of the board of directors, or may give them such other control over the affairs of the company as is considered expedient.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 38; Imp. Sched. I. See Ontario Companies Act, §§ 73—75, infra, and cases cited in notes.

By-law to be sanctioned. 48. No such by-law shall have any force or effect whatever until after it has been sanctioned by a vote of three-fourths of the shareholders, present in person or by proxy at a general meeting of the company duly called for considering the same and representing two-thirds of the stock of the company, or until the same shall be unanimously sanctioned in writing by the shareholders of the company.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 38.

Rights and liabilities of holders of preference stock. 49. Holders of shares of such preference stock shall be shareholders within the meaning of this Part, and shall in all respects possess the rights and be subject to the liabilities of shareholders within the meaning of this Part: Provided that in respect of dividends, and in any other respect declared by by-law as authorized by this Part, they shall, as against the ordinary shareholders, be entitled to the preferences and rights given by such by-law.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 38.

Execution of trusts. Receipt of shareholder as a discharge. Application of money. 50. The company shall not be bound to see to the execution of any trust, whether express, implied, or constructive, in respect of any share. 2. The receipt of the shareholder in whose name the same stands in the books of the company shall be a valid and binding discharge to the company for any dividend or money payable in respect of such share whether notice of such trust has been given to the company or not. 3. The company shall not be bound to see to the application of the money paid upon such receipt.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 39; Imp. § 27. See notes § 161, infra. A bona fide subscription for stock by a person in his own name, but really as trustee and agent for another, who requested such stock to be subscribed for, is valid. — Davidson v. Grange, (1854), 4 Gr. 377. But where the officers and directors of the company are parties to a breach of trust the transaction may be set aside. — Madden v. Dimond, (1905), 12 B. C. 80; Lasell v. Hannah, (1906), 37 S. C. R. 324.

Increase or reduction of capital, etc.

By-law to consolidate shares. Purchase of fractions of shares by company. By-law for subdivision of shares. 51. The directors of the company may, at any time, whenever the par value of the existing shares of the company is less than one hundred dollars each, make a by-law consolidating them into shares of a larger par value; but no such consolidated share shall exceed the par value of one hundred dollars. 2. For the purpose of such consolidation, the company shall have the power to purchase fractions of shares, and shall be bound to sell any shares held from such purchases within two years after the purchase. 3. The directors of the company may also, at any time, make a by-law subdividing the existing shares into shares of a smaller amount.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 40; 4 Edw. 7, c. 5, § 2; Imp. § 41. A shareholder who has received shares, which were a part of an unauthorized issue of capital stock, is not liable to an execution creditor of the company for the unpaid purchase price of such shares. — Page v. Austin, (1882), 10 S. C. R. 132.

Increase of capital. By-law to increase capital to be approved and confirmed. 52. The directors of the company may, at any time after ninety per centum of the capital stock of the company has been taken up and fifty per centum thereon paid in, make a by-law for increasing the capital stock of the company to any amount which they consider requisite for the due carrying out of the objects of the company. 2. No by-law for increasing or reducing the capital stock of the company, or for subdividing the shares, shall have any force or effect whatsoever, until it is approved by the votes of shareholders representing at least two-thirds in value of the subscribed stock of the company at a special general meeting of the company duly called for considering the same, and afterwards confirmed by supplementary letters patent.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, §§ 41, 43; Imp. § 41.

By-law to allot stock. Directors allot when. 53. Such by-law shall declare the number of the shares of the new stock, and may prescribe the manner in which the same shall be allotted. 2. In default of the manner of the allotment of the shares of the new stock being prescribed by such by-law, the control of such allotment shall vest absolutely in the directors.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 41.

Reduction of capital by by-law. Declaration contained in. Liability to creditors not affected. 54. The directors of the company may, at any time, make a by-law for reducing the capital stock of the company to any amount which they consider advisable and sufficient for the due carrying out of the undertaking of the company. 2. Such by-law shall declare the number and value of the shares of the stock as so reduced, and the allotment thereof, or the manner in which the same shall be made. 3. The liability of the shareholders to persons who were, at the time of the reduction of the capital, creditors of the company, shall remain the same as if the capital had not been reduced.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 42; Imp. §§ 46, 53.

Supplementary letters to confirm by-law. 55. At any time, not more than six months after the approval of a by-law for increasing or reducing the capital stock of the company, or for subdividing the shares, the directors may apply to the Secretary of State for the issue of supplementary letters patent to confirm the same.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 44; Imp. § 47.

Evidence with application. Evidence how taken. 56. The directors shall, with such application, produce a copy of such by-law, under the seal of the company, and signed by the president or vice-president and the secretary, and establish to the satisfaction of the Secretary of State, the due passage and approval of such by-law and the expediency and bona fide character of the increase or reduction of capital or subdivision of shares, as the case may be, thereby provided for. 2. The Secretary of State shall, for that purpose, take any requisite evidence in writing, by oath or affirmation or by solemn declaration, and shall keep of record any such evidence so taken.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 44.

Granting of the letters. Notice. Effect of letters. New stock subject to provisions of this Part. 57. Upon the due passage and approval of such by-law being so established, the Secretary of State may grant such supplementary letters patent. 2. Notice of the granting of such letters patent shall be forthwith given by the Secretary of State in the Canada Gazette, in the form E in the Schedule to this Act. 3. From the date of such supplementary letters patent, the capital stock of the company shall be and remain increased or reduced, or the shares subdivided, as the case may be, to the amount in the manner and subject to the conditions set forth by such by-law. 4. The whole of the stock, as so increased or reduced or with such subdivided shares shall become subject to the provisions of this Part, in like manner, as far as possible, as if every part thereof had been or formed part of the stock of the company originally subscribed.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 45; Imp. § 50.

Calls.

Calls within the first year. Calls for residue. 58. Not less than ten per centum upon the allotted shares of stock of the company shall, by means of one or more calls formally made, be called in and made payable within one year from the incorporation of the company. 2. The residue shall be called in and made payable when and as the letters patent, or the provisions of this Part, or the by-laws of the company direct.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 46. Provision as to payment of ten per centum within one year is directory only. — See Ontario Investment Association v. Sippi, (1890), 20 O. R. 440, where it was held that an otherwise valid transfer was not invalidated by the fact that the 10% mentioned was not paid. Under ordinary circumstances there is no liability to pay for shares until a call is made and notice thereof given to the shareholders. — In re Haggert Bros. Manufacturing Co., Peaker & Runion's Case, (1892), 19 O. A. R. 582. In Harris v. Dry Dock Co., (1869), 7 Gr. 450, a shareholder, who was also a judgment creditor of the company, was granted a decree compelling the directors to make calls.

Call when demand made. 59. A call shall be deemed to have been made at the time when the resolution of the directors authorizing such call was passed.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 47. Where shareholders have confirmed a by-law making calls, they are estopped from objecting that such calls were improperly made. — Christopher v. Noxon, (1884),

4 O. R. 672. If calls are made by directors in such a way as to discriminate between one set of shareholders and another, the Court may interfere to protect those who are prejudiced. — Christopher v. Noxon, supra; European, etc., Railway Co., v. McLeod, (1875), 16 N. B. 3. Notice of calls is deemed to have been given at the time of mailing, and not at the time when such notice reaches its destination. — Union Fire Insurance Co. v. Fitzsimmons, (1882), 32 U. C. C. P. 602; see also Union Fire Insurance Co. v. O'gara, (1883), 4 O. R. 359; Ross v. Converse, (1883), 27 L. C. J. 143; Bank of Liverpool v. Bigelow, (1878), 12 N. S. 236. But where the charter provided that one month's notice "shall be given," it was held that the mere posting of such notice was not a compliance with this provision. — Ross v. Machar, (1885), 8 O. R. 417. A shareholder is not estopped from disputing the legality of a call unauthorized by resolution. — London Gas Co. v. Campbell, (1856), 14 U. C. Q. B. 143.

Interest on calls. 60. If a shareholder fails to pay any call due by him, on or before the day appointed for the payment thereof, he shall be liable to pay interest for the same, at the rate of six per centum per annum from the day appointed for payment to the time of actual payment thereof.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 47. In St. Stephen Branch Railway Co. v. Black, (1870), 13 N. B. 139, it was held that the company could take and recover on a promissory note given by a shareholder in payment for assessment due on his shares. When a company falls into a complete state of disorganization, while its corporate existence is extinguished, it preserves its legal existence. Nevertheless it cannot bring suit for call without being properly authorized. — La Compagnie du Cap Gibraltar v. La Londe, (1889), M. L. R. 5 S. C. 127.

Payment in advance on shares. Interest may be allowed. 61. The directors may, if they think fit, receive from any shareholder willing to advance the same, beyond the sums then actually called for, all or any part of the amounts remaining unpaid on the shares held by such shareholders. 2. Upon the money, so paid in advance, or so much thereof, as, from time to time, exceeds the amount of the calls then made upon the shares in respect of which such advance is made, the company may pay interest at such rate not exceeding eight per centum per annum, as the shareholder who pays such sum in advance and the directors agree upon.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 48.

Forfeiture of shares for non-payment of calls. Revert to company. Liability of holders to creditors. 62. If after such demand or notice as is prescribed by the letters patent, or by resolution of the directors, or by the by-laws of the company, any call made upon any share is not paid within such time as by such letters patent or by resolution of the directors or by the by-laws is limited in that behalf, the directors, in their discretion, by vote to that effect duly recorded in their minutes, may summarily declare forfeited any shares whereon such call is not paid. 2. Such shares so declared forfeited shall thereupon become the property of the company, and may be disposed of as the company by the by-laws or otherwise prescribes. 3. Notwithstanding such forfeiture, the holder of such shares at the time of forfeiture shall continue liable to the creditors of the company at such time for the full amount unpaid on such shares at the time of forfeiture, less any sums which are subsequently received by the company in respect thereof.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 49. In Harris v. Dry Dock Co., (1859), 7 Gr. 450, it was held that a shareholder, who was also a judgment creditor, was entitled to a decree compelling directors to make calls, notwithstanding that the latter had power to order a forfeiture of shares, the forfeiture being a cumulative remedy; and see Marmora Foundry Co. v. Jackson, (1852), 9 U. C. Q. B. 509; Gilman v. Royal Canadian Insurance Co., (1884), M. L. R. 1 S. C. 1. Power to forfeit shares is to be exercised only when the circumstances of the shareholder render it expedient in the interests of the company, and cannot be employed for the benefit of a shareholder. — Common v. McArthur, (1898), 29 S. C. R. 239; Shares of bank stock cannot be declared forfeited for nonpayment of calls without notice putting the owner en demeure. — Banque d'Hochelaga, (1881), 4 L. N. 314; but see Nelles v. Second Mutual Building Society, (1881), 29 Gr. 399. For further cases involving sufficiency of notice, see Freeman v. Canadian, etc., Insurance Co., (1908), 17 O. L. R. 296; Johns v. North Vancouver, (1909), 11 West. L. R. 220; affirmed, (1910) A. C. 317.

Enforcement of payment of calls by action. What only need be alleged and proved. 63. The directors may, if they see fit, instead of declaring forfeited any share or shares, enforce payment of all calls, and interest thereon, by action in any court of competent jurisdiction. 2. In such action it shall not be necessary to set forth the special matter, but it shall be sufficient to declare that the defendant is a holder of one share or more, stating the number of shares, and is indebted in the sum of money to which the calls in arrear amount, in respect of one call or more, upon one share or more, stating the number or calls and the amount of each call, whereby an action has accrued to the company under this Part.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 50. The fact that the capital stock of a company was not wholly subscribed was held not a defence to an action by the company against a shareholder for calls. — Rascony, etc., Manufacturing Co. v. Desmarais, (1886), M. L. R. 2 S. C. 381.

Transfer of shares.

Invalid without entry. Exception. 64. Except for the purpose of exhibiting the rights of parties to any transfer of shares towards each other and of rendering any transferee jointly and severally liable with the transferor to the company and its creditors, no transfer of shares unless made by sale under execution or under the decree, order, or judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction, shall be valid for any purpose whatever until entry of such transfer is duly made in the register of transfers: Provided that, as to the stock of any company listed and dealt with on any recognized stock exchange by means of scrip, commonly in use, endorsed in blank and transferable by delivery, such endorsement and delivery shall, excepting for the purpose of voting at meetings of the company, constitute a valid transfer.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 51. Where shares had been transferred but the transferee's name had not been registered, and where it appeared that the transferee had acted as president of the company, it was held, in an action against the transferor, that the transfer was complete, and that the latter had discharged himself from liability as a shareholder. — Hamilton v. Grant, (1900), 30 S. C. R. 566. Where a transfer was signed by the wife of the shareholder at his direction, but not acted upon until after his death, it was held that the authority of the wife to deal with the certificate was revoked by the shareholder's death, and the purchaser, who was unable under the company's rules to be registered, was allowed to recover back the purchase money. The fact that the purchaser endeavoured to have himself registered as a holder, was not such an acceptance by him as would deprive him of his right to have the contract rescinded. — Castleman v. Waghorn, Gwynn & Co., (1908), 41 S. C. R. 88.

Unpaid shares. 65. No transfer of shares whereof the whole amount has not been paid in shall be made without the consent of the directors.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 52.

With calls unpaid. 66. No share shall be transferable until all previous calls thereon are fully paid in.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 54. Where a holder of stock upon which only 40% was paid up transferred his stock certificate issued by the company, the transferee was held not entitled to be registered as owner of paid-up stock. Such transferee may maintain an action in warranty to compel the transferor to pay the remaining 60%. — Beauchemin v. Richelieu Foundry Co., (1908), Q. R. 34 S. C. 261.

Registration of transfer. 67. The directors may decline to register any transfer of shares belonging to any shareholder who is indebted to the company.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 55.

Transfer by personal representative. 68. Any transfer of the shares or other interest of a deceased shareholder, made by his personal representative, shall, notwithstanding such personal representative is not himself a shareholder, be of the same validity as if he had been a shareholder at the time of his execution of the instrument of transfer.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 56; Imp. § 29.

Borrowing powers.

Authority. Borrowing. Amount. Issue of bonds. Hypothecation. Issue of bonds in foreign currency. Limitation as to bills and notes. 69. [As amended by 7 & 8 Edw. 7, c. 16, § 2.] If authorized by by-law, sanctioned by a vote of not less than two-thirds in value of the subscribed stock of the company represented at a general meeting duly called for considering the by-law, the directors may from time to time: a) Borrow money upon the credit of the company; b) Limit or increase the amount to be borrowed; c) Issue bonds, debentures, or other securities of the company for sums not less than one hundred dollars each, and pledge or sell the same for such sums and at such prices as may be deemed expedient; d) Hypothecate, mortgage, or pledge the real or personal property of the company, or both, to secure any such bonds, debentures, or other securities and any money borrowed for the purposes of the company. Provided that such bonds, debentures, or other securities may be for sums not less than twenty pounds sterling, five hundred francs, or four hundred marks, or for sums not less than the nearest equivalent in round figures of other money to one hundred dollars in Canadian currency. 2. Nothing in this section contained shall limit or restrict the borrowing of money by the company on bills of exchange or promissory notes made, drawn, accepted, or endorsed by or on behalf of the company.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 57; 4 Edw. 7, c. 5, § 3; Imp. § 87. See notes § 29, supra. As to meaning of "debenture," see Bank of Toronto, v. Cobourg, etc., Railway Co., (1884), 7 O. R. 1, at p. 7; Young v. McNider, (1895), 25 S. C. R. 272, at p. 277. As to rights of mortgage debenture holders in the property of the company, see In re Farmers' Loan, etc., Co., (1899), 30 O. R. 337.

Dividends.

Not to impair capital. 70. No dividend shall be declared which will impair the capital of the company.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 58. Where a deceased president of a company, by falsely representing the earnings of the company, had induced the directors to declare a dividend which they would not otherwise have declared, the company was allowed to recover from the estate of the deceased for the damages sustained. — Northern Navigation Co. v. Long, (1905), 11 O. L. R. 230.

Debts deducted from dividends. 71. The directors may deduct from the dividends payable to any shareholder all such sums of money as are due from him to the company, on account of calls or otherwise.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 59.

Directors.

Number of board. 72. The affairs of the company shall be managed by a board of not more than fifteen and not less than three directors.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 60. For cases on the subject of quorum, see McLaren v. Fiske, (1881), 28 Gr. 352; Victoria Mutual Fire Insurance Co. v. Thompson, (1882), 32 U. C. C. P. 476.

Provisional directors. 73. The persons named as such, in the letters patent, shall be the directors of the company, until replaced by others duly appointed in their stead.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 61. See notes Ontario Companies Act, § 79. Semble, provisional directors hold office only for the purpose of organizing the company. — Hagarty C. J., in Michie v. Erie & Huron Railway Co., (1876), 26 U. C. C. P. 566, at p. 574. In Allan v. Ontario, etc., Railway Co., (1898), 29 O. R. 516, one who was employed by a provisional director, with the knowledge of his co-directors, to do certain work on behalf of the company was allowed to recover from the company for the value of his work. For further cases upon the power of provisional directors, see In re North Simcoe Railway Co. v. Toronto, (1874), 36 U. C. C. P. 109; North Sydney, etc., Co. v. Greener, (1898), 31 N. S. 41. Where, by the act of incorporation, provisional directors were authorized to open books, procure subscriptions, make calls on stock, and do generally what was necessary to organize the company, it was held that they had no power to enter into arrangements by which, to induce a person to subscribe for shares, they were to advance out of the funds of the company, money to enable the intending subscriber to make payments on shares. — Monarch Life Assurance Co. v. Brophy, (1907), 14 O. L. R. 1.

Failure to elect directors, how remedied. 74. If, at any time, an election of directors is not made, or does not take effect at the proper time, the company shall not be held to be thereby dissolved; but such election may take place at any subsequent special general meeting of the company duly called for that purpose; and the retiring directors shall continue in office until their successors are elected.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 62.

Qualifications of directors elected. 75. No person shall be elected as a director or appointed as a director to fill any vacancy unless he is a shareholder, owning stock absolutely in his own right, and to the amount required by the by-laws of the company, and not in arrear in respect of any call thereon.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 63. Where two directors conveyed shares to a third in order to qualify him as a director they were afterwards estopped from setting up that he held the stock as trustee for them. — Kiely v. Smyth, (1879), 27 Gr. 220.

By-laws for increase or decrease of number of directors and for change of chief place of business. When to be valid. 76. [As amended by 7 & 8 Edw. 7, c. 16, § 3.] The company may, by by-law, increase to not more than fifteen, or decrease to not less than three, the number of its directors, or may change the company's chief place of business in Canada: Provided that no by-law for either of the said purposes shall be valid or acted upon unless it is approved by a vote of at least two-thirds in value of the stock represented by the shareholders present at a special general meeting duly called for considering the by-law; nor until a copy of such by-law, certified under the seal of the company, has been deposited in the Department of the Secretary of State and published in The Canada Gazette.

Election of directors. 77. Directors of the company shall be elected by the shareholders, in general meeting of the company assembled at some place within Canada, at such times, in such manner and for such term, not exceeding two years, as the letters patent, or, in default thereof, as the by-laws of the company prescribe.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 65. Where a new board of directors was elected before the term of office of their predecessors had expired, it was held that a mandamus would lie compelling the company to proceed to another election on the day fixed by the charter. — The Queen v. Bank of Upper Canada, (1849), 5 U. C. Q. B. 338. But see In re Moore & Port Bruce Harbour Co., (1857), 14 U. C. Q. B. 365, where the election being clearly illegal, the officers chosen having continued in the discharge of their duties, and no application having been made until more than eight months after the election, the Court refused to issue a mandamus for a new election. In The Queen v. Hespeler, (1854), 11 U. C. Q. B. 222, it was held that the office of director in a company was not an office for which an information in the nature of quo warranto would lie. The Court has jurisdiction to set aside an election of directors of a company by persons who were mere nominal and not bona fide subscribers. — Davidson v. Grange, (1854), 4 Gr. 377.

If no other provision. Yearly election. By ballot. Vacancies filled by directors. Officers appointed by directors. 78. In the absence of other provisions in that behalf, in the letters patent or by-laws of the company: a) The election of directors shall take place yearly, and all the directors then in office shall retire, but, if otherwise qualified, they shall be eligible for re-election; b) Every election of directors shall be by ballot; c) Any vacancy occurring in the board of directors may be filled, for the remainder of the term, by the directors from among the qualified shareholders of the company; d) The directors shall, from time to time, elect from among themselves a president and, if they see fit, a vice-president of the company; and may also appoint all other officers thereof.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 66.

Director indemnified in suits respecting execution of his office. Exception. 79. Every director of the company, and his heirs, executors and administrators, and estate and effects, respectively, may, with the consent of the company, given at any general meeting thereof, from time, and at all times, be indemnified and saved harmless out of the funds of the company, from and against all costs, charges, and expenses whatsoever which such director sustains or incurs in or about any action, suit, or proceeding which is brought, commenced, or prosecuted against him, for or in respect of any act, deed, matter, or thing whatsoever, made, done, or permitted by him, in or about the execution of the duties of his office; and also from and against all other costs, charges, and expenses which he sustains or incurs, in or about or in relation to the affairs thereof, except such costs, charges, or expenses as are occasioned by his own wilful neglect or default.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 67.

Powers of directors.

Powers and duties of directors. By-laws. As to stock. Dividends. Directors. Agents and officers. Meetings. Penalties. Generally. 80. The directors of the company may administer the affairs of the company in all things, and make or cause to be made for the company, any description of contract which the company may, by law, enter into, and may, from time to time, make by-laws not contrary to law, or to the letters patent of the company, or to this Part, as to the following matters: a) The regulating of the allotment of stock, the making of calls thereon, the payment thereof, the issue and registration of certificates of stock, the forfeiture of stock for non-payment, the disposal of forfeited stock and of the proceeds thereof, and the transfer of stock; b) The declaration and payment of dividends; c) The amount of the stock qualifications of the directors, and their remuneration, if any; d) The appointment, functions, duties, and removal of all agents, officers and servants of the company, the security to be given by them to the company and their remuneration; e) The time and place for the holding of the annual meetings of the company, the calling of meetings, regular and special, of the board of directors and of the company, the quorum, the requirements as to proxies, and the procedure in all things at such meetings; f) The imposition and recovery of all penalties and forfeitures not otherwise provided for in this Part; g) The conduct, in all other particulars, of the affairs of the company not otherwise provided for in this Part.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 68. See notes Ontario Companies Act, § 73, infra, Directors of a railway company have, even in the absence of express power, an authority to appoint the necessary officers and agents. — Falkiner v. Grand Junction Railway Co., (1883), 4 O. R. 350. Directors may delegate to a general agent the power of appointing sub-agents. — Howarth v. Singer Manufacturing Co., (1883), 8 O. A. R. 264. But they cannot delegate statutory power to allot stock. — In re Bolt & Iron Co., Hovenden's Case, (1884), 10 O. P. R. 434; In re Pakenham Packing Co., (1904), 12

O. L. R. 100. In Tanguay v. Royal Paper Mills Co., (1907), Q. R. 31 S. C. 397, it was held that a company cannot, by a general resolution, delegate to its president or to any other officer the powers conferred by law on the board of directors. Directors can assign property of the company to trustees for the benefit of creditors. — Hovey v. Whiting, (1887), 14 S. C. R. 515. Directors of a mercantile company may raise money on a deposit receipt. — Merchants Bank v. Hancock, (1883), 6 O. R. 285. The president of a company has no implied power to give an undertaking for the payment of rent, and no recovery can be had on such an undertaking, unless authority on the part of the president to bind the company be shewn, or unless the company is shewn to be estopped from denying such authority. — Almon v. Law, (1894), 26 N. S. 340. Undertakings by directors not in the ordinary course of the company's business are not binding on the company without ratification. — Hamilton, etc., Railway Co. v. Gore Bank, (1873), 20 Gr. 190. — But such ratification may be implied from acquiescence. — Conant v. Niall, (1870), 17 Gr. 574. The general manager of a commercial corporation cannot make a binding contract for the sale of its real estate without special authority. — Calloway v. Stobart, (1904), 35 S. C. R. 301. Where the managing director of a company, without authority, but with the knowledge of all but one of the directors, expended money for the erection of a store house, which proved useless to the company, it was held that there was no such gross negligence on his part as to make him liable for the expense incurred. — Cushing Sulphite Co. v. Cushing, (1905), 37 N. B. 313. Where directors, claiming to have accounts against the company for services, allotted stock to themselves in payment of the account, and where it appeared that there was an illegal scheme thus to get control of the company, the issue of stock was set aside. — Thorpe v. Tisdale, (1909), 13 O. W. R. 1044. Where the secretary of the company subscribed for shares at par and afterwards disposed of them at par to directors, and where it was established in evidence that the transaction was for the purpose of retaining control of the company, it was held that this allotment of shares was not illegal, and that the directors were acting within their powers. — Harris v. Sumner, (1908), 4 N. B. Eq. 58. Where the directors, without authority, paid the secretary of a company commissions for converting preferred stock into bonds, it was held that, although the secretary had received the commissions in good faith but under a mistake of law, the money so paid could be recovered by the company. — Rountree v. Sydney Land & Loan Co., (1907), 39 S. C. R. 614. Where the charter of a charitable society provided that the company might assign to any of its officers such remuneration as they might deem requisite, it was held that a grant by the shareholders at an annual meeting to the treasurer of a sum of money as remuneration for his services during the past thirty years was valid. — Bartram v. Birtwhistle, (1908), 15 O. L. R. 634. Where the president and vice-president of a company, without proper authority but with the acquiescence of their co-directors, for several years drew large sums ostensibly as salaries as general manager and managing director, it was held that dissatisfied shareholders could object to such payment although the majority were prepared to ratify them. — Earle v. Burland, (1899), 27 O. A. R. 540; reversed on another point, Burland v. Earle, (1901) A. C. 83. For further cases dealing with the fiduciary relations between directors or officers and the company, see: Highway Advertising Co. v. Ellis, (1904), 7 O. L. R. 504; Madden v. Dimond, (1905), 12 B. C. 80; Lasell v. Hannah, (1906), 37 S. C. R. 324; Bennett v. Haverlock, etc., Co., (1910), 21 O. L. R. 120; 16 O. W. R. 19. Where a by-law is passed at the annual general meeting of a company providing for the allotment of new shares by the shareholders, the directors have no power, at a special meeting, to pass a by-law directing the repeal of the first and providing for the allotment of shares by themselves. — Stephenson v. Vokes, (1896), 27 O. R. 691. Where the board of directors authorized the manager of a company to purchase machinery on certain terms of credit, and the manager purchased on different terms, the vendor having no knowledge of the board's resolution, and the company received and used the machine, it was held liable for the purchase price. Where the charter enabled the directors to make calls at such times as they might deem requisite, it was held not necessary that the calls should be made by by-law, but that a resolution was sufficient. — Union Fire Insurance Co. v. O'gara, (1883), 4 O. R. 359. See Ontario Companies Act, § 48, and notes thereto.

Confirmation of by-laws. 81. The directors may, from time to time, repeal, amend, or re-enact such by-laws, but every such by-law, excepting by-laws made respecting agents, officers, and servants of the company, and every repeal, amendment, or re-enactment thereof, unless in the meantime confirmed at a general meeting of the company, duly called for that purpose, shall only have force until the next annual meeting of the company, and in default of confirmation thereat, shall, at and from that time, cease to have force.

Liability of directors and officers.

Declaring and paying dividend when company is insolvent. Exoneration from liability. 82. If the directors of the company declare and pay any dividend when the company is insolvent, or any dividend, the payment of which renders the company insolvent, or impairs the capital thereof, they shall be jointly and severally liable, as well to the company as to the individual shareholders and creditors thereof, for all the debts of the company then existing, and for all debts thereafter contracted during their continuance in office, respectively: Provided that, if any director present when such dividend is declared does forthwith, or if any director then absent does, within twenty-four hours after he becomes aware of such declaration and is able so to do, enter on the minutes of the board of directors his protest against the same, and within eight days thereafter publishes such protest in at least one newspaper published at the place in which the head office or chief place of business of the company is situated, or, if no newspaper is there published, in the newspaper published in the place nearest thereto, such director may thereby, and not otherwise, exonerate himself from such liability.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 69. See note § 162, infra. As to personal liability of officers signing negotiable instruments in their representative capacity, see: Bank of Montreal v. Smart, (1860), 10 U. C. C. P. 15; Walmsey v. Rent Guarantee Co., (1881), 26 Gr. 484; Brown v. Howland, (1885), 9 O. R. 48; affirmed, s. c. (1886), 15 O. A. R. 750; Fairchild v. Ferguson, (1892), 21 S. C. R. 484; Bridgewater Cheese Co. v. Murphy, (1894), 26 O. R. 327; affirmed, s. c., (1896), 23 O. A. R. 66. Where a voidable contract, fair in its terms and within the power of the company, had been entered into by directors with one of their number as sole vendor, it was held that such vendor was entitled to vote as a shareholder in a general meeting of the shareholders to ratify such contract. — Northwest Transportation Co. v. Beatty, (1887), 12 A. C. 589. As to the liability of a promotor who purchases property with the intention of selling it to the prospective company, see: In re Hess Manufacturing Co., Edgar v. Sloan, (1894), 23 S. C. R. 644; Petrie v. Guelph Lumber Co., (1886), 11 S. C. R. 450; Frazer River Mining, etc., Co. v. Gallagher, (1885), 5 B. C. 82; Bennett v. Haverlock, etc., Co., (1910), 21 O. L. R. 120; 16 O. W. R. 19; Garvin v. Edmonson, (1909), 14 O. W. R. 435. Promoters who contract obligations on behalf of a proposed company are personally liable if the company, after incorporation, repudiates the same. — Irwin v. Lessard, (1889), 17 Rev. Leg. 589; Sandusky Coal Co. v. Walker, (1896), 27 O. R. 677; Hung Man v. Ellis, (1895), 3 B. C. 486; Clergue v. Humphrey, (1900), 31 S. C. R. 66; Milburn v. Wilson, (1901), 31 S. C. R. 481; Vulcan Iron Works v. Leary, (1905), 1 West. L. R. 453; Patterson v. Brown, (1905), 6 O. W. R. 204. In Duquenne v. Compagnie Générale des Boissons Canadiennes, (1907), Q. R. 31 S. C. 409, it was held that an agreement entered into between a private person and a company to be formed is of no effect as respects the latter after its incorporation. Having no legal existence at the time the agreement was made, it cannot ratify it. To make it effective it is necessary for the company, after its incorporation, through its board of directors, to become formally bound in the manner provided by law.

Liability of directors for transfer of shares to insolvent. Exoneration from liability. 83. Whenever any transfer of shares not fully paid in has been made with the consent of the directors to a person who is not apparently of sufficient means to fully pay up such shares, the directors shall be jointly and severally liable to the creditors of the company, in the same manner and to the same extent as the transferring shareholder, but for such transfer, would have been: Provided that if any director present when any such transfer is allowed does forthwith, or if any director then absent does, within twenty-four hours after he becomes aware of such transfer and is able so to do, enter on the minute book of the board of directors his protest against the same, and within eight days thereafter publishes such protest in at least one newspaper published at the place in which the head office or chief place of business of the company is situated, or if there is no newspaper there published, then in the newspaper published nearest to such place, such director may thereby, and not otherwise, exonerate himself from such liability.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 52.

Loan by company to shareholders. 84. If any loan is made by the company to any shareholder in violation of the provisions of this Part, all directors and other officers of the company making the same, or in anywise assenting thereto, shall be jointly and severally liable for the amount of such loan, with interest to the company, and also to the creditors of the company for all debts of the company then existing, or contracted between the time of the making of such loan and that of the repayment thereof.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 70.

Liability of directors for wages unsatisfied. Limitation as to time. 85. The directors of the company shall be jointly and severally liable to the clerks, labourers, servants, and apprentices thereof, for all debts not exceeding six months' wages due for service performed for the company whilst they are such directors respectively; but no director shall be liable to an action therefor, unless the company is sued therefor within one year after the debt becomes due, nor unless such director is sued therefor within one year from the time when he ceased to be such director, nor unless an execution against the company in respect of such debt is returned unsatisfied in whole or in part. 2. The amount unsatisfied on such execution shall be the amount recoverable with costs from the directors.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 71. See Welch v. Ellis, (1895), 22 O. A. R. 255, decided under the corresponding section of the Ontario Companies Act. But note that the Ontario Act did not include the word "clerk," as found in this Act. In Fee v. Turner, (1904), Q. R. 13 K. B. 435, it was held that a person engaged to perform manual work at a daily wage is a "labourer" within the meaning of this section, although, being a workman of superior capacity, he is intrusted with the supervision of other workman.

Liability of directors for premature commencement of business. 86. Every director of any company who expressly or impliedly authorizes the commencement of operations by the company or the incurring of any liabilities by the company before ten per centum of its authorized capital has been subscribed and paid for, shall be jointly and severally liable with the company for the payment of any such liabilities so incurred.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 18. In North Sydney, etc., Co. v. Greener, (1898), 31 N. S. 41, it was held that the words "commence operations" were not intended to prevent calls being made on stock subscribed for, nor to prevent the provisional directors from doing any act in the name of the company within their power, so long as such act fell short of what might properly be called commencing operations.

Meetings.

Special meeting. 87. Shareholders who hold one-fourth part in value of the subscribed stock of the company may at any time by written requisition and notice call a special meeting of the company for the transaction of any business specified therein.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 72; Imp. § 66. The shareholders of one-fourth part in value of the subscribed stock were held competent to convene a special meeting for the election of directors where no annual general meeting had been held or, where if held, no election had taken place. — Austin Mining Co. v. Gemmell, (1886), 10 O. R. 696. While questions of ordinary business policy falling within the charter are decided by a majority vote, nevertheless, if what the majority propose will require an abandonment of the enterprise or a deviation from the charter, it must be to the manifest interest of all the shareholders before the minority can be bound. In Anyot v. Dominion Cotton Mills, (1909), Q. R. 36 S. C. 35, it was held, in such a case, that the Supreme Court might, upon application of a shareholder, inquire into the circumstances and annul the proceedings if not clearly to the advantage of all, especially if there appear to be a fraudulent combination for the benefit of the majority. Where holders of the majority of shares authorized the selling of property to pay the debts of the company, it was held that the sale was not to be enjoined at the instance of dissenting shareholders. — Patrick v. Empire Coal & Tramway Co., (1907), 3 N. B. Eq. 571.

Provisions as to notice, votes, proxies, calls to be paid, majority vote, casting vote. 88. In the absence of other provisions in that behalf in the letters patent or by-laws of the company: a) Notice of the time and place for holding a general meeting of the company shall be given at least fourteen days previously to the time in such notice specified for such meeting, in some newspaper published in the place where the head office or chief place of business of the company is situate, or if there is no such newspaper, then in the place nearest thereto in which a newspaper is published; b) At all general meetings of the company, every shareholder shall be entitled to give one vote for each share then held by him; and such votes may be given in person or by proxy if such proxy is himself a shareholder: Provided that no shareholder shall be entitled either in person or by proxy, to vote at any meeting unless he has paid all the calls then payable upon all the shares held by him; c) All questions proposed for the consideration of the shareholders at such meetings shall be determined by the majority of votes, and the chairman presiding at such meetings shall have the casting vote in case of an equality of votes.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 73; Imp. § 67. See notes § 87, supra. For cases on sufficiency of notice see: Portland, etc., Ferry Co. v. Pratt, (1850), 2 N. B. 17; Cannon v. Toronto Corn Exchange, (1880), 5 O. A. R. 268; Marsh v. Huron College, (1880), 27 Gr. 655; McLaren v. Fiske, (1881), 28 Gr. 352; Waddell v. Ontario Canning Co., (1889), 18 O. R. 41.

Books of the company.

Books shall contain charter, agreement, by-laws, names of shareholders, address and calling, number of shares, amounts paid, names, addresses, and calling of directors. 89. The company shall cause a book or books to be kept by the secretary, or by some other officer specially charged with that duty, wherein shall be kept recorded: a) A copy of the letters patent incorporating the company, and of any supplementary letters patent, and of the preliminary memorandum of agreement and of all by-laws of the company; b) The names, alphabetically arranged, of all persons who are or have been shareholders; c) The address and calling of every such person, while such shareholder, as far as can be ascertained; d) The number of shares of stock held by each shareholder; e) The amounts paid in and remaining unpaid, respectively, on the stock of each shareholder; and f) The names, addresses, and calling of all persons who are or have been directors of the company, with the several dates at which each became or ceased to be such director.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 74; Imp. § 25.

Register of transfers. 90. A book called the register of transfer shall be provided, and in such book shall be entered the particulars of every transfer of shares in the capital of the company.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 74; Imp. § 25.

Books to be open for inspection. Extracts therefrom. 91. Such books shall, during reasonable business hours of every day, except Sundays and holidays, be kept open, at the head office or chief place of business of the company, for the inspection of shareholders and creditors of the company, and their personal representatives, and of any judgment creditor of a shareholder. 2. Every such shareholder, creditor, or personal representative or judgment creditor may make extracts therefrom.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 75; Imp. § 30. In In re Bank of Upper Canada, (1829), Dra. 55, it was held that a stockholder was not entitled as a matter of right, to inspect stock books or other books of a bank; nor will the Court grant a mandamus for such inspection unless special grounds are shewn. This holding is now obsolete.

Inspection.

Application to a judge for an investigation. Evidence on application. Special powers of judge. Costs. Security. 92. Upon the application of shareholders representing not less than one-fourth in value of the issued capital stock of the company a judge in the Province or territory in which the chief place of business of the company is situated may, if he deems it necessary, appoint a competent inspector to investigate the affairs and management of the company who shall report to the judge the result of the investigation. 2. The application shall be supported by such evidence as the judge may require for the purpose of showing that the applicants have good reason for requiring such investigation to be made, and that they are not actuated by malicious motives in instituting the same. 3. The judge may make necessary rules as to such investigation and prescribe the manner in which and the extent to which the investigation shall be conducted, or may, if he deems it necessary, examine the officers or directors of the company under oath as to matters that come in question. 4. The expense of such investigation shall, in the discretion of the judge, be defrayed by the company, or by the applicants, or partly by the company and partly by the applicants as the judge may order, who may, if he thinks fit, require the applicants to give security to cover the probable cost of the investigation.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 79; Imp. §§ 109, 110.

Investigation by order of the company. Report in such cases. 93. The company may by resolution passed at the annual meeting, or at a general meeting called for the purpose, appoint an inspector to examine into the affairs of the company, and may in such resolution direct the manner and extent of such investigation and the matters to be investigated. 2. The inspector so appointed shall have the same powers as an inspector appointed by a judge, and shall make his report in such manner and to such persons as the company by the resolution directs.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 79; Imp. §§ 109, 110.

Production of books. Examination on oath. 94. It shall be the duty of all officers and servants of the company to produce for the examination of any inspector appointed by a judge or by the company all books and documents relating to the affairs of the company in their custody or power. 2. Any such inspector may examine upon oath the officers and agents of the company in relation to its business and may administer such oath accordingly.

Procedure.

Service of process upon company. Constructive service. 95. Any summons, notice, order, or other process or document required to be served upon the company, may be served by leaving the same at the office of the company in the city or town in which its chief place of business in Canada is situate, with any adult person in the employ of the company, or by serving the same on the president or secretary of the company, or by leaving the same at the domicile of either of them, with any adult person of his family or in his employ. 2. If the company has no known office or chief place of business, and has no known president or secretary, the Court may order such publication as it deems requisite to be made in the premises; and such publication shall be deemed to be due service upon the company.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 80; Imp. § 116.

Cases where use of seal not necessary. 96. Any summons, notice, order, or proceeding requiring authentication by the company may be signed by any director, manager, or other authorized officer of the company, and need not be under the seal of the company.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 81; Imp. 117.

Service of notices on members. 97. Notices to be served by the company upon the shareholders may be served either personally or by sending them through the post, in registered letters, addressed to the shareholders at their places of abode as they appear on the books of the company.

2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 82.

Time from which service reckoned. 98. A notice or other document served by post by the company on a shareholder shall be deemed to be served at the time when the registered letter containing it would be delivered in the ordinary course of post.

The fact of shares being entered in the books of the company and in the transfer as held in trust, is sufficient of itself to shew that the title of the seller was not absolute, and to put the purchaser on inquiry as to the vendor's right to sell the shares. — Raphael v. McFarlane, (1890), 18 S. C. R. 183. A holder of shares in trust is not a mandataire prêtre, and holds subject to a prior title on the part of some person undisclosed. Such holding not being forbidden by the law of the Colony, a transferee from such holder is bound to inquire whether the transfer is authorized by the nature of the trust. — *Bank of Montreal v. The amount held on deposit shall not at any time exceed the aggregate amount of the actually paid-up and unimpaired capital of the company and of its cash actually on hand or deposited in any chartered bank or banks in Canada and belonging to the company.

62 & 63 Vic., c. 41, § 21.

Assets necessary. 208. So long as a company is indebted for money received upon deposit, its total assets over and above the value of its real estate and its mortgages or hypothecs upon freehold or leasehold estate or other immoveables shall be equal to at least twenty per centum of its indebtedness in respect of such money.

Any such parcel of land, or any interest therein not required for the actual use and occupation of the company or held by way of security which has been held by the company for a longer period than seven years without being disposed of, shall be forfeited to His Majesty: Provided that the Governor in Council may extend the said period from time to time, not exceeding in the whole twelve years.

Time for enforcement of forfeiture. 211. No such forfeiture shall take effect or be enforced until the expiration of at least six calendar months after notice in writing to the company of the intention of His Majesty to claim such forfeiture.

R. S., c. 129, §§ 2, 33, 56, and 61; 62 & 63 Vic. c. 43, § 5; Imp. §§ 124, 285. The term "company" applies to all trading companies doing business in Canada though incorporated elsewhere. — Allen v. Hanson (1890), 18 S. C. R. 667; Scott v. Hyde, (1908), Q. R. 18 K. B. 138, affirming s. c. Q. R. 34 S. C. 432. See notes to § 6. The term "Court" means the court for the district where the main office of the company is located. — Dupont v. Compagnie de Moulin, etc. (1888), 11 Mont. L. N. 225. A Local Judge of the Supreme Court of British Columbia is not a "Court" within the meaning of this section, and has no jurisdiction to make a winding-up order. — In re Kootenay Brewing Co., (1898), 7 B. C. R. 131; Cp. provisions §§ 109, 110, infra. Judicial officers named in the Act are not authorized to delegate powers. — In re Queen City Refining Co., (1884), 10 O. P. R. 415. (Decided under subsection 2 of § 77, R. S. C. 1886, c. 129, now repealed.) As to when a Court of Chancery will interfere to oust the jurisdiction of an insolvent court, see McNeil v. Reliance Insurance Co., (1879), 26 Gr. 567. The court will not allow its administration of assets to be interfered with by other proceedings affecting the estate. — Clarke v. Union Fire Insurance Co., Caston's case, (1884), 10 O. P. R. 339. In In re

Central Bank of Canada, (1890), 20 O. R. 214, an injunction was granted to restrain proceedings in the Montreal Court, against a bank in the process of being wound up in Ontario under the Dominion Winding-up Act. As to the power of a Judge in Bankruptcy in England to enjoin proceedings in the High Court of Justice for Ontario, see Maritime Bank v. Stewart, (1889), 13 O. P. R. 86. The order for winding-up may be granted by a Judge in Chambers. — In re Toronto Brass Co., (1898), 18 O. P. R. 248. The term "contributory" has been judicially interpreted in the following cases: In Ex parte Bibby, (1884), 1 B. C. R. (Pt. II) 94, a registered shareholder who had transferred his stock but whose name had not been removed from the list was held not liable as a contributory. A change made in the capital of a company after the shareholder subscribes for stock and without his knowledge or acquiescence, releases him from liability as a contributory. — Stevens v. London Steel Works Co., (1887), 15 O. R. 75. For distinction between a debtor on a note made to the company and a contributory, see In re Central Bank Canada, (1888), 15 O. R. 625. In re Thunder Hill Mining Co., (1895), 4 B. C. 61, a holder of shares purchased at discount was not released from liability as a contributory because of an irregularity in the issue of shares, said shareholder having failed to repudiate the transaction before the winding-up order was issued. In re St. John Building Society, (1897), 17 C. L. T. 346, it was ordered that the executor of a contributory should be placed on the list of contributories. After the issue of the winding-up order a shareholder cannot avoid his liability as a contributory by setting up defects or illegalities in the organization of the company; such grounds can only be taken upon direct proceedings at the instance of the Attorney-General. — Common v. McArthur, (1898), 29 S. C. R. 239. See also the following cases discussed in the note to § 51: In re Standard Fire Insurance Co., (1884), 7 O. R. 448; affirmed in (1885), 12 O. A. Company deemed insolvent, when. 3. A company is deemed insolvent: a) If it is unable to pay its debts as they become due; b) If it calls a meeting of its creditors for the purpose of compounding with them; c) If it exhibits a statement showing its inability to meet its liabilities; d) If it has otherwise acknowledged its insolvency; e) If it assigns, removes, or disposes of, or attempts or is about to assign remove or dispose of, any of its property, with intent to defraud, defeat, or delay its creditors, or any of them; f) If, with such intent, it has procured its money, goods, chattels, land, or property to be seized, levied on, or taken, under or by any process of execution; g) If it has made any general conveyance or assignment of its property for the benefit of its creditors, or if, being unable to meet its liabilities in full, it makes any sale or conveyance of the whole or the main part of its stock in trade or assets, without the consent of its creditors, or without satisfying their claims; or, h) If it permits any execution issued against it, under which any of its goods, chattels, land, or property are seized, levied upon, or taken in execution, to remain unsatisfied till within four days of the time fixed by the sheriff or proper officer for the sale thereof, or for fifteen days after such seizure.

R. S., c. 129, § 5; Imp. § 129. A company is "unable to pay its debts" when it has not sufficient property subject to execution to pay all debts, if such property is sold under legal process at a sale fairly and reasonably conducted. — Dominion Bank v. Cowan, (1887), 14 O. R. 465. An allegation that a company is "insolvent and unable to pay petitioner's debts" is not a sufficient allegation within the meaning of subsection (a). — In re Rapid City Farmers Elevator Co., (1894), 9 Man. R. 571. "Inability to meet its liabilities" means liabilities to creditors as distinguished from liabilities to shareholders. — In re United Canneries, (1903), 9 B. C. 528. In order to bring petition under subsection (d), there must be something actively done by the company to acknowledge its insolvency. The non-appearance of a company to oppose a petition for a winding-up order is not an acknowledgment of insolvency sufficient to bring it within this subsection. — In re Lake Winnipeg Transportation Co., (1891), 7 Man. R. 255. Neither does a company acknowledge its insolvency by allowing judgment to go against it by default. — In re Qu'Appelle Valley Co., (1888), 5 Man. R. 160. The acknowledgment must be an act of the company; a statement made by a shareholder is insufficient. As to whether the president or general manager of a company can make a statement acknowledging the company's insolvency, see In re Briton Medical Association (1886), 11 O. R. 478. "It is submitted that the acknowledgment must in effect amount to a statement by the company through its board of directors or other proper channel, that it is insolvent." — Parker and Clarke, Company Law, p. 351. Where a petitioner, who was president of the company as well as a large creditor, stated in his affidavit that he knew the company to be unable to pay its debts in full, but gave no comparative statement of its assets and liabilities, it was held not sufficient evidence of insolvency. — In re Lake Winnipeg Transportation Co., (1891), 7 Man. R. 255. To enable a company to be wound up it is not sufficient for the company to appear by counsel and admit its insolvency. Facts showing insolvency must be disclosed in the material on which the petition is based. — In re Grundy Stone Co., (1904), 7 O. L. R. 252. See also In re William Lamb Manufacturing Co., (1900), 32 O. R. 243. The acknowledgment must be stated in the petition, if the petitioner intends to rely upon subsection(d). — In re Briton Medical Association, (1886), 11 O. R. 478. A company failing to comply with a demand made under § 4, is to be deemed insolvent. — In re Cushing Sulphite Fibre Co., (1905), 37 N. B. R. 254. Authorities are in conflict as to whether or not a creditor who seeks to shew insolvency within the meaning of subsection (a), must first shew that there has been a demand, and failure to comply with same as provided under § 4 of this Act. In Manitoba the affirmative of this proposition has been held. — In re Qu'Appelle Valley Co., (1888), 5 Man. R. 160; In re Rapid City Farmers' Elevator Co., 9 Man. R. 574. A later case in Ontario follows this construction. — In re Ewart Carriage Works, (1904), 8 O. L. R. 527. A contrary decision was come to in MacKay v. L'Association Coloniale, (1884), 13 Rev. Leg. 383. Parker and Clarke believe that the decision in In re Ewart, supra, represents the better view. — Company Law, p. 350. In re Rapid City Farmers' Elevator Co., supra, the court distinguished the case from In re Flag Staff Mining Co., L. R. 20 Eq. 268, on the ground that the provisions of § 4 were not found in the British Act. See also In re Briton Medical Association, (1886), 11 O. R. 478; In re Abbott Mitchell, etc., Co., (1901), 2 O. L. R. 143. If the petitioner relies upon subsection (e) the petition must state the facts which constitute the fraud charged. It is not sufficient to allege that the assignment was made to defraud, defeat, or delay creditors. See In re Qu'Appelle Valley Co., (1888), 5 Man. R. 160, at p. 164. A conveyance of the main part of a company's assets without consent of the creditors, and without satisfying their claims is sufficient grounds under subsection (g), for a winding-up order. — In re Qu'Appelle Valley Co., supra. Where an assignment for the benefit of creditors has been made, a creditor of the company is not entitled, as of course, to a winding-up order; notwithstanding the assignment, the Court may still exercise its discretion in granting or refusing the order. — In re Strathy Wire Fence Co., (1904), 8 O. L. R. 186. "If the petition does not allege an assignment for the benefit of creditors, and the company executes an assignment between the time of service of the petition and the hearing, the solicitor cannot avail himself of the assignment and, unless other grounds are shewn upon which an order can be made, the petition will be dismissed with costs. — In re Churchill Manufacturing Co., (unreported), Meredith, C. J. Dec. 1907." — Parker and Clarke, Company Law, 352. Under subsection (h), it was held, in Manitoba, that a company is not insolvent within the meaning of the Act because an execution has been returned nulla bona. — In re Rapid City Farmers' Elevator Co., (1894), 9 Man. R. 574, following In re Qu'Appelle Valley Co., (1888), 5 Man. R. 160. It must, in addition, be proved that the company had permitted execution to remain unsatisfied till within four days of the time fixed by the sheriff for the sale. In computing the time under this subsection, the day fixed for the sale is exclusive. Thus where the writ was in the sheriff's hands on the 30th December and the sale was fixed for the 3d January, it was held that the company was insolvent within the meaning of the Act. — In re Lake Winnipeg Trading Co., (1891), 7 Man. R. 255. The provisions of this section are exclusive, and a petitioner for a winding-up order must strictly prove the existence of one or more of the circumstances therein set forth. — In re Rapid City Farmers' Elevator Co., (1894), 9 Man. R. 574.

Company deemed unable to pay its debts. 4. A company is deemed to be unable to pay its debts as they become due, whenever a creditor, to whom the company is indebted in a sum exceeding two hundred dollars then due has served on the company, in the manner in which process may legally be served on it in the place where service is made, a demand in writing, requiring the company to pay the sum so due, and the company has, for ninety days, in the case of a bank, and for sixty days in all other cases, next succeeding the service of the demand, neglected to pay such sum, or to secure or compound for the same to the satisfaction of the creditor.

R. S., c. 129, § 6; Imp. § 130. See notes § 3, supra. § 12 uses the term "creditor" only and not, as does the above section, a creditor whose debt is "then due." As to the importance of this distinction, see In re Atlas Canning Co., (1897), 5 B. C. 661. It is not sufficient to shew that several verbal demands or demands by letter have been made. The demand must be served on the company in the manner in which process may be legally served on it. — In re Rapid City Elevator Co., (1894), 9 Man. R. 574. As to form of demand, see also In re Abbott Mitchell, etc., Co., (1901), 2 O. L. R. 143. Where a demand has been made under this section, and the time for payment has elapsed, the demands not having been complied with, and no reason given why payment is not made, the company must be deemed insolvent within the meaning of the Act. — In re Cushing Sulphite Fibre Co., (1905), 37 N. B. 254. But non-compliance with a demand when the debt is not yet due, is not evidence of insolvency. — In re Briton Medical Association, (1886), 11 O. R. 478. An assignee of a debt who petitions under this section must prove, not only that the date of the judgment, but also that the assignment was prior in date to the demand. — In re Rapid City Farmer's Elevator Co., (1895), 10 Man. R. 681. A secured creditor can make a demand and he is not bound to value his security (under § 76) in the petition. — In re Cushing Sulphite Fibre Co., (1905), 37 N. B. 254.

Commencement of winding-up. 5. The winding-up of the business of a company shall be deemed to commence at the time of the service of the notice of presentation of the petition for winding-up.

R. S., c. 129, § 7; Imp. § 139. Under the English Act the time named for the commencement of the winding-up is the presentation of the petition. Therefore the English decisions on this subject are not in point. The Court will not interfere with a voluntary winding-up of the company by its shareholders, and order a compulsory liquidation, unless the rights of the petitioners will be prejudiced by the voluntary winding-up. — In re Oro Fino Mines, (1900), 7 B. C. 388. For other cases of voluntary winding-up, see In re Union Fire Insurance Co., (1882), 7 O. A. R. 783; In re Ontario Forge and Bolt Co., (1894), 25 O. R. 407; In re Maple Leaf Dairy Co., (1901), 2 O. L. R. 590.

Application.

Application. 6. This Act applies to all corporations incorporated by or under the authority of an Act of the Parliament of Canada, or by or under the authority of any Act of the late province of Canada, or of the province of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, British Columbia or Prince Edward Island, and whose incorporation and the affairs whereof are subject to the legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada; and also to incorporated banks, savings banks, incorporated insurance companies, loan companies having borrowing powers, building societies having a capital stock, and incorporated trading companies doing business in Canada where-soever incorporated and: a) Which are insolvent; or b) Which are in liquidation or in process of being wound up, and, on petition by any of their shareholders or creditors, assignees or liquidators ask to be brought under the provisions of this Act.

R. S., c. 129, § 3; 52 Vic., c. 32, § 3. See notes § 1, supra. A company, though incorporated by a Provincial Legislature, may, if insolvent, be wound up under this Act. — In re Eldorado Union Store Co., (1886), 18 N. S. 514. A company incorporated under the Companies Act of Ontario, and carrying on business in Ontario, is "doing business in Canada" within the meaning of this section. — In re Ontario Forge and Bolt Co., (1894), 25 O. R. 407. "Clauses (a) and (b) are only applicable to incorporated trading companies doing business in Canada mentioned in the section. They do not refer to all corporations that are referred to in section 6." — Per Wetmore, C. J., in In re Nelson Ford Lumber Co., (1908), 9 West L. R. 438. Seem, the Ontario Winding-up Act does not apply to a company incorporated in Ontario, where an application to wind up is made on the ground of insolvency, because local legislatures have no jurisdiction in matters of bankruptcy and insolvency. — In re Iron Clay Brick Manufacturing Co., Turner's Case (1889), 19 O. R. 113. See also In re Atlas Loan Co., Green's Case, (1904), 3 O. W. R. 604. The Dominion Parliament can legislate respecting foreign companies doing business in Canada. Thus, where a foreign company has been ordered to be wound up by a foreign court, and the company is doing business in Canada and has assets there, a Canadian Court can order the company to be wound up, so far as its Canadian assets are concerned. In such a case, the Winding-up Act merely seeks to regulate the Canadian property of the foreign company and to protect the rights of the creditors of such company in its property in Canada. — Allen v. Hanson, (1880), 18 S. C. R. 667, at p. 673. In In re Briton Medical Association, (1886), 12 O. R. 441, Canadian policy-holders were granted an order for distribution of the deposit made by a foreign company with the Minister of Finance, notwithstanding that proceedings to wind up the company were pending before an English Court. The Act is retroactive in the sense of applying to companies which became insolvent before the date of the Act. — Wyld v. Hamilton Mutual Insurance Co., (1883), 6 O. R. 118; In re Union Fire Insurance Co., (1886), 13 O. A. R. 268; but see Ings v. Bank of Prince Edward Island, (1885), 11 S. C. R. 265.

Certain corporations excepted. 7. This Act does not apply to building societies which have not a capital stock or to railway or telegraph companies.

R. S., c. 129, § 3; 52 Vic. c. 32, § 3.

Limitation of Part.

Subject to Part II. 8. In the case of a bank other than a savings bank the provisions of this Part are subject to the provisions of Part II. of this Act.

R. S., c. 129, §§ 4, 97. An insolvent bank must be wound up in accordance with the preliminary provisions contained in §§ 149—159, of Part II, infra. — Mott v. Bank of Nova Scotia, (1887), 14 S. C. R. 650; see also In re Central Bank, (1887), 15 O. R. 309.

Subject to Part III. 9. In the case of life insurance companies, and of insurance companies doing life insurance and other insurance, in so far as relates to the life insurance business of such companies, the provisions of this Part are subject to the provisions of Part III. of this Act.

R. S., c. 129, §§ 4, 105.

Subject to Part IV. 10. In the case of insurance companies other than life insurance companies, and of insurance companies doing life insurance and other insurance, in so far as relates to such other insurance, the provisions of this Part are subject to the provisions of Part IV. of this Act.

R. S., c. 129, §§ 4, 115.

Winding-up order.

In what cases winding-up order may be made. 11. The Court may make a winding-up order: a) Where the period, if any, fixed for the duration of the company by the Act, charter, or instrument of incorporation has expired; or where the event, if any, has occurred, upon the occurrence of which it is provided by the Act or charter or instrument of incorporation that the company is to be dissolved; b) Where the company at a special meeting of shareholders called for the purpose has passed a resolution requiring the company to be wound up; c) When the company is insolvent; d) When the capital stock of the company is impaired to the extent of twenty-five per centum thereof, and when it is shown to the satisfaction of the Court that the lost capital will not likely be restored within one year; or e) When the Court is of opinion that for any other reason it is just and equitable that the company should be wound up.

52 Vic. c. 32, § 4; Imp. § 129. For limitations on this section, see § 12, infra. A valid winding-up order must contain the appointment of a liquidator. — In re Union Fire Insurance Co., (1886) 13 O. A. R. 268. After the issue of the order for winding-up, a shareholder cannot avoid his liability as a contributory by setting up defects or irregularities in the organization of the company. — Common v. McArthur, (1898), 29 S. R. C. 239. An order for compulsory winding-up may be made, notwithstanding a resolution has been passed by the shareholders providing for a voluntary winding-up. — In re Union Fire Insurance Co., (1882), 7 O. A. R. 783; but see In re Oro Fino Mines, (1900), 7 B. C. 388, and cases in the note to § 5, supra. In In re Lamb Manufacturing Co., (1900), 32 O. R. 243, it was held that, where the insolvency of the company was admitted, under subsection (c) of this section, the Court had no discretion, under § 14 of this Act, to refuse to grant a winding-up order on the petition of a creditor who had a substantial interest in the estate. But this case has probably been overruled by later cases which give to the Court wide discretion in granting or withholding an order, even when the company is admittedly insolvent. For a discussion of this question, see notes § 14, infra.

Application for order.

By whom made. 12. The application for such winding-up order may, in the cases mentioned in paragraphs (a) and (b) of the last preceding section be made by the company or by a shareholder; and in the case mentioned in paragraph (c) of the last preceding section by the company or by a creditor for the sum of at least two hundred dollars, or, except in the case of banks and insurance corporations, by a shareholder holding shares in the capital stock of the company to the amount of at least five hundred dollars, and, in the other cases mentioned in the said section, by a shareholder holding shares in the capital stock of the company to the amount of at least five hundred dollars.

R. S., c. 129, § 8; 52 Vic. c. 32, § 5; 62 & 63 Vic. c. 43, § 4, Imp. § 137. See notes § 11, supra, and § 14, infra. Cp. the wording of this section and § 4, supra. A creditor whose debt is not due is a good petitioning creditor for winding-up when the company has become insolvent. — In re Atlas Canning Co., (1897), 5 B. C. 661; but where the creditors of a company had agreed to extend the time for payment of their debts, those creditors who had executed the deed of extension were estopped from presenting a winding-up petition until the period of extension had expired. — Ibid. A subsequent execution creditor may file a petition for a winding-up order. — In re Lake Winnipeg Trading Co., (1891), 7 Man. R. 255. The fact that a creditor is entitled to a lien for the full amount of his claim, does not disqualify him from being a petitioner. — In re Strathy Wire Fence Co., (1904), 8 O. L. R. 186, at pp. 191, 192. The assignor of a debt should join in the petition of his assignee. — In re Peoples Loan & Deposit Co., (1906), 7 O.W.R. 253, and cases cited p. 263. It is not permissible for various creditors, each having a claim of less than $ 200, to assign their claims against the company to a single person in order that the petitioner may have a claim in excess of $ 200. — Ibid. The petition must allege facts which justify a winding-up order; it is not enough that a sufficient cause be shown in evidence. Hence, the omission to allege essential facts in the petition cannot be supplied by circumstances which have arisen ex post facto. — In re Kootenay Brewing Co., (1898), 6 B. C. 112. Only those creditors of a company who have entered appearances need be served with notice of the application of the liquidator for his discharge. — In re McDougall Distillery Co., (1898), 18 C. L. T. 421. A petitioner for a winding-up order may discontinue proceedings on settlement of his claim, and other creditors who have not themselves petitioned, are not entitled to be substituted for such petitioner for the purpose of continuing the proceedings. — Doyle v. Atlas Canning Co., (1897), 5 B. C. 279. But where the other creditors have themselves petitioned, an order for continuance should be granted. — In re Joseph Hall Manufacturing Co., (1884), 10 O. P. R. 485.

How and where made; notice of application. 13. Such application may be made by petition to the Court in the Province where the head office of the company is situated, or, if there is no head office in Canada, then in the Province where its chief place, or one of its chief places of business is situated. 2. Except in cases where such application is made by the company, four days' notice of the application shall be given to the company before the making of the same.

R. S., c. 129, § 8; 52 Vic. c. 32, § 6. There is no provision in the Act relating to the affidavit. In a late English case, In re African Farms, (1906) 1 Ch. 640, it was held that the affidavit can be made by the petitioner's agent or solicitor if he has knowledge of the facts. Parker and Clarke believe that this case would be followed in Canada. — Company Law, p. 363. Filing and service of the petition is regulated by the Consolidated Rules of Practice; see also Parker and Clarke, Company Law p. 364. The petition may be presented to a Judge in Chambers § 109, infra. An application for a liquidator without previous notice to creditors, contributors, shareholders, or members, is null and void. — Stinson v. The North West Cattle Co., (1902), Q. R. 14 K. B. 279. A subsequent execution creditor may file a petition. — In re Lake Winnipeg Trading Co., (1891), 7 Man. R. 255. In re Cushing Sulphite Fibre Co., (1905), 37 N. B. 254, a holder of bonds, the interest on which was overdue, was granted a petition for winding-up. As to sufficiency of notice of application, see In re Maritime Wrapper Co., (1902), 35 N. B. 682; as to requisites of the petition, see In re Eldorado Stove Co., (1886), 18 N. S. 514. Service of a petition for a winding-up order on an assignee for the benefit of creditors of a company, is not service upon the company as required by this section. — In re Rodney Casket Co., (1906), 12 O. L. R. 409. Service of a petition on the vice-president of a company, when it was not shewn that the president could not be served, was held not good service on the company. — In re Kearn's Ink and Wax Co., Anglin J. (1907), (unreported), cited by Parker and Clarke, Company Law, p. 364. The petition may be served out of the jurisdiction. — § 111, infra.

Power of Court on application. 14. The Court may, on application for a winding-up order, make the order applied for, dismiss the petition with or without costs, adjourn the hearing conditionally or unconditionally, or make any interim or other order that it deems just.

R. S., c. 129, § 9; Imp. § 141. See notes § 11, supra. The Court, under this section, has discretion to grant or withhold a winding-up order. — Wakefield Rattan Co. v. Hamilton Whip Co., (1893), 24 O. R. 107. A later case in Ontario declined to follow the case above cited, holding that where the insolvency of the company was admitted, the Court had no discretion to refuse a winding-up order on the petition of a creditor who had a substantial interest. — In re Lamb Manufacturing Co., (1900), 32 O. R. 243. Still later decisions, however, approving the Rattan case, supra, have restored discretionary power to the Court. — In re Maple Leaf Dairy Co., (1901), 2 O. L. R. 590; In re Strathy Wire Fence Co., (1904), 8 O. L. R. 186. "It can now be taken as settled that, on an application for a winding-up order, the Court has wide discretion to grant or withhold the order, and that the Court will examine into the case and, if possible, the wishes of the creditors will be observed." — Parker and Clarke, Company Law, p. 373. Creditors may show cause against the granting of a winding-up order, or may appear and assist the petitioning creditors and are entitled to costs of so doing. — In re Alpha Oil Co., (1887), 12 O. P. R. 298; In re Lake Winnipeg Transportation Co., (1891), 7 Man. R. 255. For cases on costs of the petition, see In re Albion Iron Works Co., (1904), 24 C. L. T. (Occ. N.) 300; In re Enterprise Hosiery Co., (1904), 4 O. W. R. 56; In re Estates Limited, (1904), 8 O. L. R. 564; In re Commercial Bank of Manitoba, (1893), 9 Man. R. 342; 13 C. L. T. (Occ. N.) 381.

Proceedings may be adjourned. 15. If the company opposes the application on the ground that it has not become insolvent, or that its suspension or default was only temporary, and was not caused by any deficiency in its assets, or that the capital stock is not impaired to the extent aforesaid, or that such impairment does not endanger the capacity of the company to pay its debts in full, or that there is a probability that the lost capital will be restored within a year or within a reasonable time thereafter, and shows reasonable cause for believing that such opposition is well founded, the Court, in its discretion, may, from time to time, adjourn proceedings upon such application, for a time not exceeding six months from the date of the application, and may order an accountant or other person to inquire into the affairs of the company, and to report thereon within a period not exceeding thirty days from the date of such order.

R. S., c. 129, § 10; 52 Vic. c. 32, § 8; Imp. § 141.

Duty of company and its officers if inquiry is ordered. 16. Upon the service on the company of an order made under the last preceding section, for an inquiry into the affairs of the company, the president, directors, officers, and employees of the company and every other person, shall respectively exhibit to the accountant or other person named for the purpose of making such inquiry, the books of account of the company, and all inventories, papers, and vouchers referring to the business of the company or of any person therewith, which are in his or their possession, custody, or control, respectively; and they shall also respectively give all such information as is required by such accountant or other person as aforesaid, in order to form a just estimate of the affairs of the company.

R. S., c. 129, § 11; Imp. § 109. See penalty provided in § 141, infra, for refusal by officer of the company to give information.

Power of the Court upon report of inquiry. 17. Upon receiving the report of the accountant or person ordered to inquire into the affairs of the company, and after hearing such shareholders or creditors of the company as desire to be heard thereon, the Court may either refuse the application or make the winding-up order.

R. S., c. 129, § 12; Imp. § 141.

Staying proceedings.

Actions against company may be stayed. 18. The Court may, upon the application of the company, or of any creditor or contributory, at any time after the presentation of a petition for a winding-up order and before making the order, restrain further proceedings in any action, suit, or proceeding against the company, upon such terms as the Court thinks fit.

R. S., c. 129, § 13; Imp. § 140. Usually an application for an order restraining proceedings is made on notice to the plaintiff in the action, but, in a proper case, an order may be made on an ex parte application. — In re Tobique Gypsum Co., (1903), 6 O. L. R. 515, at p. 518. A restraining order to prevent an execution by a judgment creditor, of process against the company, can only be applied for after presentation of a petition, and such petition can only be presented after four days' notice. — In re Eldorado Union Store Co., (1886), 18 N. S. 514. Jurisdiction under this section extends to restraining actions or proceedings beyond the ordinary territorial jurisdiction of the Court; but where the sheriff had proceeded with the sale of the company's land under execution, and had executed a deed for the same to the purchaser, it was held that the Court had, under this Act, no jurisdiction to make an order summarily declaring the sale void. — In re Tobique Gypsum Co., (1903), 6 O. L. R. 515. But see Lake Superior Copper Co., In re Plummer, (1885), 9 O. R. 277, where an application for an injunction restraining the levy under an attachment in the State of Michigan, was refused. See also Clarke v. Union Fire Insurance Co., (1884), 10 O. P. R. 339. Cp. provisions of § 22, infra.

Court may stay winding-up proceedings. 19. The Court may, upon the application of any creditor or contributory, at any time after the winding-up order is made, and upon proof, to the satisfaction of the Court, that all proceedings in relation to the winding-up ought to be stayed, make an order staying the same, either altogether or for a limited time, on such terms and subject to such conditions as the Court thinks fit.

R. S., c. 129, § 18; Imp. § 144. Notwithstanding that this section gives no power to the Court to stay proceedings upon an application by the company, in In re Boehmer Erb Co., (unreported) Nov. 1907, cited by Parker and Clarke, Company Law, p. 385, Teetzel, J., stayed proceedings upon application of the company for the purpose of allowing the company to settle with creditors upon the representation that all debts would be promptly paid. A contributory petitioning to set aside a winding-up order, was required to give security for the costs of the company and creditors who opposed the petition, where it appeared that petitioner had only a nominal interest as holder of stock and was merely acting in the interests of other persons who lived out of the jurisdiction, and who had indemnified him as to costs. — In re Rainy Lake Lumber Co., (1886), 11 O. P. R. 314. Under this section, the winding-up may be altogether stayed; but Parker and Clarke believe that such an order would not be made unless all creditors were paid in full. — Company Law, p. 385.

Effect of winding-up order.

Company to cease business. 20. The company, from the time of the making of the winding-up order, shall cease to carry on its business, except in so far as is, in the opinion of the liquidator, required for the beneficial winding-up thereof; but the corporate state and all the corporate powers of the company, notwithstanding it is otherwise provided by the Act, charter, or instrument of incorporation, shall continue until the affairs of the company are wound up.

R. S., c. 129, § 15; Imp. § 184. See § 23, infra, for the effect of execution levied after the winding-up order. See § 34, infra, for powers of liquidators. Cp. § 5, supra, prescribing the time when the winding-up commences. After a winding-up order, judgment recovered against a company is void. — Keating v. Graham, (1895), 26 O. R. 361; Shaver v. Cotton, (1896), 23 O. A. R. 426; After a winding-up order, property cannot be sold for taxes. — Commissaires d'Ecole v. Montreal Abbatoir, (1887), M. L. R. 3 Q. B. 116. After a winding-up order, power to collect assets of the company is vested solely in the liquidator. — Shaver v. Cotton, (1896), 23 O. A. R. 426; Bank of Hochelaga v. Garth, (1885), M. L. R. 2 S. C. 201. An undertaking by a provisional liquidator to satisfy a landlord's claim for preferential payment for overdue rent after service of notice, is void unless permission of the Court is first obtained. — Inches v. Hamilton Tribune Co., (1884), 10 O. P. R. 409. In Trusts and Guarantee Co. v. Munroe, (1909), 13 O. W. R. 534, a liquidator of an insolvent company was allowed to recover money paid by the company to the defendant after notice of motion for a winding-up order had been served on the company.

Transfer of shares void. 21. All transfers of shares, except transfers made to or with the sanction of the liquidator, under the authority of the Court, and every alteration in the status of the members of the company, after the commencement of such winding-up, shall be void.

R. S., c. 129, §§ 15, § 205. Cp. § 5, supra, prescribing the time when winding-up commences. Semble, transfers of shares made after service of the notice of the petition, are void only if the order is subsequently made upon that petition. — Parker and Clarke, Company Law, p. 388.

After winding-up order, actions against company stayed. 22. After the winding-up order is made, no suit, action, or other proceeding shall be proceeded with or commenced against the company, except with the leave of the Court and subject to such terms as the Court imposes.

R. S., c. 129, § 16; Imp. 142. §§ 22 and 22 should be read together, and § 23 must be held as only avoiding attachments, sequestrations, distresses, or executions, where leave to put them in force has not been granted under § 23. — White, Canadian Company Law, p. 430, citing In re Lake Winnipeg Transportation Co., (1891), 7 Man. R. 602, 604; In re Enterprise Brewing & Malting Co., (1891), 8 Man. R. 424. In re British Columbia Tie Co., (1908), 9 West. L. R., an application by a liquidator for an order, under this section, restraining mortgages in possession from selling lands mortgaged by the company, was refused. "To entitle a plaintiff to an order allowing him to proceed with the action, he must shew such special or unusual circumstances as make it reasonably clear that the matters in question cannot be satisfactorily dealt with by the tribunal specially provided for in the winding-up proceedings." — Per Teetzel J. in Titterton v. Distributors Co., (1906), 8 O. W. R. 328. Where claimant did not seek to enforce any rights against the company, but rather to ascertain his rights, leave to proceed was granted. — In re Lake Winnipeg Trading Co., (1891), 7 Man. R. 602. In the above case, leave was granted to a servant of the company to sue the company for wages so that he would be able to sue the directors under the Manitoba Companies Act, after a return of nulla bona. In re Regina Windmill & Pump Co., (1909), 10 West. L. R. 65, an application by the liquidator for an order directing the sheriff to hand over goods in his possession by virtue of a levy under an execution before winding-up proceedings were commenced, was refused. In re British Columbia, etc., Co., Colon v. "The Rustler," (1909), 10 West. L. R. 370, an application was granted by the Supreme Court of British Columbia allowing plaintiff leave to proceed with his action on the Admiralty side of the Exchequer Court of Canada against a ship, notwithstanding the appointment of a liquidator in a winding-up proceeding against the company owning the ship.

Execution, etc., against company void. 23. Every attachment, sequestration, distress, or execution put in force against the estate or effects of the company after the making of the winding-up order shall be void.

R. S., c. 129, § 17; Imp. § 211. See notes §§ 20 and 22, supra. The Court will not allow its administration of assets to be interfered with by other proceedings affecting the estate; creditors of such estate must proceed through the Master. — Clarke v. Union Fire Insurance Co., (1884), 10 O. P. R. 339; see also Graham v. Casselman, (1883), 4 Q. R. (S. C.) 91. Where a claim was made for arrears of taxes against a company in liquidation, and it was shewn that, before the date of the winding-up order, the taxes might have been, but were not, recovered by distress, the claim was disallowed. — In re Ottawa Porcelain, etc., Co., (1900), 31 O. R. 679; see also Commissaires d'Ecole v. Montreal Abbatoir, (1887), M. L. R. 3 Q. B. 116.

Appointment of liquidators.

Liquidator to be appointed. 24. The Court in making the winding-up order, may appoint a liquidator or more than one liquidator of the estate and effects of the company.

R. S., c. 129, § 20; Imp. § 149 (1). See notes §§ 27 and 29, infra, Power of appointment of liquidators cannot be delegated. — In re Union Fire Insurance Co., (1886), 13 O. A. R. 268; affirmed in 14 S. C. R. 624. Cp. Act 45 Vic. c. 23, where the liquidator "must" be appointed by the winding-up order. In the present section the word used is "may." Such appointment must be made on notice to creditors, shareholders, and members. — § 27, infra; Schoolbred v. Clarke, In re Union Fire Insurance Co., (1890), 17 S. C. R. 265 at p. 272. Usually a provisional liquidator is first appointed (§ 26) and, after notice, a permanent liquidator is substituted. — Schoolbred v. Clarke, supra; see also In re Guelph Linseed Oil Co., (1903), 2 O. W. R. 1151. In the appointment of a liquidator, the choice of the creditors should be adopted; but preference should be given to one who is neither a creditor nor a shareholder, since it is desirable that liquidators should be disinterested persons. — In re Central Bank of Canada, (1887), 15 O. R. 309. In a contest for the appointment of a liquidator, it is desirable to follow the English rule, i. e., preference should be given to the nominee who will have an immediate concern in realization of the assets. — In re Alpha Oil Co., (1887), 12 O. P. R. 298. Where there were two petitioners for a winding-up order against one company, although orders were made under both petitions, control of the proceedings was given to a later petitioner, a creditor for money paid, in preference to an earlier one shewn to be an employee of the company. — In re Estates Limited, (1904), 8 O. L. R. 564; see also Alpha Oil Co. v. Donnelly, (1888), 12 O. P. R. 515; Wakefield Rattan Co. v. Hamilton Whip Co., (1893), 24 O. R. 107. In re Commercial Bank of Manitoba, (1893), 9 Man. R.

342, the Court declined to appoint as liquidator a former officer of the bank who was largely indebted to the bank, though such indebtedness was fully secured. In the appointment of liquidators the Court, though confined to those nominated at the meeting of creditors and shareholders, is not bound by the result of the voting, and ought to exercise its own discretion in the selection of liquidators. — In re Commercial Bank of Manitoba, supra. Where all the creditors of an insolvent company had agreed upon and recommended the appointment of a certain person as liquidator, it was held that the fact that he was a shareholder in the company, was not a valid objection to his appointment. — In re Westminster Gas Co., (1897), 5 B. C. 618. Canvassing for votes by a liquidator will be discountenanced by the Court. — In re Commercial Bank of Manitoba, supra. The liquidator represents all classes of creditors in the winding-up. — In re Farmer's Loan and Savings Co., (1903), 2 O. W. R. 854. For a discussion of scale of remuneration of liquidators, see White, Canadian Company Law, p. 436.

Acting liquidator. 25. If more than one liquidator is appointed, the Court may declare whether any act to be done by a liquidator is to be done by all or any one or more of the liquidators.

R. S., c. 129, § 23; Imp. § 149 (4). See notes § 27, infra. If more than one liquidator is appointed, and no order made under this section, it is not proper for one of them to delegate powers or duties to another. — In re Central Bank of Canada, (1887), 15 O. R. 309.

Additional liquidators. 26. The Court may, if it thinks fit, after the appointment of one or more liquidators, appoint an additional liquidator or liquidators.

R. S., c. 129, § 22; Imp. § 149. See notes § 27, infra.

Notice previous to appointment. 27. No liquidator aforesaid shall be appointed unless a previous notice is given to the creditors, contributories, and shareholders or members; and the Court shall by order direct the manner and form in which such notice shall be given and the length of such notice.

R. S., c. 129, § 20; Imp. § 201. See notes § 24, supra. It is a substantial objection to an order for the appointment of a liquidator, that such order was made without notice to creditors, contributories, shareholders, or members of the company. — Schoolbred v. Union Fire Insurance Co., (1886), 14 S. C. R. 624, reversing In re Union Fire Insurance Co., (1886), 13 O. A. R. 268, and In re Clarke v. Union Fire Insurance Co., (1885), 10 O. R. 489. See also In re Guelph Linseed Oil Co., (1903), 2 O. W. R. 1151. § 124, infra, does not extend to dispensing with notice as required by this section. — Stimson v. Northwest Cattle Co., (1902), Q. R. 14 K. B. 279. An appeal to a Judge in Court lies from an order of the Master appointing a permanent liquidator. — Markle v. Ross, (1889), 13 O. P. R. 135. Further appeals governed by § 101, infra.

Security. 28. The Court shall also determine what security shall be given by a liquidator on his appointment.

R. S., c. 129, § 24; Imp. § 149 (3). The security need not be fixed by the winding-up order; it may be left to the Master. — Schoolbred v. Clarke, (1890), 17 S. C. R. 265. For practice in fixing security given by the liquidator, see Parker and Clarke, Company Law, p. 403.

Provisional liquidator. 29. The Court may on the presentation of the petition for a winding-up order or at any time thereafter and before the first appointment of a liquidator, appoint provisionally a liquidator of the estate and effects of the company and may limit and restrict his powers by the order appointing him.

R. S., c. 129, § 26; 52 Vic. c. 32, § 12; Imp. § 149 (2). See notes §§ 24 and 27, supra. The Act requires no notice of the appointment of provisional liquidators whereas notice of appointment of permanent liquidators must be given. — § 27. For an enumeration of powers and duties of a provisional liquidator, see Parker and Clarke, Company Law, p. 407. See also In re Guelph Linseed Oil Co., (1903), 2 O. W. R. 1151.

Incorporated company may be appointed. 30. (As amended by 6 & 7 Edw. 7, c. 51, § 2.) 1. An incorporated company may be appointed liquidator to the goods and effects of a company under this Act; and if an incorporated company is so appointed, it may act through one or more of its principal officers designated by the Court. 2. Where under the laws of any Province a trust company is accepted by the Courts of such Province, and is permitted to act, as administrator, assignee, or curator without giving security, such trust company may be appointed liquidator of a company under this Act, without giving security.

R. S., c. 129, § 21. In Forsythe v. Bank of Nova Scotia, In re Bank of Liverpool, (1890), 18 S. C. R. 707, a bank was appointed liquidator of another insolvent bank.

Powers of directors to cease. 31. Upon the appointment of the liquidator all the powers of the directors shall cease, except in so far as the Court or the liquidator sanctions the continuance of such powers.

R. S., c. 129, § 34; Imp. § 151. Cp. § 20, supra. Note that this section provides nothing as to the powers of the company's officers; only directors are mentioned. Parker and Clarke believe that, since, under § 20, the company must cease to carry on business from the time of the making of the order, no contract could be made after that date which would be binding on the company unless made by the liquidator or, semble, with his approval. It seems also that the provisions of this section would apply in the case of the appointment of a provisional liquidator though there is no decision on this point. — Company Law, p. 408. A sale of the company's property to a director after the appointment of a liquidator is valid, the management and control of the property by the directors having ceased at the time of liquidation. — In re Mabou Coal & Gypsum Co., (1894), 27 N. S. 305; and see Graham v. Casselman Lumber Co., (1893), 4 R. J. Q. (S. C.) 91.

Resignation and removal. 32. A liquidator may resign or may be removed by the Court on due cause shown, and every vacancy in the office of liquidator shall be filled by the Court.

R. S., c. 129, § 27; Imp. § 149 (6, 7). Where there is a want of harmony between liquidators, the Court will remove one of them on the advice of creditors. — Cloyes v. Darling, (1884), 16 Rev. Leg. 649; Exchange Bank v. Campbell, (1885), 15 Rev. Leg. 373. An application to remove a liquidator was granted on the following grounds: (1) That the majority of the creditors requested the change; (2) That the proposed liquidators would act without remuneration; (3) That the business connections of one of the proposed liquidators would be beneficial to the company. — In re Assiniboine Valley Stock Co., (1889), 6 Man. R. 105. For conditions upon which the Court will discharge a liquidator in default, see Plender v. Fitzgerald, (1888), M. L. R. 5 Q. B. 446; see also, In re Central Bank of Canada, Hogaboom's Case, (1897), 24 O. A. R. 470.

Powers and duties of liquidators.

Duties after appointment. 33. The liquidator, upon his appointment, shall take into his custody or under his control, all the property, effects, and choses in action to which the company is or appears to be entitled, and he shall perform such duties in reference to winding up the business of the company as are imposed by the Court or by this Act.

R. S., c. 129, § 30; Imp. § 150 (1). As to the right of a liquidator to possession of securities which the company had deposited with a bailee, see Elgin Loan and Savings Co. v. National Trust Co., Ltd., (1905), 10 O. L. R. 41.

Powers of liquidator. 34. The liquidator may, with the approval of the Court, and upon such previous notice to the creditors, contributories, shareholders, or members as the Court orders: a) Bring or defend any action, suit, or prosecution or other legal proceeding, civil or criminal, in his own name as liquidator or in the name or on behalf of the company, as the case may be; b) Carry on the business of the company so far as is necessary to the beneficial winding-up of the same; c) Sell the real and personal and heritable and moveable property, effects, and choses in action of the company, by public auction or private contract, and transfer the whole thereof to any person or company, or sell the same in parcels; d) Do all acts, and execute, in the name and on behalf of the company, all deeds, receipts, and other documents, and for that purpose use, when necessary, the seal of the company; e) Prove, rank, claim, and draw dividends in the matter of the bankruptcy, insolvency, or sequestration of any contributory, for any sum due the company from such contributory, and take and receive dividends in respect of such sum in the matter of the bankruptcy, insolvency, or sequestration, as a separate debt due from such contributory and ratably with the other separate creditors; f) Draw, accept, make, and endorse any bill of exchange or promissory note in the name and on behalf of the company; g) Raise upon the security of the assets of the company, from time to time any requisite sum or sums of money; and h) Do and execute all such other things as are necessary for winding up the affairs of the company and distributing its assets. 2. The drawing, accepting, making, or endorsing of every such bill of exchange or promissory note, as aforesaid, on behalf of the company, shall have the same effect, with respect to the liability of such company, as if such bill or note had been drawn, accepted, made, or endorsed by or on behalf of such company in the course of the carrying on of its business. 3. No delivery of the whole or of any part of the assets of the company shall be necessary to give a lien to any person taking security as aforesaid upon the assets of the company.

R. S., c. 129, § 31; 62 & 63 Vic. c. 42, § 3; Imp. § 151. A liquidator cannot begin proceedings against debtors of the company without previous consent of the Court on notice to creditors, contributories, shareholders, or members. — Ross v. Perras, (1894), 5 R. J. Q. (S. C.) 470. The liquidator must be specially authorized to institute an action for the recovery of a claim due to the company, and a general authorization to recover all the assets of the company is not sufficient. — Freygang v. Daveluy, (1892), 2 R. J. Q. (S. C.) 505. When so authorized, and when the action has been brought in the name of the company, and the liquidator is not otherwise a party to it, he is not liable personally for costs. — Ontario Forge & Bolt Co., v. Comet Cycle Co., (1896), 17 O. P. R. 156. But see Boyd v. Dominion Cold Storage Co., (1897), 17 O. P. R. 486, where a liquidator, who intervened to defend an action in his own name, was held personally liable for costs. Cp. Sarnia, etc., Manufacturing Co. v. Hutchinson, (1889), 17 O. R. 676. Before the winding-up order is made, the liquidator sues in the name of the company. — Sarnia, etc., Manufacturing Co. v. Hutchinson, (1889), 17 O. R. 676. But see Samson v. Manicouagan Fish & Oil Co., (1891), 17 Q. L. R. 65. The company retains its corporate state until such order is made. The liquidator is simply an officer of the court, and acts in the place of directors and other officers, whose powers cease on his appointment. — Ross v. Perras, (1894), 5 R. J. Q. (S. C.) 470; Fairbanks v. Pioneer Beet Root Sugar Co., (1890), 20 Rev. Leg. 99; Salter v. St. Lawrence, etc., Co., (1896), 28 N. S., at p. 338. But where the liquidator endeavors to get from a contributory the amount of his contribution, or where he attempts to recover a payment made by the company to a creditor who actually knew or who had reasonable grounds to believe the company to be insolvent, he may, with the sanction of the Court, sue as liquidator. — See Sarnia, etc., Manufacturing Co. v. Hutchinson, (1889), 17 O. R. 676; In re Bolt & Iron Co., (1884), 10 O. P. R. 434; Kent v. Blandy (1897), R. J. Q. 6 Q. B. 196. Liquidators are officers of the court. — In re Central Bank, Henderson's Case, (1889), 17 O. R. 110. In Kent v. Blandy, (1896), 10 Q. R. (S. C.) 255, it was held that the liquidator could bring an action to nullify a payment made by the company to a creditor who sued the insolvent estate of that company, on the ground that the liquidator represents the creditors in respect to bringing actions which belong to the creditors themselves. "The result of the decisions and dicta on this subject (the right of the liquidator as paramount to that of the company) is perhaps this, that although the liquidator is substituted for and enforces the rights of the creditors in the right of the company, yet that the winding-up order calls into existence new rights and new liabilities which did not exist before, and that equities which might have been set up against the company cannot prevail against the liquidator as representative of the creditors." — Buckley, Company Law, p. 272. But Parker and Clarke believe that, beyond the powers given under §§ 94—100, "the liquidator stands on no higher footing than the company and cannot be regarded as a creditor or subsequent purchaser under the provisions of the Chattel Mortgage Act, Conditional Sales Act, and kindred acts." — Company Law, p. 417. See In re Central Bank, Nasmith's Case, (1888), 16 O. R. 293, at p. 305; In re Standard Fire Insurance Co., Caston's Case, (1885), 12 O. A. R. 486 at p. 495; In re Bolt & Iron Co., (1883), 10 O. P. R. 437. As to whether the liquidator of a company can object to the want of registration or to formal defects in a chattel mortgage as an execution creditor or a subsequent mortgagee could do, see In re Rainy Lake Lumber Co., (1888), 15 O. A. R. 749. As to practice in an action by the liquidator against directors for alleged illegal acts, see London & Western Trusts Co., v. Lacomb, (1906), 13 O. L. R. 34. For procedure in actions by the liquidator, see also City of Montreal v. Gagnon, (1904), Q. R. 25 S. C. 178. Where a non-resident shareholder intervened in the actions of the liquidator during the winding-up, it was held that the referee had power to order security for costs to be given and proceedings stayed until such security was provided. — In re Sarnia Oil Co., (1891), 14 O. P. R. 335. Upon appointment of the liquidator the powers of the directors cease, and their fiduciary relations toward the company are at an end. Hence a sale to them by the liquidator is valid. — Chatham Bank v. McKeen, (1895), 24 S. C. R. 348. Cp. § 31, supra. The power to sell the assets of a company is vested in the liquidator and not in the Court, though the liquidator must obtain the approval of the Court as a condition of exercising the power of sale. — In re Canadian Woolen Mills, Long's Appeal, (1905), 9 O. L. R. 367. After a winding-up, a transfer of shares may be made with the sanction of the liquidators acting under the authority of the Court. — Redfern v. Polson, (1894), 25 O. R. 321. Cp. § 15, supra. For procedure in the sale of the assets of a company being wound up, see In re Bolt & Iron Co., (1885), 10 O. P. R. 437; In re Alger & Sarnia Oil Co., (1891), 21 O. R. 440; affirmed in (1892), 19 O. A. R. 446. Such a sale is governed by the ordinary court practise in sales cases. — Parker and Clarke, Company Law, p. 419.

When solicitor may be appointed. 35. The liquidator may, with the approval of the Court, appoint a solicitor or law agent to assist him in the performance of his duties.

R. S., c. 129, § 32; Imp. § 151 (1) (8). It is preferable to have proceedings under a winding-up order conducted by solicitors who are totally unconnected with the company to be wound up. — In re Joseph Hall Manufacturing Co., (1884), 10 O. P. R. 485. In a proceeding for the winding-up of a company a solicitor who is acting for claimants whose claim must be contested by the liquidator cannot obtain sanction of the Court to his acting also as solicitor for the liquidator. — In re Charles Stark Co., (1893), 15 O. P. R. 471. The appointment of solicitors to represent the general body of creditors, with costs to be paid out of the assets, is not favoured by the courts except under special circumstances. — In re Drury Nickle Co., (1895), 16 O. P. R. 525.

Debts due to the company may be compromised. Security may be taken. 36. The liquidator may, with the approval of the Court, compromise all calls and liabilities to calls, debts, and liabilities capable of resulting in debts, and all claims, demands, and matters in dispute in any way relating to or affecting the assets of the company or the winding-up of the company, upon the receipt of such sums, payable at such times, and generally upon such terms, as are agreed upon. 2. The liquidator may take any security for the discharge of such calls, debts, liabilities, claims, demands, or disputed matters, and give a complete discharge in respect of all or any such calls, debts, liabilities, claims, demands, or matters.

R. S., c. 129, § 33; Imp. § 214 (1). The Court has no power to compel a compromise. Such compromise must be recommended by the liquidator and approved by the Court. — In re Sun Lithographing Co., (1893), 24 O. R. 200. This case also decided that a dissenting minority might frustrate a compromise; but see §§ 63 and 64, infra, which provide that if a majority in number representing three-fourths in value of the creditors agree to a compromise, and such compromise is sanctioned by the Court, it shall be binding on all creditors. — See In re Bolt & Iron Co., (1885), 10 O. P. R. 437. "The power of the courts of first instance to authorize the liquidator of a company in liquidation to compromise in the name of the company and to settle pending cases is a discretionary power, and the courts of appeal should not interfere with this discretion unless the court below has exercised it in an unreasonable manner. The liquidator is not obliged to consult the creditors of the company before demanding from the court authorization to consent to a compromise." — White, Canadian Company Law, p. citing Morin v. Bilodeau, (1889), 8 R. J. Q. (Q. B.) 330.

Creditors may be compromised. 37. The liquidator may, with the approval of the Court, make such compromise or other arrangement with creditors or persons claiming to be creditors of the company as he shall deem expedient.

R. S., c. 129, § 61; Imp. § 214 (1). See § 64, infra. This section is not inconsistent with § 63, infra. — See Ward v. Mullin, (1904), Q. R. 14 K. B. 49. A curator has no power to remit debts due to an insolvent company except upon a compromise. — In re Laurie Engine Co., (1906), 7 Q. P. R. 431.

Court may provide as to powers of liquidator. 38. The Court may provide, by any order subsequent to the winding-up order, that the liquidator may exercise any of the powers conferred upon him by this Act, without the sanction or intervention of the Court.

52 Vic. c. 32, § 12; Imp. § 158. An order is very rarely made under this section, the Court preferring to retain general control of proceedings. — Parker and Clarke, Company Law, p. 430. A judge may allow the liquidator to exercise his powers under the Winding-up Act without further authorization, when the amount is under $ 100. — In re Victoria Montreal Insurance Co., (1902), 4 Q. P. R. 315. But see Kendall v. Webster, (1909), 14 B. C. 390; 10 West. L. R. where it was held that this sanction of the Court was necessary to enable liquidators to bring actions even though the winding-up order empowered him to "bring and defend any action." But this view was overruled in s. c. (1910), 15 B. C. 268.

Appointment of inspectors.

Inspectors. 39. The Court may appoint, at any time when found advisable, one or more inspectors, whose duty it shall be to assist and advise the liquidator in the liquidation of the company.

62 & 63 Vic. c. 42, § 1; Imp. § 109. Such an inspector is in a fiduciary position as regards the disposal of assets and cannot, without consent of all persons interested, become the purchaser thereof. — In re Canada Woolen Mills Ltd., Long's Appeal, (1905), 9 O. L. R. 367.

Remuneration of liquidators and inspectors.

Remuneration, distribution of. 40. The liquidator shall be paid such salary or remuneration, by way of percentage or otherwise, as the Court directs, upon such notice to the creditors, contributories, shareholders, or members, as the Court orders. 2. If there is more than one liquidator, the remuneration shall be distributed amongst them in such proportions as the Court directs.

R. S., c. 129, § 28; Imp. § 149 (8). The liquidator should furnish proof of services rendered. — Exchange Bank v. Campbell, (1885), 15 Rev. Leg. 373; In re Assiniboine Valley Co., (1889), 6 Man. R. 184. As to considerations in fixing the remuneration of liquidators, see the following cases: In re Central Bank of Canada, (1887), 15 O. R. 309; In re Central Bank, Lyle's Claim, (1892), 22 O. R. 247; In re Commercial Bank of Manitoba, (1893), 9 Man. R. 342; In re Saskatchewan Coal Mining Co., (1890), 6 Man. R. 593.

Remuneration of inspectors. 41. The Court shall determine the remuneration, if any is deemed just, of the inspector or inspectors.

62 & 63 Vic. c. 42, § 2.

Depositing in bank.

Moneys to be deposited in bank. 42. The liquidator shall deposit at interest in some chartered bank or post office savings bank, or other Government savings bank designated by the Court, all sums of money which he has in his hands belonging to the company, whenever and so often as such sums amount to one hundred dollars.

R. S., c. 129, § 35; Imp. § 154.

Separate account of same, in name of liquidator as such. 43. Such deposits shall not be made in the name of the liquidator individually, on pain of dismissal;

but a separate account shall be kept for the company of the moneys belonging to the company in the name of the liquidator as such liquidator.

R. S., c. 129, § 36; Imp. § 154.

Balance on hand by liquidator to be deposited after winding-up. 44. The liquidator shall, within three days after the date of the final winding-up of the business of the company, deposit at interest in the bank appointed or designated, as hereinbefore provided, any money belonging to the estate then in his hands not required for any other purpose authorized by this Act, with a sworn statement and account of such money, and that the same is all that he has in his hands.

R. S., c. 129, § 40; Imp. §§ 229—231.

Penalty for neglect. 45. In case any liquidator shall not, within three days after the date of the final winding-up of the business of the company, deposit in the bank, appointed or designated as hereinbefore provided, any money belonging to the estate of which he is such liquidator, then in his hands, he shall be deemed a debtor to His Majesty for such money, and may be compelled as such to account for and pay over the same.

R. S., c. 129, § 40.

Court discharging functions of liquidator.

If no liquidator. 46. If at any time there is no liquidator, all the property of the company shall be deemed to be in the custody of the Court.

R. S., c. 129, § 25; Imp. § 150 (2).

Provision for discharge of liquidator and distribution by the Court; disposal of books and documents. 47. Whenever a company is being wound up, and the realisation and distribution of its assets has proceeded so far that in the opinion of the Court it becomes expedient that the liquidator should be discharged, and that the balance remaining in his hands of the moneys and assets of the company can be better realized and distributed by the Court, the Court may make an order discharging the liquidator, and for payment, delivery and transfer into Court, or to such officer or person as the Court may direct, of such moneys and assets, and the same shall be realized and distributed, by or under the direction of the Court, among the persons entitled thereto, in the same way, as nearly as may be, as if the distribution were being made by the liquidator. 2. In such case the Court may make an order directing how the books, accounts and documents of the company and of the liquidator may be disposed of, and may order that they be deposited in Court or otherwise dealt with as may be thought fit.

55 & 56 Vic. c. 28; § 2, Imp. § 222.

Contributories.

List of contributories. 48. As soon as may be after the commencement of the winding-up of a company the Court shall settle a list of contributories.

R. S., c. 129, § 42; Imp. § 163 (1). For meaning of the term "contributories", see notes to § 2, supra. For Ontario practice in settling the list of contributories, see Parker and Clarke, Company Law, p. 438.

Classes of contributories distinguished. 49. In the list of contributories, persons who are contributories in their own right shall be distinguished from persons who are contributories as representatives of or liable for the debts of others.

R. S., c. 129, § 43; Imp. § 163 (2).

Adding heirs to list. 50. It shall not be necessary, where the personal representative of any deceased contributory is placed on the list, to add the heirs or devisees of such contributory, but such heirs or devisees may be added as and when the Court thinks fit.

R. S., c. 129, § 43; Imp. § 126.

Liability of shareholders and their representatives; liability an asset. 51. Every shareholder or member of the company or his representative, shall be liable to contribute the amount unpaid on his shares of the capital, or on his liability to the company, or to its members or creditors, as the case may be, under the Act, charter, or instrument of incorporation of the company, or otherwise. 2. The amount which he is liable to contribute shall be deemed an asset of the company, and a debt due to the company, payable as directed or appointed under this Act.

R. S., c. 129, § 44; Imp. §§ 125, 126. See cases in note to Dominion Companies Act, § 39. All persons who apply for letters patent and all others who subscribe to the memorandum of agreement before incorporation become liable as shareholders, and consequently as contributories, without allotment or other act of the directors. Under the old Ontario

Companies Act, it was held that where a person, before incorporation, signed an agreement to take stock, he did not become a shareholder without a subsequent allotment. — In re London Speaker Co., (1889), 16 O. A. R. 508, at p. 513, explaining the decision in In re Queen City Refining Co., (1886), 10 O. R. 264. The Ontario Companies Act has however been changed and now provides that all persons who become subscribers to the memorandum of agreement shall become shareholders. — Ontario Companies Act, § 3. The Dominion Companies Act is similar to the Ontario Act. It provides that a charter may be granted to those persons "who apply therefor, constituting such persons, and others who have become subscribers to the memorandum of agreement hereinafter mentioned, and who thereafter become shareholders in the company thereby created a body corporate", etc. — § 5. No reported decisions have been found, but under the corresponding section of the English Companies Act, (8 Edw. 7, c. 69, § 24), it has been held that subscribers to the memorandum become shareholders without allotment. — In re London & Provincial Co., (1877), 5 C. D. 325; see also Nichol's Case, (1885), 29 C. D. 447; Alexander v. Automatic Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 63. In commenting upon the Dominion Act, Parker and Clark submit: "that it is clear that those persons who subscribe to the memorandum of agreement are now liable as shareholders without further act of the directors." See In re Haggert Bros. Manufacturing Co., (1892), 19 O. A. R. 582; Modern Bedstead Co. v. Tobin, (1908), 12 O.W. R. 22. It seems that persons who sign the memorandum of agreement, after incorporation, are liable as contributories without allotment. — In re London Speaker Co., (1889), 16 O. A. R. 508, at p. 513, explaining the decision in In re Queen City Refining Co., (1886), 10 O. R. 264. However, even after incorporation, one who signs a subscription book, and who requests that the shares be allotted to him is not liable as a contributory if no allotment has been made, the condition of his subscription not having been fulfilled. — In re Zoological Society, (1889), 16 O. A. R. 543; see also In re Standard Fire Insurance Co., Kelly's Case (1884), 7 O. A. R. 448; affirmed (1885), 12 O. A. R. 486; (1886), 12 S. C. R. 644; In re Cement, etc., Co., McBean's Case, (1906), 8 O.W. R. 264. After the issue of the winding-up order, a shareholder cannot avoid his liability as a contributory by setting up defects or illegalities in the organization of the company which can only be taken advantage of upon direct proceedings by the Attorney-General. — Common v. McArthur, (1898), 29 S. C. R. 239. So after a winding-up order is made, a shareholder cannot evade liability by setting up misrepresentations or fraud in the sale of shares. Proceedings to set the contract aside must be taken before the winding-up order. — In re London Speaker Co., Pearce's Case, (1889), 16 O. A. R. 508, at p. 513; see also In re Packenham Packing Co., (1903), 6 O. L. R. 582. After a winding-up order is made, a judgment creditor cannot proceed against a shareholder for unpaid calls; the power of collecting the assets of the company is vested solely in the liquidator. — Shaver v. Cotton, (1896), 23 O. A. R. 426; In re Bolt & Iron Co., (1885), 10 O. P. R. 437; Bank of Hochelaga v. Garth, etc., (1885), 2 M. L. R. 201. The burden of proving that a person is a contributory is on the liquidator. — In re Canadian Tin Plate, etc., Co., (1906), 12 O. L. R. 594, at p. 601. As to whether a contributory may set up, as against the liquidator, all defences which he might have had against the company, see notes to § 34, supra. "Where the rights of creditors are involved, no shareholder can escape liability on account of irregularities in the issue of stock so long as the issue was substantially lawfully authorized by charter." — Per Hagarty, C. J., in In re Ontario Express, etc., Co., (1894), 21 O. A. R. 646, at p. 654. It is impossible to lay down any definite rule adaptable to all cases which will define accurately in each case who is and who is not a contributory within the meaning of the Winding-up Act. The cases upon this subject may be roughly divided into two classes. Under the first head are grouped cases in which the person sought to be made contributory denies that any binding contract was ever entered into between him and the company whereby he became a shareholder in the company. The second group embraces those cases in which the alleged contributory admits his present or former status as a shareholder, but maintains that, by reason of having paid the contract price for his shares, he has discharged his liability as a contributory or, having transferred his shares, he has sufficiently retired from the company so as to be no longer considered a member within the meaning of the Winding-up Act. Adopting this classification, the following cases have been reported:

I. Where the contract of membership was in issue.

(a) Defendant held liable as contributory:

Lake Superior Navigation Co., v. Morrison, (1872), 22 C. C. P. 217, (alleged failure to allot shares); Denison v. Lesslie, (1879), 3 O. A. R. 536, (notice of allotment); In re Standard Fire Insurance Co., Chisholm's Case (1884), 7 O. R. 448, 453, (subscription for purpose of qualifying as director); In re Standard Fire Insurance Co., Caston's Case, (1885), 12 O. A. R. 486, (sufficiency of offer); In re Cole and Canada, etc., Insurance Co., (1884), 8 O. R. 92, (delay in notice of allotment); In re Bishop Engraving Co., Ex parte Howard, (1887), 4 Man. R. 429, (allotment of shares); In re London Speaker Co., Pearce's Case, (1889), 16 O. A. R. 508, (fraud in sale of shares); In re Central Bank of Canada, Henderson's Case, (1889), 17 O. R. 110, (legality of contract); In re Central Bank of Canada, Home Savings, etc., Company's Case, (1891), 18 O. A. R. 489, (irregularity in transfer of shares to predecessors); In re Union Fire Insurance Co. McCord's Case, (1891), 21 O. The amount which he is so liable to contribute shall be deemed an asset and a debt as aforesaid.

R. S., c. 129, § 45. See cases cited under § 2, supra. There is nothing in the Winding-up Act which creates any liability on the part of a past member where such member is not subjected to liability by the Act under which the company was created, or some Act relating to it. — In re Warton Beet Sugar Co., Freeman's Case, (1906), 12 O. L. R. 149, at p. 152. Where a transfer was made to enable the transferee to vote at a meeting and no re-transfer was made, the transferee was held liable as a contributory. — Ontario Investment Association v. Leys, (1893), 23 O. R. 496; see also In re Union Fire Insurance Co., McCord's Case, (1891), 21 O. R. 264. A purchaser for value without notice that shares have been issued at discount is not liable to an execution creditor of the company for the amount unpaid on shares. — McCracken v. McIntyre, (1877), 1 S. C. R. 479; and see Page v. Austin, (1884), 10 S. C. R. 132, at p. 149.

Liability of contributory a debt. 53. The liability of any person to contribute to the assets of a company under this Act, in the event of the business of the same being wound up, shall create a debt accruing due from such person at the time when his liability commenced, but payable at the time or respective times when calls are made, as hereinafter mentioned, for enforcing such liability.

R. S., c. 129, § 46; Imp. § 125.

Provable against his estate. 54. In the case of the bankruptcy or insolvency of any contributory, the estimated value of his liability to future calls, as well as calls already made, may be proved against his estate.

R. S., c. 129, § 46; Imp. § 125.

Contributory may be ordered to hand over money and books. 55. The Court may, at any time, after making a winding-up order, require any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories as trustee, receiver, banker, agent, or officer of the company, to pay, deliver, convey, surrender, or transfer forthwith, or within such time as the Court directs, to or into the hands of the liquidator, any sum or balance, books, papers, estate, or effects which are in his hands for the time being, and to which the company is prima facie entitled.

R. S., c. 129, § 47; Imp. § 164.

Court may order payment by contributory. 56. The Court may, at any time after making a winding-up order, make an order on any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories, directing payment to be made, in manner in the said order mentioned, of any moneys due from him or from the estate of the person whom he represents, to the company, exclusive of any moneys which he or the estate of the person whom he represents is liable to contribute by virtue of any call made in pursuance of this Act.

R. S., c. 129, § 48; Imp. § 165.

When calls may be made on contributories. 57. The Court may, at any time after making a winding-up order, and either before or after it has ascertained the sufficiency of the assets of the company, make calls on and order payment thereof by all or any of the contributories for the time being settled on the list of contributories, to the extent of their liability, for payment of all or any sums it deems necessary to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges, and expenses of winding-up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves.

R. S., c. 129, § 49; Imp. § 166 (1).

Consideration of possible failure to pay. Proviso as to maturity of debt. 58. The Court may, in making a call, take into consideration the probability that some of the contributories upon whom the same is made may partly or wholly fail to pay their respective portions of the same: Provided that no call shall compel payment of a debt before the maturity thereof, and that the extent of the liability of any contributory shall not be increased by anything in this section contained.

R. S., c. 129, § 49; Imp. § 166 (2). "It is submitted that the latter part of this section does not apply so to prevent the liquidator obtaining immediate payment of unpaid balances due on stock even when the shares had been bought on the basis of instalment payments. The winding-up order overrides the contract between the company and the shareholders, and substitutes a statutory for a contractual liability." — Parker and Clarke, Company Law, p. 473, citing In re Warton Beet Sugar Co., Jarvis' Case, (1905), 5 O.W. R. 542.

Payment by contributory into bank. Enforcement of order. 59. The Court may order any contributory, purchaser or other person from whom money is due to the company, to pay the same into some chartered bank or post office savings bank, or other bank or Government savings bank, to the account of the Court, instead of the liquidator. 2. Such order may be enforced in the same manner as if it had directed payment to the liquidator.

R. S., c. 129, § 50; Imp. § 167.

Rights of contributories. 60. The Court shall adjust the rights of the contributories among themselves.

R. S., c. 129, § 51; Imp. § 170.

Meetings of creditors.

Meetings of creditors for ascertaining their wishes. 61. The Court may, if it thinks expedient, direct meetings of the creditors, contributories, shareholders, or members to be summoned, held and conducted in such manner as the Court directs, for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and may appoint a person to act as chairman of any such meeting, and to report the result of such meeting to the Court.

R. S., c. 129, § 19; Imp. §§ 152, 219. Creditors who do not attend meetings after notice are presumed to be willing to be bound by the action of those who do attend. — Exchange Bank v. Campbell, (1885), 15 Rev. Leg. 373. Creditors are entitled to notice of the time and place of meetings and the business proposed to be transacted at such meetings. Only such questions as are announced in the notice may be discussed at the meetings. — In re Sun Lithographing Co., (1892), 5 O.W. R. 509.

Votes according to amount of claim. Preliminary proof. 62. In such case regard shall, as to creditors, be had to the amount of the debt due to each creditor and as to shareholders or members, to the number of votes conferred on each shareholder or member by law or by the regulations of the company. 2. The Court may prescribe the mode of preliminary proof of creditors claims for the purpose of the meeting.

R. S., c. 129, § 19. See notes § 21, supra. As to the action of the Court when there is a contest for the appointment of liquidators see: Cloyes v. Darling, (1884), 16 Rev. Leg. 649; In re Central Bank, (1887), 15 O. R. 309; In re Alpha Oil Co., (1887), 12 O. P. R. 298; In re Bank of Liverpool, (1889), 22 N. S. 97; In re Commercial Bank, (1893), 9 Man. R. 342.

Court may summon creditors to consider any proposed compromise. 63. Where any compromise or arrangement is proposed between a company in course of being wound up under this Act and the creditors of the company, or by and between any such creditors or any class or classes of such creditors and the company, the Court, in addition to any other of its powers, may, on the application, in a summary way, of any creditor, or of the liquidator, order that a meeting of such creditors or class or classes of creditors shall be summoned in such manner as the Court shall direct.

62 & 63 Vic. c. 43, § 3; Imp. §§ 152, 219. See notes §§ 36 and 37, supra. This section is not inconsistent with the provisions of § 37, supra. — See Ward v. Mullin, (1904), Q. R. 14 K. B. 49. As to form of notice of meeting and time for issuing same, see In re Sun Lithographing Co., (1892), 5 O. W. R. 509.

Sanction of compromise. 64. If a majority in number, representing three-fourths in value, of such creditors, or class or classes of creditors, present either in person or by proxy at such meeting, agree to any arrangement or compromise, such arrangement or compromise may be sanctioned by an order of the Court, and in such case shall be binding on all such creditors, or on such class or classes of creditors, as the case may be, and also on the liquidator and contributories of the company.

62 & 63 Vic. c. 43, § 3. See § 37, and note to § 36, supra.

Chairman of meeting. 65. In directing meetings of creditors, contributories, shareholders, or members of the company to be held as provided in this Act, the Court may either appoint a person to act as chairman of such meeting, or direct that a chairman be appointed by the persons entitled to be present at such meeting; and, in case the appointed chairman fails to attend the said meeting, the persons present at the meeting may elect a chairman qualified who shall perform the duties prescribed by this Act.

52 Vic. c. 32, § 13.

Voting to be in person or by proxy. 66. No contributory, creditor, shareholder, or member shall vote at any meeting unless present personally or represented by some person acting under a written authority, filed with the chairman or liquidator, to act as such representative at the meeting, or generally.

R. S., c. 129, § 55.

Production of pass-books.

Bank book of liquidator to be produced at meeting. 67. At every meeting of the contributories, creditors, shareholders, or members, the liquidator shall produce a bank pass-book, showing the amount of the deposits made for the company, the dates at which such deposits were made, the amount withdrawn and dates of such withdrawal.

R. S., c. 129, § 37. See § 148, infra.

And on order of Court. 68. The liquidator shall also produce such pass-book whenever ordered so to do by the Court.

R. S., c. 129, § 38. For penalty for failure to comply with such an order, see § 140, infra.

Creditors' claims.

What debts may be proved against company; uncertain claims valued. 69. When the business of a company is being wound up under this Act, all debts payable on a contingency, and all claims against the company, present or future, certain or contingent, and for liquidated or unliquidated damages, shall be admissible to proof against the company. 2. In case of any claim subject to any contingency or for unliquidated damages or which for any other reason does not bear a certain value, the Court shall determine the value of the same and the amount for which it shall rank.

R. S., c. 129, § 56; Imp. § 206. This section applies only to unsecured or partly secured creditors. A secured creditor may rely on his security, and need not file his claim. — In re Brampton Gas Co., (1902), 4 O. L. R. 509. In re Kennedy, (1875), 36 U. C. Q. B. 471, it was held that a landlord in case of his tenant's insolvency has no preference for rent over other claims; his only protection being his right to a preferential lien on property on the demised premises; see also Monroe v. Commercial Building Society, (1877), 36 U. C. Q. B. 464. But where, by statute, a lessor has a right upon the insolvency of his lessee, to receive the whole amount of the rent to the end of the term, he may rank for such full amount. — In re Hart and Ontario Express, etc., Co., (1892), 22 O. R. 510. Where a depositor left a cheque with the president of the bank with instructions to draw out the money and invest it in a mortgage as soon as suitable security could be found, and the president, the day before suspension, endorsed the cheque, drew out the money, and put it in an envelope addressed to the depositor, it was held that the depositor must rank as an ordinary creditor. — In re Commercial Bank of Manitoba, Robertson's Claim, (1894), 10 Man. R. 61. Where parties in the position of trustees for the company purchase claims against the company at a discount, they rank for the face value of their claim, but are entitled to receive dividends only to the extent of their actual payments made to acquire the claim. — In re Catholic Register, Ex. parte Foy & Coffee, Master in Ordinary (Ont.), 10 Feb. 1900, (unreported), cited by Masten, Company Law, p. 652. Shareholders contributing money to increase the reserve fund cannot rank as creditors upon the assets of the company. — In re Atlas Loan Co., Claims on Reserve Fund, (1905), 9 O. L. R. 468. In the absence of a surplus, creditors are only entitled to dividends on the amount due for the principal debt and interest thereon computed up to the date of the winding-up order. — In re Union Fire Insurance Co., (1898), 8 O.W. R. 9. After the winding-up order, a judgment creditor cannot bring an action against the contributory for payment of the amount unpaid on shares. He must come in with the other creditors and receive his share of the dividends. — Shaver v. Cotton, (1896), 23 O. A. R. 426, at p. 428. The Crown claiming as a simple contract creditor has a priority over other creditors of equal degree. — The Queen v. Bank of Nova Scotia, (1885), 11 S. C. R. 1; In re Elmsdale Co., (1904), 24 C. L. T. (Occ. N.) 341. As to a municipality's right to prove a claim for taxes against a company in liquidation, see In re Ottawa Porcelain & Carbon Co., (1900), 31 O. R. 976. For a statement of the Master's jurisdiction in trial of claims, see Clarke v. Union Fire Insurance Co., Caston's Case, (1884), 10 O. P. R. 339.

Claims of clerks and employees privileged. 70. Clerks or other persons in, or having been in the employment of the company, in or about its business or trade, shall be collocated in the dividend sheet by special privilege over other creditors, for any arrears of salary or wages due and unpaid to them at the time of the making of the winding-up order, not exceeding the arrears which have accrued to them during the three months next previous to the date of such order.

R. S., c. 129, § 56; Imp. § 209. A person engaged in auditing books of the company is not embraced within the class of persons designated in this section. — In re Ontario Forge & Bolt Co., Townsend's Case, (1896), 27 O. R. 230. Persons occupying positions of president or vice-president, if they are entitled to salaries by resolution of the shareholders, will rank as preferred creditors. — Fane v. Langly, (1899), 20 C. L. T. 9; See also In re Ontario Express, etc., Co., (1894), 25 O. R. 587. A person employed as a mechanical expert, and also as a sales agent is not a "clerk or other person" in the employ of the company. — In re American Tire Co., Dingman's Case, (1903), 2 O.W. R. 29. The managing director cannot be classed as a "clerk or other person" in the employ of the company. — In re Ritchie-Hearn & Co., (1905), 6 O.W. R. 474.

Law of set-off to apply. 71. The law of set-off, as administered by the courts, whether of law or equity, shall apply to all claims upon the estate of the company, and to all proceedings for the recovery of debts due or accruing due to the company at the commencement of the winding-up, in the same manner and to the same extent as if the business of the company was not being wound up under this Act.

R. S., c. 129, § 57; Imp. § 165. A company in liquidation cannot, as against a claim based upon a lease, set off damages which it alleges it has suffered at the hands of the claimant. — In re Montreal Cold Storage, etc., Co., Mullin's Claim, (1902), 4 Q. P. R. 341. A contributory of an insolvent company, who is also a creditor, cannot set off the debt due to him by the company against calls made in the course of winding-up proceedings in respect of the double liability imposed by the Banking Act, R. S. C. c. 29. — Maritime Bank v. Troop, (1888), 16 S. C. R. 456; and see Warton Beet Sugar Co., McNeil's Case, (1905), 10 O. L. R. 219. However "if before the winding-up order has been made, the amount due on stock has actually been set off by the company against the debt due by it to the contributory, and entries been made in the company's books, the transaction will stand. — In re Victor Varnish Co., McWater's Case, (an unreported decision of the Master-in-Ordinary, Ontario), December 1907." — Parker and Clarke, Company Law, p. 492. A director of the company, liable to contribute to the assets of the company under § 123 of this Act, cannot set off a debt due him by the company. — In re Wiarton Beet Sugar Co., Freeman's Case, (1906), 12 O. L. R. 149, at p. 153. In In re Mimico, etc., Manufacturing Co., Pearson's Case, (1895), 26 O. R. 289, it was held that a director of a company who also acted as solicitor was entitled to set off the costs of suits conducted by him against his liability as a contributory.

Time for sending in claims. 72. The Court may fix a certain day or certain days on or within which creditors of the company may send in their claims, and may direct notice thereof to be given by the liquidator, and determine the manner in which notice of the day or days so fixed shall be given by the liquidator to the creditors.

R. S., c. 129, § 59; Imp. § 169. See § 74 (2), infra. As to the right of a referee to allow a claim filed after the time limited by the advertisement, see In re Central Bank, Cayle's Case, (1889), 17 O. R. 122.

Creditors required to prove claims. Disallowance on default. Disallowance on hearing. 73. The liquidator may give notice in writing to creditors who have sent in their claims to him, or of whose claims he has notice, and whose claims he considers should not be allowed without proof, requiring such creditors to attend before the Court on a day to be named in such notice and prove their claims to the satisfaction of the Court. 2. In case any creditor does not attend in pursuance of such notice his claim shall be disallowed, unless the Court sees fit to grant further time for the proof thereof. 3. If any creditor attends in pursuance of such notice, the Court may on hearing the matter allow or disallow the claim of such creditor in whole or in part.

52 Vic. c. 32, § 14; 55 & 56 Vic. c. 28, § 1; Imp. §§ 169, 206. Landlords must prove, with other creditors, claims for rent due before the winding-up order. — Fuches v. Hamilton Tribune Co., (1884), 10 O. P. R. 409. As to claims for money lent to the company, see In re Farmers' Loan and Savings Co., Ex parte Holmes, (1901), 21 C. L. T. (Occ. N.) 383. L. T. (Occ. N.) 21.

Distribution of assets. As to claims not sent in. 74. After the notices required by the two last preceding sections have been given, and the respective times therein specified have expired, and all claims of which proof has been required by due notice in writing by the liquidator in that behalf have been allowed or disallowed by the Court in whole or in part, the liquidator may distribute the assets of the company or any part thereof among the persons entitled thereto and without reference to any claim against the company which shall not have then been sent to the liquidator. 2. The liquidator shall not be liable to any persons whose claim shall not have been sent in at the time of distributing such assets or part thereof for the assets or part thereof so distributed.

R. S., c. 129, § 60. Even though the creditor has not filed his claim, the liquidator, if he has knowledge of such claim, and does not dispute it, must pay over to such creditor the proper dividend. — Carling v. Black, (1884), 6 O. R. 441.

Rank of claims sent in after the distribution has been commenced. 75. In case any claim or claims shall be sent in to the liquidator after any partial distribution of the assets of the company, such claim or claims, subject to proof and allowance as required by this Act, shall rank with other claims of creditors in any future distribution of assets of the company.

R. S., c. 129, § 60.

Secured claims.

Duty of creditor holding security. 76. If a creditor holds security upon the estate of the company, he shall specify the nature and amount of such security in his claim, and shall therein, on his oath, put a specified value thereon.

R. 367; In re Thunderhill Mining Co., (1894), 3 B. C. 351. In Ontario Bank v. Chaplin, (1891), 20 S. C. R. 152, it was held "that a creditor is not entitled to rank for the full amount of his claim upon the separate estates of insolvent debtors, jointly and severally liable for the full amount of the debt, but is obliged to deduct from his claim, the amount previously received from the estates of the other parties jointly and severally liable therefor." As to the rights of a mortgagee or debenture holder to realize on his security, see In re Brampton Gas Co., (1902), 4 O. L. R. 509; A secured creditor can make a demand and petition for the winding-up of the company under § 4, supra, without valuing in the petition his security; In re Cushing Sulphite Fibre Co., (1905), 37 N. B. 254. In In re British Columbia Pottery Co., (1895), 4 B. C. 525, it was held that under §§ 76 and 77 of the Winding-up Act, it is compulsory on the creditor to value his security, leaving it to the liquidator to take it or allow creditor to keep it at that valuation. In In re Brampton Gas Co., (1902), 4 O. L. R. 509, the Court held that creditors holding fully secured claims and content to rely on their security without seeking to share in the distribution of other assets, cannot be compelled to file their claims in winding-up proceedings. "It is plain, I think, that the debts for the proof of which provision is made by section 56 (section 73 present Act,) and the following sections which deal with the subject of proof of debts are unsecured or only partly secured debts in respect of which the creditor seeks to rank upon the general estate of the company in liquidation, and have no application to fully secured claims where the creditor is content to rely on his security, and that only, and does not seek to share in common with other creditors in the distribution of the general assets of the company. The provisions as to valuing securities (§§ 76—80 present Act) are in entire harmony with this view." — Per Meredith C. J., in In re Brampton Gas Co., (1902), 4 O. L. R. 509, at p. 517. See In re Lenora, etc., Mining Co., (1902), 9 B. C. 471. Although this section requires that the creditor shall specify the nature and amount of his security in his claim, yet, where a creditor files a claim without professional advice and inadvertently omits to mention any security, he will be allowed to withdraw his claim and file an amended one. — In re Lake Winnipeg Transportation Co., Bergman's Claim, (1892), 8 Man. R. 463. It has been held, in British Columbia, that a motion by a liquidator for an order, that a creditor deliver over to him certain securities can not be allowed, and that such an application should be made by summons. — In re Nelson Saw Mill Co., (1898), 6 B. C. 156.

Option of liquidator as to security. 77. The liquidator, under the authority of the Court, may either consent to the retention by the creditor of the property and effects constituting such security or on which it attaches, at such specified value, or he may require from such creditor an assignment and delivery of such security, property, and effects, at such specified value, to be paid by him out of the estate so soon as he has realized such security, together with interest on such value from the date of filing the claim till payment.

R. S., c. 129, § 62. See notes § 76, supra.

Ranking of secured creditor. 78. In case of such retention, the difference between the value at which the security is retained and the amount of the claim of such creditor shall be the amount for which he may rank as aforesaid.

R. S., c. 129, § 62. See notes § 76, supra.

Security by negotiable instrument. Revaluation. 79. If creditor holds a claim based upon negotiable instruments upon which the company is only indirectly or secondarily liable, and which is not mature or exigible, such creditor shall be considered to hold security within the meaning of the three last preceding sections, and shall put a value on the liability of the person primarily liable thereon as being his security for the payment thereof. 2. After the maturity of such liability and its non-payment, he shall be entitled to amend and revalue his claim.

R. S., c. 129, § 62. See notes § 76, supra.

Security by mortgage or real property or a ship. Assignment with defective title; under obligation; subject to indemnity. 80. If the security consists of a mortgage upon ships or shipping, or upon real property, or of a registered judgment, or an execution binding real property which is not by some other provision of this Act invalid for any purpose of creating a lien, claim, or privilege upon the real or personal property of the company, the property mortgaged or bound by such security shall only be assigned and delivered to the creditor: a) Subject to all previous mortgages, judgments, executions, hypothecs, and liens thereon, holding rank and priority before his claim; and b) Upon his assuming and binding himself to pay all such previous mortgages, judgments, executions, hypothecs, and liens; and c) Upon his securing the estate of the company to the satisfaction of the liquidator against any claim by reason of such previous mortgages, judgments, executions hypothecs, and liens.

R. S., c. 129, § 63. Cp. § 133, infra, which applies only to cases where the liquidator is the sole party interested in the mortgage property. See In re Canada Cabinet Co., (1907), 9 O.W. R. 818.

In case of subsequent claims by: consent; claims filed; value paid; company indemnified. 81. If there are mortgages, judgments, executions, hypothecs, or liens upon such ships or shipping or real property subsequent to those of such creditor, he shall only obtain the property: a) By consent of the subsequently secured creditors; or b) Upon their filing their claims specifying their security thereon as of no value; or c) Upon his paying them the value by them placed thereon; or, d) Upon his securing the estate of the company to the satisfaction of the liquidator against any claim by reason of such subsequent mortgages, judgments, executions, hypothecs, and liens.

R. S., c. 129, § 63.

Authority to retain necessary. 82. Upon a secured claim being filed, with a valuation of the security, the liquidator shall procure the authority of the Court to consent to the retention of the security by the creditor, or shall require from him an assignment and delivery thereof.

R. S., c. 129, § 64.

Dividend sheet.

Must provide for privileged and secured claims. 83. In the preparation of the dividend sheet, due regard shall be had to the rank and privilege of every creditor, but no dividend shall be allotted or paid to any creditor holding security upon the estate of the company for his claim until the amount for which he may rank as a creditor upon the estate, as to dividends therefrom, is established as herein provided.

R. S., c. 129, § 65. See notes §§ 70 and 76, supra.

No lien by execution, etc., after commencement of winding up. Lien for costs excepted. 84. [As amended by 7 & 8 Edw. 7, c. 75, § 1.] No lien or privilege shall be created: a) Upon the real or personal property of the company, for the amount of any judgment debt, or of the interest thereon, by the issue or delivery to the sheriff of any writ of execution, or by levying upon or seizing under such writ the effects or estate of the company; b) Upon the real or personal property of the company, or upon any debts due or accruing or becoming due to the company, by the filing or registering of any memorial or minute of judgment, or by the issue or taking out of any attachment or garnishee order or other process or proceeding; if, before the payment over to the plaintiff of the moneys actually levied, paid, or received under such writ, memorial, minute, attachment, garnishee order, or other process or proceeding, the winding-up of the business of the company has commenced: Provided that this section shall not affect any lien or privilege for costs which the plaintiff possesses under the law of the Province in which such writ, attachment, garnishee order, or other process or proceeding was issued or taken out.

R. S., c. 129, § 66. See §§ 22 and 23, supra, and notes. As to lien for costs, see: In re Saw Bill Lake Gold Mining Co., (1903), 2 O.W. R. 1143; In re Oshawa Heat, Light & Power Co., (1906), 8 O.W. R. 415.

Contestation of claims.

Claims or dividend may be objected to. 85. Any liquidator, creditor or contributory, or shareholder or member may object to any claim filed with the liquidator, or to any dividend declared.

R. S., c. 129, § 67; 52 Vic. c. 32, § 15. In Ward v. Montreal Cold Storage Co., (1904), Q. R. 26 S. C. 310, it was held that a shareholder of a company after liquidation must be considered as a creditor on a contestation of a claim made against the company and, as such, he is entitled to demand by direct action what he might have demanded in a contestation of a claim against the company.

Objections to be filed in writing. Answers and replies. 86. If a claim or dividend is objected to, the objections shall be filed in writing with the liquidator, together with the evidence of the previous service of a copy thereof on the claimant. 2. The claimant shall have six days to answer the objections, or such further time as the Court allows, and the contestant shall have three days to reply, or such further time as the Court allows.

R. S., c. 129, § 67.

Day to be fixed for hearing. 87. Upon the completion of the issues upon the objections, the liquidator shall transmit to the Court all necessary papers relating to the contestation, and the Court shall then, on the application of either party, fix a day for taking evidence upon the contestation, and hearing and determining the same.

R. S., c. 129, § 67.

Costs. 88. The Court may make such order as seems proper in respect to the payment of the costs of the contestation by either party or out of the estate of the company.

R. S., c. 129, § 67.

Default in answer by claimant. 89. If, after a claim or dividend has been duly objected to, the claimant does not answer the objections, the Court may, on the application of the contestant, make an order barring the claim or correcting the dividend, or may make such other order in reference thereto as appears right.

R. S., c. 129, § 67.

Security for costs. 90. The Court may order the person objecting to a claim or dividend to give security for the costs of the contestation within a limited time, and may, in default, dismiss the contestation or stay proceedings thereon, upon such terms as the Court thinks just.

R. S., c. 129, § 67. The security required by this section applies only to contestation of claims filed or admitted by the dividend sheet and not to a contestation of the whole dividend sheet. — In re Union Brewery and Hyde, (1904), 6 Q. P. R. 395.

Distribution of assets.

Distribution of property of company. 91. The property of the company shall be applied in satisfaction of its debts and liabilities, and the charges, costs, and expenses incurred in winding-up its affairs.

R. S. c. 129, § 58; Imp. § 186.

Winding-up expenses payable out of estate. 92. All costs, charges, and expenses properly incurred in the winding-up of a company, including the remuneration of the liquidator, shall be payable out of the assets of the company, in priority to all other claims.

R. S., c. 129, § 91; Imp. § 186. The Crown is entitled to a priority over all other creditors in a winding-up. — Maritime Bank v. Regina, (1888), 17 S. C. R. 657; Clarkson v. Attorney-General of Ontario, (1888), 15 O. R. 632; affirmed in (1889), 16 O. A. R. 202. In In re Ideal House Furnisher's, City of Winnipeg's Claim, (1909), 10 West. L. R. 717, it was held that the claim of the municipality for a business tax must rank with that of other creditors. In In re Sun Lithographing Co., (1892), 6 O.W. R. 358, it was held that the liquidator, upon application by certain creditors, had no power to set apart moneys to meet preferred claims in priority to costs of liquidation.

Distribution of surplus of property of company. 93. The Court shall distribute among the persons entitled thereto any surplus that remains after satisfaction of the debts and liabilities of the company, and the winding-up charges, costs, and expenses, and unless otherwise provided by law or by the Act, charter, or instrument of incorporation, any property or assets remaining after such satisfaction shall be distributed among the members or shareholders according to their rights and interests in the company.

R. S., c. 129, §§ 51, 58; Imp. § 186. See notes § 92, supra. For a case involving the question of the distribution of surplus assets in the winding-up, see Morrow v. Peterborough Water Co., (1902), 4 O. L. R. 324.

Fraudulent preferences.

Gratuitous contracts presumed to be with intent to defraud creditors. 94. All gratuitous contracts, or conveyances or contracts without consideration, or with a merely nominal consideration, respecting either real or personal property, made by a company in respect to which a winding-up order under this Act is afterwards made, with or to any person whatsoever, whether a creditor of the company or not, within three months next preceding the commencement of the winding-up, or at any time afterwards, shall be presumed to have been made with intent to defraud the creditors of such company.

R. S., c. 129, § 68; Imp. § 210. See topic of Fraudulent Preferences in Assignments Acts, infra.

Contracts injuring or obstructing creditors presumed to be with like intent. 95. All contracts by which creditors are injured, obstructed, or delayed, made by a company unable to meet its engagements, and in respect to which a winding-up order under this Act is afterwards made, with a person whether a creditor of the company or not, who knows such inability, or has probable cause for believing such inability to exist, or after such inability is public and notorious, shall be presumed to be made with intent to defraud the creditors of such company.

R. S., c. 129, § 68; Imp. § 210. See topic of Fraudulent Preferences in Assignments Acts, infra. Quaere, whether this section includes mortgages or conveyances. — In re Kirby & Rathbun Co., (1900), 32 O. R. 9.

Contracts with consideration voidable when. 96. A contract or conveyance for consideration, respecting either real or personal property, by which creditors are injured or obstructed, made by a company unable to meet its engagements with a person ignorant of such inability, whether a creditor of the company or not, and before such inability has become public and notorious, but within thirty days next before the commencement of the winding-up of the business of such company under this Act, or at any time afterwards, is voidable, and may be set aside by any court of competent jurisdiction, upon such terms as to the protection of such person from actual loss or liability by reason of such contract as the court orders.

R. S., c. 129, § 69. For a case where a mortgage of land, made by an insolvent company within thirty days of the commencement of the winding-up, was set aside, see In re Kirby & Rathbun Co., (1900), 32 O. R. 9. Where the transferee knows that the debtor is unable to meet his obligations the provision of this section as to "protection of such person from actual loss or liability," does not apply. — Kalus v. Hergert, (1876), 1 O. A. R. 75, (decided under Insolvency Act of 1875); see also Mathers v. Lynch, (1868), 27 U. C. Q. B. 244, (decided under Insolvency Act of 1864); Skinner v. McLeod, (1874), 15 N. B. 134, (decided under Insolvency Act of 1869).

Contracts made with intent to defraud or delay creditors void. 97. All contracts or conveyances made and acts done by a company respecting either real or personal property, with intent fraudulently to impede, obstruct or delay the creditors of the company in their remedies against the company, or with intent to defraud the creditors of the company or any of them, and so made, done, and intended with the knowledge of the person contracting or acting with the company, whether a creditor of the company or not, and which have the effect of impeding, obstructing, or delaying the creditors in their remedies, or of injuring them, or any of them, shall be null and void.

R. S., c. 129, § 70. The usual interpretation placed upon the word "void" in Acts of this kind is "voidable." — The Meriden Britannia Co. v. Braeden, (1894), 24 O. A. R. 352. For a case where a mortgage, made by an insolvent company without intent to defraud, and without knowledge of insolvency on the part of the company or mortgagees, was held valid, see Royal Canadian Bank v. Kerr, (1870), 17 Gr. 47; see also the following cases adopting the same principle: Allan v. Clarkson, (1870), 17 Gr. 570; Risk v. Sleeman, (1874), 21 Gr. 250; Hyman v. Cuthbertson, (1886), 10 O. R. 443; Ross v. Dunn, (1889), 16 O. R. 552.

Sale or transfer in contemplation of insolvency. Presumption if within thirty days. 98. If any sale, deposit, pledge, or transfer is made of any property, real or personal, by a company in contemplation of insolvency under this Act, by way of security for payment to any creditor, or if any property, real or personal, moveable or immovable, goods, effects, or valuable security, are given by way of payment by such company to any creditor, whereby such creditor obtains or will obtain an unjust preference over the other creditors, such sale, deposit, pledge, transfer, or payment shall be null and void; and the subject thereof may be recovered back for the benefit of the estate by the liquidator, in any court of competent jurisdiction. 2. If such sale, deposit, pledge, or transfer is made within thirty days next before the commencement of the winding-up under this Act, or at any time afterwards, it shall be presumed to have been so made in contemplation of insolvency.

R. S., c. 129, § 71. Where shares were transferred within one month before suspension of a bank, both transferee and the transferor who had, in turn, also acquired the shares within the month, were held liable as contributories. — In re Central Bank, Henderson's Case, (1889), 17 O. R. 110. For a case where repayment to depositors of the amount of their deposits obtained through fraud, was not regarded as a preferential payment, see In re Central Bank of Canada, Well's & MacMurphy's Case, (1888), 15 O. R. 611. The case of Davidson v. Ross, (1876), 24 Gr. 22, decided that the doctrine of pressure had no application to this section. Although Davidson v. Ross was decided under a former insolvency Act (32 & 33 Vic. c. 13) the wording of the section under which it was decided was, in all material respects, identical with the wording of this section. Cp. the wording of the statute upon which Molson Bank v. Holter, (1890), 18 S. C. R. 88, and Stevens v. McArthur, (1891), 19 S. C. R. 446, were decided contra. Masten submits "that the decision on the Ontario Assignments Act and similar enactments as to pressure do not apply to this section, and that Davidson v. Ross is still good law, and that therefore under the above enactments pressure will not validate a transaction whereby such creditors obtains or will obtain an unjust preference." — Company Law, pp. 662, 663. See also Adams v. McCall, (1866), 25 U. C. Q. B. 219. For further cases on the subject see: Ivery v. Knox, (1885), 8 O. R. 635; Long v. Hancock, (1885), 12 O. A. R. 137; Johnson v. Hope, (1890), 17 O. A. R. 10; Davies v. Gillard, (1891), 21 O. R. 431; Lawson v. McGeoch, (1893), 20 O. A. R. 464; Beattie v. Wenger, (1897), 24 O. A. R. 72. Webster v. Crickmore, (1898), 25 O. A. R. 97. Where an agreement to give security for advances was made more than thirty days before commencement of the winding-up, a subsequent transfer made in pursuance of such an agreement is not a preference, even though made within thirty days before commencement of the proceedings. — Suter v. Merchant Bank, (1876), 24 Gr. 365; see also Newton v. Ontario Bank, (1867), 13 Gr. 652; Allan v. Clarkson, (1870), 17 Gr. 570; Smith v. McLean, (1878), 25 Gr. 567. But see Kalus v. Hergert, (1876), 1 O. A. R. 75, where a mortgage given to secure a pre-existing debt and to cover future advances, was held fraudulent.

lent because such advances were not made with the bona fide belief that the business would be continued. So, where the giving of security was deliberately postponed in order to avoid injury to the borrower's credit or to avoid the statutory presumption of intention to give a preference, the giving of such security constituted a preference. — Webster v. Crickmore, (1898), 25 O. A. R. 97; and see Jones v. Kinney, (1884), 11 S. C. R. 708. As to the meaning of the phrase "in contemplation of insolvency," see National Bank of Australasia v. Morris, (1892) A. C. 287. As to the meaning of the phrase "under this Act," see Davidson v. Ross, (1876), 24 Gr. 22, at p. 69. For further cases on "unjust preference," see: Churcher v. Cousins, (1869), 28 U. C. Q. B. 540; Newton v. Ontario Bank, (1867), 13 Gr. 652; Campbell v. Barrie, (1871), 31 U. C. Q. B. 279, at p. 291. The presumption referred to in the second part of this section is rebuttable. — In re Kirby & Rathbun Co., (1900), 32 O. R. 9. The Master to whom the court has delegated its powers for the purpose of winding-up is not a "court of competent jurisdiction" within the meaning of this section for the purpose of trying questions of fraudulent transfers of property. — Hart v. Ontario Express & Transportation Co., (1894), 25 O. R. 247.

Payments by company within thirty days. Restoration of security. 99. Every payment made within thirty days next before the commencement of the winding-up under this Act by a company unable to meet its engagements in full, to a person knowing such inability, or having probable cause for believing the same to exist, shall be void, and the amount paid may be recovered back by the liquidator by suit or action in any court of competent jurisdiction. 2. If any valuable security is given up in consideration of such payment, such security or the value thereof shall be restored to the creditor upon the return of such payment.

R. S., c. 129, § 72. As to what is a "payment" within the meaning of this section, see The Exchange Bank of Canada v. Stinson, (1885), 8 O. R. 667; The Exchange Bank of Canada v. Counsell, (1885), 8 O. R. 673; Roe v. Royal Canadian Bank, (1868), 19 U. C. C. P. 347, followed in Roe v. Bank of British North America, (1870), 20 U. C. C. P. 351. As to the meaning of "valuable security," see Beattie v. Wenger, (1897), 24 O. A. R. 72. Cp. Churcher v. Johnston, (1874), 34 U. C. Q. B. 528; In re Wallis, (1869), 29 U. C. Q. B. 313. In re Central Bank, Cayley's Case (1889), 17 O. R. 122, it was held that, upon the facts of the case the withdrawal by a depositor of money deposited in a bank did not come within the meaning of any of the provisions of the Act relating to fraudulent preferences. Where a president of a company invested funds in his company for which he was trustee and, on the eve of the company being wound up, withdrew the same to protect his cestuis que trustent, it was held that § 99 of this Act applied and that the company was entitled to recover the amount so withdrawn. — Trusts & Guarantee Co., v. Munro, (1909), 14 O. W. R. 699.

Debts of company transferred to contributories or persons indebted to the company. 100. When a debt due or owing by the company has been transferred within the time and under the circumstances in the last preceding section mentioned, or at any time afterwards, to a contributory, or to any person indebted or liable in any way to the company, who knows or has probable cause for believing the company to be unable to meet its engagements, or in contemplation of its insolvency under this Act, for the purpose of enabling such contributory, or such person so indebted or liable to the company, to set up, by way of compensation or set-off, the debt so transferred, such debt shall not be set up by way of compensation or set-off against the claim upon such contributory or person.

R. S., c. 129, § 73; 52 Vic. c. 32, § 16. Cp. R. S. c. 129, § 73 under which it was held that the prohibition against acquiring debts for the purpose of set-off was limited to the case of contributories. — In re Central Bank of Canada, York's Case, (1888), 15 O. R. 625, following Ings v. Bank of Prince Edward Island, (1885), 11 S. C. R. 265. The present statute was amended to read "to any contributory or any person indebted or liable to the company." See notes § 71, supra.

Appeals.

Appeals in case of future rights, principle, amount. 101. Except in the Northwest Territories, any person dissatisfied with an order or decision of the court or a single judge in any proceeding under this Act may: a) If the question to be raised on the appeal involves future rights; or, b) If the order or decision is likely to affect other cases of a similar nature in the winding-up proceedings; or, c) If the amount involved in the appeal exceeds five hundred dollars; by leave of a judge of the court, appeal therefrom.

R. S., c. 129, § 74. For circumstances under which leave to appeal will be granted, see In re Central Bank, (1897), 17 O. P. R. 370. For an example of an appeal "involving future rights," see In re Union Fire Insurance Co., (1886), 13 O. A. R. 268, at pp. 294, 295. An appeal lies from an original winding-up order under this section. — In re Union Fire Insurance Co., supra. The procedure for appeals provided in §§ 101—106 of this Act does not include appeals from the Master or Referee to whom the winding-up has been referred as such appeals to the court lie as of right. — Markle v. Ross, (1889), 13 O. P. R. 135, see also Hogaboom's Case, (1897), 19 C. L. T. 66.

An appeal does not lie from an order giving leave to appeal. — In re Central Bank, (1897), 17 O. P. R. 395. So, where an application for leave to appeal to the Court of Appeals from a decision in a matter under the Winding-up Act has been made to a Judge of the High Court and refused by him, a second application will not be entertained by another Judge, and no appeal lies from that decision. — In re Sarnia Oil Co., (1893), 15 O. P. R. 347. An order for winding-up a company doing business in Ontario made by one Judge will not be set aside by another. An application for that purpose must be made to the Divisional Court. — In re Lake Superior Copper Co., Ltd., re Plummer, (1885), 9 O. R. 277, at pp. 280, 281. An application by persons who were placed on the list of contributories for an order that they be allowed to shew cause why they should not be placed on the list of contributories, must be made to the Judge in Court who made the original order. — In re Wade Co. Ltd., (1909), 2 Alb. 117, 10 West. L. R. 527. — The trial of a petition before a Judge at the Assizes praying that a liquidator might be ordered to deliver up certain lumber claimed by a bank, is not the trial of an action, and therefore no appeal lies to the Divisional Court; such an appeal should be taken to the Court of Appeals. — In re Rainy Lake Lumber Co., (1887), 12 O. P. R. 27. The amount involved must exceed $ 500 exclusive of interest and costs. — In re Wiarton Beet Sugar Co., Kydd's Case, (1905), 6 O. W. R. 590.

Court. 102. [As amended by 7 & 8 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 10.] Such appeal shall lie: a) In Ontario, to the Court of Appeal; b) In Quebec, to the Court of King's Bench; c) In Manitoba, to the Court of Appeal; d) In British Columbia, to the Court of Appeal, and e) In any of the other Provinces, or the Yukon Territory, to a superior court in banc.

Northwest Territories. 103. In the Northwest Territories, any person dissatisfied with an order or decision of the court or a single judge, in any proceeding under this Act may, by leave of a judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, appeal therefrom to the Supreme Court of Canada.

R. S., c. 129, § 74.

Practice. Security. 104. All appeals shall be regulated, as far as possible, according to the practice in other cases of the court appealed to, but no appeal hereinbefore authorized shall be entertained unless the appellant has, within fourteen days from the rendering of the order or decision, or within such further time as the court or judge appealed from, or, in the Northwest Territories, a Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, allows, taken proceedings therein to perfect his appeal, nor unless, within the said time, he has made a deposit or given sufficient security, according to the practice of the court appealed to, that he will duly prosecute the said appeal and pay such damages and costs as may be awarded to the respondent.

R. S., c. 129, § 74.

Dismissing appeal. 105. If the party appellant does not proceed with his appeal, according to this Act and the rules of practice applicable, the Court appealed to, on the application of the respondent, may dismiss the appeal with or without costs.

R. S., c. 129, § 75.

Appeal to Supreme Court of Canada. 106. [As amended by 9 & 10 Edw. 7, c. 62, § 2.] An appeal, if the amount involved therein exceeds two thousand dollars, shall, by leave of a Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, lie to that Court from: a) The Court of Appeal in the Provinces of Ontario, Manitoba, and British Columbia; b) The Court of King's Bench in Quebec; or, c) A superior court in banc, in any of the other Provinces, or in the Yukon Territory.

R. S., c. 129, § 76. A judgment refusing to set aside a winding-up order does not involve any amount, and leave to appeal therefrom can not be granted. — Cushing Sulphite Fibre Co., v. Cushing, (1906), 37 S. C. R. 427. Where six persons were placed on the list of contributories, one for $ 1000 and the others for $ 900 each, it was held that the amount involved in such an appeal did not exceed $ 2000 so as to give the Supreme Court jurisdiction; the position was the same as if proceedings had been taken separately against each contributory. — Stevens v. Gerth, In re The Ontario Express & Transportation Co., (1895), 24 S. C. R. 716. Leave to appeal per saltum under the Supreme Court Act (R. S. C. c. 139, § 42), can not be granted in a case under the Winding-up Act. An application for leave to appeal from a judgement of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick was refused when the judge had made no formal order on the petition for a winding-up order and the proceedings before were in the nature of a reference rather than an appeal from his decision. — In re Cushing Sulphite Fibre Co., (1905), 36 S. C. R. 494. For practice in obtaining an order for extending the time for appeal, see Ontario Bank v. Chaplin, (1890), 20 S. C. R. 152.

Procedure.

Describing liquidator. 107. In all proceedings connected with the company, a liquidator shall be described as the liquidator of the (name of company), and not by his individual name only.

R. S., c. 129, § 29; Imp. § 149 (9).

Similar to ordinary suit. 108. The proceedings under a winding-up order shall be carried on as nearly as may be in the same manner as an ordinary suit, action, or proceeding within the jurisdiction of the Court.

52 Vic. c. 32, § 21. Service of petition for winding-up upon an assignee for the creditors of the company is not service upon the company. — In re Rodney Casket Co., (1906), 12 O. L. R. 409.

Powers of court exercised by a single Judge. 109. The powers conferred by this Act upon the Court may, subject to the appeal in this Act provided for, be exercised by a single Judge thereof; and such powers may be exercised in chambers, either during term or in vacation.

R. S., c. 129, § 77. Note that since the amendment of 52 Vic. c. 32, § 20, a winding-up order can only be made by a Judge and no longer by the Master in Chambers, the Master in Ordinary, or the Local Master. See In re Queen City Refining Co., (1884), 10 O. P. R. 415.

Court may refer matters. 110. After a winding-up order is made the Court may, subject to an appeal according to the practice of the court in like cases, from time to time as to the Court may seem meet, by order of reference, refer and delegate, according to the practice and procedure of the Court, to any officer of the Court any of the powers conferred upon the Court by this Act.

52 Vic. c. 32, § 20. Where a claim is made for rent and the liquidator attacks it on the ground that the conveyance under which the claimant assumes to be the owner of the premises is a fraudulent preference and that the alleged lease was never executed, the Master has no jurisdiction to adjudicate upon this issue. The proper way is for the liquidator to proceed by action under § 34 of this Act. — In re Sun Lithographing Co., Farquhar's Claim, (1892), 22 O. R. 57. Neither is the Master in Ordinary a competent tribunal to decide questions of fraudulent transfers arising in the course of a reference in winding-up proceedings. — Harte v. Ontario Express & Transportation Co., Molson's Bank Case, (1894), 25 O. R. 247.

Service of process out of jurisdiction. 111. The Court shall have the power and jurisdiction to cause or allow the service of process or proceedings under this Act to be made on persons out of the jurisdiction of the court, in the same manner, and with the like effect, as in ordinary actions or suits within the ordinary jurisdiction of the Court.

52 Vic. c. 32, § 19. This section renders obsolete British Canadian Lumbering Co. v. Grant, (1887), 12 O. P. R. 301.

Order of court to be deemed judgment. 112. Every order of the court or judge for the payment of money or costs, charges or expenses made under this Act shall be deemed a judgment of the court, and may be enforced against the person or goods and chattels, lands and tenements of the person ordered to pay, in the manner in which judgments or decrees of any superior court obtained in any suit may bind lands or be enforced in the Province where the court making the same is situate.

58 & 59 Vic. c. 18, § 1.

Ordinary practice in case of discovery available. 113. The practice with respect to the discovery of assets of judgment debtors, from time to time in force in the superior courts or in any superior court in the Province where any such order is made, shall be applicable to and may be availed of in like manner for the discovery of the assets of any person who by such order is ordered to pay any money or costs, charges, or expenses.

58 & 59 Vic. c. 18, § 1.

Attachment and garnishment of debts. 114. Debts due to any person against whom such order for the payment of money, costs, or expenses has been obtained, may, in any Province where the attachment and garnishment of debts is allowed by law, be attached and garnished in the same manner as debts in such Province due to a judgment debtor may be attached and garnished by a judgment creditor.

R. S., c. 129, § 79.

Witnesses' attendance, how secured. 115. In any action, suit, proceeding or contestation under this Act, the court may order the issue of a writ of subpoena ad testificandum or of subpoena duces tecum, commanding the attendance, as a witness, of any person who is within Canada.

R. S., c. 129, § 80.

Arrest of absconding contributory or official and seizure of his goods, chattels and books. 116. The court may, at any time before or after it has made a winding-up order, upon proof being given that there is reasonable cause for believing that any contributory or any past or present director, manager, officer, or employee of the company is about to quit Canada or otherwise abscond, or to remove or conceal any of his goods or chattels, for the purpose of evading payment of calls, or for avoiding examination in respect of the affairs of the company, cause such person to be arrested, and his books, papers, moneys, securities for money, goods, and chattels to be seized, and him and them to be safely kept until such time as the Court orders.

R. S., c. 129, § 52. The order of arrest should be made upon affidavit of the liquidator or some one acquainted with the facts. For requirements of the affidavit, see Central Bank v. Earl, (1889), 28 N. B. 173.

Examination of persons having effects of company or information. 117. The Court may, after it has made a winding-up order, summon before it or before any person named by it, any officer of the company or person known or suspected to have in his possession any of the estate or effects of the company, or supposed to be indebted to the company, or any person whom the Court deems capable of giving information concerning the trade, dealings, estate, or effects of the company.

R. S., c. 129, § 81; Imp. § 174 (1).

Person summoned refusing to attend. 118. If any person so summoned, after being tendered a reasonable sum for his expenses, refuses, without a lawful excuse, to attend at the time appointed, the Court may cause such person to be apprehended and brought up for examination.

R. S., c. 129, § 81; Imp. § 174 (4).

Production of papers. 119. The Court may require any such officer or person to produce before the court, any book, paper, deed, writing, or other document in his custody or power relating to the company.

R. S., c. 129, § 81; Imp. § 174 (3).

Lien on documents. 120. If any person claims any lien on papers, deeds, writings, or documents produced by him, such production shall be without prejudice to such lien, and the Court shall have jurisdiction in the winding-up to determine all questions relating to such lien.

R. S., c. 129, § 81. See, In re Boston Wood Rim Co., (1905), 5 O.W. R. 149, for classes of documents to which solicitor's lien attaches.

Examination on oath. 121. The Court or person so named may examine, upon oath, either by word of mouth or upon written interrogatories, any person appearing or brought up in manner aforesaid, concerning the affairs, dealings, estate, or effects of the company, and may reduce to writing the answers of any such person, and require him to subscribe the same.

Inspection of books and papers. Limitation of inspection. 122. After a winding-up order has been made, the Court may make such order for the inspection, by the creditors, shareholders, members, or contributories of the company, of its books and papers, as the Court thinks just. 2. Any books and papers in the possession of the company may be inspected in conformity with the order of the Court, but not further or otherwise.

R. S., c. 129, § 54; Imp. § 221.

Officer of company misapplying money. Order compelling repayment. 123. When in the course of the winding-up of the business of a company under this Act, it appears that any past or present director, manager, liquidator, receiver, employee, or officer of such company has misapplied or retained in his own hands, or become liable or accountable for any moneys of the company, or been guilty of any misfeasance or breach of trust in relation to the company, the Court may, on the application of any liquidator, or of any creditor or contributory of the company, notwithstanding that the offence is one for which the offender is criminally liable, examine into the conduct of such director, manager, liquidator, receiver, officer, or employee, and, upon such examination, may make an order requiring him to repay any moneys so misapplied or retained, or for which he has become liable or accountable, together with interest, at such rate as the Court thinks just, or to contribute such sums of money to the assets of the company, by way of compensation in respect of such misapplication, retention, misfeasance, or breach of trust, as the Court thinks fit.

R. S., c. 129, § 83; Imp. § 217. Where a director of an insolvent company withdraws money as remuneration, to which it is claimed he is not entitled, the Master has jurisdiction by virtue of this section to make inquiry into the matter. — In re Bolt & Iron Co., Livingston's Case, (1887), 14 O. R. 211; affirmed on appeal, (1889), 16 O. A. R. 397. Where a director of a company having a judgment and execution against property of the company, acting in good faith, purchased the same at a sale by the mortgagee under a power of sale and re-sold it at a profit, he was held a trustee of the property for the benefit of the company and, as such, was liable to the liquidator for the profit made on the re-sale. — In re Iron Clay Brick Manufacturing Co., Turner's Case, (1889), 19 O. R. 113; In order to make a director liable under this section it must not only be shown that he was guilty of some misfeasance but that the misfeasance resulted in damage to the company. — In re Manes Tailoring Co., (1908), 11 O. W. R. 498, at p. 500. For other cases involving the liability of directors and promoters to the company see: Earle v. Burland, (1889), 27 O. A. R. 561, (sale to company at secret profit); Thompson v. Brantford, etc., Co., (1898), 25 O. A. R. 340, (unauthorized purchase by manager); Highway Advertising Co. v. Ellis, (1903), 7 O. L. R. 504, (sale to company before commencement of fiduciary relation); Wade v. Kendrick, (1905), 37 S. C. R. 32, (unauthorized expenditures by directors); O'Sullivan v. Clarkson, (1907), 9 O. W. R. 46, (damage to company from false representations by officers); In re Lake Ontario Navigation Co., Hutchinson's Case, (1909), 13 O. W. R. 1037, (liability of director for arrangement with subscriber to stop payment of cheque given in payment for shares); In re Manes Tailoring Co., (1909), 13 O. W. R. 829, (misfeasance of directors in allotment of shares as fully paid up). Where a director transferred bonus shares to third persons under such circumstances that the latter could not be held liable as contributories, he was held liable, under this section, for the amount unpaid on the stock. — In re Wiarton Beet Sugar Co., Freeman's Case, (1906), 12 O. L. R. 149. In re Peterborough Cold Storage Co., (1907), 14 O. L. R. 475, directors were held liable for losses resulting from transfers of stock to irresponsible transferees. Where a director issued to himself partly paid up stock and subsequently transferred such stock to another director who had knowledge of all facts, the transferor was held liable only for the amount actually received and not for the par value of the stock, since the company had not suffered loss, the transferee not being a purchaser without notice and therefore subject to liability for calls. — In re Manes Tailoring Co., (1908), 11 O. W. R. 498. Upon question of parties in suit between a shareholder and director for breach of trust, see In re Farmer's Loan, Ex parte Toogood, (1898), 8 O. W. R. 12.

Dispensing with notice. 124. The Court may, by any order made after the winding-up order and the appointment of a liquidator, dispense with notice to creditors, contributories, shareholders, or members of the company required by this Act, where in its discretion such notice may properly be dispensed with.

52 Vic. c. 32, § 11. This section does not extend to dispensing with notice of appointment of liquidators required under § 27, supra. See Stimson v. Northwest Cattle Co., (1905), Q. R. 14 K. B. 274.

Courts and judges auxiliary. Transfer from one Court to another. 125. The Courts of the various Provinces, and the Judges of the said Courts respectively, shall be auxiliary to one another for the purposes of this Act; and the winding-up of the business of the company or any matter or proceeding relating thereto may be transferred from one Court to another with the concurrence, or by the order or orders of the two Courts, or by an order of the Supreme Court of Canada.

R. S., c. 129, § 84. In Baxter v. Central Bank, (1890), 20 O. R. 214, an injunction was granted to restrain proceedings in a Montreal Court against a bank in process of being wound-up in Ontario under the Dominion Act. "Meredith, C. J., held in 1905, however, In re Canada Cork Co., (unreported), that such an order would not be made unless evidence was given that the Court in the other Province had received notice of the winding-up order, and had refused to take cognizance of it." — Parker and Clarke, Company Law, p. 528.

Order of one Court may be enforced by another. 126. When any order made by one Court is required to be enforced by another Court, an office copy of the order so made, certified by the clerk or other proper officer of the Court which made the same, under the seal of such Court shall be produced to the proper officer of the Court required to enforce the same.

R. S., c. 129, § 85.

Proceeding on order of another Court. 127. Such last mentioned Court shall, upon such production of the said certified copy of such order, take the same proceedings thereon for enforcing the order as if it was the order of the Court required to enforce it.

R. S., c. 129, § 85.

Rules as to amendments. Authority to apply. 128. The rules of procedure, for the time being, as to amendments of pleadings and proceedings in the Court, shall apply, as far as practicable, to all pleadings and proceedings under this Act. 2. Any Court before which such proceedings are being carried on shall have full power and authority to apply to such proceedings the appropriate rules of such Court as to amendments.

R. S., c. 129, § 86. "It plain, I think, that section 86 (section 128 of the present Act) refers to amendments only." — Per Ferguson J. in re Sun Lithographing Co., (1902), 22 O. R. 57, at p. 62.

Irregularity or default. 129. No pleading or proceeding shall be void by reason of any irregularity or default which may be amended or disregarded; but the same may be dealt with according to the rules and practice of the Court in cases of irregularity or default.

R. S., c. 129, § 87.

Powers conferred by this Act are supplementary. 130. Any powers by this Act conferred on the Court are in addition to, and not in restriction of any other powers at law or in equity of instituting proceedings against any contributory, or the estate of any contributory, or against any debtor of the company, or his estate, for the recovery of any call or other sum due from such contributory, debtor, or estate; and such proceedings may be instituted accordingly.

R. S., c. 129, § 90.

Wishes of creditors. 131. The Court may, as to all matters relating to the winding-up, have regard, so far as it deems just, to the wishes of the creditors, contributories, shareholders, or members, as proved to it by any sufficient evidence.

R. S., c. 129, § 19; Imp. § 201.

Solicitors and counsel representing classes of creditors. 131A. [Added by 6 & 7 Edw. 7, c. 51, § 1.] The Court if satisfied that, with respect to the whole or any portion of the proceedings, the interests of creditors, claimants, or shareholders can be classified, may, after notice by advertisement or otherwise, nominate and appoint a solicitor and counsel to represent each or any class for the purpose of the proceedings, and all the persons composing any such class shall be bound by the acts of the solicitor and counsel so appointed, and service upon such solicitor of notices, orders, or other proceedings of which service is required, shall for all purposes be, and be deemed to be, good and sufficient service thereof upon all the persons composing the class represented by him; and the Court may, by the order appointing a solicitor and counsel for any class, or by subsequent order, provide for the payment of the costs of such solicitor and counsel by the liquidator of the company out of the assets of the company, or out of such portion thereof as to the Court seems just and proper.

See notes § 61, supra.

Liquidator subject to summary jurisdiction of Court. 132. The liquidator shall be subject to the summary jurisdiction of the Court in the same manner and to the same extent as the ordinary officers of the Court are subject to its jurisdiction; and the performance of his duties may be compelled by order of the Court.

R. S., c. 129, § 39. See notes § 34, supra.

Remedies obtained by summary order. 133. All remedies sought or demanded for enforcing any claim for a debt, privilege, mortgage, lien, or right of property upon, in, or to any effects or property in the hands, possession, or custody of a liquidator, may be obtained by an order of the Court on summary petition, and not by any action, suit attachment, seizure, or other proceeding of any kind whatsoever.

R. S., c. 129, § 39. Where the president of a company, who is a mortgagee of the company, presented a petition asking for an order directing the conveyance to him by the liquidator of the company's equity of redemption, it was held that the Court had jurisdiction to make the usual order for foreclosure and sale, and that it was a matter of discretion whether it would order summary proceedings under this section, or whether it would direct an action to be taken. — In re Essex Land & Timber Co., Trout's Case, (1891), 21 O. R. 367. The summary action provided for in this section may only be exercised when the liquidator is the sole person interested in the mortgaged property. This section does not apply where prior and subsequent mortgagees are concerned. — In re Canada Cabinet Co., (1907), 9 O. W. R. 818; Cp. §§ 80 and 81, supra. In re Tobique Gypsum Co., Costigan v. Langly, (1903), 6 O. L. R. 515, it was held that while the High Court of Ontario had jurisdiction, under the Winding-up Act, to stay proceedings under an execution in the hands of the sheriff in a county of New Brunswick still, where the sheriff had proceeded with the sale, and had executed a deed to the purchaser, the Court had no jurisdiction to make an order summarily declaring the sale void.

Rules, regulations, and forms.

Judges may make; proviso. 134. A majority of the Judges of the Court, of which the Chief Justice shall be one, may, from time to time make and frame and settle the forms, rules, and regulations to be followed and observed in proceedings under this Act, and make rules as to the costs, fees, and charges which shall or may be had, taken, or paid in all such cases by or to attorneys, solicitors, or counsel, and by or to officers of Courts, whether for the officers or for the Crown, and by or to sheriffs, or other persons, or for any service performed or work done under this Act: Provided that in Ontario the Judges of the High Court of Justice, and in Quebec, the Judges of the Court of King's Bench, or a majority of such Judges of which the Chief Justice shall be one, shall make and settle such forms, rules, and regulations.

R. S., c. 129, § 92; Imp. § 237.

Until rules are made, procedure of Court to apply. 135. Until such forms, rules, and regulations are made, the various forms and procedures, including the tariff of costs, fees, and charges in cases under this Act, shall, unless otherwise specially provided, be the same as nearly as may be as those of the Court in other cases.

Unclaimed dividends to remain in bank ; and paid to Minister after three years ; if afterwards claimed. 136. All dividends deposited in a bank and remaining unclaimed at the time of the final winding-up of the business of the company shall be left for three years in the bank where they are deposited, subject to the claim of the persons entitled thereto. 2. If such dividends are unclaimed at the expiration of three years aforesaid they shall be paid over by such bank, with interest accrued thereon, to the Minister. 3. If such dividends are afterwards duly claimed they shall, with such interest, be paid over to the persons entitled thereto.

R. S., c. 129, § 94; Imp. § 224. Where the liquidators had passed in their final accounts and paid into Court the balance in their hands and, before the expiration of three years, that balance had inadvertently been paid to parties not entitled to it, it was held that the Receiver-General had such an interest in the fund that he might, even before the expiration of the three years, apply to have the money repaid into Court by the parties to whom it had been erroneously paid. — Hogaboom v. The Receiver-General of Canada, (1897), 28 S. C. R. 192.

Money deposited not paid after three years to be paid to Minister of Finance. 137. The money deposited in the bank by the liquidator after the final winding-up of the business of a company shall be left for three years in the bank, subject to be claimed by the persons entitled thereto, and if not then paid out to such persons, shall be then paid over, with the interest accrued thereon, to the Minister, and if afterwards claimed shall be paid, with such interest, to the persons entitled to the same.

Offences and penalties.

Court may direct criminal proceedings. 138. When a winding-up order is made, if it appears in the course of such winding-up that any past or present director, manager, officer, or member of the company is guilty of an offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally liable, the Court may, on the application of any person interested in such winding-up, or of its own motion, direct the liquidator to institute and conduct a prosecution or prosecutions for such offence, and may order the costs and expenses to be paid out of the assets of the company.

R. S., c. 129, § 96; Imp. § 138.

Destruction of books or false entry therein. 139. Every person who, with intent to defraud or deceive any person, destroys, mutilates, alters, or falsifies any book, paper, writing, or security, or makes or is privy to the making of any false or fraudulent entry in any register, book of account or other document belonging to the company, the business of which is being wound up under this Act, is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to imprisonment in the penitentiary for any term not less than two years, or to imprisonment in any gaol or in any place of confinement than a penitentiary for any term less than two years, with or without hard labour.

R. S., c. 129, § 95; Imp. § 216. See also Criminal Code (R. S. C. c. 146) § 415, which renders an officer or employee of the company guilty of such an offence liable to seven years' imprisonment.

Failure to comply with order of Court a contempt. Removal of liquidator from office. 140. Any liquidator, director, manager, receiver, officer, or employee of a company, failing to comply with the requirements or directions of any order made by the Court under this Act, shall be guilty of contempt of court and shall be subject to all process and punishments of such Court for contempt. 2. Any liquidator so failing may in the discretion of the Court be removed from office as such liquidator.

Refusal by officers of company to give information; penalty. 141. Any refusal on the part of the president, directors, officers, or employees of a company to give all information possessed by them respectively as to the affairs of the company required by the accountant or other person ordered by the Court under this Part to inquire into the affairs of the company and to report thereon, shall be a contempt of court, and such president, directors, officers, or employees shall be subject to all process and punishments of such Court for contempt.

R. S., c. 129, § 11.

Failure to deposit in bank money of estate; penalty. 142. Every liquidator who shall not within three days after the date of the final winding-up of the business of the company, deposit in the bank appointed or designated as hereinbefore provided, any money belonging to the estate of which he is such liquidator, then in his hands, and not required for any other purpose authorized by this Act, with an account of such money, and a sworn statement that the same is all that he has in his hands, shall incur a penalty not exceeding ten dollars, and not less than ten per centum per annum interest upon the sums in his hands for every day after the expiration of the said three days on which he neglects or delays such payment.

R. S., c. 129, § 40.

Refusal of witness to answer or subscribe is a contempt. 143. Every person being brought up for examination before the Court after the Court has made a winding-up order, or appearing before the Court for such examination, who refuses without lawful excuse to answer any question put to him or to subscribe any answer made by him on such examination, shall be guilty of contempt of court and shall be subject to all process and punishments of such Court for contempt.

Evidence.

Books to be prima facie evidence of contents. 144. If the business of a company is being wound up under this Act, all books of the company and of the liquidators shall, as between the contributories of the company, be prima facie evidence of the truth of all matters purporting to be therein recorded.

R. S., c. 129, § 53; Imp. § 220.

Affidavits, before whom sworn. 145. Every affidavit, affirmation, or declaration required to be sworn or made under the provisions or for the purposes of this Act, or to be used in the Court in any proceeding under this Act, may be sworn or made in Canada before a liquidator, judge, notary public, commissioner for taking affidavits, or justice of the peace; and out of Canada, before any judge of a court of record, any commissioner for taking affidavits to be used in any Court in Canada, any notary public, the chief municipal officer of any town or city, any British consul or vice-consul, or any person authorized by or under any statute of Canada, or of any Province, to take affidavits.

R. S., c. 129, § 88.

Judicial notice of seals, stamp, or signature. 146. All Courts, Judges, Justices, commissioners and persons acting judicially shall take judicial notice of the seal, or stamp or signature, as the case may be, of any such Court, liquidator, Judge, notary public, commissioner, justice, chief municipal officer, consul, vice-consul, or other person, attached, appended or subscribed to any such affidavit, affirmation or declaration or to any other document to be used for the purposes of this Act.

R. S., c. 129, § 89.

Copy of order evidence of order. 147. When any order made by one Court is required to be enforced by another Court, the production of an office copy of the order so made certified by the clerk or other proper officer of the Court which made the same, under the seal of such Court, shall be sufficient evidence of such order having been made.

R. S., c. 129, § 85.

Failure to produce pass-book, how proved. 148. The absence of mention in the minutes of any meeting of contributories, creditors, shareholders or, members under this Act, of the production of the liquidator's bank pass-book, shall be prima facie evidence that such pass-book was not produced at such meeting.

R. S., c. 129, § 37.

Part II. Banks.

Application of Part. 149. The provisions of this Part apply to banks only, not including savings banks.

R. S., c. 129, § 97. Note that savings banks are subject to provisions of Part I. A bank cannot be wound up under the Act until provisions of Part I are complied with. — In re Bank of Liverpool, (1887), 14 S. C. R. 650. See the following cases touching insolvent banks: Cloyes v. Darling, (1884), 16 Rev. Leg. 649; Exchange Bank v. The Queen, (1885), 11 A. C. 157; The Queen v. Bank of Nova Scotia, (1885), 11 S. C. R. 1; Maritime Bank v. The Queen, (1888), 17 S. C. For the purposes of this section the Board may order that specific works be constructed or carried out, or that property be acquired, or that specified tolls be charged, or that cars, motive power or other equipment be allotted, distributed, used, or moved as specified by the Board, or that any specified steps, systems, or methods be taken or followed by any particular company or companies, or by railway companies generally. 7. Every person aggrieved by any neglect or refusal of the company to comply with the requirements of this section shall, subject to this Act, have an action therefor against the company, from which action the company shall not be relieved by any notice, condition, or declaration if the damage arises from any negligence or omission of the company or of its servants. 8. The Board may make regulations, applying generally or to any particular railway or any portion thereof, imposing charges for default or delay by any company in furnishing accommodation, appliances, or means as aforesaid, or in receiving, loading, carrying, unloading, or delivering traffic, and may enforce payment of such charges by companies to any person injuriously affected by such default or delay; and any amount so received by any person shall be deducted from the damages recoverable or recovered by such person for such default or delay; and the Board may, by order or regulation, determine what circumstances shall exempt any company from payment of any such charges.

Railway companies are common carriers and subject to the common law rules relating to common carriers, but this Act imposes further duties upon the railway companies. They are required under this section to furnish adequate and suitable accommodation for the carrying, unloading, and delivering of traffic. "Traffic" means the traffic of passengers, goods, and rolling stock. — § 1 (31). "Goods" includes personal property of every description that may be conveyed upon the railway or upon steam vessels or other vessels connected with the railway. — § 1 (10). The term "personal property" is wide enough to include all animals which may be the subject of ownership, but possibly does not include animals ferae naturae. — 3 Can. Ry. Cas. 190. But it does include dogs. — McCormack v. Grand Trunk Railway Co., (1903), 6 O. L. R. 577. Railway companies being authorized to carry cattle and hogs and, as a necessary incident thereto, for the purpose of shipping the animals, to have pens for herding them, if in the proper exercise of their powers they have created a nuisance and it is not by the improper exercise of their powers that it has been created, they are not responsible for any such nuisances that may be thereby created. — Bennett v. Grand Trunk Railway Co., (1901), 2 O. L. R. 425. — In discussing the nature and duties of common carriers, McDougall, Co. J., makes the following statements: "The perusal of the latest text books and authorities indicates that the law on the subject of what constitutes a common carrier or what circumstances will create the liability of a common carrier is not defined with great clearness. Perhaps a fairly general definition may be thus expressed: Any person undertaking for hire to carry the goods of all persons indifferently is to be considered a common carrier. (Beven on Negligence, 2d ed. p. 1021.) Alderson, B., in Ingate v. Christie, 3 C. & K. 61, states the principle as follows: 'The criterion is whether he carries for particular persons only or whether he carries for everyone. If a man holds himself out to do it for everyone who asks him he is a common carrier, but if he does not do it for everyone, but carries for you and me only, that is a matter of special contract.' And accordingly in Ingate v. Christie he held that where a defendant at his counting-house had displayed on the door post the word "Lighterman," and carried goods in his lighters from the wharves to the ships for anybody who employed him, he was a common carrier. He further states: 'If a person holds himself out to carry goods for everyone as a business . . . . . he is a common carrier.' Story defines a common carrier as 'one who undertakes for hire or reward to transport the goods of such as choose to employ him from place to place.' In Chitty on Carriers, 1st ed. p. 53, the learned writer, adopting the language of Story in his work on Bailments, thus defines a common carrier: 'A common carrier is one who, by ancient law, held, as it were, a public office, and was bound to the public. To render a person liable as a common carrier he must exercise the business of carrying as a public employment, and must undertake to carry goods of persons indiscriminately and hold himself out as ready to engage in the transportation of goods for hire as a business and not as a casual occupation, pro hac vice.' Brett, J., in Nugent v. Smith, in his judgment in the Court below, 1 C. P. D. p. 27, thus expresses his view as to what the test should be as to when a man is a common carrier: 'The real test of whether a man is a common carrier, whether by land or water, therefore really is whether he has held out that he will, so long as he has room, carry for hire the goods of every person who will bring goods to him to be carried. And the test is not whether he is carrying as a public employment or whether he carries to a fixed place, but whether he holds out either expressly or by a course of conduct that he will carry for hire, so long as he has room, the goods of all persons indifferently who send him goods to be carried. If he does this his first responsibility naturally is that he is bound by a promise implied by law to receive and carry for a reasonable price the goods sent him upon such an invitation.' In The Liver Alkali Company v. Johnson, L. R. 7 Exch. 267, and on appeal, L. R. 9 Exch. 338, it was held that a barge owner who let out his vessels for the conveyance of any goods to any customer who applied, and who did not ply between particular places, was a common carrier. In this case the place from which and to which the goods were to be carried were fixed by the customer. Blackburn, J., in his judgment, expressed the opinion that 'the defendant was a common carrier, and it was not necessary to inquire whether the defendant, as a carrier, was liable to an action for not taking goods tendered to him.' — Culver v. Lester, (1901), 37 C. L. J. 421. Where the packing is insufficient, or the goods are wrongly described, the carrier may be exempt from liability. — Connelly v. Great Northern Railway Co., (1892), 15 Leg. News, 365. A carrier may be responsible for unreasonable delays in transportation, resulting in damage to the goods. — Delorne v. Canadian Pacific Railway Co., (1888), 11 Leg. News, 106. The carrier is bound to deliver the whole of the goods received, but is not responsible for any diminution in weight or quantity, or any deterioration due to the nature of the goods carried. — Seymour v. Sincennes, (1869), 1 Rev. Leg. 716. The Criminal Code provides that: No railway company within Canada whose railway forms any part of a line of road over which cattle are conveyed from one Province to another Province, or from the United States to or through any Province, or from any part of a Province to another part of the same, and no owner or master of any vessel carrying or transporting cattle from one Province to another Province, or within any Province, or from the United States to or through any Province, shall confine the same in any car, or vessel of any description, for a longer period than twenty-eight hours without unloading the same for rest, water, and feeding for a period of at least five consecutive hours, unless prevented from so unloading and furnishing water and food by storm or other unavoidable cause, or by necessary delay or detention in the crossing of trains. In reckoning the period of confinement, the time during which the cattle have been confined without such rest, and without the furnishing of food and water, on any connecting railway or vessels from which they are received, whether in the United States or in Canada, shall be included. — R. S. C., (1906), c. 146, § 544. Contracts for the carriage of animals ordinarily provide for an exemption or limitation of the liability of the carrier for loss of or damage to the animals. The validity of these stipulations must be considered in the light of the provisions of § 340, infra. It seems that the Board has power to approve contracts limiting the liability of the carrier in such cases. — Mercer v. Canadian Pacific Railway Co., (1908), 17 O. L. R. 585; Southerland v. Grand Trunk Railway Co., (1909), 18 O. L. R. 139. Where animals are in charge of the owner or his agent and the damage is due to the negligence of such owner or agent the carrier is not liable. — Farr v. Great Western Railway Co., (1874), 35 U. C. Q. B. 534; see further as to the liability for carriage of animals: Costello v. Grand Trunk Railway Co., (1906), 7 O. W. R. 846; Bicknell v. Grand Trunk Railway Co., (1899), 26 O. A. R. 431. Where the carrier receives goods destined to a point beyond the line of such carrier, and such carrier acts as agent for the connecting carriers, the latter are bound on the ordinary principles of agency. Where, however, no agency can be predicated, the consignor may fail to recover from a connecting carrier upon whose lines the goods were lost or damaged because of want of privity between him and the defendant carrier. — Crawford v. Great Western Railway Co., (1868), 18 U. C. C. P. 510; Richardson v. Canadian Pacific Railway Co., (1889), 19 O. R. 369. It seems that a railway company may stipulate that its liability as carrier or otherwise shall cease upon a delivery of the goods to a connecting carrier. — Grand Trunk Railway Co. v. McMillan, (1888), 16 S. C. R. 543. The bills of lading ordinarily stipulate that the liability of the receiving carrier shall terminate under these circumstances. The effect of such a provision is to make the receiving carrier an agent of the consignor for delivery of the goods to the connecting carrier. — Lake Erie & Detroit River Railway Co. v. Sales, (1896), 26 S. C. R. 663. A company receiving goods for carriage to a point beyond its line prima facie contracts for the entire carriage, but it may limit its responsibility to acts or defaults occurring upon its own lines, and where this is done every and each carrier in succession comes under an obligation to deliver goods so received to the next carrier. — Northern Pacific Railway Co. v. Grant, (1895), 24 S. C. R. 546. The liability of carriers, qua carriers, terminates upon the arrival of the goods carried at their destination and the expiration of a reasonable time afterwards for their delivery. What is a reasonable time must be determined with a due regard to surrounding circumstances. — Grand Trunk Railway Co. v. McMillan, (1889), 16 S. C. R. 546. The carrier when acting as warehouseman is liable only if the goods are lost or damaged by his negligence. — Milloy v. Grand Trunk Railway Co., (1893), 23 O. R. 454; 21 O. A. R. 404; Lake Erie & Detroit Railway Co. v. Sales, (1896), 26 S. C. R. 663. Where notice of arrival of the goods has been given to the consignee and he has been given a reasonable time to remove the same the liability of the carrier becomes that of a warehouseman. — Richardson v. Canadian Pacific Railway Co., (1889), 19 O. R. 369. The same rule applies where a consignee has knowledge of the arrival of the goods. — Masson v. Merchants Bank, (1898), Q. R. 14 S. C. 293. Or where the contract of carriage has not begun or been completed through some fault of the consignor or the consignee. — Milloy v. Grand Trunk Railway Co., (1893), 23 O. R. 454; 21 O. A. R. 404. Semble, the carrier is not bound to send notice of arrival of goods to the consignee. The consignee must make inquiry in regard to goods expected to arrive. — Masson v. Merchants Bank, (1898), Q. R. 14 S. C. 293; see also Richardson v. Canadian Pacific Railway Co., (1889), 19 O. R. 369; Montreal Navigation Co. v. L'Ecuyer, (1901), 21 C. L. T. 249.

Contracts, etc., impairing carriers' liability. 340. 1. No contract, condition, by-law, regulation, declaration, or notice made or given by the company, impairing, restricting, or limiting its liability in respect of the carriage of any traffic, shall, except as hereinafter provided, relieve the company from such liability, unless such class of contract, condition, by-law, regulation, declaration, or notice shall have been first authorized or approved by order or regulation of the Board. 2. The Board may, in any case, or by regulation, determine the extent to which the liability of the company may be so impaired, restricted, or limited. 3. The Board may by regulation prescribe the terms and conditions under which any traffic may be carried by the company.

At common law a carrier may stipulate against liability even for negligence. — Dixon v. Richelieu and Ontario, etc., Co., (1888), 15 O. A. R. 647; 18 S. C. R. 704; Glengoil Steamship Co. v. Pilkington, (1898), 28 S. C. R. 146; Dodson v. Grand Trunk Railway Co., (1871), 8 N. S. 405. Under the Railway Act the right of a carrier to limit his liability is more restricted. McMurchy and Denison thus summarize the present law under sections 284 and 340 of the Canadian Railway Act: The carrier may place the burden of proof of negligence upon the shipper and may limit his responsibility to his own line without assuming responsibility of loss by a connecting carrier. He may furthermore limit the amount of damages recoverable in case a loss happens through negligence provided such agreement be made before shipment. Agreements providing that notice of loss or damage must be given within a prescribed time are valid. — Railway Law of Canada, 2d edition, pp. 472—474.

Part XVII. Liabilities of Carriers by Water.

Interpretation.

Definitions. 961. In this part, unless the contract otherwise requires: a) "goods" means and includes goods, wares, merchandise, and articles of any kind whatsoever; b) "valuable securities" includes every document forming the title or evidence of the title to any property of any kind whatsoever.

R. S., c. 82, § 1. This part of The Canada Shipping Act is not referred to in The Water-Carriage of Goods Act, either by a repealing clause, or otherwise. Consequently the former Act is affected by the later one only in so far as it is inconsistent with and repugnant to any of the provisions of the latter. The Acts must be read together. In the event of inconsistency, the new Act governs. — Davidson, The Water-Carriage of Goods Act, in Canada Law Journal, Vol. 46, p. 553, 555.

Responsibility of Carriers.

Must convey passengers and goods. 962. Carriers by water shall, at the times and in the manner and on the terms of which they have respectively given public notice, receive and convey according to such notice all persons applying for passage, and all goods offered for conveyance, unless, in either case there is reasonable and sufficient cause for not doing so.

R. S., c. 82, § 2.

Responsibility for goods. 963. Carriers by water shall be responsible not only for goods received on board their vessels, but also for goods delivered to them for conveyance by any such vessel, and they shall be bound to use due care and diligence in the safe-keeping and punctual conveyance of such goods, subject to the provisions hereinafter made.

R. S., c. 82, § 2.

Loss or damage, liability for. 964. Carriers by water shall be liable for the loss of or damage to goods entrusted to them, for conveyance except that they shall not be liable when such loss or damage happens: a) Without their actual fault or priority, or without the fault or neglect of their agents, servants or employees; or, b) by reason of fire or the dangers of navigation; or, c) from any defect in or from the nature of the goods themselves; or, d) from armed robbery or other irresistible force.

R. S., c. 82, § 2.

Responsibility as to gold and silver. 965. Carriers by water shall not be liable for any total or partial loss of gold or silver, diamonds, watches, jewels, or precious stones, money, or valuable securities or articles of great value not being ordinary merchandise, by reason of any robbery, theft, removal, or secreting thereof, unless the true nature and value thereof has, at the time of delivery for conveyance, been declared by the owner or shipper thereof to the carrier or his agent or servant, and entered in the bill of lading or otherwise in writing.

R. S., c. 82, § 2.

Personal baggage of passengers. 966. Carriers by water shall be liable for the loss of or damage to the personal baggage of passengers by their vessels: Provided that such liability shall not extend to any greater amount than five hundred dollars, or to the loss of or damage to any such valuable articles as are mentioned in the last preceding section, unless the true nature and value of such articles so lost or damaged have been declared and entered, as provided by the said section.

R. S., c. 82, § 3.

d) 9 & 10 Edw. 7 c. 61. An Act respecting the Water-Carriage of Goods Act (4th May, 1910).<sup>1)</sup>

Short title. 1. This Act may be cited as the Water-Carriage of Goods Act.

Interpretation. 2. [As amended by 2 Geo. 5, c. 27, § 1.] In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires: a) "Goods" includes goods, wares, merchandise, and articles of any kind whatsoever, except live animals and lumber, deals, and other articles usually described as "wood-goods;" b) "Ship" includes every description of vessel used in navigation not propelled by oars; c) "Port" means a place where ships may discharge or load cargo.

Application of Act. 3. This Act applies to ships carrying goods from any port in Canada to any other port in Canada, or from any port in Canada to any port outside of Canada, and to goods carried by such ships, or received to be carried by such ships.

Certain clauses prohibited in bill of lading. 4. Where any bill of lading or similar document of title to goods contains any clause, covenant, or agreement whereby: a) The owner, charterer, master, or agent of any ship, or the ship itself, is relieved from liability for loss or damage to goods arising from negligence, fault, or failure in the proper loading, stowage, custody, care, or delivery of goods received by them or any of them to be carried in or by the ship; or b) any obligations of the owner or charterer of any ship to exercise due diligence to properly man, equip, and supply the ship, and make and keep the ship seaworthy, and make and keep the ship's hold, refrigerating and cool chambers, and all other parts of the ship in which goods are carried, fit and safe for their reception, carriage, and preservation, are in any wise lessened, weakened, or avoided; or c) the obligations of the master, officers, agents, or servants of any ship to carefully handle and stow goods, and to care for, preserve, and property deliver them, are in any wise lessened, weakened, or avoided; such clause, covenant, or agreement shall be illegal, null, and void, and of no effect, unless such clause, covenant, or agreement is in accordance with other provisions of this Act.

Express reference to be made to this act. Jurisdiction. 5. Every bill of lading, or similar document of title to goods, relating to the carriage of goods from any place in Canada to any place outside of Canada shall contain a clause to the effect that the shipment is subject to all the terms and provisions of, and all the exemptions from liability contained in this Act; and any stipulation or agreement purporting to oust or lessen the jurisdiction of any court having jurisdiction at the port of loading in Canada in respect of the bill of lading or document, shall be illegal, null and void, and of no effect.

Limitation of owner's liability. 6. If the owner of any ship transporting merchandise or property from any port in Canada exercises due diligence to make this ship in all respects seaworthy and properly manned, equipped, and supplied, neither the ship nor the owner, agent, or charterer shall become or be held responsible for loss or damage resulting from faults or errors in navigation or in the management of the ship, or from latent defect.

Loss for which the ship, the owner, etc., is not liable. 7. The ship, the owner, charterer, agent, or master shall not be held liable for loss arising from fire, dangers of the sea or other navigable waters, acts of God, or public enemies, or inherent defect, quality, or vice of the thing carried, or from insufficiency of package, or seizure under legal process, or for loss resulting from any act or omission of the shipper or owner of the goods, his agent or representative, or from saving or attempting to save life or property at sea, or from any deviation in rendering such service, or other reasonable deviation, or from strikes, or for loss arising without their actual fault or privity or without the fault or neglect of their agents, servants, or employees.

Limit of liability as to value of goods. Effect of declaration. 8. The ship, the owner, charterer, master, or agent shall not be liable for loss or damage to or in connection with goods for a greater amount than one hundred dollars per package, unless a higher value is stated in the bill of lading or other shipping document, nor for any loss or damage whatever if the nature or value of such goods has been made falsely stated by the shipper, unless such false statement has been made by inadvertence or error. The declaration by the shipper as to the nature and value of the goods shall not be considered as binding or conclusive on the ship, her owner, charterer, master, or agent.

Bill of lading to be issued to shipper. Contents. Effect as evidence. 9. Every owner, charterer, master, or agent of any ship carrying goods, shall on demand issue to the shipper of such goods a bill of lading shewing, among other things, the marks necessary for identification as furnished in writing by the shipper, the number of packages or pieces, or the quantity or the weight, as the case may be, and the apparent order and condition of the goods as delivered to or received by such owner, charterer, master, or agent; and such bill of lading shall be prima facie evidence of the receipt of the goods as therein described.

Notice of arrival of ship. 11. When a ship arrives at a port where goods carried by the ship are to be delivered, the owner, charterer, master, or agent of the ship shall forthwith give such notice as is customary at the port, to the consignees of goods to be delivered there, that the ship has arrived.

Offences. Making illegal or defective bills of lading. Refusal to issue. Refusal to give notice. Penalty. Disposal of Penalty. 12. Every one who, being the owner, charterer, master, or agent of a ship: a) Inserts in any bill of lading or similar document of title to goods any clause, covenant, or agreement declared by this Act to be illegal; or makes signs, or executes any bill of lading or similar document of title to goods containing any clause, covenant, or agreement declared by this Act to be illegal; without incorporating verbatim, in conspicuous type, in the same bill of lading, or similar document of title to goods, section 4 of this Act; or, b) Refuses to issue to a shipper of goods a bill of lading as provided by this Act; or c) Refuses or neglects to give the notice of arrival of the ship required by this Act; is liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, with cost of prosecution; and the ship may be libelled therefor in any Admiralty District in Canada within which the ship is found. 2. Such proportion of any penalty imposed under this section as the Court deems proper, together with full costs, shall be paid to the person injured, and the balance shall belong to His Majesty for the public uses of Canada.

Shipping inflammable explosives or dangerous goods. Penalty. 13. Every one who knowingly ships goods of an inflammable or explosive nature, or of a dangerous nature, without before shipping the goods making full disclosure in writing of their nature to, and obtaining the permission in writing of, the agent, master, or person in charge of the ship, is liable to a fine of one thousand dollars.

Master may destroy such goods, if shipped without disclosure. Shipper liable for damages. 14. Goods of an inflammable or explosive nature, or of a dangerous nature, shipped without such permission from the agent, master, or person in charge of the ship, may, at any time before delivery, be destroyed or rendered innocuous, by the master or person in charge of the ship, without compensation to the owner, shipper, or consignee of the goods; and the person so shipping the goods shall be liable for all damages directly or indirectly arising out of such shipment.

Act not retroactive. 15. This Act shall not apply to any bill of lading or similar document of title to goods made pursuant to a contract entered into before this Act comes into force.

Commencement of Act. 16. This Act shall come into force on the first day of September, one thousand nine hundred and ten.

Bills of Exchange.<sup>1)</sup>

a) R. S. C. 1906, c. 119. An Act relating to Bills of Exchange, Cheques, and Promissory Notes.<sup>2)</sup>

Short title.

Short title. 1. This Act may be cited as the Bills of Exchange Act.

Imp. § 1. History. — This Act, Chapter 119 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1906, is a revision and consolidation of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1890 (53 Vic. c. 33) and the several amendments thereto. In the revision the law is subjected to a different scheme of division into sections and subsections and to a different arrangement and numbering of sections. Many verbal differences consequently exist between the revised Act and the Bills of Exchange Act, 1890. The Bills of Exchange Act, 1890, was for the most part a copy of the imperial Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vic. c. 61).

Commencement. — The Bills of Exchange Act, 1890, took effect 1st September, 1890, and, although not retrospective, governed, so far as it applied, juristic acts affecting bills of exchange, cheques, and promissory notes, done after that date, whether or not the instruments were in existence before the Act took effect. — MacLaren, Bills, notes, and cheques, p. 19. The revised Act took effect 31st January, 1907; and by the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1906, Act, § 7, "If upon any point the provisions of the said Revised Statutes are not in effect the same as those of the repealed Acts and parts of Acts for which they are substituted, then, as respects all transactions, matters, and things subsequent to the time when the said Revised Statutes take effect, the provisions contained in them shall prevail, but, as respects all transactions, matters, and things anterior to the said time, the provisions of the said repealed Acts and parts of Acts shall prevail."

Interpretation. — After referring to the view that the Imperial Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, is generally to be construed as a declaratory statute, Mr. Justice MacLaren says: "As the law in the various Provinces of Canada before 1890 varied considerably, as shewn in the foregoing pages, and as the Act of that year in a number of instances changed the law to make it harmonize with that of England, it cannot be so generally accepted as declaratory of the old law in Canada. Nevertheless, there has been a disposition on the part of the Courts to consider it as declaratory, where it is not clear that the law was actually changed. It is intended to declare the law upon the subject of bills of exchange, cheques, and notes; and where it is laid down clearly and without ambiguity, it is to be followed without any enquiry as to the previous state of the law. In cases of doubt, ambiguity, or obscurity, the old cases may often be usefully examined and considered." — MacLaren, Bills, notes, and cheques, pp. 19—20. See also Bank of Montreal v. The King, (1906), 38 S. C. R. 258, 263, 264; Northern Crown Bank v. International Electric Co., (1911), 19 O. W. R. 392.

Imp. §§ 2, 92.

Part I. General.

Thing done in good faith. 3. A thing is deemed to be done in good faith, within the meaning of this Act, where it is in fact done honestly whether it is done negligently or not.

Imp. § 90.

Signature. 4. Where by this Act, any instrument or writing is required to be signed by any person, it is not necessary that he should sign it with his own hand, but it is sufficient if his signature is written thereon by some other person by or under his authority.

Imp. § 91.

What required of corporation. 5. In the case of a corporation, where, by this Act, any instrument or writing is required to be signed, it is sufficient if the instrument or writing is duly sealed with the corporate seal; but nothing in this section shall be construed as requiring the bill or note of a corporation to be under seal.

Imp. § 91.

Computation of time. 6. Where, by this Act, the time limited for doing any act or thing is less than three days, in reckoning time, non-business days are excluded.

Imp. § 92.

Imp. § 95.

The Bank Act not affected. 8. Nothing in this Act shall affect the provisions of the Bank Act.

Imperial Acts 15 Geo. 3, c. 51 and 17 Geo. 3, c. 30. 9. The Act of the Parliament of Great Britain passed in the fifteenth year of the reign of His late Majesty George III., intituled An Act to restrain the negotiation of Promissory Notes and Inland Bills of Exchange under a limited sum within that part of Great Britain called England, and the Act of the said Parliament passed in the seventeenth year of His said Majesty's reign, intituled An Act for further restraining the negotiation of Promissory Notes and Inland Bills of Exchange under a limited sum within that part of Great Britain called England, shall not extend to or be in force in any Province of Canada, nor shall the said Acts make void any bills, notes, drafts, or orders made or uttered therein.

Common law of England. 10. The rules of the common law of England, including the law merchant, save in so far as they are inconsistent with the express provisions of this Act, shall apply to bills of exchange, promissory notes, and cheques.

Imp. § 97. This section in effect unifies the law of the Dominion by making the common law of England in respect of bills, notes, and cheques, when not inconsistent with the express provisions of the Act, applicable in all the Provinces, including Quebec. Thus, in that Province the obligation of the makers of a note, in the absence of a special stipulation, was held in accordance with the English common law rule, to be joint and not joint and several. — Noble v. Forgrave, (1899), Q. R. 17 S. C. 234. Semble, that in determining what the English common law is reference should be made to English cases rather than to Canadian cases not decided under this section. — Macdonald v. Whitefield, (1883) 8 A. C. 733, 749. But "reference must still be had, however, in many instances, to Provincial law in matters connected with bills of exchange, etc. The Act governs the form, issue, negotiation, and discharge of bills, the manner in which persons become liable, as parties thereto, etc., but neither the Act itself, nor the common law of England made applicable by sec. 10, regulates all matters of civil obligation resulting from the substance of the contracts entered into by parties to bills or determines all the consequences of such contracts. These, as a general rule, are governed by Provincial law. For instance, the Act declares what persons are liable as indorsers, but the appropriate Provincial law decides whether an indorser, as being in the nature of a surety, is discharged by dealings between the creditor and the principal debtor. (Guy v. Paré, 1892, Q. R. 1 S. C. 443, a case decided under Article 2340 of the Civil Code, referred to above.) Again the Act and the common law declare whether a note in a particular form is a joint note or a joint and several note (Noble v. Forgrave, 1899, Q. R. 17 S. C. 234), but the Provincial law regulates the consequences of joint, or joint and several liability. Thus, where the common law rule as to joint contracts has been altered by Provincial statute, the statute governs. (Cook v. Dodds, 1903, 6 O. L. R. 608.) Likewise, the Act contains provisions as to the discharge of a bill by payment, or the avoiding of a bill by reason of fraud, duress, illegality of consideration, etc. What is payment, fraud, duress, or illegality must be determined by Provincial law. The Act provides only as to the extent to which fraud, etc., will affect parties other than the immediate parties to the frauds, etc. The question of capacity is expressly referred by the Act to the general law governing capacity. No less certainly questions of limitations or prescription, set-off or compensation, and evidence are to be governed by Provincial law." — Falconbridge, Banking and bills of exchange, p. 357.

Protest prima facie evidence. 11. A protest of any bill or note within Canada, and any copy thereof as copied by the notary or justice of the peace, shall, in any action be prima facie evidence of presentation and dishonour, and also of service of notice of such presentation and dishonour as stated in such protest or copy.

See note to § 12.

Copy of protest, prima facie evidence. 12. If a bill or note, presented for acceptance, or payable out of Canada, is protested for non-acceptance or non-payment a notarial copy of the protest and of the notice of dishonour, and a notarial certificate of the service of such notice, shall be received in all Courts, as prima facie evidence of such protest, notice, and service.

In the absence of statutes similar to sections 11 and 12, the protest of an inland bill or a note would be futile and the certificate thereof of no evidentiary effect. — Codd v. Lewis, (1851), 8 U. C. Q. B. 242, 243. So also a foreign certificate of protest would be evidence of a notarial presentment, demand, and protest only, and not of the giving of notice even though that were recited. — Ewing v. Cameron, (1842), 6 U. C. Q. B. O. S. 541. For cases construing and applying similar statutes (Civil Code, Art. 2305; C. S. C. c. 57, § 6; R. S. O. c. 73, §§ 34, 35) in force before the adoption of these sections, see: Ross v. McKindsay, (1845), 1 U. C. Q. B. 507; Codd v. Lewis, supra; Griffin v. Judson, (1862), 12 U. C. C. P. 430; Southam v. Ranton, (1883), 9 O. A. R. 530; Ontario Bank v. Burke, (1885), 10 O. P. R. 561.

Officer of bank not to act as notary. 13. No clerk, teller, or agent of any bank shall act as a notary in the protesting of any bill or note payable at the bank or at any of the branches of the bank in which he is employed.

Cp. Pelletier v. Brosseau, (1890), M. L. R. 6 S. C. 331.

Consideration, purchase money of patent. Absence of necessary words. 14. Every bill or note the consideration of which consists, in whole or in part, of the purchase money of a patent right, or of a partial interest, limited geographically or otherwise, in a patent right, shall have written or printed prominently and legibly across the face thereof, before the same is issued, the words "Given for a patent right." 2. Without such words thereon, such instrument and any renewal thereof shall be void, except in the hands of a holder in due course without notice of such consideration.

See note to § 16.

Transferee to take with equities. 15. The endorsee or other transferee of any such instrument having the words aforesaid so printed or written thereon, shall take the same subject to any defence or set-off in respect of the whole or any part thereof which would have existed between the original parties.

See note to § 16.

Transferring defective note an indictable offence. Penalty. 16. Every one who issues, sells, or transfers, by endorsement or delivery, any such instrument not having the words "Given for a patent right" printed or written in manner aforesaid across the face thereof, knowing the consideration of such instrument to have consisted, in whole or in part, of the purchase money of a patent right, or of a partial interest, limited geographically or otherwise, in a patent right, is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to imprisonment for any term not exceeding one year, or to such fine, not exceeding two hundred dollars, as the Court thinks fit.

§§ 14, 15, and 16, with the exception of subsection 2 of § 14, are taken from 47 Vic. c. 38. Subsection 2, § 14, was added, when the sections were incorporated into the Bills of Exchange Act, 1890, as § 30. Prior to the adoption of subsection 2 it was held that a note issued in violation of the statute was not void as between the maker and payee. — Girvin v. Burke, (1890), 19 O. R. 204. It is now clear, that the payee of such a note, unless a holder in due course, may not recover. — Craig v. Samuel, (1894), 24 S. C. R. 278. Nor can an indorser with notice of the consideration. — Johnson v. Martin, (1892), 19 O. A. R. 592; Davey v. Sadler, (1901), 1 O. L. R. 626. As to what is sufficient notice to exclude a holder from the position of a holder in due course, see Banque d'Hochelaga v. Menier, (1896), 3 Rev. de Jur. 86. The fact that the patent right which was the consideration moved from a third person, and not from the payee, does not entitle the latter to enforce the note. — Craig v. Samuel, supra.

*Part II. Bills of Exchange.Form of bill and interpretation.Bill of exchange defined. Non-compliance with requisites. Unconditional order.

17. A bill of exchange is an unconditional order in writing, addressed by one person to another, signed by the person giving it, requiring the person to whom it is addressed to pay, on demand or at a fixed or determinable future time, a sum certain in money to or to the order of a specified person, or to bearer. 2. An instrument which does not comply with the requisites aforesaid, or which orders any act to be done in addition to the payment of money, is not, except as hereinafter provided, a bill of exchange. 3. An order to pay out of a particular fund is not unconditional within the meaning of this section: Provided that an unqualified order to pay, coupled with: a) An indication of a particular fund out of which the drawee is to reimburse himself, or a particular account to be debited with the amount; or, b) A statement of the transaction which gives rise to the bill, is unconditional.

Inp. §3. Writing and signing. — Writing "includes words printed, painted, engraved, lithographed, or otherwise traced or copied". — Interpretation Act, R. S. C., 1906, c. 1, § 34 (31). The signature to a bill or note may be by mark. — Noad v. Chateauvert, (1846) 1 Rev. de Leg. 229; Paterson v. Pain, (1851), 1 L. C. R. 219; Thurber v. Desève, (1854), Mont. Cond. Evidence of a parol contemporaneous agreement purporting to vary the obligation of the acceptor, drawer, maker, or indorser of a bill of exchange or promissory note is not admissible. — Bradbury v. Oliver, (1839), 5 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 703; Hart v. Davy, (1843), 1 U. C. Q. B. 218; Harvey v. Geary, (1845), 1 U. C. Q. B. 483; Durand v. Stevenson, (1848), 5 U. C. Q. B. 336. *Ewart v. Unconditional order. — An order is an imperative direction but couching it in words of politeness does not deprive it of its imperative character. — Regina v. Tuke, (1858), 17 U. C. Q. B. 296. See McLean v. Ross, (1816), 3 Rev. de Leg. 434. As to what orders are conditional see note to § 18, infra.

From one person to another. — An instrument in the form of a bill, except that there is no designation of a drawee, is not a bill. — Forward v. Thompson, (1854), 12 U. C. Q. B. 103; McPherson v. Johnston, (1894), 3 B. C. 465. As to instruments in the form of bills addressed to the drawer, or to a "fictitious" person, see § 26.

Sum certain. — An order to pay "the amount of my account furnished" is not for the payment of a sum certain. — Kennedy v. Adams, (1874), 15 N. B. 162.

Money. — An order or promise to pay a stated sum in services by giving a mortgage, or in lumber, is not a bill or note. — Down v. McNamara, (1846), 3 U. C. Q. B. 276; Newhorn v. Lawrence, (1848), 5 U. C. Q. B. 359; Boulton v. Jones, (1860), 19 U. C. Q. B. 517. Nor is a promise to pay a stated sum "in cash or mortgage." — Going v. Barwick, (1857), 16 U. C. Q. B. 45. See also, Cochrane v. Caie, (1875), 16 N. B. 224. But if the option to demand money or the alternative were in the holder, such an instrument would be a note. — McDonell v. Holgate, (1818), 2 Rev. de Leg. 29. Money is legal tender and whatever else is in fact current as money. — Third National Bank v. Cosby, (1877), 41 U. C. Q. B. 402, 408, 409; North-Western National Bank v. Jarvis, (1883), 2 Man. 53. Contra, Gray v. Worden, (1870), 29 U. C. Q. B. 535. See also, Joseph v. Turcotte, (1871), 2 Rev. Crit. 479. "Currency" and "current funds" mean prima facie money. — Greenwood v. Foley, (1872), 22 U. C. C. P. 352; Third National Bank v. Cosby, supra; S. C., (1878), 43 U. C. Q. B. 58; Dunn v. Allen, (1884), 24 N. B. 1; Wallace v. Souther, (1888), 16 S. C. R. 717. A bill or note drawn in the Dominion payable in a foreign country in the currency of that country is valid. — Greenwood v. Foley, supra; Third National Bank v. Cosby, supra; Wallace v. Souther, supra. A bill or note drawn in the Dominion payable there in foreign currency is valid. — St. Stephen's Branch Ry. & Co. v. Black, (1870), 13 N. B. 139. Contra, Bettis v. Weller, (1870), 30 U. C. Q. B. 23; but see Third National Bank v. Cosby, (1878), 43 U. C. Q. B. 58, 69, where the Court, although dealing with dissimilar facts, purported to overrule Bettis v. Weller.

Act in addition to the payment of money. — An order or promise to pay a stated sum "half in cash and half in goods" is not a bill or note. — Melville v. Beddell, (1832), Stevens' N. B. Digest, 95; Burnham v. Watts, (1844), 4 N. B. 377; Gillin v. Cutler, (1857), 1 L. C. R. 277. Nor is a promise to pay a stated sum and "further to give a mortgage." — Coté v. Lemieux, (1859), 9 L. C. R. 221. But a stipulation added to a note, that the amount "when paid is to be indorsed on the mortgage bearing even date," does not invalidate it. — Chesney v. St. John, (1879), 4 O. A. R. 150.

Particular fund. — An order by A. to B. to pay C. a stated sum "out of Scovill's money" is conditional upon the existence of the fund indicated and is not a bill. — Ockerman v. Blacklock, (1862), 12 U. C. C. P. 362. So an order to pay "on account of plaintiffs' claim in this suit" is not a bill. — Corporation of Perth v. McGregor, (1862), 21 U. C. Q. B. 459. Nor is an order to pay "out of the first moneys received by you on my account." — Fullerton v. Chapman, (1871), 8 N. S. 470. Nor is an order to pay $ 306 "out of certificate of money due me on the 1st of June, for material furnished to above church." — Bank v. Gibson, (1892), 21 O. R. 613. Nor is an order to pay "$600 out of money due me by your company." — Ward v. Ins. Co., (1892), Q. R. 2 S. C. 229. Nor is an order to pay $6 a month "out of my salary during such time as I am indebted to said A." — Angers v. Dillon, (1898), Q. R. 15 S. C. 435. See also Brett v. Levett, (1871), 8 N. S. 472.

Statement of transaction. — A memorandum on a note that is was given for insurance premium does not destroy its negotiable character. — Wood v. Shaw, (1858), 3 L. C. Jur. 169. Similarly, the following instrument is a valid bill: "Mrs. J. P. — Please pay W. H. & Son the sum of $ 138.40 for flooring supplied to your buildings on Dover Court Road, and charge same to me. (Sgd.) E." — Hall v. Prittie, (1890), 17 O. A. R. 306. But the negotiability of a note is destroyed by the addition of a statement that the chattel for which the note is given is to remain the property of the vendor (payee) until the note is paid. — Dominion Bank v. Wiggins, (1894), 21 O. A. R. 275; Imperial Bank v. Bromish, (1895), 16 C. L. T. 21; Prescott v. Garland, (1897), 34 N. B. 291; Bank v. Gillies, (1899), 12 Man. 495; Keddy v. Morden, (1905), 42 C. L. J. 124; New Hamburg Co. v. Weisbrod, (1906), 4 West. L. R. 125; Frank v. Gazelle Co., (1906), 5 West. L. R. 573. Contra, International Co. v. Grant, (1907), 4 East. L. R. 1.

Instrument payable on contingency. Addressed to two or more drawees. 18. An instrument expressed to be payable on a contingency is not a bill, and the happening of the event does not cure the defect. 2. A bill may be addressed to two or more drawees, whether they are partners or not; but an order addressed to two drawees in the alternative, or to two or more drawees in succession, is not a bill of exchange.

Imp. §§ 6, 11. An instrument promising or ordering the payment of a stated sum on the arrival of a designated ship, or "three days after the sailing of the Sally Brown" or "five days after the final sailing of the ship America, with F. B. on board," is not a note or bill. — Wood v. Higginbotham, (1813), 2 Rev. de Leg. 28; Dooley v. Ryarson, (1873), 1 Q. L. R. 219; Duchaine v. Maguire, (1882), 8 Q. L. R. 295. A promise to pay a stated sum "at the sale, or delivery, of the timber marked P. A. in Quebec or elsewhere," is not a note. — Russell v. Wells, (1838), 5 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 725. An order to "pay $341. 46 for lumber used in your house, one month after the building is finished," is not a bill. — Garner v. Hayes, (1884), 10 O. A. R. 24. Nor is an order to pay $ 400 "on completion of contract on building now in course of erection." — Thomson v. Huggins, (1896), 23 O. A. R. 191. Similarly, the negotiable character of a note is destroyed by the addition of the following clause: "This note to be held as collateral security." — Hall v. Merrick, (1877), 40 U. C. Q. B. 566; Sutherland v. Patterson, (1884), 4 O. R. 565. See also, Davis v. Robertson, (1897), Q. R. 6 Q. B. 264.

Payee, drawer or drawee. Two or more payees. Holder of office as payee. 19. A bill may be drawn payable to, or to the order of, the drawer; or it may be drawn payable to, or to the order of, the drawee. 2. A bill may be made payable to two or more payees jointly, or it may be made payable in the alternative to one of two, or one or some of several payees. 3. A bill may be made payable to the holder of an office for the time being.

Imp. §§ 5, 7. An instrument in the form of a bill in which the drawer is designated as payee may be treated either as a bill or a note. — Golding v. Waterhouse, (1876), 16 N. B. 313. An instrument promising to pay "E. S. R. or J. F., his guardian," was held not to be a valid note. — Reed v. Reed, (1853), 11 U. C. Q. B. 26. But in an action by the husband, an instrument promising to pay "D. or to his wife, and to no other person," was held to be in effect payable to D. and therefore a valid note. Query, if the wife had survived D. and brought the action. — Moodie v. Rowatt, (1856), 14 U. C. Q. B. 273. An instrument payable to the "payee or his heirs" was held not a valid note. — Doak v. Robinson, (1868), 12 N. B. 279. The validity of a note payable to a public officer, viz., "to A. B., treasurer of, etc., or to his successor or successors in office, or order," is not effective by the reference to successors. Semble, that the instrument might be sued upon by A. B.'s successor in his own name. — McGregor v. Daly, (1855), 5 U. C. C. P. 126. An instrument payable to the treasurer of an unincorporated association, viz., "to J. P., treasurer of the building committee of the congregation of St. John's Church," is a valid note payable to J. P. and in the event of his death must be sued upon by his executor. — Patton v. Melville, (1861), 21 U. C. Q. B. 263. Cp. Township v. McBride, (1869), 29 U. C. Q. B. 13.

Drawee to be named. 20. The drawee must be named or otherwise indicated in a bill with reasonable certainty.

Imp. § 6. An instrument in the form of a bill except that no drawee is designated is not a bill. — Forward v. Thompson, (1854), 12 U. C. Q. B. 103; McPherson v. Johnston, (1894), 3 B. C. 465.

Transfer words. Negotiable bill. When payable to bearer. Certainty of payee. Fictitious payee. 21. When a bill contains words prohibiting transfer, or indicating an intention that it should not be transferable, it is valid as between the parties thereto, but it is not negotiable. 2. A negotiable bill may be payable either to order or to bearer. 3. A bill is payable to bearer which is expressed to be so payable, or on which the only or last endorsement is an endorsement in blank. 4. Where a bill is not payable to bearer, the payee must be named or otherwise indicated therein with reasonable certainty. 5. Where the payee is a fictitious or non-existing person, the bill may be treated as payable to bearer.

Imp. §§ 7, 8. Non-negotiable instruments. — As to the rights and obligations of parties to non-negotiable notes, see: West v. Brown, (1847), 3 U. C. Q. B. 290; Jones v. Whitty, (1859), 9 L. C. R. 191; Township v. McBride, (1869), 29 U. C. Q. B. 13; McCorkill v. Barrabé, (1885), M. L. R. 1 S. C. 319; Bard v. Francoeur, (1894), Q. R. 7 S. C. 315. The phrase "non-negotiable and given for security" not only deprives an instrument in the form of a note of its negotiable character but deprives it of its character as a note. — Davis v. Robertson, (1897), Q. R. 6 Q. B. 264. See Harvey v. Bank, (1888), 16 S. C. R. 714.

Blank indorsement followed by special indorsement. — Before the enactment of subsection 3 a bill or note payable to order and indorsed in blank was negotiable by delivery notwithstanding a subsequent special indorsement. — Sovereign Bank v. Gordon, (1905), 9 O. L. R. 146, 150.

Certainty of payee. — The designation of the payee is sufficiently certain in a note payable to "the trustees and assignees of the estate of M., G. & A." — Auldjo v. McDougall, (1833), 3 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 199. So also a note payable to the "estate of D." is valid. — Dominion Bank v. Beacock, (1889), 9 C. L. T. 252. But a note in which a blank is left for the payee's name is not valid until completed. — Mutual Ins. Co. v. Porter, (1851), 7 N. B. 230. It may be proved that the name John Souther & Son was intended to designate John Souther & Co. — Wallace v. Souther, (1889) 16 S. C. R. 717. A note payable to G. "for the use of M.," or to G. "on account of M.," is a valid note payable to G. — Munro v. Cox, (1870), 30 U. C. Q. B. 363; Newton v. Allen, (1817), 2 Rev. de Leg. 29; Clark v. Esson, (1820), 2 Rev. de Leg. 30.

Fictitious payee. — Subsection 5 involves the difficult question as to the meaning of the terms "fictitious or non-existing." Chalmers says: "This subsection was inserted (in the Imperial Act) in committee in place of a clause working out in detail the effect of the cases. The words 'or non existing' seem superfluous; but they were probably intended to cover the case of Ashpitel v. Bryan (1864), 3 B. & S. 474," (where a clerk drew and indorsed a bill as attorney for his deceased employer, upon a debtor of the estate, who accepted with full knowledge of the facts). — Bills of Exchange Act, p. 21. In London Life Insurance Co. v. Molson's Bank (1904), 3 O. L. R. 238, one Nickold was the assistant superintendent of the London company, as well as the local agent at one of its branches with sole control of the business there. He sent in to the head office a number of applications for life insurance, which, with the exception of five, were on the lives of fictitious persons, and as to these five the insurance had subsequently lapsed, but the company was not informed of this fact. Subsequently Nickold, representing that the insured were dead, and the claims payable under the policies, sent in to the head office claim papers, filling in the names of fictitious claimant, and affixing their alleged signatures thereto. Cheques for the amounts alleged to be due were drawn by the company in favour of the alleged claimants, and payable at a branch of the defendant bank. These cheques were sent to Nickold, whose duty it was to turn them over to the claimants. Nickold upon receipt of the cheques signed the payees' names thereto, and these cheques were in good faith paid by the bank, and the amounts charged to the company's account. In an action by the drawers against the bank it was held that the plaintiffs were not entitled to recover on the ground that the payees were fictitious or non-existing persons although there were real persons of the same name in or near Ottawa. The Ontario Court deemed the case to be governed by Bank of England v. Vagliano, (1891) A. C. 107. In the Vagliano case the bills purported to be drawn by one Vucina, a correspondent of the acceptors, but were entirely the production of one Glyka, a clerk in the service of Vagliano Bros. Glyka fraudulently procured the necessary forms to be printed and filled them up, inserting the name of Vucina, as drawer, and C. Petridi & Co., as payees. A firm of C. Petridi & Co. carried on business at Constantinople and had been the payees of some bills of exchange previously drawn by Vucina upon Vagliano Bros. Vagliano Bros. accepted the bills and made them payable at the Bank of England, where they kept an account, and the Bank of England was requested by the acceptors to pay the bills at maturity. C. Petridi & Co. knew nothing concerning the bills and their name was indorsed on the same by Glyka and they were paid to the persons presenting them at maturity. By accepting the bills Vagliano Bros. were precluded from denying the genuineness of the signature of the drawer. The indorsement of C. Petridi & Co. having been forged the question as to whether the Bank of England was nevertheless authorized to pay the instrument depended solely upon the question whether the payees could under the circumstances be regarded as fictitious or non-existing persons within the meaning of the Act. The English Court of Appeal (Esher, M. R., dissenting) after an elaborate review of the cases decided prior to the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, held that the payees were not fictitious or non-existing persons under the law as it existed prior to the Act and that the Act made no change in this regard. The House of Lords (Lord Bramwell and Lord Field dissenting) reversed the decision of the Court of Appeal. Lord Herschell, in speaking of the view of the Court of Appeal that the section should be interpreted as meaning that the bill may be treated as a bill payable to bearer as against any person who had knowledge of the fact that the payee was fictitious or non-existing, says: "With all respect I am unable to see why it must mean this. I confess I cannot altogether follow the meaning of the words fictitious 'as regards' the acceptor. I have a difficulty in seeing how a payee, who is in fact a 'fictitious' person in the sense in which that word is being used, can be otherwise than fictitious as regard all the world — how such a payee can be 'fictitious' as regards one person and not another. The truth is the words 'as regards' the acceptor are treated as equivalent to the words 'to the knowledge of' the acceptor. But I do not think these expressions are synonymous. It seems to me that to import into the statute after the words 'fictitious person' the words 'as regards' the acceptor or drawer, as the case may be, and then to interpret those words as meaning 'to the knowledge of' only tends to obscure the fact that the condition that the payee must be fictitious to the knowledge of the person sought to be charged as upon a bill payable to bearer is being introduced into the enactment. For the reasons I have given I find myself compelled to the conclusion, notwithstanding my respect for those who have expressed a contrary view, that in order to establish the right to treat a bill as payable to bearer it is enough to prove that the payee is in fact a fictitious person and that it is not necessary if it be sought to charge the acceptor to prove in addition that he was cognizant of the fictitious character of the payee. . . . Whenever the name inserted as that of the payee is so inserted by way of pretence merely without any intention that payment shall only be made in conformity therewith the payee is a fictitious person within the meaning of the statute, whether the name be that of an existing person or of one who has no existence and the bill may in each case be treated by a lawful holder as payable to bearer." In Clutton v. Attenborough & Son, (1897) A. C. 90, the drawer of certain cheques was induced to draw them by the fraudulent certificate made by an employee that certain work had been done or materials supplied by a person named George Brett. The cheques so drawn were taken by the employee and the name of George Brett indorsed thereon. There was no such person as George Brett, nor had any work been done or material supplied. The cheques were paid in ordinary course of business. The House of Lords held that the drawer of the cheques was entitled to recover the amount paid by the drawees. "The statute expressly provides that where the payee is a fictitious or non-existing person the bill (and under the statute a cheque is to be regarded as a bill) may be treated as a bill payable to bearer. These cheques were in favour of a person of the name of Brett. He was fictitious, because that name had been provided by a person who wished to commit a fraud and to appropriate the money of his employer. He knew no person of that name and the person who got the cheques knew no one of that name, and in the language of the statute I think these were therefore cheques in favour of a fictitious person and a non-existing person." The doctrine laid down in the Vagliano case and in Clutton v. Attenborough & Son is somewhat modified by Vinden v. Hughes, (1905) 1 K. B. 795; and Macbeth v. North & South Wales Bank, (1908) 1 K. B. 13; affirmed, (1908) A. C. 137. In the Macbeth case one White, by falsely representing that he had agreed to buy from a man named T. A. Kerr certain shares in a company, induced the plaintiff to give him a cheque payable to T. A. Kerr or order for the purpose of handing the same to Kerr in exchange for the scrip and transfer of the shares. Instead of so doing, White forged Kerr's indorsement to the cheque and paid it into his own account with the defendant bank, which credited him with the amount and obtained payment of the cheque from the drawee. White had in fact never agreed to buy any shares from Kerr, and Kerr did not hold any shares in the particular company. The Court of Appeal (per Lord Alverstone, C. J.) held that under the circumstances Kerr could not be regarded as a fictitious or non-existing person. Lord Alverstone said: "I agree that the question as to a fictitious or non-existing person cannot be answered by simply asking if there is someone who corresponds with the name. The name of some distinguished person might be inserted in a bill, but he might be a fictitious or non-existing person for the purpose of the section we have to consider. . . . It is very important to remember that in Vagliano's case the instrument was a bill of exchange in the ordinary sense of the word, and the point raised was raised by the acceptor. The acceptor of a bill protects the credit of the drawer of the bill. It does not matter in the least to the acceptor who the payee is. When a bill of exchange is presented to a person for acceptance the drawer asks him to honour his signature as drawer and to accept the bill, and the credit of the drawer may be partially protected even though the acceptor does not choose to go the full length of accepting the bill; therefore in dealing with a payee of a bill in the ordinary sense of the word very different considerations from a commercial and mercantile standpoint arise to those which arise when the particular form of a bill of exchange which is called a cheque upon a bank is being dealt with. It is for that purpose that it is so important to see whether in the terms formulated by Lord Herschell the payee designated in the bill is a real person intended by the drawer to receive payment by himself or by some transferee. It is the drawer who selects and inserts the name which is put in the body of the bill as being the payee's name; therefore, if the person who inserted the name in the bill knew that the person was fictitious or non-existent, then the consequences follow that the bill may be treated as against the acceptor (if I may use the expression) as being a bill to bearer with the consequences pointed out in Vagliano's case . . . Applying Lord Herschell's test, we must consider whether in any given case when the drawer of a cheque inserts a payee's name he intends the payee to receive payment by himself or by some transferee from him; in other words, whether he intends that the payee who has to indorse the cheque payable to order shall receive payment. In the present case it is not disputed that so far as the plaintiff Macbeth is concerned there was a real transaction . . . It is not suggested that the plaintiff had the least idea that any one would receive the proceeds of the cheque, except a person named Kerr, an existing person bearing that name, who, by the fraud of White he had been induced to believe, did possess the 5000 shares . . . He did not put in the name of a non-existing person, but he put in the name of a person from whom, as he believed, the shares were coming and to whom alone the money was to go." In City Bank v. Rowan, (1893), 14 L. R. (L.) (N. S. W.) 126; 9 W. N. (N. S. W.) 122, which arose under the corresponding section of the New South Wales Act (identical in phraseology) an action was brought on an overdue promissory note executed by defendants in favour of James Shackell & Co., or order, and purporting to be indorsed by the payee to J. & Co. and by the latter to the plaintiffs, who received it under circumstances which would ordinarily constitute them holders in due course. One W. Shackell, purporting to act on behalf of James Shackell & Co., of Melbourne, sold a lot of wool to defendants, resident in Sydney, and upon delivering to the latter a bogus store warrant for the wool, signed by one Jones, who claimed to be the Sydney representative of James Shackell & Co., received the promissory note in question. There had once been a Melbourne firm of the name of James Shackell & Co., but it had gone out of business, although James Shackell still lived in Melbourne. The signature of James Shackell & Co. on the back of the note was forged and the sole question therefore was whether under the circumstances the instrument could be treated as one payable to bearer. The Court held that the payees were fictitious persons within the Vagliano case, and that the plaintiffs could recover on it as if it were payable to bearer. The Court went on the ground that whenever the name inserted as that of a payee in a bill or note is inserted without any intention that payment shall only be made in conformity therewith, that the payee becomes a fictitious person within the meaning of the Act, and, semble, that a payee is fictitious within the meaning of the Act, though an existing person, if he has no interest in the instrument and no right to indorse it or to be paid upon it. Maclaren doubts this latter test and says that "the test laid down in the Australian case was not the proper one, and the fact that the payees had no interest in the note, and no right to indorse it or to be paid upon it, did not make them fictitious persons". — Bills, notes, and cheques, p. 75. Speaking of the Ontario case Falconbridge says: "In the London Life case there was a real drawer. In the Vagliano case the name of the pretended drawer was forged, but the acceptor was estopped from denying the genuineness of the drawer's signature. In neither case was there any genuine transaction on which the bills could be based. A real difference between the two cases is that in the London Life case the drawer really intended its cheques to be paid to the named payees, while in the Vagliano case the drawer had no intention to pay anyone, his name having been forged . . . It is difficult to reconcile Vinden v. Hughes and Macbeth v. North & South Wales Bank with London Life v. Molsons Bank . . . If the local insurance agent in that case (the Ontario case) had invented names instead of using the names of actual persons who lived in his district, cheques made out in favour of such invented names would have been payable to 'non-existing' persons within the principle of Clutton v. Attenborough. The agent for his own purposes, and doubtless in order to lessen the risk of the company's discovering that the insurances had no real existence, used the names of real persons. Such persons were intended by the drawer to receive payment." — Falconbridge, Banking and bills of exchange, pp. 378, 380. Speaking of the Ontario case Maclaren says: "The company did not know the payees, and so far as there was any intention as to payment of the cheques, the intention was that they should be paid to the beneficiaries in whose names the bogus claims had been made, who were in fact no other than their Ottawa agent, Niblock, masquerading under these various names. The cheques were intended to be paid to the beneficiaries under the various policies, and no such beneficiaries existed. If a bogus claim was made in the name of John Smith pretending to act as the administrator or executor of Thomas Jones, or as the beneficiary named in the policy on the life of Thomas Jones, the fact that there had been a Thomas Jones in or near Ottawa when the policy was issued, and that there was also a John Smith there at the time the cheque for the pretended loss was issued, would surely not make John Smith, the payee, other than a fictitious person when the cheque was issued to him as executor or administrator or beneficiary of Thomas Jones, an office or capacity he never filled or occupied, and when the company had no knowledge of his existence, and only thought of him as the occupant of an office which he never pretended to fill." — Bills, notes, and cheques, p. 75. See also Bank v. the King, (1906), 38 S. C. R. 258. A note payable to a person, deceased when the note was made, may be enforced by his executors. — Grant v. Wilson, (1814), 2 Rev. de Leg. 29. Before the enactment of § 22 a note payable to a "fictitious payee," without words of negotiability, was not negotiable. — Williams v. Noxon, (1853) 10 U. C. Q. B. 259. It has been held under the corresponding section of the Tasmanian Bills of Exchange Act that a note made in favour of a company not in existence at the time the note is made, such fact being known to the maker, may be treated as payable to bearer. — Rutherford C. M. Co. v. Ogier, (1905) Tas. L. R. 156. The corresponding section in the Negotiable Instruments Law in force in most of the American States provides that an instrument is payable to bearer "when it is payable to the order of a fictitious or non-existing person and such fact was known to the person making it so payable." Bill payable to order when. When payable to person or order. 22. A bill is payable to order which is expressed to be so payable, or which is expressed to be payable to a particular person, and does not contain words prohibiting transfer or indicating an intention that it should not be transferable. 2. Where a bill, either originally or by endorsement, is expressed to be payable to the order of a specified person, and not to him or his order, it is nevertheless payable to him or his order, at his option.

Imp. § 8. Before the adoption of this section a bill or note not made payable to "order" or "bearer" was not negotiable. — West v. Brown (1846), 3 U. C. Q. B. 290; Jones v. Whitty, (1859), 9 L. C. R. 191; Banque du Peuple v. Ethier, (1869), 1 Rev. Leg. 47; McCorkill v. Barrabé, (1885), M. L. R. 1 S. C. 319; Mallette v. Sutcliffe, (1894), Q. R. 5 S. C. 430. But this section has changed the law. — Ward v. Bank, (1894), Q. R. 3 Q. B. 122; Bank of British North America v. Warren, (1909), 19 O. L. R. 257. An instrument payable to the payee's order is equivalent to one payable to the payee or his order, and indorsement by the payee is not a condition precedent to presentment and demand by him. — Myers v. Wilkins, (1849), 6 U. C. Q. B. 421.

Payable on demand when. Endorsed when overdue. 23. A bill is payable on demand: a) Which is expressed to be payable on demand or on presentation; or, b) In which no time for payment is expressed. 2. Where a bill is accepted or endorsed when it is overdue, it shall, as regards the acceptor who so accepts, or any endorser who so endorses it, be deemed a bill payable on demand.

Imp. § 10. "The corresponding section of the English Act has in subsection 1, clause (a), the words 'or at sight' after the words 'on demand.' These words were in the Canadian bill as introduced into the House of Commons in 1890, but were struck out in committee. If a bill is not payable on demand, three days of grace are, in every case, where the bill itself does not otherwise provide, added to the time of payment (§ 42). The effect of the Act is that bills payable on presentation are demand drafts and are not entitled to days of grace, but that sight drafts, in accordance with the custom prevailing in this country prior to the Act, are entitled to days of grace. In England bills payable at sight as well as those payable on presentation are demand drafts and not entitled to days of grace." — Falconbridge, Banking and bills of exchange, pp. 383, 384. Presentment is a condition precedent to the liability of one who indorses after maturity. — Davis v. Dunn, (1849), 6 U. C. Q. B. 327. As to when presentment must be made in such a case, see §§ 86 (b), 180.

Determinable future time. Sight. Specified event. 24. A bill is payable at a determinable future time, within the meaning of this Act, which is expressed to be payable: a) At sight or at a fixed period after date or sight; b) On or at a fixed period after the occurrence of a specified event which is certain to happen, though the time of happening is uncertain.

Imp. § 11. The following instrument matures 41 months after date, if not paid 17 months after date, and is therefore sufficiently certain as to time of payment: "Yonge Street, 29th April, 1839. Seventeen months after date, I promise to pay J. H., or order, the sum of £50, without interest; or, 3 years and 5 months after date, with two years' interest, for value received. (Sgd.) M." — Hogg v. Marsh, (1849), 5 U. C. Q. B. 319. A note promising to pay on a stated day, or earlier on demand if the maker should sell certain land, is sufficiently certain as to time of payment. — Elliott v. Beech, (1886), 3 Man. 213. A note promising to pay on a stated day, with a proviso that the payee might at any time declare it due in the event that he deemed himself insecure, is sufficiently certain. — Massey Co. v. Perrin, (1892), 8 Man. 457.

Inland bill defined. Other bills. Presumptions. 25. An inland bill is a bill which is, or on the face of it purports to be: a) Both drawn and payable within Canada; or b) Drawn within Canada upon some person resident therein. 2. Any other bill is a foreign bill. 3. Unless the contrary appears on the face of the bill, the holder may treat it as an inland bill.

Imp. § 4.

Bill or note. Option. 26. Where in a bill drawer and drawee are the same person, or where the drawee is a fictitious person not having capacity to contract, the holder may treat the instrument, at his option, either as a bill of exchange or as a promissory note.

Imp. § 5. Cp. Charlebois v. Montreal, (1898), Q. R. 15 S. C. 96.

Valid bill. Not dated. Statement of value. Statement of place. Irregular date.
27. A bill is not invalid by reason only: a) That it is not dated; b) That it does not specify the value given, or that any value has been given therefor; c) That it does not specify the place where it is drawn or the place where it is payable; d) That it is antedated or postdated, or that it bears date on a Sunday or other non-judicial day.

Imp. §§ 3, 13. The defence of illegality under a statute forbidding or penalizing the transaction of business on Sunday, although available against an immediate party, is not available against a holder in due course. — Houliston v. Parsons, (1852), 9 U. C. Q. B. 681; Crombie v. Overholzer, (1853), 11 U. C. Q. B. 55; Coté v. Lemaieux, (1859), 9 L. C. R. 221; Kearney v. Kinch, (1863), 7 L. C. Jur. 31.

Sum certain. Interest. Instalments. Default. Exchange. Figures and words.
With interest. 28. The sum payable by a bill is a sum certain within the meaning of this Act, although it is required to be paid: a) With interest; b) By stated instalments; c) By stated instalments, with a provision that upon default in payment of any instalment the whole shall become due; d) According to an indicated rate of exchange or according to a rate of exchange to be ascertained as directed by the bill. 2. Where the sum payable is expressed in words and also in figures, and there is a discrepancy between the two, the sum denoted by the words is the amount payable. 3. Where a bill is expressed to be payable with interest, unless the instrument otherwise provides, interest runs from the date of the bill, and if the bill is undated, from the issue thereof.

Imp. § 9. Instalments. — Semble, that an instrument in the form of a note promising to pay £102 "in yearly proportions" is a valid note payable in two annual instalments. — McQueen v. McQueen, (1852), 9 U. C. Q. B. 536. A note payable in instalments matures as to each instalment upon the day it becomes due, and an action for that instalment may be brought immediately. — Clearihue v. Morris, (1820), 2 Rev. de Leg. 30. So the indorser of a note upon which the interest is payable in instalments, is discharged by the failure of the holder to make presentment and give notice of dishonour. — Jennings v. Napanee Brush Co., (1884), 4 C. L. T. 595. And a purchaser of such a note with notice that an instalment of interest is overdue and unpaid, is not a holder in due course. — Moore v. Scott, (1906), 5 West. L. R. 8; s. c. (1907), 5 West. L. R. 381. See Union Investment Co. v. Wells, (1908), 39 S. C. R. 625. See also Berton v. Bank, (1863), 10 N. B. 493.

Exchange. — Before the adoption of subsection 1 (d) it had been held that a bill payable with exchange was not valid. — Palmer v. Fahnestock, (1859), 9 U. C. C. P. 172; Fahnestock v. Palmer, (1860), 20 U. C. Q. B. 307; Nash v. Gibbon, (1860), 9 N. B. 479; Grant v. Young, (1864), 23 U. C. Q. B. 387; Wood v. Young, (1864), 14 U. C. C. P. 250; Saxton v. Stevenson, (1874), 23 U. C. C. P. 503.

Interest. — Interest on a note payable with interest is part of the debt and not damages for detaining the debt. — Crouse v. Park, (1847), 3 U. C. Q. B. 458. Interest at the stipulated rate continues running after, as well as before, maturity. — Howland v. Jennings, (1861), 11 U. C. C. P. 272. Interest on a note payable on demand with interest runs from the date of the note. — Baxter v. Robinson, (1816), 2 Rev. de Leg. 439; Dechantal v. Pominville, (1860), 6 L. C. Jur. 88. See also Heavyside v. Munn, (1817), 2 Rev. de Leg. 439.

True date; presumption. 29. Where a bill or an acceptance, or any endorsement on a bill, is dated, the date shall, unless the contrary is proved, be deemed to be the true date of the drawing, acceptance, or endorsement, as the case may be.

Imp. § 13 (1). See Hays v. David, (1852), 3 L. C. R. 112; Evans v. Cross, (1865), 15 L. C. R. 86. An "I. O. U." bearing date before the commission of an act of bankruptcy by the maker is not per se evidence of the existence of the petitioning creditor's debt before the act of bankruptcy. — Hutchins v. Cohen, (1869), 14 L. C. Jur. 85, 87.

Undated bill payable after date. Inserting wrong date. Liability of holder. 30. Where a bill expressed to be payable at a fixed period after date is issued undated, or where the acceptance of a bill payable at sight or at a fixed period after sight is undated, any holder may insert therein the true date of issue or acceptance, and the bill shall be payable accordingly: Provided that: a) Where the holder in good faith and by mistake inserts a wrong date; and, b) In every other case where a wrong date is inserted; if the bill subsequently comes into the hands of a holder in due course the bill shall not be voided thereby, but shall operate and be payable as if the date so inserted had been the true date.

Imp. § 12. — The date of an undated indorsement may be proved. — Inkiel v. Laforest, (1879), Q. R. 7 Q. B. 456.

Perfecting bill. Authority. 31. Where a simple signature on a blank paper is delivered by the signer in order that it may be converted into a bill, it operates as a prima facie authority to fill it up as a complete bill for any amount, using the signature for that of the drawer or acceptor, or an endorser; and, in like manner, when a bill is wanting in any material particular, the person in possession of it has a prima facie authority to fill up the omission in any way he thinks fit.

Imp. § 20 (1). — A person in possession of an incomplete bill or note prima facie has authority to complete it, e. g., by filling in the blank for the name of the payee or the rate of interest. — Burton v. Goffin, (1897), 5 B. C. 454; British Columbia, etc., Agency v. Ellis, (1898), 6 B. C. 80; Gardner v. Lecker, (1910), 16 Rev. de Leg. (N. S.) 14. Similarly, the person in possession of a blank form for a promissory note signed and delivered by defendant, prima facie has authority to convert the instrument into a note by filling in the blanks as he may see fit. — McInnes v. Milton, (1870), 30 U. C. Q. B. 489.

When to be complete. Reasonable time. 32. In order that any such instrument when completed may be enforceable against any person who became a party thereto prior to its completion, it must be filled up within a reasonable time, and strictly in accordance with the authority given: Provided that if any such instrument, after completion, is negotiated to a holder in due course, it shall be valid and effectual for all purposes in his hands, and he may enforce it as if it had been filled up within a reasonable time and strictly in accordance with the authority given. 2. Reasonable time within the meaning of this section is a question of fact.

Imp. § 20 (2). — If the person in possession of a note, blank as to date and amount, completes it in accordance with the authority actually conferred upon him by the signer, the signer is of course liable to the holder. — Sandford v. Ross, (1841), 6 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 104. If the person in possession of a note indorsed by defendant before it was signed by the maker, secures, in breach of his authority, the signature as maker of a person other than the person directed by the defendant, and issues the note, a purchaser with notice of the fraudulent completion of the note cannot recover upon it. — Rossin v. McCarty, (1849), 7 U. C. Q. B. 100; Hanscome v. Cotton, (1857), 15 U. C. Q. B. 42. Nor can a purchaser after maturity. — Frazer v. Ekstrom, (1899), 6 Terr. L. R. 464. But if the holder is an innocent purchaser before maturity for value and without notice, he may recover notwithstanding the fraudulent completion of the instrument. — Hanscome v. Cotton, supra; Merchants' Bank v. Good, (1890), 6 Man. 339. And this is true even in the case of a note which was simply a blank form when delivered by the maker. — McInnes v. Milton, (1870), 30 U. C. Q. B. 489; Bank of Nova Scotia v. Lepage, (1889), M. L. R. 6 S. C. 321. However, if a signature on a blank piece of paper be delivered, not in order that it may be converted into a bill or note, but for the purpose of indicating the signer's address, or to give as a receipt, the signer is not liable, even to an innocent purchaser before maturity for value and without notice. — Ford v. Auger, (1874), 18 L. C. Jur. 296. See Banque Cartier v. Lescard, (1886), 13 Q. L. R. 39. Nor is one who signs and delivers a blank form for a promissory note for some purpose other than its conversion into a note, liable, in the event of its fraudulent completion, even to a holder in due course. — Hubbert v. Home Bank, (1910), 20 O. L. R. 651; Ray v. Willson, (1911), 19 O. W. R. 470. Nor is one who signs a blank form for a promissory note and delivers it upon condition that in the event of the happening of a certain contingency it may then but not otherwise be converted into a note, liable upon it even to a holder in due course, in case it is fraudulently completed and negotiated before the happening of the contingency. — Hubbert v. Home Bank, supra; Ray v. Willson, supra. In Hubbert v. Home Bank the plaintiff signed, indorsed in blank, and delivered to S. an instrument in the following form:

Oct. 1st 1908.

December 1st. After date I promise to pay to the order of myself

Value received."

The instrument was delivered to S., who was an insurance agent, upon condition that nothing should be done with it until and unless the plaintiff passed the medical examination. The plaintiff never presented himself for examination, but S. fraudulently filled in the blank in the body of the note with the amount, $ 440.50, and the blank for the place of payment with the name of the plaintiff's bank, and negotiated the instrument to the United Empire Bank, a holder in due course. Upon presentment to the plaintiff's bank the instrument was paid. The Court assumed that the note was incomplete when delivered by the plaintiff to S., and held, adopting the reasoning in Smith v. Prosser, (1907) 2 K. B. 735, that the plaintiff could recover the amount paid by the defendant upon the note. The judgment was affirmed by D. C., and the Court of Appeal refused a motion for leave to appeal. Britton, J., said: "The paper in the hands of Stirton must be treated as if 'a simple signature on a blank piece of paper' had been handed by the plaintiff to Stirton. Even if the paper had upon it some writing, so that it appeared as I have before mentioned, it would be harmless. No bank would negotiate such paper, and Stirton had no more right, under sec. 31, to fill in the amount in writing and the place of payment, than to wholly fill up a blank piece of paper with only a signature upon it. It had to be filled up before it could be used, and it was filled up by Stirton. It was not delivered to Stirton in order that it might be converted into a note or negotiated as a note. Sections 31 and 32 of the Canada Bills of Exchange Act are practically the same as sec. 20 of the English Act: (The sections are here copied.) In Smith v. Prosser, (1907) 2 K. B. 735, the language of these two sections has been dealt with and the sections have been construed. In that case the defendant signed his name on two blank lithographed forms of promissory notes, and handed these to one of his two agents, with instructions that they were to remain in the custody of his attorney until the defendant should by telegram or letter give instructions for their issue as notes, and as to the amount for which they should be filled up. After the defendant left, the person to whom defendant had handed the documents, without waiting for instructions from the defendant, and in fraud of the defendant, filled in the blanks and sold them to the plaintiff, 'who took them honestly and in good faith and without notice of the fraud, and gave full value for them.' It was held, 'that, as the defendant handed the notes to his agent as custodian only, and not with the intention that they should be issued as negotiable instruments, he was not estopped from denying the validity of the notes as between himself and the plaintiff, and that the action was not maintainable.' As stated before, I am considering this as if 'a simple signature on a blank piece of paper' was handed by the plaintiff to Stirton. It was, in fact, a form of a promissory note. The plaintiff had written nothing on it, but his signature on the face and again on the back. He will not say that the figures '$ 440.50' and 'Oct. 1st' and 'December 1st', and the word 'myself', may not have been on it when he signed, but that is as far as he will go. It was not given to Stirton that it might be 'converted into a note' or that it might be used or negotiated as a note. The plaintiff signed the paper intending it not as a note but as a promise to pay premium for life insurance in case he submitted himself for, and passed, the necessary medical examination. He did not pass such examination; he did not even see the medical man. Stirton, who held the plaintiff's signature, was immediately notified by the plaintiff, but he, in fraud of the plaintiff, completed the form as a note, and negotiated it with the United Empire Bank. In my opinion, the case cited governs the present case, and, upsetting as that case may be of the opinions of bankers here, as to the true meaning of the sections of the Bank Act referred to, I must follow the authority. I quote from the judgments in that case: Vaughan Williams, L. J., at p. 744: 'In my judgment it is of the very essence of the liability of a person signing a blank instrument that the instrument should have been handed to the person, to whom it was in fact handed, as an agent for the purpose of being used as a negotiable instrument, and with the intention that it should be issued as such'. It seems to me clear that what the plaintiff did was not to give to Stirton a promissory note or a paper that could be converted into a promissory note, or that Stirton would have any right or authority to deal with in any way until he should get that authority after the plaintiff's application for insurance had been accepted." In Smith v. Prosser, (1907) 2 K. B. 735, the defendant signed and delivered an unstamped promissory note blank to T. with instructions to retain it until defendant notified T. and one W., to complete and issue the paper as a note. T. fraudulently completed the note, designating the plaintiff as payee, and issued it to the plaintiff, who paid value and acted in good faith, though he knew that T. had completed the instrument and that T. held it for the use of the defendant. The Court of Appeal held that the plaintiff could not recover, resting its decision not on the fact of the plaintiff's notice of the completion of the instrument by T. but on the ground indicated in Hubbert v. Home Bank. In Ray v. Willson, (1911), 19 O. W. R. 470, 476, the defendant signed and delivered a promissory note blank to T. to be held by him until instructed by the defendant to complete and negotiate it. T., without instructions, completed the instrument, making it payable to himself for $ 1000, and pledged it to the plaintiff, a holder in due course, as collateral security for a personal debt. In holding that the plaintiff could not recover, the Court of Appeal, although noticing the distinction between the facts before it and those in Smith v. Prosser, followed Hubbert v. Home Bank, which was referred to as a case "where the facts were substantially the same as in the present case," in adopting the reasoning in Smith v. Prosser. Mr. Justice Maclaren said: "that Thompson was given no authority to fill up or issue the note unless he, the defendant, on receipt of the bills for the repairs should not have the money to pay them and should so inform Thompson, which brings the case fully, so far as the facts and terms of delivery are concerned, precisely within the case of Smith and Prosser; while in that case it was said that the Act did not apply, on account of the blank promissory note form not being stamped, it was held by the English Court of Appeal that the Act had not in this respect altered the law, and it was followed in our own Courts in Hubbert v. Home Bank, 15 O. W. R. 277, 533, 20 O. L. R. 651, where the facts were substantially the same as in the present case. By section 39 of the Act every contract on a bill is incomplete and revocable until delivery of the instrument in order to give effect thereto. In Smith v. Prosser the Court held that there had been no delivery to give effect to the instrument but that it was delivered to Telfer as a mere custodian until he should receive further instructions, and that it was not delivered in order that it might be converted into a bill so that section 31 would not apply. In the reasons of appeal and before us it was claimed that Smith v. Prosser was not in point because it was subject to what is our section 32 and was not enforceable because not filled up in accordance with the authority, and because Smith was not a holder in due course, as the note was not complete and regular when first shewn to him and he had notice that it was being completed pursuant to a limited authority. This is quite true, but the action was not dismissed on that account, but because it had never been delivered by Prosser to be completed as a bill, and consequently could not become a bill binding upon him. It is argued that here the plaintiff can recover as a holder in due course under the proviso of section 32 which provides that 'if any such instrument after completion is negotiated to a holder in due course, it shall be valid and effectual for all purposes in his hands, and he may enforce it as if it had been filled up within a reasonable time and strictly in accordance with the authority given.' It will be observed that this applies only 'to any such instrument,' that is to such an instrument as is mentioned in section 31, and one which has been delivered by the signer in order that it may be 'converted into a bill,' and does not apply to an instrument like this, delivered merely to be held to a bailee or custodian until further instructions are received from the signer. It is not pretended that such instructions were ever given, so that the instrument never became a note for want of a proper delivery." In each of the above cases Lloyds' Bank v. Cooke, (1907) 1 K. B. 794, was distinguished. In that case the defendant was induced to sign as co-maker with C. a blank promissory note stamp to be completed by C. as a note payable to plaintiff for £250. C. fraudulently completed the instrument by making it payable to the plaintiff for £1000, and issued it for value to the plaintiff who took in good faith and without notice of the completion of the instrument by C. The Court of Appeal held that the defendant was on common law principles estopped from denying his liability on the instrument; and that the plaintiff might recover, even assuming that under § 20, subsection 2, of the Imperial Act, as construed by Herdman v. Wheeler, (1902) 1 K. B. 361, the plaintiff (the payee) was not a holder in due course to whom the instrument had been negotiated after completion. In Herdman v. Wheeler, the defendant had signed and delivered a blank promissory note stamp to A., from whom the defendant had agreed to borrow money, and authorized A. to complete the blank by making it payable to himself for £15. A. fraudulently completed it by making it payable to the plaintiff for £30, and delivered it to plaintiff for value, who took in good faith and without notice of the completion of the instrument by A. The Court held that the plaintiff could not recover because he was the payee and not a holder in due course to whom the instrument had been negotiated under § 20, subsection 2, of the Imperial Act.

Referee in case of need. Option. 33. The drawer of a bill and any endorser may insert therein the name of a person, who shall be called the referee in case of need, to whom the holder may resort in case of need, that is to say, in case the bill is dishonoured by non-acceptance or non-payment. 2. It is in the option of the holder to resort to the referee in case of need or not, as he thinks fit.

Imp. § 15. In Quebec, before the enactment of subsection 2, presentment to the referee in case of need was required. — Civil Code, Art. 2306.

Stipulations limiting or waiving rights. 34. The drawer of a bill, and any endorser, may insert therein an express stipulation: a) Negating or limiting his own liability to the holder; b) Waiving, as regards himself, some or all of the holder's duties.

Imp. § 16. As to the liability of an indorser without recourse, see Dumont v. Williamson, (1866), 2 U. C. L. J. 219, Bank of Ottawa v. Harty, (1906), 12 O. L. R. 218, and § 138. As to the authority in Quebec of the curator of an insolvent indorser to waive proceeding upon dishonor, see Re Boutin, (1897), Q. R. 12 S. C. 186; Denenberg v. Mendelsohn, (1903), Q. R. 23 S. C. 128; Molsons Bank v. Steel, (1903), Q. R. 23 S. C. 316. See note to § 92, infra.

Acceptance and interpretation.

Acceptance defined. Drawee's name wrong. 35. The acceptance of a bill is the signification by the drawee of his assent to the order of the drawer. 2. Where in a bill the drawee is wrongly designated or his name is misspelt, he may accept the bill as therein described, adding, if he thinks fit, his proper signature, or he may accept by his proper signature.

Imp. § 17 (1). The following writing indorsed by the drawee upon a bill payable in instalments upon payment of the first instalment, is an acceptance of the whole bill: "Paid on the within § 741, Aug. 12, 61." — Berton v. Bank, (1863), 10 N. B. 493. The drawee of a bill addressed to a person "as" officer of a corporation is the person named and not the corporation of which he is an officer; and an acceptance written by him on the instrument, since it cannot be the acceptance of the corporation, will be construed to bind him personally even though he add to his signature his official title. — Bank of Montreal v. De Latre, (1848), 5 U. C. Q. B. 362; Foster v. Geddes, (1856), 14 U. C. Q. B. 239; Bank of Montreal v. Smart, (1860), 10 U. C. C. P. 15; Laing v. Taylor, (1876), 26 U. C. C. P. 416; Madden v. Cox, (1880), 5 O. A. R. 473. But see Robertson v. Glass, (1869), 20 U. C. C. P. 250. Similarly, a bill drawn upon, and accepted by, a person "as" executor of a designated estate, binds the executor personally. — Campbell v. Mackay, (1892), 24 N. S. 404. The same rule applies when the drawee is designated by his official title without naming him. — Madden v. Cox, supra. The drawees of a bill drawn upon an unincorporated association by its name are the individuals composing the association, and an acceptance by the officers of the association in their own names "as" officers, binds them but not the other members. — McDougall v. McLean, (1893), 1 Terr. L. R. 30. See Quebec Bank v. Miller, (1885), 3 Man. 17.

Form of acceptance. Mere signature. 36. An acceptance is invalid unless it complies with the following conditions, namely: a) It must be written on the bill and be signed by the drawee; b) It must not express that the drawee will perform his promise by any other means than the payment of money. 2. The mere signature of the drawee written on the bill without additional words is a sufficient acceptance.

Imp. § 17 (2). Although an acceptance must be in writing, a parol offer by one upon whom a bill is about to be drawn to accept it, ripens into an enforceable, though non-negotiable, contract if one within the terms of the offer advances money in reliance upon it. — Dunsbaugh v. Molsons

Bank, (1878), 23 L. C. Jur. 57; Bank of Montreal v. Thomas, (1888), 16 O. R. 503. Cp. Torrance v. Bank, (1873), L. R. 5 P. C. 246, aff'g s. c. 17 L. C. Jur. 185.

Acceptance before completion or when overdue. Acceptance after dishonour. 37. A bill may be accepted: a) Before it has been signed by the drawer, or while otherwise incomplete; b) When it is overdue, or after it has been dishonoured by a previous refusal to accept, or by non-payment. 2. When a bill payable at sight or after sight is dishonoured by non-acceptance, and the drawee subsequently accepts it, the holder, in the absence of any different agreement, is entitled to have the bill accepted as of the date of first presentment to the drawee for acceptance.

Imp. § 18.

Kinds: general, qualified, conditional, partial as to time or as to drawees. Specified place. 38. An acceptance is either: a) General; or b) Qualified. 2. A general acceptance assents without qualification to the order of the drawer. 3. A qualified acceptance in express terms varies the effect of the bill as drawn and in particular, an acceptance is qualified which is: a) Conditional, that is to say, which makes payment by the acceptor dependent on the fulfilment of a condition therein stated; b) Partial, that is to say, an acceptance to pay part only of the amount for which the bill is drawn; c) Qualified as to time; d) The acceptance of some one or more of the drawees, but not of all. 4. An acceptance to pay at a particular specified place is not on that account conditional or qualified.

Imp. § 19. An acceptance to pay "when in funds as a first preference out of the estate," is a conditioned acceptance. — Potters v. Taylor, (1888), 20 N. S. 362. For other instances of such acceptances, see: Dufresne v. Jacques, (1873), 5 Rev. de Leg. 235; McLean v. Shields, (1884), 1 Man. 278; Ontario Bank v. McArthur, (1889), 5 Man. 381. See also Goldstein v. Gillis, (1909), 10 West. L. R. 109. Subsection 4 differs in terms at least from the Imperial Act, § 19 (2) (c), which was copied from Onslow's Act, 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 78. Imperial Act § 19 (2) (c), provides that an acceptance is qualified which is "local, that is to say, an acceptance to pay only at a specified place. An acceptance to pay at a particular place is a general acceptance, unless it expressly states that the bill is to be paid there only and not elsewhere." Russell says: "The precise effect of the Canadian statute may not be easy to determine. It simply states that an acceptance to pay at a particular specified place is not conditional or qualified. It does not say that it might not be a qualified acceptance if the restrictive words were added and it was made payable there only and not elsewhere, but if such an acceptance were meant to be qualified, there would have been no good reason why that effect should not have been brought about by the use of the same words by which it is done in the English statute. This, however, is not a conclusive argument and the question must be considered open." — Russell on Bills, pp. 130—131. But Falconbridge says: "The difference between the English and the Canadian law may be illustrated as follows: 1. The drawee of a bill accepts 'payable at Smith & Co.' his bankers. This is a general acceptance in England (cf. Halstead v. Skelton, 1843, 5 Q. B. 86) and in Canada. 2. The drawee of a bill accepts it 'payable at the Union Bank and not elsewhere', or 'pay only at the Union Bank'. This is a qualified acceptance in England (ibid.), but a general acceptance in Canada." — Falconbridge, Banking and bills of exchange, pp. 414—415. For cases under Upper Canada P. S. 7 Wm. 4, c. 5, a statute copied from Onslow's Act, except that it was drawn to apply not only to bills but also to promissory notes payable at a particular place, —holding presentment of a promissory note payable at a particular place unnecessary in order to charge the maker, see Commercial Bank v. Johnston, (1845), 2 U. C. Q. B. 126; Bank of Upper Canada v. Parsons, (1846), 3 U. C. Q. B. 383. See also Wilson v. Aitkin, (1855), 5 U. C. C. P. 376; Meyer v. Hutchinson, (1858), 16 U. C. Q. B. 476; Hooker v. Leslie, (1868), 27 U. C. Q. B. 295.

When acceptance complete. Proviso. 39. Every contract on a bill, whether it is the drawer's, the acceptor's or an endorser's, is incomplete and revocable, until delivery of the instrument in order to give effect thereto: Provided, that where an acceptance is written on a bill, and the drawee gives notice to, or according to the directions of, the person entitled to the bill that he has accepted it, the acceptance then becomes complete and irrevocable.

Delivery.

Requisites. Presumptions. 40. As between immediate parties, and as regards a remote party, other than a holder in due course, the delivery: a) In order to be effectual must be made either by or under the authority of the party drawing, accepting, or endorsing, as the case may be; b) May be shown to have been conditional or for a special purpose only, and not for the purpose of transferring the property in the bill. 2. If the bill is in the hands of a holder in due course, a valid delivery of the bill by all parties prior to him, so as to make them liable to him, is conclusively presumed.

Imp. § 21. A promissory note may be delivered upon condition, e. g., that it shall be indorsed or signed as maker by a certain person before it shall take effect as an obligation, and in such a case the note is not enforceable until the fulfilment of the condition, by any person not a holder in due course. — Brown v. Howland, (1885), 9 O. R. 48; s. c. (1887), 15 O. A. R. 750; Commercial Bank v. Morrison, (1902), 32 S. C. R. 98. See also Chandler v. Beckwith, (1838), 2 N. B. 423. But see Ontario Bank v. Gibson, (1886), 3 Man. 406; s. c. (1887), 4 Man. 440. Similarly, when the defendant received from X. the plaintiff's cheque drawn to the defendant's order, with knowledge that the cheque was given to X. by the plaintiff for the purpose of being applied on a certain debt owed by X. to the defendant, the cheque must be so applied. — Martin v. Hopkins, (1909), 13 O. W. R. 965. But the payee of an instrument delivered upon condition who takes it as a holder in due course may enforce it notwithstanding the non-fulfilment of the condition. — Ontario Bank v. Young, (1901), 2 O. L. R. 761. A person who, without negligence on his part, and without intention of binding himself upon a promissory note, is induced to sign a note by false representation as to the character of the paper presented to him for signature, is not liable on the instrument even to a holder in due course. — Graham v. Driver, (1910), 17 O. W. R. 60; Home Life Ins. Co. v. Matthews, (1910), 17 O. W. R. 328; Banque Jacques Cartier v. Lescard, (1886), 13 Q. L. R. 39; L'Abbe v. Normandin, (1888), 32 L. C. Jur. 163; Banque Jacques Cartier v. Lalonde, (1901), Q. R. 20 S. C. 43. See also Alloway v. Hrabi, (1904), 14 Man. 627; Darling v. McBurney, (1894), Q. R. 6 S. C. 357.

Parting with possession. 41. Where a bill is no longer in the possession of a party who has signed it as drawer, acceptor, or endorser, a valid and unconditional delivery by him is presumed until the contrary is proved.

Imp. § 21.

Computation of time, non-juridical days and days of grace.

Computation of time. Last day of grace. 42. Where a bill is not payable on demand, three days, called days of grace, are, in every case, where the bill itself does not otherwise provide, added to the time of payment as fixed by the bill, and the bill is due and payable on the last day of grace: Provided that whenever the last day of grace falls on a legal holiday or non-juridical day in the Province where any such bill is payable, then the day next following, not being a legal holiday or non-juridical day in such Province, shall be the last day of grace.

Imp. § 14. Since the maker of a promissory note is not in default until the expiration of the last day of grace, seizure of chattels under a chattel mortgage given to secure a note, on the last day of grace, is premature. — Westaway v. Stewart, (1909), 10 W. L. R. 623. See note to § 95.

Non-juridical days. General. Quebec. Provincial proclamation. 43. In all matters relating to bills of exchange, the following and no other days shall be observed as legal holidays or non-juridical days: a) In all the Provinces of Canada: Sundays, New Year's Day, Good Friday, Easter Monday, Victoria Day, Dominion Day, Labour Day, Christmas Day, The birthday (or the day fixed by proclamation for the celebration of the birthday) of the reigning sovereign, any day appointed by proclamation for a public holiday, or for a general fast, or a general thanksgiving throughout Canada, the day next following New Year's Day, Christmas Day, Victoria Day, Dominion Day, and the birthday of the reigning sovereign when such days respectively fall on Sunday; b) In the province of Quebec in addition to the said days, the Epiphany, the Ascension, All Saints' Day, Conception Day; c) In any of the Provinces of Canada, any day appointed by proclamation of the Lieutenant Governor of such Province for a public holiday, or for a fast or thanksgiving within the same, and any non-juridical day by virtue of a statute of such Province.

Imp. §§ 14, 92.

Time of payment. 44. Where a bill is payable at sight, or at a fixed period after date, after sight, or after the happening of a specified event, the time of payment is determined by excluding the day from which the time is to begin to run and by including the day of payment.

Imp. § 14. A promissory note dated 7th November, 1895, and payable "21st November next", is payable on the 21st November, 1896, and not on the 21st November, 1895. — Drapeau v. Pominville, (1897), Q. R. 11 S. C. 326.

Sight bill. 45. Where a bill is payable at sight or at a fixed period after sight, the time begins to run from the date of the acceptance if the bill is accepted, and from the date of noting or protest if the bill is noted or protested for non-acceptance, or for non-delivery.

Imp. § 14.

Due date. 46. Every bill which is made payable at a month or months after date becomes due on the same numbered day of the month in which it is made payable as the day on which it is dated, unless there is no such day in the month in which it is made payable, in which case it becomes due on the last day of that month, with the addition, in all cases, of the days of grace. 2. The term 'month' in a bill means the calendar month.

Imp. § 14.

Capacity and authority of parties.

Capacity of parties. Corporations. 47. Capacity to incur liability as a party to a bill is coextensive with capacity to contract: Provided that nothing in this section shall enable a corporation to make itself liable as drawer, acceptor, or endorser of a bill, unless it is competent to it so to do under the law for the time being in force relating to such corporation.

Imp. § 22. Capacity to contract is governed by Provincial law. Difficult questions sometimes arise where the law of the place of contract and the law of the domicile of the contracting party conflict. In Quebec such controversies are decided according to the law of the domicile. — Civil Code, Art. 6. In the other Provinces the question must be decided according to the general principles of private international law. There are strong dicta in the English cases to the effect that capacity to enter into any contract is governed by the lex domicilii. — Cp. Sottomayor v. De Barros, (1879), 5 P. D. 94; Cooper v. Cooper, (1888), 13 A. C. 88; Dicey, Conflict of laws, (2d ed.) pp. 534, 538. On the other hand, in a case where the point was raised but not precisely decided (Male v. Roberts, (1799), 3 Esp. 163), Lord Eldon held that capacity to enter into an ordinary mercantile contract was governed by the lex loci celebrationis, and this is the generally accepted view in the United States. — Cp. also In re Soltykoff, (1891), 1 Q. B. 413. The law of the place of performance is immaterial. — Jones v. Dickinson, (1895), Q. R. 7 S. C. 313. Throughout Canada majority is fixed at twenty-one years. In Quebec minors emancipated by marriage or by the court have capacity to bind themselves in respect of acts of administration, and minors engaged in trade may bind themselves on contracts in respect of their business. — Civil Code, Arts. 314—323. Married women have been given extensive powers to bind their separate property in the same manner as if they were unmarried except in Quebec, where, in general, the husband's authorization is required. — Quebec Civil Code, Arts. 176, 296, 986. See further as to capacity, Quebec Civil Code, Arts. 34 (civil death) and 987 (interdiction). The capacity of corporations is discussed in the notes to the various Companies Acts reprinted in this volume.

Effect of disability on holder. 48. Where a bill is drawn or endorsed by a infant, minor, or corporation having no capacity or power to incur liability on a bill, the drawing or endorsement entitles the holder to receive payment of the bill, and to enforce it against any other party thereto.

Imp. § 22. This section complements § 129 (c) and § 133 (b). The maker of a note payable to a corporation may not question the payee's capacity to indorse. — Hammond v. Small, (1858), 16 U. C. Q. B. 371; Merchants Bank v. McLeod, (1910), 14 West. L. R. 461. Nor can the maker of a note payable to a married woman question her capacity to indorse. — McIver v. Dennison, (1859), 18 U. C. Q. B. 619. Cp. Park v. Pullishy, (1911), 16 West. L. R. 467. See notes to § 47, supra.

Forgery. Estoppel. Ratification. Recovery of amount paid on forged cheque. Default of notice. 49. Subject to the provisions of this Act, where a signature on a bill is forged, or placed thereon without the authority of the person whose signature it purports to be, the forged or unauthorized signature is wholly inoperative, and no right to retain the bill or to give a discharge therefor or to enforce payment thereof against any party thereto can be acquired through or under that signature, unless the party against whom it is sought to retain or enforce payment of the bill is precluded from setting up the forgery or want of authority. Provided that: a) Nothing in this section shall affect the ratification of an unauthorized signature not amounting to a forgery; b) If a cheque payable to order is paid by the drawee upon a forged endorsement out of the funds of the drawer, or is so paid and charged to his account, the drawer shall have no right of action against the drawee for the recovery back of the amount so paid, nor any defence to any claim made by the drawee for the amount so paid, as the case may be, unless he gives notice in writing of such forgery to the drawee within one year after he has acquired notice of such forgery. 2. In case of failure by the drawer to give such notice within the said period, such cheque shall be held to have been paid in due course as respects every other party thereto or named therein, who has not previously instituted proceedings for the protection of his rights.

Imp. §§ 24, 60. An indorsement by one not the legal holder of a note, e. g., one in possession under a forged indorsement, is inoperative and transfers no rights in the note even to an innocent purchaser for value before maturity. — Larue v. Evanture, (1866), 2 L. C. L. J. 112. Similarly, an indorsement by the payee of a note after title to the instrument has been vested by operation of law in his assignee in insolvency, is inoperative. — Jenks v. Doran, (1880), 5 O. A. R. 558. One in possession of a cheque under a forged indorsement, who collects it from the drawee bank, is liable to the legal holder for conversion. — Meyers v. Bank, (1909), 13 O. W. R. 533.

Ratification. — Unless a forgery by the alteration or false signing of a bill or note be committed under such circumstances as to lead the person to whom it is altered reasonably to believe that the forger in making the alteration or signature is acting on behalf of the person whose instrument or name is forged, the forgery may not be ratified. — Westloh v. Brown, (1878), 43 U. C. Q. B. 402; Merchants Bank v. Lucas, (1889), 15 O. A. R. 573, aff'd (1890), 18 S. C. R. 704. But the mere fact that the making of the alteration or signature is criminal does not prevent a ratification, if the forgery was committed by one ostensibly acting for the person whose instrument or name was forged. — Scott v. Bank, (1894), 23 S. C. R. 277. In Westloh v. Brown, supra, the maker of a note which had been irregularly indorsed for his accommodation by the defendant, in the presence of the plaintiff, the payee, to whom the note was to be delivered for an advance to the maker, altered the date of payment. The maker did not "profess to act, in making the alteration, for the defendant." It was held that the defendant could not ratify. In Merchants Bank v. Lucas, supra, the manager of the defendants' business forged the signatures of the defendants to a bill of exchange as drawers and indorsers, and discounted the instrument at the defendants' bankers. It was held that the act of the forger in signing the defendants' name to the bill was incapable of ratification. Burton, J. A., said: "Notwithstanding the doubts that have been expressed I take it to be clear, both upon principle and authority, that there can be no ratification of a forged instrument, an essential element in all cases of ratification being wanting, viz., that the act ratified was one assumed or pretended to have been done for or under the authority or the party sought to be charged." (p. 581.) In Scott v. Bank, supra, X. forged the plaintiff's signature on the back of a non-negotiable deposit receipt of the defendant bank payable to plaintiff and received the money due upon it. Three years later the plaintiff upon learning of X.'s misconduct took from him a mortgage to secure his obligation to account to the plaintiff for the money thus misappropriated. Two years later, after X. had absconded, the plaintiff brought action against defendant to recover the amount of the deposit receipt. On the ground that the presentment for payment of the non-negotiable receipt by X. in itself amounted to a representation that he was acting as agent for the plaintiff in demanding and receiving the money, it was held that the taking of security from X. was a ratification by the plaintiff and that he could not recover. The Court said (pp. 281—282): "The receipt was not a negotiable instrument and although the fabricated indorsement might be by statute a forgery yet, even if genuine, it would of itself have constituted no authority to the bank to pay the money to Robinson as being himself entitled to the money as the transferee of the appellant, but the receipt with the appellant's name written on the back was used by Robinson in such a way as to indicate to the bank that he had authority from the appellant to demand payment of the money specified in it; Robinson's conduct was therefore equivalent to a distinct verbal representation of his authority to receive the money and to deal with the receipt as he did. The case before us is therefore the case of a pretended agent obtaining the payment of money belonging to his assumed principal by false representations and pretences as to his authority made to the debtor of the latter. Then I think the law is clear that if the payment of money is obtained from a debtor by one falsely representing to the debtor that he is the agent of his creditor, from whom he in fact has no authority, and thereby a fraud upon the debtor is committed, yet if the creditor afterwards ratifies and confirms the payment so made he thereby adopts the agency of the party who has received the money and it becomes equivalent to a payment made by the debtor to a person having proper authority to receive it. And it makes no difference in the application of this principle that by his false pretences the party receiving the money has committed an indictable offence." For instances of the ratification of unauthorized but not forged signatures see: Morrison v. Spur, (1856), 8 N. B. 288; Ryan v. Terminal Co., (1893), 25 N. S. 131.

Estoppel. — If one, whose signature to a bill or note has been signed without authority or forged, by his conduct or verbal representations leads another reasonably to believe that the signature is genuine or was authorized and to act on that belief to his detriment, the former is estopped from denying the binding effect of the signature. — Pratt v. Drake, (1858), 17 U. C. Q. B. 27; Union Bank v. Farnsworth, (1886), 19 N. S. 82; Merchants Bank v. Lucas, (1889), 15 O. A. R. 573, aff'd (1890), 18 S. C. R. 704; Ewing v. Bank, (1904), 35 S. C. R. 133; Bank of Montreal v. The King, (1906), 38 S. C. R. 258; Pickup v. Bank, (1908), 9 West. L. R. 173; Shaw v. Connell, (1909), 7 East. L. R. 165; Woosnam v. Bank, (1911), 17 West. L. R. 40. See Soc. Perm. de Constr. d'Iberville v. Longtin, (1911), 17 Rev. de Leg. (N. S.) 236. See also Agricultural Association v. Bank, (1881), 6 O. A. R. 192. The Crown, however, may not be estopped by the representation of its officers. — Bank of Montreal v. The King, (1906), 38 S. C. R. 258. The plaintiff's refraining from proceeding against the forger until he has absconded, is a sufficient reliance upon the defendant's representations to estop the defendant. — Pratt v. Drake, supra; Union Bank v. Farnsworth, supra. But if the defendant repudiates the signature before the plaintiff has acted to his prejudice upon the representation as to its validity, e. g., before the forger has absconded, the defendant is not estopped. — Merchants Bank v. Lucas, supra. Nor is the defendant estopped from denying his representations if the plaintiff's reliance has not in fact prejudiced him, e. g., when the plaintiff still has recourse on the bill or note against other solvent parties to it. — Shaw v. Connell, supra. Silence on the part of the defendant when informed by the plaintiff that he holds a note of the defendant's which the defendant knows to be a forgery is a representation of the validity of the signature if the defendant is under a duty to speak; and a business man is under such a duty when notified by a bank that his note falls due at the bank and he is looked to for payment. — Ewing v. Bank, supra; Pickup v. Bank, supra. But see Soc. Perm. de Constr. d'Iberville v. Longtin, supra. In Ewing v. Bank, W. forged the defendants' names as makers to a note for $ 2000 and discounted it at the plaintiff bank at Toronto on August 15. The proceeds were placed to the credit of W. and the defendants received notice from the plaintiff on the 16th that their note fell due at the plaintiff bank on December 17, and that they were looked to for payment. At the close of business on the 16th W. had to his credit at the plaintiff bank $ 1355; at the close of business on the 17th, $ 84. The defendants knew that the note described in the notice was a forgery and at once communicated with W., from whom they received an answer at 6 P. M. of the 16th confirming their knowledge of that fact. The defendants repeatedly urged W. to take up the note but did not notify the bank of the forgery of their signatures until a few days before the maturity of the note. It was held that the defendants' silence on the 16th, i. e., their failure to notify the plaintiff of the forgery by telephone or telegraph on that day, amounted to a representation of the validity of the note, which induced the plaintiff bank to allow that part of the proceeds of the discount remaining on deposit at the close of business on the 16th to be withdrawn by W., and that in consequence the defendants were estopped from denying its validity and were liable to the plaintiff bank for the face value of the note. Killam, J., said (pp. 165—166): "For the reasons so well stated by Mr. Justice Osler the case appears to me to come directly within the principle upon which silence under certain circumstances gives rise to an estoppel. It was not a case in which the defendants had merely learned of the existence of a note on which their signature had been placed without authority, and had cause to apprehend only that some unknown person might possibly advance money without notice of the falsity of the signature, which is the case put in Mr. Bigelow's work. The bank directly notified them that their note would fall due at its office on a certain date and requested them to provide for the same. This distinctly implied that the bank had an interest, either of its own or on behalf of some one else, in the payment of the note and in its genuineness. While there was no intimation that the bank had acquired or was proposing to acquire the note for value, the defendants, as men of business, would know that the bank might have discounted the note and have the proceeds still at the customer's credit, or that it might make advances upon it. They would know that an immediate repudiation would enable the bank to withhold payment of any portion of the proceeds not actually paid out or of any sums not already advanced. They knew that they had made no such note, that they had given no authority for the signature. They could at once repudiate it, and they did so in their telegram to Mr. Wallace. No further information was necessary for that purpose. While the bank manager placed the proceeds to the credit of the customer without inquiry, and took no precaution against their being paid out before he could hear from the defendants, the bank did act upon the defendants' silence in the sense that it did what, it should properly be inferred, it would not have done if the defendants had at once denied the signature; it allowed the balance of the proceeds to be withdrawn." The acknowledgment by a depositor of the correctness of a statement of his account rendered to him by his bank does not estop him from denying the validity of forged cheques charged against his account, if his acknowledgment was procured by the fraud of the clerk who had perpetrated the forgeries. — Bank of Montreal v. The King, (1906), 38 S. C. R. 258. The signing by the plaintiff of the defendant bank's voucher book confirming his account with a forged cheque charged against it, does not by itself amount to a representation that the forged cheque is genuine, if the plaintiff has not examined, or had a reasonable opportunity to examine, the cancelled cheques returned to him at the time he signed the voucher book. — Woosnam v. Bank, (1911), 17 West. L. R. 40. But the payment by the drawee bank of cheques to which the drawer's signature is forged is a representation of their validity; and if the bank to which the payment was made relies upon the representation by allowing its customer to withdraw the proceeds of the forged cheques, the drawee bank is estopped. — Per Davies and Idington, JJ., in Bank of Montreal v. The King, supra.

Recovery of amount paid on forged endorsement. Rights over. Notice of forgery.

50. If a bill bearing a forged or unauthorized endorsement is paid in good faith and in the ordinary course of business, by or on behalf of the drawee or acceptor, the person by whom or on whose behalf such payment is made shall have the right to recover the amount so paid from the person to whom it was so paid or from any endorser who has endorsed the bill subsequently to the forged or unauthorized endorsement if notice of the endorsement being a forged or unauthorized endorsement is given to each such subsequent endorser within the time and in the manner in this section mentioned. 2. Any such person or endorser from whom said amount has been recovered shall have the like right of recovery against any prior endorser subsequent to the forged or unauthorized endorsement. 3. Such notice of the endorsement being a forged or unauthorized endorsement shall be given within a reasonable time after the person seeking to recover the amount has acquired notice that the endorsement is forged or unauthorized, and may be given in the same manner, and if sent by post may be addressed in the same way, as notice of protest or dishonour of a bill may be given or addressed under this Act.

Imp. § 60. For the history of this section, see 4 Journal of the Canadian Bankers Association, 22. See notes to § 49, supra.

Procuration signatures. 51. A signature by procuration operates as notice that the agent has but a limited authority to sign, and the principal is bound by such signature only if the agent in so signing was acting within the actual limits of his authority.

Imp. § 25. When an agent signs a negotiable instrument, whether as drawer, maker, acceptor, or indorser, per procurationem, or per pro; or in any other manner indicating that he is signing for and on behalf of a principal, all persons dealing with the instrument are charged with knowledge either of the contents of the power of attorney under which he is acting or of the actual limits of his authority. — Currier v. Ottawa Gas Co., (1868), 18 U. C. C. P. 202; Banque du Peuple v. Bryant, (1891), 17 Q. L. R. 103, aff'd (1893) A. C. 170; Molson's Bank v. Cooke, (1905), Q. R. 27 S. C. 130; Vigaud v. De Wertheimer, (1909), 6 East. L. R. 173. When a note is signed per pro, proof of the due execution of the power of attorney under which the agent was acting must be made by the plaintiff to entitle him to judgment in an ex parte suit on the note. — Etheir v. Thomas, (1870), 15 L. C. Jur. 225. Even if the signature is not per pro, if the payee knows that the agent who made the signature is acting under a power of attorney he is charged with knowledge of its contents. — St. Jean v. Bank, (1876), 21 L. C. Jur. 207. But the fact that the power of attorney under which an agent making a per pro signature is acting, does not authorize the signature, does not preclude the plaintiff from proving that the agent was in fact authorized to sign. — Cooper v. Blacklock, (1880), 5 O. A. R. 535. But see St. Jean v. Bank, supra. If the power of attorney under which the agent making a per pro signature is acting, restricts the authority of the agent to the indorsing of negotiable instruments for the benefit of a deceased's estate, the executors of which are his principals, one discounting a note indorsed per pro by the agent, for one of the executors, with knowledge that the discount is for his personal benefit, cannot recover on the note against the other executors. — Gore Bank v. Crooks, (1867), 26 U. C. Q. B 251. But if the per pro signature is made under circumstances which apparently bring it within the terms of the power of attorney under which the agent is acting, the bill or note is enforceable against the principal by a holder in due course, even though the signature was in fact a fraud upon the principal. — Bryant v. Bank, (1891), 17 Q. L. R. 78, aff'd, (1893) A. C. 170, 179. In the Privy Council it was said: "The law appears to their Lordships to be very well stated in the Court of Appeal of the State of New York, in President, etc., of the Westfield Bank v. Cornen, (37 N. Y. 320), cited by Andrews, J., in his judgment in another case brought by the Quebec bank against the company. The passage referred to is as follows: 'Whenever the very act of the agent is authorized by the terms of the power, that is, whenever by comparing the act done by the agent with the words of the power, the act is in itself warranted by the terms used, such act is binding on the constituent, as to all persons dealing in good faith with the agent; such persons are not bound to inquire into facts aliunde. The apparent authority is the real authority.'" See also Banque d'Hochelaga v. Jodoin, (1895) A. C. 612. Though the purchaser of a note signed for the maker per pro cannot recover upon it because of his constructive knowledge that the agent has exceeded the actual limits of his authority, he may recover against the maker, the principal, in an action for money had and received, if the proceeds of the note were in fact applied by the purchaser to the use of the maker. — Molsons' Bank v. Brockville, (1880), 31 U. C. C. P. 174. However, if an agent beyond the scope of his authority indorses per pro an accepted cheque payable to his principal and receives the proceeds from the bank on which the cheque was drawn, the payment by the agent of the proceeds thus wrongfully acquired to the principal on account of his debt to the principal, does not preclude the principal from recovering on the cheque against the bank. Semble, such a payment does not constitute an application by the bank of the proceeds to the use of the principal, and the latter, having received the money innocently and for value, may retain it. — Canadian Pacific Ry. Co. v. Bank, (1908), 5 East. L. R. 569.

Signing in representative capacity. Rule for determining capacity. 52. Where a person signs a bill as drawer, endorser, or acceptor, and adds words to his signature indicating that he signs for or on behalf of a principal, or in a representative character, he is not personally liable thereon; but the mere addition to his signature of words describing him as an agent, or as filling a representative character, does not exempt him from personal liability. 2. In determining whether a signature on a bill is that of the principal or that of the agent by whose hand it is written, the construction most favourable to the validity of the instrument shall be adopted.

Imp. § 26. A bill signed "J. McC. and Bros., Agts.," and delivered by that firm as agents for an undisclosed principal to the plaintiff, the payee, is a bill of which J. McC. & Bros. are the drawers. — Reid v. McChesney, (1858), 8 U. C. C. P. 15. A note signed "J., Attorney," and delivered to the plaintiff on account of a debt owed by J.'s principals, is the note of J. — Hamilton v. Jones, (1896), Q. R. 10 S. C. 496. So a cheque the drawer of which appended to his signature the words "In trust", is the cheque of him who signed as drawer. — Royal Bank v. Douglas, (1908), 14 Rev. de Leg. (N. S.) 132. Cp. Brown v. Howland, (1885), 9 O. R. 48, aff'd, (1887), 15 O. A. R. 750. A note reading "We promise," signed G. H. C., Pres. Gr. Tel. Co." and "F. A. W., Sec'y Gr. T. Tel. Co.," and bearing the corporate seal of the company, of the circumstances surrounding the inception of which there was no evidence, is not the note of G. H. C. and F. A. W. Semble, that is the note of the company. — City Bank v. Cheney, (1857), 15

U. C. Q. B. 400. Cp. Union Bank of Canada v. Cross, (1909), 12 West. L. R. 539, 544, 545. A note reading "I promise," etc., "value received by the O. F. Ins. Co." and signed "C. H. G., Sec'y O. F. Co.," which appears to have been delivered on the understanding that the company only was to be liable upon it, of which understanding, the plaintiff, a purchaser after maturity, had constructive notice, is the note of C. H. G. — Armour v. Gates, (1858), 8 U. C. C. P. 548. A bill of exchange with the marginal heading "No. 9. — N. & D. Rs. Ry. Co." and signed "W. L. S., Sec'y of the N. & D. Rs. Ry. Co.," which appears to have been delivered to the payee on account of a debt of the company, of which circumstance, however, the plaintiff, an indorser, had no knowledge, and which was not executed in the statutory form prescribed for the execution by the company of negotiable instruments, is a bill of which W. L. S. is the drawer. — Bank of Montreal v. Smart, (1860), 10 U. C. C. P. 15. A bill of exchange drawn by an insurance company, ordering the payment of $ 875 being payment in full of his claim under Policy No. 71,514," and signed by "A. S., Inspector," which appears from the evidence of the circumstances surrounding its inception to have been delivered and accepted by the plaintiff, the payee, as the instrument of the insurance company, is a bill of which A. S. is the drawer. Semble, that had there been an express collateral agreement between the plaintiff and A. S., that the latter should not be held liable, such an agreement would not be an equitable defence. — Hagarty v. Squier, (1877), 42 U. C. Q. B. 165. A note reading "we promise" and signed "W. D. R., Man. O. T. L. Co.," which appears from evidence of the circumstances surrounding its inception, known to the plaintiff, an indorser, to have been delivered for and accepted as the obligation of the O. T. L. Co., is the note of the members of that association or partnership. Query, whether it might not also be treated as the note of W. D. R. — Fairchild v. Ferguson, (1892), 21 S. C. R. 484. A note reading "we promise" and signed "A. G. E., Pres. G. P. Co." and issued under circumstances similar to those in Fairchild v. Ferguson, supra, is the note of the G. P. Co. — Canada Paper Co., v. Gazette Pub. Co., (1893), 32 N. B. 689. Contra, Canada Pub. Co. v. Gazette Pub. Co. (1893), 32 N. B. 685, overruled. A note reading "we promise" and signed "A. B. Co. Ltd.," "W. M. C., Mgr." and "F. C. E." which appears from evidence of the circumstances surrounding its inception to have been delivered to the plaintiff, the payee, as the joint and several note of the company, W. M. C., and F. C. E., is the joint and several note of those three parties, whether the face of the note alone be regarded or the instrument be construed in the light of the extrinsic evidence. Query, as to whether extrinsic evidence may be looked to in determining the effect of the note. — Union Bank v. Cross, (1909), 12 West. L. R. 539. The signature "Eastwood & Co., per J. Eastwood, Jr.," indorsed on a note, imports that J. E. signed for the firm and not as one of the firm. — Dowling v. Eastwood, (1846), 3 U. C. Q. B. 376. The signature "J. M. B., agents of the executors of the late E.," indorsed on a note, is sufficient in form to bind the executors as indorsers. — Pres., etc., Gore Bank v. Crooks, (1867), 26 U. C. Q. B. 251. Cp. cases in note to § 35, supra.

Consideration.

Valuable. Sufficiency. Antecedent debt. Form of bill. 53. Valuable consideration for a bill may be constituted by: a) Any consideration sufficient to support a simple contract; b) An antecedent debt or liability. 2. Such a debt or liability is deemed valuable consideration, whether the bill is payable on demand or at a future time.

Imp. § 27. Consideration. — A note delivered by the maker to the payee as a gift is generally assumed to be unenforceable by the payee because of the absence of consideration. — Poulton v. Dalnidge, (1850), 6 U. C. Q. B. 277; McCarroll v. Reardon, (1859), 9 N. B. 261; Baker v. Read, (1868), 7 N. S. 199; Thomas v. McLeod, (1869), 12 N. B. 588; Re Williams, (1896), 27 O. R. 405. But see Hammond v. Small, (1858), 16 U. C. Q. B. 371, 377; Colville v. Flanagan, (1864), 8 L. C. Jur. 225; Molleur v. Roy, (1887), 31 L. C. Jur. 99. A note not intended as a gift and based on no consideration is not enforceable by the payee against the maker. — Forsyth v. Forsyth, (1880), 13 N. S. 380; Cossitt v. Cook, (1884), 17 N. S. 84; Ryan v. McKerral, (1888), 15 O. R. 460. A note delivered by the maker to the payee not as a gift but in exchange for a forbearance which it is erroneously believed the promisee is entitled to withhold, or for a promise believed to be binding, or for a void obligation which is believed to be valid, is not, because of the mistake, enforceable by the payee. — Ireland v. Guess, (1846), 3 U. C. Q. B. 220; Black v. Gesner, (1847), 3 N. S. 157; City v. Lucas, (1857), 8 N. B. 583; McDaniel v. McMillan, (1876), 11 N. S. 405; Riel v. McEwen, (1881), Rams. App. 82; Assurance Co. v. Le May, (1896), Q. R. 12 S. C. 232. So a note delivered by a debtor through mistake to a person not his creditor, e. g., to a new firm instead of to the old firm to which he was indebted, is not, because of the mistake, enforceable. — Henault v. Thomas, (1868), 1 Rev. Leg. 706. But bills of exchange and promissory notes given for an act, forbearance, or promise which would be a sufficient consideration to support a parol promise are enforceable by the payee against the maker, acceptor, or drawer. Thus, the personal note of an officer of an insurance company delivered to the payee in exchange for the surrender and cancellation of the latter's policy of insurance, is enforceable by the payee. — Armour v. Gates, (1859), 8 U. C. C. P. 548. A note delivered by the maker to the payee to indemnify the latter upon his becoming a surety for the maker is enforceable by the payee. — Perry v. Milne, (1861), 5 L. C. Jur. 121. A note delivered by the maker to the payee for the latter's forbearance or promise of forbearance from a suit is enforceable by the payee. — Lyons v. Donkin, (1891), 23 N. S. 258; Creelman v. Stewart, (1896), 28 N. S. 185;

McGregor v. McKenzie, (1897), 30 N. S. 214. A note delivered by the maker to the payee in exchange for the latter's promise to pay money to a third person on account of the maker, is enforceable by the payee. — Ruffee v. Shaw, (1901), 7 East. L. R. 17. A note delivered by the maker to the payee in extinguishment of the former's liability to the latter, whether in tort or in contract, is enforceable by the payee. — Hubley v. Morash, (1894), 27 N. S. 281; Ruffee v. Shaw, supra. An indorsement for the maker's accommodation given in exchange for the payee's advancing money to the maker by way of overdraft, or the payee's discounting of the paper of third persons, is enforceable by the payee. — Cox v. Bank, (1911), 16 West. L. R. 512; Knechtel Co. v. Ideal Co., (1909), 11 West. L. R. 344. As in the case of a parol promise, a note delivered to the payee on account of a debt of the maker's barred by a discharge in bankruptcy or the statute of limitations, is said to be based upon a moral consideration and is enforceable by the payee. — Austin v. Gordon, (1872), 32 U. C. Q. B. 621; Wright v. Wright, (1876), 6 O. P. R. 295. Again, as in the case of so-called subscription contracts, a note delivered by the maker to the payee, the treasurer of a committee which was soliciting subscriptions to raise a fund to support a bishop, is, it seems, enforceable by the payee. — Hammond v. Small, (1858), 16 U. C. Q. B. 371. And a note delivered by the maker to the payee as part of a family settlement or arrangement is enforceable by the payee. — Power v. Power, (1909), 6 East. L. R. 498. Semble, that a note delivered by the maker to the payee for a forbearance on the part of the payee from suing the maker on a cause of action honestly believed to exist, whether or not the cause of action exists or the belief in its existence is reasonable, is enforceable by the payee. — Power v. Power, supra. A bill, note, or cheque drawn or indorsed by a debtor and received by his creditor on account of a pre-existing debt then due operates as conditional payment of the debt unless by agreement it is received in absolute payment or extinguishment. — Carruthers v. Ardagh (1873), 20 Grant, 579; Jones v. Lemesurier, (1840), 2 Rev. de Leg. 317; Beaudoin v. Dalmasse, (1857), 7 L. C. R. 47; Brown v. Mailloux, (1859), 9 L. C. R. 252; Noad v. Bouchard, (1860), 10 L. C. R. 476; Noad v. Lampson, (1860), 11 L. C. R. 29; Rogers v. Morris, (1869), 13 L. C. Jur. 20; Richard v. Boisvert, (1871), 3 Rev. Leg. 7; Watts v. Robinson, (1872), 32 U. C. Q. B. 362; Mercier v. Bousquet, (1874), 5 Rev. Leg. 352; Hughes v. Canada, etc. Society, (1876), 39 U. C. Q. B. 221; Murray v. Gastonguay, (1880), 13 N. S. 319; In re Ives, (1887), 7 C. L. T. 146; Kingsey Falls v. Quesnel, (1888), 19 Rev. Leg. 470; Stephenson v. Miller, (1888), 27 N. B. 42; Landry v. Beauchamp, (1890), 13 Leg. News, 169; Pelletier v. Raymond, (1894), 1 Rev. de Jur. 13; Patterson v. The suspension of the payee's rights on the debt, which results when the note is received in conditional payment of it, is said to be the consideration for a note so delivered, and the payee may enforce it against the maker. — Bank v. Bartlett, (1862), 12 U. C. C. P. 238; Gates v. Crooks, (1831) Dra. 446; See also Gooderham v. Hutchison, (1855), 5 U. C. C. P. 241; Hillis v. Templeton, (1861), 7 U. C. L. J. 301; Evans v. Morley, (1862), 21 U. C. Q. B. 547. But see Fiske v. Meehan, (1876), 40 U. C. Q. B. 146, 156. A note delivered by the maker to the payee on account of a pre-existing debt of a third person to the payee which matures before the debt becomes due, in the absence of an express agreement to forbear suit on the debt, is said not to be given for a consideration and is not enforceable by the payee. — McGillivray v. Keefer, (1847), 4 U. C. Q. B. 456. Contra, Dickenson v. Clemow, (1850) 7 U. C. Q. B. 421; Blake v. Walsh, (1870), 29 U. C. Q. B. 541, 547. Semble, a demand note delivered by the maker to the payee on account of a pre-existing debt of a third person then due to the payee, in the absence of an express agreement to forbear, is for the same reason held not to be enforceable by the payee. — Merchants' Bank v. Robinson, (1879), 8 O. P. R. 117. Cp. Lemieux v. Bourassa, (1881), 1 Dorion, 305. As to the necessity of a consideration for a bill or note in Quebec, Maclaren says: "In the French law the word 'cause,' which takes the place of the English 'consideration,' has a wider meaning, and includes natural or moral obligations: Pothier on Obligations, Nos. 42, 43; Code Napoleon, Arts. 1108, 1131; 16 Laurent, 107—111; 24 Demolombe, p. 329. A mere moral obligation is not a sufficient consideration for a bill or note in England: Eastwood v. Kenyon, 11 A. & E. 438 (1840); but may be in Quebec: Lockerby v. O'Hara, M. L. R. 7 S. C. 35 (1890); Bédard v. Chaput, Q. R. 15 S. C. 572 (1899); Brulé v. Brulé, Q. R. 26 S. C. 17 (1904). The meaning of 'sans cause' seems in the French law to be confined to what in English law would be called total failure of consideration as distinguished from mere absence of consideration: 16 Laurent, 111—119; 24 Demolombe, p. 342. The Civil Code of Lower Canada has introduced the English 'consideration' as a synonym for the French 'cause.' One of the requisites to the validity of a contract is, 'a lawful cause or consideration': C. C. Art. 984. 'A contract without a consideration or with an unlawful consideration has no effect': C. C. Art. 989. The Privy Council has held in a case from Quebec that there is no difference between French law and English law as to the necessity for a valuable consideration for the validity of a contract: McGreevy v. Russell, 56 L. T. N. S. 501 (1887)." — Maclaren, Bills, notes, and cheques, pp. 164—165.

Failure of consideration. — A complete failure of consideration is a defence against a plaintiff not a holder in due course. — Gamsby v. Chapman, (1862), 13 L. C. R. 239; Marchand v. Wilkes, (1880) 3 Leg. News, 318; Almour v. Cable, (1886), Rams. App. 87; Bullion Co. v. Cartwright, (1905), 5 O. W. R. 522, s. c. 6 O. W. R. 505; Davis v. Reynolds, (1909), 11 West. L. R. 288. See also Merchants' Bank v. Thompson (1911), 18 O. W. R. 582. As to partial failure of consideration, Maclaren says: "When the consideration for a note has only partially failed, the question as to how far it may be set up as a defence, is largely a question of pleading. Formerly it would not be allowed in England or Provinces where the old English rules of pleading were followed. Now in England and Ontario it may be set up as a defence pro tanto as between the original parties, or between those who are in the same position, provided the failure be for a definite sum clearly ascertained." — Maclaren, Bills, notes and cheques, p. 173, citing O'Brien v. Ficht, (1859), 18 U. C. Q. B. 241; Lalonde v. Rolland, (1864), 10 L. C. Jur. 321; Fisher v. Archibald, (1871), 8 N. S. 298; Barber v. Morton, (1882), 7 O. A. R. 114; Star Co., v. Greenwood, (1884), 5 O. R. 28. See also Laprés v. Massé, (1901), Q. R. 19 S. C. 275; Topping v. Marling, (1910), 13 West. L. R. 319. See also Rennie v. Jarris, (1850), 6 U. C. Q. B. 329.

Value. — The value which must be parted with by the indorsee or bearer of a bill of exchange or promissory note in order to constitute him a holder for value, is defined by § 2, supra, to mean valuable consideration. For examples of what is a consideration, see supra. The making of a note for accommodation constitutes the accommodation maker the holder for value of bills or notes transferred to him upon his making the accommodation note as collateral security for his right to indemnity against the person for whose accommodation he signed. — Wood v. Shaw, (1858), 3 L. C. Jur. 169. A bank which credits to his account the face value of a cheque deposited by a customer whose account is overdrawn, is a holder for value of the cheque so deposited, and may recover against the drawer, who drew for the customer's accommodation, the face of the cheque, although the cheque is for double the amount of the overdraft. Query, whether in equity the accommodation drawer may not be entitled to recover back from the bank, the difference between the face of the cheque and the amount of the overdraft. — Bank v. Warren, (1909), 19 O. L. R. 257. But a bank which receives a note for collection is not a holder for value of it. — Bank v. McComb, (1911), 16 West. L. R. 204. One to whom a note payable after date is transferred by the holder in conditional payment of the latter's pre-existing debt is a holder for value of the instrument. — Gooderham v. Hutchison, (1855), 5 U. C. C. P. 241; Hillis v. Templeton, (1861), 7 U. C. L. J. 301; Evans v. Morley, (1862), 21 U. C. Q. B. 547. Cp. Greenwood v. Perry, (1869), 19 U. C. C. P. 403. And one to whom a note payable after date is transferred by the holder as collateral security for a pre-existing debt of the latter's then due, is a holder for value of the note. — Canadian Bank v. Gurley, (1880), 30 U. C. C. P. 583; Blake v. Walsh, (1870), 29 U. C. Q. B. 541. Contra, Cox v. Canadian Bank, (1911), 16 West. L. R. 512, semble. But one to whom a note is transferred by the holder as collateral security for a pre-existing debt of the latter's not yet due, is not a holder for value of the note. — Canadian Bank v. Wait, (1907), 7 West. L. R. 255. See also Johnson v. Macrae, (1911), 17 West. L. R. 132. Contra, Blake v. Walsh, (1870), 29 U. C. Q. B. 541, 547, semble. Cp. Bank v. McComb, (1911), 16 West. L. R. 204.

Holder for value. In case of lien. 54. Where value has, at any time, been given for a bill, the holder is deemed to be a holder for value as regards the acceptor and all parties to the bill who became parties prior to such time. 2. Where the holder of a bill has a lien on it, arising either from contract or by implication of law, he is deemed to be a holder for value to the extent of the sum for which he has a lien.

Imp. § 27. One to whom bills or notes are transferred as collateral security is a holder for value. — Canadian Bank v. Gurley, (1880), 30 U. C. C. P. 583; Blake v. Walsh, (1870), 29 U. C. Q. B. 541. See also Exchange Bank v. Normand, (1884), 13 Rev. de Leg. 59. But, in order to avoid circuity of action, one who takes as collateral security from the payee a note made for the latter's accommodation may recover from the maker only the amount of the debt for which he holds the note as security. — Strathy v. Nicholls, (1844), 1 U. C. Q. B. 32. Contra, Muir v. Cameron, (1852), 10 U. C. Q. B. 356, semble. Cp. Bank v. Warren, (1909), 19 O. L. R. 257, 266. However, the holder of a note who has parted with no value is entitled to recover the full amount due upon the instrument if his transferrer or any prior holder was a holder for value. — Wood v. Ross, (1859), 8 U. C. C. P. 299. See also Muir v. Cameron, (1852), 10 U. C. Q. B. 356; Miller v. Ferrier, (1850), 7 U. C. Q. B. 540. Consequently, if the pledgor was a holder for value, the pledgee, whatever the amount of the debt for which he holds the instrument as security may be, may recover the full amount due upon it, holding the balance over and above that necessary to pay the debt, as trustee for the pledgor. — Russell on Bills, pp. 193, 194; Maclaren, Bills, notes and cheques, p. 176; Merchant's Bank v. Thompson, (1910), 16 O. W. R. 770, rvd. on another point, (1911), 18 O. W. R. 582. See also Hutchins v. Cohen, (1869), 14 L. C. Jur. 85; Canadian Bank v. Woodward, (1883), 8 O. A. R. 347; Vezina v. Maltais, (1904), 10 Rev. de Jur. 301; Wade v. Livingston, (1909), 13 O. W. R. 708, s. c. (1910), 15 O. W. R. 224, (1909) 14 O. W. R. 549.

Accommodation bill. Liability of party. 55. An accommodation party to a bill is a person who has signed a bill as drawer, acceptor, or endorser, without receiving value therefor, and for the purpose of lending his name to some other person. 2. An accommodation party is liable on the bill to a holder for value; and it is immaterial whether, when such holder took the bill, he knew such party to be an accommodation party or not.

Imp. § 28. An acceptance, drawing, making, or indorsement of a bill or note is for "accommodation" when the acceptor, drawer, maker, or indorser has a right to be indemnified in respect of the liability he has assumed upon the instrument. The definition contained in this section is erroneous and misleading, since an accommodation party always receives a consideration or value for entering into his obligation on the bill or note in the promise of the accommodated party to indemnify him. Furthermore, this section seems unwittingly to have effected an unfortunate and apparently unforeseen change in the law, by restricting recovery against an accommodation party to a holder for value. For obvious reasons, if the holder is the person bound to indemnify, he may not maintain an action on the bill or note against the party whom he is bound to indemnify. But if the holder is not the indemnifier, he could at least before the enactment of this section recover on the instrument even though he was not a holder for value. Thus, if M. made and delivered his note to P. in exchange for A.'s promise to indemnify M., the latter, having received A.'s promise of indemnity as consideration for the making of the note, was held liable to P., although P. was not a holder for value. — Muir v. Cameron, (1852), 10 U. C. Q. B. 356; Miller v. Ferrier, (1850), 7 U. C. Q. B. 540. See also Mair v. McLean, (1841), 1 U. C. Q. B. 455. It is true that if the party accommodated diverts the bill or note from the purpose for which it was executed and delivered to him, such a breach of trust will be a defence to the accommodation party against a holder not a holder in due course, or even will entitle him to recover the instrument from one not a holder in due course. — Cox v. Canadian Bank, (1911), 16 West. L. R. 512. But in such a case it is the diversion, or breach of trust, which constitutes the defence and not the fact per se that the instrument was signed for accommodation. Thus, notice of the accommodation character of the instrument is not notice of a "defence" and does not deprive a holder of the position of a holder in due course and the right to recover against the accommodation party. — Miller v. Ferrier, (1850), 7 U. C. Q. B. 540; Elder v. Kelly, (1850), 8 U. C. Q. B. 240; Beique v. Bury, (1880), 3 Leg. News, 160; Scott v. Quebec, (1884), 7 Leg. News, 343. And the allegation or proof by the defendant of the fact that he signed for accommodation does not, as in the case of a "defence," oblige the plaintiff to allege or prove that he is a holder in due course. — Miller v. Ferrier, supra; Muir v. Cameron, (1852), 10 U. C. Q. B. 356; Merchant's Bank v. Coal Co., (1894), 16 O. P. R. 87. An accommodation party is liable to the holder in accordance with the nature of the obligation assumed by him in becoming a party to the bill or note, whether the obligation is that of acceptor, maker, drawer, or indorser. Thus, if he is an indorser or drawer his obligation, like that of any indorser or drawer, is conditional upon due presentment and proceedings upon dishonour; but if he is a maker or acceptor, he is not entitled to presentment and notice of dishonour. — Gardner v. Shaver, (1893), 13 C. L. T. 287; Wilson v. Brown, (1881), 6 O. A. R. 87. But see Hough v. Kennedy, (1910), 13 West. L. R. 674. However, an accommodation party is a surety for the party accommodated, and is entitled to the defences of a surety as against a holder who has notice, whether the holder had notice at the time of the negotiation of the bill or note to him or received it subsequent to the transfer. — Allison v. McDonald, (1894), 23 S. C. R. 635. Contra, City Bank v. Murdock, (1861), 11 U. C. C. P. 138. Thus, an accommodation party, like other sureties, is discharged by a contract between his principal, the accommodated party, and the holder, extending the time of payment. — Bank v. Ockermann, (1865), 15 U. C. C. P. 363; Devanney v. Brownlee, (1883), 8 O. A. R. 355; Healey v. Dolson, (1885), 8 O. R. 691; O'Brien v. Semple, (1887), M. L. R. 3 Q. B. 55; Ryan v. McKerrall, (1888), 15 O. R. 460; Bank v. McKay, (1888), 15 S. C. R. 672; Le Jeune v. Sparrow, (1893), 1 Terr. L. R. 384; Leet v. Blumenthal, (1898), Q. R. 13 S. C. 250; Bank v. Arnoldi, (1901), 2 O. L. R. 624; Wade v. Livingston, (1909), 13 O. W. R. 708, s. c. (1909), 14 O. W. R. 549, (1910), 15 O. W. R. 224. See also Lytell v. Foell, (1909), 13 O. W. R. 738; Edwards v. Stone, (1909), 14 O. W. R. 644. But an extension of time voluntarily given, i. e., indulgence or delay, by the holder, does not discharge the accommodation party. — Thompson v. McDonald, (1858), 17 U. C. Q. B. 304; Wilson v. Brown, (1881), 6 O. A. R. 87; Fleming v. McLeod, (1907), 39 S. C. R. 290; Anthes v. Stoltz, (1908), 12 O. W. R. 549; Sovereign v. Thompson, (1909), 14 O. W. R. 387. Nor does a contract for an extension of time between the holder and a third person, not the party accommodated, discharge the accommodation party. — Hough v. Kennedy, (1910), 13 West. L. R. 674. But, if the contract between the accommodated party and the holder reserves the latter's rights against the accommodation party, he is not discharged. — Bank v. Jardine, (1859), 9 U. C. C. P. 332; Canadian Bank v. Northwood, (1887), 14 O. R. 207; Sovereign v. Thompson, supra. Furthermore, as in the case of other sureties, a release of the principal, the accommodated party, by the holder, or a surrender by the holder of collateral security, e. g., the release of a mortgage, discharges the accommodation party. — City Bank v. Murdock, (1861), 11 U. C. C. P. 138. semble; Allison v. McDonald, (1894), 23 S. C. R. 635. But the exchange by the holder of worthless collateral security for other collateral which proves to be worthless, since it does not prejudice, does not discharge the accommodation party. — Wade v. Livingston, supra. Although an accommodation maker is not entitled to notice of dishonour, it has been held that as a surety, if a failure to notify him of his principal's default operates to his prejudice, he is discharged. — Hough v. Kennedy, (1910), 13 West. L. R. 674. Contra, Wilson v. Brown, (1881), 6 O. A. R. 87. See Gardner v. Shaver, (1893), 13 C. L. T. 287. The holder's entering into a composition with the accommodated party and his creditors and accepting in full satisfaction less than the amount due upon the bill or note does not discharge the accommodation party. — Lyman v. Dyon, (1868), 13 L. C. Jur. 160. An accommodation party is entitled to the rights, as well as the defences, of a surety. He may maintain an action for indemnity against his principal, the accommodated party. — Cullen v. Bryson, (1892), Q. R. 2 S. C. 36; Farrow v. McPherson, (1910), 16 O. W. R. 1009, semble. And if the holder refuses and neglects to enforce a note against the accommodated maker, the accommodation indorser may maintain a bill for exoneration against them. — Cunningham v. Lyster, (1867), 13 Grant, 575. Presumptively a bill or note is business and not accommodation paper. — Mair v. McLean, (1841), 1 U. C. Q. B. 455; Morehouse v. Burland, (1875), Ram. App. 280; Packer v. Fuller, (1877), Ram. App. 281; Rousseau v. Nadeau, (1909) Q. R. 19 K. B. 97. As between themselves, when there are several accommodation parties, they are liable according to the order of liability ordinarily imposed upon other parties signing in the same capacities. Thus, if A. makes and B. indorses a note for the accommodation of a third person, A as between himself and B. is ultimately liable to pay the note; for although A. and B. are sureties for the accommodated parties, they are not co-sureties, but B. is surety for A. — Hobbrecker v. Sanders, (1909), 6 East. L. R. 567. Similarly, two or more accommodation indorsers are, as between themselves, liable in the order in which they indorse. But accommodation parties may fix by collateral agreement between themselves the order of their liability as respects one another. Such an agreement, however, has no effect upon the holder's right upon the bill or note, even though he purchased with notice of it. See note to § 65.

Holder in due course. Notice. Good faith. Title defective. 56. A holder in due course is a holder who has taken a bill, complete and regular on the face of it, under the following conditions, namely: a) That he became the holder of it before it was overdue and without notice that it had been previously dishonoured, if such was the fact; b) That he took the bill in good faith and for value, and that at the time the bill was negotiated to him he had no notice of any defect in the title of the person who negotiated it. 2. In particular the title of a person who negotiates a bill is defective within the meaning of this Act when he obtained the bill, or the acceptance thereof, by fraud, duress, or force and fear, or other unlawful means, or for an illegal consideration, or when he negotiates it in breach of faith, or under such circumstances as amount to a fraud.

Imp. § 29. Holder in due course. — For definition of holder see § 2, supra. Under the present section and section 2, supra, the payee of a bill or note may be a holder in due course of such bill or note. — Robinson v. Mann, (1901), 31 S. C. R. 484; Knechtel Fur. Co. v. Furnishers, (1909), 11 West. L. R. 344, aff'd (1910), 14 West. L. R. 175.

Complete and regular on its face. — See §§ 17, 27 (a), 32, supra, and 143, infra, and notes. See also notes under "notice" infra.

Before overdue. — As to bills and notes payable at sight or at a fixed time, see §§ 42—46, supra. As to demand bills, see § 70, infra, and note. As to demand notes see § 182, infra. A note which provides for the payment of interest by instalments, one instalment of which has not been paid, when due, is not, for that reason, an overdue note. — Union Investment Co. v. Wells, (1908), 39 S. C. R. 625. Cp. Moore v. Scott, (1906), 5 West. L. R. 8, 147, 381.

In good faith and without notice of previous dishonour or defect in title. — An allegation of absence of notice is equivalent to an allegation of good faith. — Gibson v. Coates, (1905), 1 West. L. R. 556. A holder with notice cannot be a holder in good faith. — Larkin v. Wiard, (1838), 5 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 661. Whether or not there was notice is a question of fact, primarily for the jury. — Evans v. Morley, (1862), 21 U. C. Q. B. 547. Notice need not, however, be formal or direct. — See Banque d'Hochelaga v. Grenier, (1896), 3 Rev. de Jur. 86. For example, any circumstances which would naturally place a person on guard and the ignoring of which by the holder in purchasing the bill or note points toward the conclusion that he refrained from investigation for fear of discovering some defect of title, are a sufficient basis for the inference of notice. Thus, where the maker gave two promissory notes payable to C. or bearer, but having indorsed upon them contemporaneously with their making and in the case of one of them on the edge of the paper the words "the within notes not to be sold," — which indorsement was shown by the evidence to have formed part of the contract between the parties, — and the notes were transferred to the plaintiff with the word "not" in the above indorsement, in the case of one of them erased, and in the case of the other, the whole of the indorsement, which was written along the edge, torn off, but without destroying any part of the face of the note, and it appearing that the plaintiff had noticed the erasure on the one of them first purchased, that he knew that they had both been given in payment for patent rights and that he paid much less than commercial value for them, while they bore marks of infirmity, it was held that the plaintiff could not be considered a holder without notice of defects of title. — Swaissland v. Davidson, (1883), 3 O. R. 320. But the fact that the word "renewal" has been written on the back of a note and erased is not sufficient notice to prevent an indorsee for value from becoming a holder in due course. — Larkin v. Wiard, (1838), 5 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 661. The fact of a maker's signature having been used without authority is a fact material for the jury to consider in connection with other evidence offered to show that the plaintiff took the note with knowledge of the circumstances. — Hanscome v. Cotton, (1857), 16 U. C. Q. B. 98. See also note to § 58. Where an indorsee takes with knowledge that an instalment of interest, due at a certain time according to the terms of the instrument, was not paid when due, such knowledge is sufficient to put him on guard and prevent him from taking the instrument as a holder in due course. — Moore v. Scott, (1906), 5 West. L. R. 8, 147, 381. But he clearly takes as holder in due course if he has no such knowledge. — Union Investment Co. v. Wells, (1908), 39 S. C. R. 625. Negligence, even though gross, in failing to inquire as to the title of transferrer, however, if not induced by actual bad faith, does not deprive the holder of his position as a holder in due course. — Cross v. Currie, (1880), 5 O. A. R. 31, following the opinion of Lord Denman in Goodman v. Harvey, (1836), 4 A. & E. 870. Knowledge of an agent is considered the knowledge of the principal. — Millar v. Plummer, (1893), 22 S. C. R. 253. And where a note payable to a firm is indorsed and transferred to one of the partners, any defence which would be good against the firm, is equally good against such partner. — Vezina v. Piche, (1898), Q. R. 13 S. C. 213.

Real defences. — Where the instrument creates no legal obligation, its nullity is, of course, available as a defence even against a holder in due course. So this defence is available where one's name is signed as maker of a note without authority. — Hanscome v. Cotton, (1857), 16 U. C. Q. B. 98. So also where a married woman makes a note for a purpose for which she has no legal right to bind herself. — Banque Nationale v. Guy, (1891), M. L. R. 7 S. C. 144; Ricard v. La Banque Nationale, (1893), Q. R. 3 Q. B. 161; Maclean v. O'Brien, (1896), Q. R. 12 S. C. 110. Where, without negligence on his part, one is deceived as to the character of the instrument he is signing, he has a good defence even against a holder in due course. — See cases cited in note to § 40, supra. Where by statute, an instrument is made absolutely null so that no cause of action may be had upon it, it is, of course, not enforceable even by a holder in due course. Thus, in Ontario a cheque given in settlement of losses at matching coppers was held to have been given in consideration of a gambling debt within § 53 (3), R. S. O. c. 47, and under 9 Anne c. 14, is void even in the hands of a holder in due course. — Summerfeldt v. Worts, (1886), 12 O. R. 48. But under 12 Geo. 2, c. 28, a note given for the price of lottery tickets was not void in the hand of a holder in due course. — Evans v. Morley, (1862), 21 U. C. Q. B. 547. In Lower Canada it was early held that a note given for a gambling debt was null and void even in the hands of a holder in due course. — Biroleau v. Derouin, (1863), 7 L. C. Jur. 128. But see, contra, Dion v. Lachance, (1898), Q. R. 14 S. C. 77. See also Dalglish v. Bond, (1889), M. L. R. 7 S. C. 400; Allan v. Robert, (1907), 2 East. L. R. 556. It is also held in Lower Canada that the nullity declared by paragraph 3 of section 8 of the Insolvent Act of 1864 is an absolute nullity, and a promissory note given in violation of the provisions of the said paragraph is absolutely null and void in the hands of any holder. — Davis v. Muir, (1869), 13 L. C. Jur. 184.

Personal defences. — Defects in the title of a holder's transferrer which under this Act constitute defences to a holder not a holder in due course, but are not available against a holder in due course, and notice of which deprives the holder of his character as a holder in due course, exist: Where the transferrer obtained the bill by fraud. — McCollum v. Church, (1834), 3 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 356; Dougall v. Post, (1848), 5 U. C. Q. B. 554; Gooderham v. Hutchison, (1855), 5 U. C. C. P. 241; Bank of Montreal v. Cameron, (1859), 17 U. C. Q. R. 411. Where the transferor negotiated the instrument in breach of faith. — Where the negotiation is in breach of faith because of the existence of an agreement made with respect to the instrument or its proceeds, such an agreement is a defence constituting a defect in title within the meaning of this section and is available against a holder not a holder in due course. Thus a holder not in due course will be bound by an agreement relieving an indorser of liability. — McQuinn v. Sorell, (1851), 7 N. B. 140. By an agreement to dispose of the proceeds of the note in a certain way or to use the note for a particular purpose only. — Broke v. Arnold, (1823), Tay. 25; Larkin v. Wiard, (1838), 5 U. C. Q. By an agreement to further extend the time of payment. — Britton v. Fisher, (1867), 26 U. C. Q. B. 338; Goldstein v. Gillis, (1909), 10 West. L. R. 109; McGregor v. Bishop, (1887), 14 O. R. 7. By an agreement not to negotiate after maturity. — Grant v. Winstanley, (1871), 21 U. C. C. P. 257. By an agreement to apply a distinct charge toward payment. — Ching v. Jeffery, (1885), 12 O. A. R. 432. See also Northern Crown Bank v. Yearsley, (1910), 16 O. W. R. 401; Brooks v. Clegg, (1862), 12 L. C. R. 461. Where the negotiation is in breach of faith because in breach of trust imposed upon the holder who negotiates for the benefit of some previous party to the instrument, such breach of trust is a defence in an action against such previous party by a holder not a holder in due course. — Kerr v. Straat, (1851), 8 U. C. Q. B. 82; Walter v. Molsons Bank, (1877), Ram. App. 80; Quebec Bank v. Bryant, (1891), 17 Q. L. R. 98. See also Arpin v. Poulin, (1878), 1 Leg. News, 290. So where an agent, acting within the scope of his apparent authority, but without actual authority to make the particular indorsement and delivery, negotiates a bill, such breach of authority is a defence in an action against the principal by a holder not in due course. — West v. McInnes, (1864), 23 U. C. Q. B. 357; McLeod v. Carman, (1869), 12 N. B. 592; Banque Nationale v. City Bank, (1873), 17 L. C. Jur. 197; Sylvain v. Flanagan, (1875) Ram. App. 80; Cross v. Currie, (1880), 5 O. A. R. 31; Rheinhardt v. Shirley, (1894), Q. R. 6 S. C. 11; Cox v. Canadian Bank, (1911), 16 West. L. R. 512. See also Union Bank v. Bulmer, (1885), 2 Man. 380. Where the negotiation is in breach of faith toward some person who is not a party to the instrument, it has been held that a holder not in due course takes subject to such equity, except where an overdue instrument payable to bearer is left in the possession of an agent, in which case the simple possession by the agent of the overdue instrument has been held to amount to a representation by a beneficial owner that the agent has the right to deal with such instrument as his own. — Young v. MacNider, (1895), 25 S. C. R. 272. In this case the same conclusion was reached in the Court of Queens' Bench on the ground that a bona fide holder who acquires overdue commercial paper takes subject only to the equities of prior parties to the paper. — MacNider v. Young, (1894), Q. R. 3 Q. B. 539, reversing Young v. MacNider, (1893), Q. R. 4 S. C. 208. In Young v. MacNider, (1895), 25 S. C. R. 272, Strong, C. J., said: "I do not agree with the Court of Queen's Bench that in general a bona fide holder who acquires ordinary commercial paper such as bills or notes after dishonour takes subject only to the equities of prior parties to the paper. Upon this point I agree with Mr. Justice Andrews that not merely the equities of prior parties, but also those of third parties, may be enforced against such holders. This is the effect of the decision in In re European Bank. Ex parte Oriental Commercial Bank (L. R. 5 Ch. App. 358), and I think we ought to follow that authority."

Set-offs. — The class of agreement above described as made with respect to the instrument or its proceeds is to be distinguished from another class of agreements which give rise to obligations having no relation to the instrument in question except that they exist between the same parties. This latter class of independent obligations or set-offs affords no defence against any holder subsequent to the holder so obliged. — Wood v. Ross, (1858), 8 U. C. C. P. 299; Smith v. Nicholson, (1859), 19 U. C. Q. B. 27; Metropolitan Bank v. Snure, (1860), 10 U. C. C. P. 24; Hughes v. Snure, (1863), 22 U. C. Q. B. 597; Canadian Securities Co. v. Prentice, (1882), 9 O. P. R. 324. See Ferguson v. Stewart, (1856), 2 U. C. L. J. 116. Prior to the adoption of this section, however, the Provincial law of Quebec permitted a money claim against any holder to be set up a defence to an action by holder not in due course. — Gibson v. Lee, (1814), 1 Rev. de Leg. 347; Hays v. David, (1852), 3 L. C. R. 112; Duguay v. Senecal, (1865), 1 L. C. L. J. 26; Amazon Ins. Co. v. Quebec & G. P. S. S. Co., (1876), 2 Q. L. R. 310.

Right of subsequent holder. 57. A holder, whether for value or not, who derives his title to a bill through a holder in due course, and who is not himself a party to any fraud or illegality affecting it, has all the rights of that holder in due course as regards the acceptor and all parties to the bill prior to that holder.

Imp. § 29. Mere knowledge of, without participation in, any fraud or illegality affecting the bill or note, does not preclude the holder from acquiring the rights of a prior holder in due course. — Wallbridge v. Becket, (1855), 13 U. C. Q. B. 395; Clarkson v. Lawson, (1856), 14 U. C. Q. B. 67; Cross v. Currie, (1880), 5 O. A. R. 31; Gauthier v. Reinhardt, (1904), Q. R.

26 S. C. 134. But see Baxter v. Bruneau, (1889), 17 Rev. Leg. 359. Nor is the indorsee after maturity affected by the fact that knowledge of fraud had been disclosed to his indorser after the latter had acquired the position of a holder in due course. — McLeod v. Carman, (1869), 12 N. B. 592.

Presumption of value. Due course. Burden of proof. 58. Every party whose signature appears on a bill is prima facie deemed to have become a party thereto for value. 2. Every holder of a bill is prima facie deemed to be a holder in due course; but if, in an action on a bill it is admitted or proved that the acceptance, issue, or subsequent negotiation of the bill is affected with fraud, duress, or force and fear, or illegality, the burden of proof that he is such holder in due course shall be on him, unless and until he proves that, subsequent to the alleged fraud or illegality, value has in good faith been given for the bill by some other holder in due course.

Imp. § 30. If the defendant pleads no consideration the burden of proof rests on him. — Sutherland v. Patterson, (1842), 1 Rob. & Jos. Dig. 511. Evidence to rebut the presumption of consideration must be clear and convincing. — Ross v. Western L. & T. Co., (1900), Q. R. 11 Q. B. 292; Larraway v. Harvey, (1898), Q. R. 14 S. C. 97. The presumption of value, however, will not protect an executor who pays notes of the testator, after notice that they were without consideration and where intended as gifts to the payees. — Re Williams, (1896), 27 O. R. 405. Illegality of consideration, total or partial, is a defence against any immediate party. — Leggatt v. Brown, (1899), 30 O. R. 225. But if the illegality goes only to a part of the consideration, and the remaining part is sufficient to support the note, it will be enforced. — Bellemarc v. Gray, (1899), Q. R. 16 S. C. 581; Laprés v. Massé, (1901), Q. R. 19 S. C. 275. Where fraud or illegality is shown the onus has always rested upon the plaintiff to show himself a holder in due course, or to be claiming through such a holder. — Maulson v. Arrol, (1853), 11 U. C. Q. B. 81; Hanscome v. Cotton, (1857), 15 U. C. Q. B. 42; Withall v. Ruston, (1857), 7 L. C. R. 399; Dumas v. Baxter, (1885), 14 Rev. Leg. 496; Exchange Bank v. Carle, (1887), 31 L. C. Jur. 90; Allo-way v. Hutchinson, (No. 2), (1898), 6 Terr. L. R. 425. See also Hunt v. Lee, (1819), 2 Rev. de Leg. 28; Belanger v. Baxter, (1883), 6 Leg. News, 413; Bank v. Cameron, (1869), 17 U. C. Q. B. 636; Robinson v. Calcott, (1875), Ram. App. 83; Banque Jacques Cartier v. Gagnon, (1894), Q. R. 6 S. C. 88; Farmer v. Ellis, (1901), 2 O. L. R. 544. Until such proof of fraud or illegality the presumption in his favour relieves the plaintiff of the necessity of proving himself a holder in due course. — Farmers' Bank v. Dominion Coal Co., (1893), 9 Man. 542; Merchants' Bank v. McLeod, (1910), 14 West L. R. 461. Such presumption existed prior to this section. — Bard v. Francoeur, (1894), Q. R. 7 S. C. 315. The presence of the words "value received" on the bill or note do not prevent the shifting of the burden of proof upon evidence of fraud. — Baxter v. Bilodeau, (1883), 9 Q. L. R. 268. On proof of fraud or illegality the plaintiff must prove not only that he gave value, but that he took in good faith. — Gibson v. Coates, (1905), 1 West. L. R. 556. But fraud or illegality must be shown and proof that the note was for accommodation will not suffice. — Farmers' Bank v. Dominion Coal Co. supra; Miller v. Ferrier, (1850), 7 U. C. Q. B. 540; Muir v. Cameron, (1852), 10 U. C. Q. B. 356; Merchants Bank v. Coal Co., (1894), 16 O. P. R. 87. See note to § 53.

Usurious consideration. 59. No bill, although given for a usurious consideration or upon a usurious contract, is void in the hands of a holder, unless such holder had at the time of its transfer to him actual knowledge that it was originally given for a usurious consideration, or upon a usurious contract.

Imp. § 30. There is no usury law in Canada, and this section is therefore inoperative. Money lenders on loans under $ 500 may not exact more than 12 per cent. per annum. In case of negotiable instruments negotiated to a holder in due course, discounted by such a money lender at a rate in excess of 12 per cent. the holder may recover the full amount of the instrument, but the party paying the same may recover from the money lender the amount paid in excess of 12 per cent. interest. — R. S. C. 1906, c. 32, §§ 6, 8.

Negotiation.

By transfer. By delivery. By endorsement. 60. A bill is negotiated when it is transferred from one person to another in such a manner as to constitute the transferee the holder of the bill. 2. A bill payable to bearer is negotiated by delivery. 3. A bill payable to order is negotiated by the endorsement of the holder completed by delivery.

Imp. § 31. The acceptance of a bill of exchange is not a negotiation of it. — Foster v. Bowes, (1857), 2 O. P. R. 256. The holder of notes payable to order cannot sue thereon if the payee's indorsement through which he claims has been erased. — Hempsted v. Drumond, (1859), 10 L. C. R. 27. A bill of exchange payable to order is not transferred within this section if the holder's transferrer to whom it was indorsed specially has failed to add his indorsement. — Forsyth v. Lawrence, (1886), 7 C. L. T. 174. But a bill payable to bearer is transferable by delivery notwithstanding its special indorsement. — Exchange Bank v. Bank, (1890), M. L. R. 6 S. C. 10. The negotiation of a note payable to order is not complete without delivery. Consequently a holder in possession of an instrument bearing his indorsement, may recover upon it, the indorsement appearing to be incomplete for want of delivery. — Demers v. Hogle, (1895), Q. R. 7 S. C. 476; Canadian Co-operative Co. v. Trauniczek, (1908), 8 West. L. R. 550. The case of Dupuis v. Marsan, (1872), 17 L. C. Jur. 42, holding that a note payable to order, for less than $ 50, may be negotiated by delivering without indorsement, is no longer law. — Maclaren, Bills, notes, and cheques, p. 203. Where a note is payable to a testator, the indorsement by one of several executors is sufficient. — Almon v. Cock, (1847), 3 N. S. 265. But a widow, not administratrix of her deceased intestate husband's estate, cannot by her indorsement negotiate a note of which he was indorsee, even to pay his funeral expenses or debts. — Gerow v. Holt, (1884), 24 N. B. 412. Where the deceased had purchased Canadian bills of exchange drawn on New York, his administrator in California, where he was domiciled and died, was held entitled to the proceeds, the Canadian bank having stopped payment on the bills. — Young v. Cashion, (1909), 14 O. W. R. 717. The title to a promissory note in the hands of a payee, upon the issuance of a writ of attachment against him, rests at once in the assignee, so as to preclude a subsequent transfer by the payee. — Jenks v. Doran, (1880), 5 O. A. R. 558. The purchaser or assignee of an estate, however, which includes a note payable to order and not indorsed, cannot sue as a holder, but only as the assignee of a chose in action, and is bound to give notice to the maker. — Clonbrock Steam Boiler Co. v. Browne, (1900), Q. R. 18 S. C. 375. In an action by the holder of a promissory note payable to the order of a third party, the plaintiff must allege an indorsement to himself. — Lavallee v. Burrage, (1911), 12 Q. P. R. 382. Merely alleging that a promissory note was "duly transferred" to the plaintiff is insufficient under this section and, while the statement of claim may be amended, it subjects the pleader to defendant's costs of defence. — Heon v. Bonnet, (1910), 14 West. L. R. 534.

Without indorsement. Representative capacity. 61. Where the holder of a bill payable to his order transfers it for value without endorsing it, the transfer gives the transferee such title as the transferer had in the bill, and the transferee in addition acquires the right to have the endorsement of the transferer. 2. Where any person is under obligation to endorse a bill in a representative capacity, he may endorse the bill in such terms as to negative personal liability.

Imp. § 37. Where a transfer is for value and the indorsement is omitted by mistake, the transferee without indorsement may compel his transferer to indorse. However, the transferee without indorsement of a note payable to order may treat the delivery as an assignment to him, and in the same manner as the assignee of any other chose in action recover from the maker the amount due upon the note. Consequently, in an action against the maker of a note payable to his own order, and delivered by him without indorsement to the plaintiff, it is useless to order the maker to indorse. — Coutu v. Rafferty, (1891), M. L. R. 7 S. C. 146, rvd. on another point, (1893), Q. R. 2 Q. B. 387. See also Guerin v. Orr, (1882), 5 Leg. News, 379. As to the necessity of indorsement in case of retransfer, see § 73 and notes.

Endorsing. Writing. Entire bill. Allonge. Partial indorsement. 62. An endorsement in order to operate as a negotiation: a) Must be written on the bill itself and be signed by the endorser; b) Must be an endorsement of the entire bill. 2. An endorsement written on an allonge, or on a copy of a bill issued or negotiated in a country where copies are recognized, is deemed to be written on the bill itself. 3. A partial endorsement, that is to say, an endorsement which purports to transfer to the endorsee a part only of the amount payable, or which purports to transfer the bill to two or more endorsees severally, does not operate as a negotiation of the bill.

Imp. § 32. A bank stamping its name for the purpose of identification and not of negotiation, on cheques which it was sending through the clearing house, is not an indorser. — Rex v. Bank of Montreal, (1905), 10 Q. L. R. 117, 135, s. c. (1906), 11 Q. L. R. 595, (1907), 38 S. C. R. 258.

Signature sufficient. Two or more payees. 63. The simple signature of the endorser on the bill, without additional words, is a sufficient endorsement. 2. Where a bill is payable to the order of two or more payees or endorsees who are not partners, all must endorse, unless the one endorsing has authority to endorse for the others.

Imp. § 63. Where the designation of the payee in a note is the name of a trade union, which in neither a corporation nor a partnership, an indorsement in the name of the union by the president and secretary is insufficient to pass title. Seemle, that the only valid method of transferring such a note is by the indorsement of each of the members of the union. Query, as to the proper parties as plaintiffs in an action on the note by, or on behalf of, the union. — Cooper v. McDonald, (1909), 11 West. L. R. 173. Where a partnership consisting of M. and C. and plaintiff indorse a cheque to defendant for collection and on the authority of M. and C. the proceeds are deposited to the credit of a new partnership of which plaintiff is not a member, the defendant is guilty of no breach of trust, the cheque having been properly indorsed and the new firm using the proceeds to pay the debts of the old firm. — Ross v. Chandler, (1909), 13 O. W. R. 247.

Misspelling payee's name. 64. Where, in a bill payable to order, the payee or endorsee is wrongly designated, or his name is misspelt, he may endorse the bill as therein described, adding his proper signature; or he may endorse by his own proper signature.

Imp. § 32.

Presumption as to order of endorsement. 65. Where there are two or more endorsements on a bill, each endorsement is deemed to have been made in the order in which it appears on the bill, until the contrary is proved.

Imp. § 32. Each indorser engages that in case of dishonour and due proceedings upon dishonour he will compensate his indorsee and subsequent holders. — § 133, infra. But in case of retransfer, in order to avoid circuity of action, the holder may not charge indorsers subsequent to him. — §§ 73, 140, infra. If by collateral agreement, however, a subsequent indorser has surrendered his right of recourse against a prior indorser, the objection of circuity of action being obviated, the prior may maintain an action on the bill or note against the subsequent indorser. Thus, if the second indorser indorsed for the accommodation of the maker, the former is liable to the payee, the first indorser. — Foster v. Farewell (1855), 13 U. C. Q. B. 449; Moffatt v. Rees, (1858), 15 U. C. Q. B. 527; Wordsworth v. Mac Dougall, (1858), 8 U. C. C. P. 403; Gunn v. McPherson, (1859), 18 U. C. Q. B. 244. See also Day v. Sculthorpe, (1861), 11 L. C. R. 269; Léveillé, v. Daigle, (1880), 2 Dorion, 129; Willett v. Court, (1883), 6 Leg. News, 204; Scott v. Turnbull, (1883), 6 Leg. News, 397; Deschamps v. Leger, (1886), M. L. R. 3 S. C. 1. Similarly, if accommodation indorsers agree with each other that as between themselves they shall be co-sureties, such an agreement is effective, and one of them who has taken up the bill or note may hold each of the others, whether his indorsement is prior or subsequent, for his proportionate share of the amount of the instrument and no more. — Bowes v. Holland, (1856), 14 U. C. Q. B. 316, 323; Clipperton v. Spettigue, (1868), 15 Grant, 269; Cockburn v. Johnston, (1869), 15 Grant, 577; Vallée v. Talbot, (1892), Q. R. 1 S. C. 223; Stacey v. Stayner, (1903), 7 O. L. R. 684. But accommodation indorsers are presumptively not co-sureties as between themselves but are liable as respects one another in accordance with the order of their indorsements. — Breeze v. Baldwin, (1837), 5 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 444; Lachance v. Duval, (1910), Q. R. 37 S. C. 475; Poisson v. Bourgeois, (1898), Q. R. 17 S. C. 94; McRae v. Lionais, (1899), Q. R. 16 S. C. 262. However if by the form of the contract of accommodation indorsers they are not several successive, but joint, promisors, as in the case of the indorsement of joint payees, or of a partnership, the rights of one of the joint indorsers upon taking up the bill or note against his co-indorsers are limited to contribution. — Clipperton v. Spettigue, (1868), 15 Grant, 269; Small v. Riddel, (1880), 31 U. C. C. P. 373. Obviously collateral agreements between indorsers with respect to their rights as between themselves, have no effect upon the right of a holder of the bill or note, not a party to the agreement, even though a purchaser with notice, to charge the indorsers severally upon the instrument. — Elder v. Kelly, (1850), 8 U. C. Q. B. 240. See also McLean v. Garnier, (1881), 14 N. S. 432.

Disregarding condition. 66. Where a bill purports to be endorsed conditionally, the condition may be disregarded by the payer, and payment to the endorsee is valid, whether the condition has been fulfilled or not.

Imp. § 33.

Endorsement in blank. Special endorsement. Application of Act to. Conversion of blank endorsement. 67. An endorsement may be made in blank or special. 2. An endorsement in blank specifies no endorsee, and a bill so endorsed becomes payable to bearer. 3. A special endorsement specifies the person to whom, or to whose order, the bill is to be payable. 4. The provisions of this Act relating to a payee apply, with the necessary modifications, to an endorsee under a special endorsement. 5. Where a bill has been endorsed in blank, any holder may convert the blank endorsement into a special endorsement by writing above the endorser's signature a direction to pay the bill to or to the order of himself or some other person.

Imp. §§ 32, 34.

Restrictive endorsement. What is. Rights of endorsee. If further transfer is authorized. 68. An endorsement may also contain terms making it restrictive. 2. An endorsement is restrictive which prohibits the further negotiation of the bill, or which expresses that it is a mere authority to deal with the bill as thereby directed, and not a transfer of the ownership thereof, as, for example, if a bill is endorsed 'Pay D only,' or 'Pay D for the account of X,' or 'Pay D, or order, for collection.' 3. A restrictive endorsement gives the endorsee the right to receive payment of the bill and to sue any party thereto that his endorser could have sued, but gives him no power to transfer his rights as endorsee unless it expressly authorizes him to do so. 4. Where a restrictive endorsement authorizes further transfer, all subsequent endorsees take the bill with the same rights and subject to the same liabilities as the first endorsee under the restrictive endorsement.

Imp. §§ 32, 35. Formal words of restriction are not necessary and an indorsement stating that the note is not to be sold will suffice. — Wilson v. McQueen, (1840), Rob. & Jos. Ont. Dig. 491. An indorsement to "A., to the use of B.," although restrictive, does not prevent the negotiation of the instrument by A., but does affect purchasers from A. with notice of B.'s equitable rights, if any. — Munro v. Cox, (1870), 30 U. C. Q. B. 363. Such an indorsement does not, however, affect subsequent purchasers with notice of the equities of other parties to the instrument, e. g., of the maker's defence of failure of consideration. — Munro v. Cox, supra. The operation of a restrictive indorsement as notice is not affected by a subsequent blank or special indorsement. Thus, a bank which has credited the proceeds of a cheque restrictively indorsed "for collection" to one who had indorsed in blank below the restrictive indorsement, is chargeable by the restrictive indorsee. — Perreault v. Bank, (1905), Q. R. 27 S. C. 149.

When negotiability ceases. 69. Where a bill is negotiable in its origin, it continues to be negotiable until it has been: a) Restrictively endorsed; or, b) Discharged by payment or otherwise.

Imp. § 36. See note to § 70.

Overdue bill. Equities. Demand bill when. Time. 70. Where an overdue bill is negotiated, it can be negotiated only subject to any defect of title affecting it at its maturity, and thenceforward no person who takes it can acquire or give a better title than that which had the person from whom he took it. 2. A bill payable on demand is deemed to be overdue within the meaning and for the purposes of this section, when it appears on the face of it to have been in circulation for an unreasonable length of time. 3. What is an unreasonable length of time for such purpose is a question of fact.

Imp. § 36. Overdue instalments. A note is not overdue within this section simply because an instalment of interest was not paid when due, the principal not being then due. — Union Investment Co. v. Wells, (1908), 39 S. C. R. 625. But if the holder at the time of indorsement to him knew of the non-payment of such instalment of interest, although there may not have been a dishonour, he is not a holder in due course. — Moore v. Scott, (1906), 5 West. L. R. 8, s. c. (1907), 5 West. L. R. 381. See also Jennings v. Napanee Co., (1884), 4 C. L. T. 595. As to a purchaser after maturity generally, see note to § 56.

Unreasonable length of time. — Under this section it was held where a cheque was held by the payee for three days and then transferred for value to the plaintiff, and where it appeared that the usage of trade in that vicinity was that cheques were not always presented for payment immediately, but were frequently kept for some days and transferred from hand to hand as a convenient circulating medium, that such delay of three days was not unreasonable and therefore the cheque was not overdue when it was indorsed to the plaintiff. — Campbell v. Riendeau, (1892), Q. R. 2 Q. B. 604. And where a customer mailed his bank on May 23, a cheque drawn by defendant payable to him, dated May 16th, it was held that under the circumstances this interval of seven days was not an unreasonable length of time so as to make the cheque an overdue bill within the meaning of this section. — Bank v. Warren, (1909), 19 O. L. R. 257. MacLaren, J. A., delivering the judgment of the Court, said: "Under sec. 70 an overdue bill can be negotiated only subject to any defect of title affecting it at its maturity, and thenceforward no person who takes it can acquire or give a better title than that which had the person from whom he took it. A cheque or other bill payable on demand is deemed to be overdue for the purposes of this section, when it appears on the face of it to have been in circulation for an unreasonable length of time. What is an unreasonable length of time for such purpose is a question of fact. This case was tried without a jury, and the trial Judge found as a fact, on the evidence, that the cheque had not been in circulation an unreasonable length of time. It was drawn on a Saturday in favour of a Toronto business man, who, being temporarily in Chicago, sent it from his hotel there the following Saturday in the letter above copied. There was no delay after this. The cases go to show that even a longer delay than here without any surrounding suspicious circumstances has not been considered sufficient to make a cheque stale or overdue. In my opinion, the finding of the trial Judge was quite right in the circumstances, and no valid ground was given for our overruling it. See London and County Banking Co. v. Groome, 8 Q. B. D. 288, and Daniel on Negotiable Instruments, sec. 1634." See notes to §§ 77, 166, and 182, infra.

Presumption as to. 71. Except where an endorsement bears date after the maturity of the bill, every negotiation is prima facie deemed to have been effected before the bill was overdue.

Imp. § 36.

Taking bill with notice of dishonour. 72. Where a bill which is not overdue has been dishonoured, any person who takes it with notice of the dishonour takes it subject to any defect of title attaching thereto at the time of dishonour; but nothing in this section shall affect the rights of a holder in due course.

Imp. § 36. The purchaser of a note upon which one of the instalments of interest is due and unpaid to his knowledge, holds it subject to defences. — Moore v. Scott, (1905), 5 West. L. R. 8, s. c. (1907), 5 West. L. R. 381. But see Union Investment Co. v. Wells, (1908), 39 S. C. R. 625. See also Jennings v. Napanee Brush Co., (1884), 4 C. L. T. 595.

Re-issue of bill. 73. Where a bill is negotiated back to the drawer, or to a prior endorser, or to the acceptor, such party may, subject to the provisions of this Act, re-issue and further negotiate the bill, but he is not entitled to enforce the payment of the bill against any intervening party to whom he was previously liable.

Imp. § 37. "Payment to operate as a discharge must be made at or after maturity, and if made before it operates as a mere purchase of the note, which may be negotiated and re-issued."

— Vanier v. Kent, (1902), Q. R. 11 K. B. 373, 383. See notes to §§ 140, infra, and 65, supra.

Rights of holder. Prior defects. Title from him. Discharge from him. 74. The rights and powers of the holder of a bill are as follows: a) He may sue on the bill in his own name; b) Where he is a holder in due course, he holds the bill free from any defect of title of prior parties, as well as from mere personal defences available to prior parties among themselves, and may enforce payment against all parties liable on the bill; c) Where his title is defective, if he negotiates the bill to a holder in due course, that holder obtains a good and complete title to the bill; and, d) Where his title is defective if he obtains payment of the bill the person who pays him in due course gets a valid discharge for the bill.

Imp. § 37. As to the position of a holder in due course, see § 56. and notes.

Presentment for acceptance.

When necessary. Express stipulation. Other cases. 75. Where a bill is payable at sight or after sight, presentment for acceptance is necessary in order to fix the maturity of the instrument. 2. Where a bill expressly stipulates that it shall be presented for acceptance, or where a bill is drawn payable elsewhere than at the residence or place of business of the drawee, it must be presented for acceptance before it can be presented for payment. 3. In no other case is presentment for acceptance necessary in order to render liable any party to the bill.

Imp. § 39. "The words, 'at sight or' were inserted in the bill in the Canadian House of Commons after it had been determined not to change our law which allowed grace on bills payable at sight, and they had been struck out of section 10, where they stood as one of the classes of bills payable on demand." — Maclaren, Bills, notes, and cheques, p. 235. See §§ 44, 45, and 77. Thus when a bill is payable 15 days after sight a demand for payment unaccompanied by a presentment for acceptance is insufficient and the action will be dismissed. — Cousineau v. Lecours, (1888), M. L. R. 4 S. C. 249. "The Act does not give definite directions as to the proper place to present a bill but the rules laid down in section 88, as to presentment for payment, would seem to be reasonable so far as they are applicable." — Maclaren, l. c., p. 235. Subsection 2 apparently changes the law in Ontario, where it had been held that where a bill was payable three month after date, elsewhere than at the residence or place of business of the drawee, presentment for acceptance was unnecessary. — Richardson v. Daniels, (1838), 5 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 671.

Presentment excused. 76. Where the holder of a bill, drawn payable elsewhere than at the place of business or residence of the drawee, has not time, with the exercise of reasonable diligence, to present the bill for acceptance before presenting it for payment on the day that it falls due, the delay caused by presenting the bill for acceptance before presenting it for payment is excused, and does not discharge the drawer and endorsers.

Imp. § 39. As to reasonable diligence, see note to § 77, infra.

Sight bill. If not presented. Reasonable time. 77. Subject to the provisions of this Act, when a bill payable at sight or after sight is negotiated, the holder must either present it for acceptance or negotiate it within a reasonable time. 2. If he does not do so, the drawer and all endorsers prior to that holder are discharged. 3. In determining what is a reasonable time within the meaning of this section, regard shall be had to the nature of the bill, the usage of trade with respect to similar bills, and the facts of the particular case.

Imp. § 40. Reasonable time. — A bill of exchange drawn in Toronto on August 6, 1849, by a party dealing in bills upon a party in New York, payable at sight, in favour of a party living in the state of Illinois, it being the understanding that it was to be used in paying a bill in Illinois and thus put into circulation there, was presented in New York on the 10th of November following. It was held that under all the circumstances the delay was not unreasonable, the court laying stress upon the facts that the drawer was a person dealing in bills in New York as a commodity and thus impliedly undertook to have funds there at all times; that the bill was used in payment almost immediately and thus put into circulation; that the drawer had not objected to the delay in the case of a previous bill which had been kept from presentment even longer. — Boyes v. Joseph, (1850), 7 U. C. Q. B. 505. And where the defendants indorsed on October 8th a bill payable after sight, drawn on Liverpool, England, and the drawer held it over two mails, selling it on November 5th for its full value to the plaintiffs, who remitted it on the same day and it was accepted, but the acceptor failed before it was due, it was held that there had been no such delay as would constitute a defence on the ground of want of diligence in presenting. — Wylde v. Wetmore, (1869), 7 N. S. 504. But where a bill of exchange was drawn on August 27th, passed through the hands of two intermediate holders, was presented on the 1st September, refused payment and protested on September 8th, all the parties being in Montreal, it was held that presentation and protest had not been made with due diligence and action against indorser was dismissed. — Harris v. Schwob, (1871), 3 Rev. Leg. 453. What is a reasonable time has been said to be a mixed question of fact and law. — Perley v. Howard, (1844). 4 N. B. 518. See Maclaren, Bills, notes, and cheques, p. 238, and Falconbridge, Banking and bills of exchange, p. 487. But see § 70 (3), supra, Russell on Bills, pp. 265—267, and Tylde v. Wetmore, supra. See as to reasonable time notes to §§ 86, 166, and 180, infra.

Rules. By holder to drawee. To all drawees. To personal representative. Post office. 78. A bill is duly presented for acceptance which is presented in accordance with the following rules, namely: a) The presentment must be made by or on behalf of the holder to the drawee or to some person authorized to accept or refuse acceptance on his behalf, at a reasonable hour on a business day and before the bill is overdue; b) Where a bill is addressed to two or more drawees, who are not partners, presentment must be made to them all, unless one has authority to accept for all, when presentment may be made to him only; c) Where the drawee is dead, presentment may be made to his personal representative; d) Where authorized by agreement or usage, a presentment through the post office is sufficient.

Imp. § 41. Manner of presentment for acceptance. — “The Act does not give precise directions as to the presentment of a bill for acceptance. Some of the rules laid down in sections 86, 87, and 88 as to presentment for payment are no doubt applicable; but there is a difference in principle between the two presentments, the former being personal, and the latter local.” — Maclaren, Bills, notes, and cheques. Where drawee is dead. — See § 79 (a).

Excuses. Drawee dead. Impracticability. Waiver. Excuse. 79. Presentment in accordance with the aforesaid rules is excused, and a bill may be treated as dishonoured by non-acceptance: a) Where the drawee is dead, or is a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract by bill; b) Where, after the exercise of reasonable diligence, such presentment cannot be effected; c) Where although the presentment has been irregular, acceptance has been refused on some other ground. 2. The fact that the holder has reason to believe that the bill, on presentment, will be dishonoured does not excuse presentment.

Imp. § 41. As to fictitious drawee, see § 26. As to capacity to contract by bill, see § 47. As to reasonable diligence, see § 92 (a) infra, and note.

Time for acceptance. Dishonour. Loss of rights. Date of acceptance. Refusing acceptance. 80. The drawee may accept a bill on the day of its due presentment to him for acceptance, or at any time within two days thereafter. 2. When a bill is so duly presented for acceptance and is not accepted within the time aforesaid, the person presenting it must treat it as dishonoured by non-acceptance. 3. If he does not so treat the bill as dishonoured, the holder shall lose his right of recourse against the drawer and endorsers. 4. In the case of a bill payable at sight or after sight, the acceptor may date his acceptance thereon as of any of the days aforesaid but not later than the day of his actual acceptance of the bill. 5. If the acceptance is not so dated, the holder may refuse to take the acceptance and may treat the bill as dishonoured by non-acceptance.

Imp. § 42.

Dishonour. Presentment. Excuse. 81. A bill is dishonoured by non-acceptance: a) When it is duly presented for acceptance, and such an acceptance as is prescribed by this Act is refused or cannot be obtained; or, b) When presentment for acceptance is excused and the bill is not accepted.

Imp. § 43. See as to what constitutes a valid acceptance under this Act, §§ 36 and 38, supra.

Recourse in such case. 82. Subject to the provisions of this Act, when a bill is dishonoured by non-acceptance an immediate right of recourse against the drawer and endorsers accrues to the holder, and no presentment for payment is necessary.

Imp. § 43. See as to suspension of the immediate right of recourse, §§ 147—155, infra. It seems that the right of recourse acquired under this section is an immediate right of action. — Ross v. Dixie, (1850), 7 U. C. Q. B. 414. Compare with note to § 95, (2) infra. In Quebec, under the Code, prior to the adoption of this section, the right of action was complete after notice of dishonour by non-acceptance was sent. — Civil Code, Art. 2298. See as to the rule under the old French law, Preston v. Johnston, (1813), 2 Rev. de Leg. 28.

Qualified acceptance. Assent. 83. The holder of a bill may refuse to take a qualified acceptance, and if he does not obtain an unqualified acceptance may treat the bill as dishonoured by non-acceptance. 2. When the drawer or endorser of a bill receives notice of a qualified acceptance, and does not within a reasonable time express his dissent to the holder, he shall be deemed to have assented thereto.

Imp. § 44. As to what is a qualified and what an unqualified acceptance under this Act, see § 38, supra.

Qualified acceptance without authority. Partial acceptance. 84. Where a qualified acceptance is taken, and the drawer or an endorser has not expressly or impliedly authorized the holder to take a qualified acceptance, or does not subsequently assent thereto, such drawer or endorser is discharged from his liability on the bill: Provided that this section shall not apply to a partial acceptance, whereof due notice has been given.

Imp. § 44.

Presentment for payment.

Necessity. Result of non-presentment. Manner of. 85. Subject to the provisions of this Act, a bill must be duly presented for payment. 2. If it is not so presented, the drawer and endorsers shall be discharged. 3. Where the holder of a bill presents it for payment, he shall exhibit the bill to the person from whom he demands payment.

Imp. §§ 45, 52. The consequence of not duly presenting a bill for payment is that the drawer and indorsers are discharged from their liability, not only on the bill, but also on the consideration for which it was given. — Hart v. McDougall, (1892), 25 N. S. 38. See as to circumstances which dispense with presentment and thus prevent such discharge, §§ 76 and 82, supra, and 91 and 92, infra. See also §§ 93 and 166, infra.

Exhibition of bill. — "The bill should be produced and exhibited, as the person paying has a right to it as a voucher in his account with other parties." — Maclaren, Bills, notes, and cheques, p. 248, citing De la Chevrotière v. Guilmet, (1886), 9 Leg. News, 412; Jordan v. Coates, (1850), 7 N. B. 107.

Waiver of exhibition. — If, on demand for payment, the bill is not asked for and payment is refused on some other ground, or inability to pay is acknowledged, exhibition of the bill is waived. — Chandler v. Beckwith, (1838), 2 N. B. 423. As to when presentment is dispensed with, see § 92, infra. Such special form of presentment is not, however, necessary if the bill is payable at a bank or other particular place and the bill is lying there at the maturity. — Richardson v. Daniels, (1838), 5 U. C. Q. B. O. S. 671. Harris v. Perry, (1858), 8 U. C. C. P. 407; Pullen v. Sanford, (1883), 16 N. S. 242; Souther v. Wallace, (1888), 20 N. S. 509; Biggs v. Wood, (1885), 2 Man. 272. As to what constitutes, in substance, in such a case, a sufficient presentment, see §§ 88 and 93, infra, and notes.

Time for. Due date. Demand bill. Reasonable time. 86. A bill is duly presented for payment which is presented: a) When the bill is not payable on demand, on the day it falls due; b) When the bill is payable on demand, within a reasonable time after its issue, in order to render the drawer liable, and within a reasonable time after its endorsement, in order to render the endorser liable. 2. In determining what is a reasonable time within the meaning of this section regard shall be had to the nature of the bill, the usage of trade with regard to similar bills and the facts of the particular case.

Imp. § 45. As to bills not payable on demand, presentment must under this section and § 42, supra, be made on the third day of grace, unless that be a non-business day, when it must be presented on the next business day. — See Richardson v. Daniels, (1838), 5 U. C. Q. B. (S. O.) S. 671; McLellan v. McLellan, (1866), 17 U. C. C. P. 109. "A bill may apparently (under this section) be presented at any reasonable hour of the day it falls due, or if payable on demand, at any reasonable time on any day on which the holder may choose to present it." — Maclaren, Bills, notes and cheques, p. 302. "This Act does not specify the hour of presentment for payment; but section 121 (b) provides that a protest shall not be made until after three o'clock in the afternoon. The Quebec Civil Code provided that a bill should be presented 'in the afternoon and, if payable at a bank, either within or after the usual hours of banking': art. 2306 . . . In Quebec it has been held that presentment at the closed doors of a bank after the usual office hours was not sufficient to base a protest upon. — Watters v. Reiffenstein, (1866), 56 L. C. R. 297. In New Brunswick where a note was payable at a 'store,' the only evidence was that when the holder went to present it the store was closed. It was held that in the absence of evidence it might be inferred that it was closed in the due course of business, and that the presentment was not made at a reasonable time. — Patterson v. Tapley, (1859), 9 N. B. 292. Presentment at the door of a store which was closed at 5 P. M. held sufficient. — Reed v. Kavanagh, (1859), 9 N. B. 457." — Ibid. p. 251.

Bills payable on demand. — As to what bills are payable on demand, see § 23, supra. As to the considerations which apply in determining what is a reasonable time, within the meaning of this section, see note to § 77, subsection 3, supra, and §§ 166 and 180, infra.

By and to whom. Two acceptors. Personal representation. 87. Presentment must be made by the holder or by some person authorized to receive payment on his behalf, at the proper place as hereinafter defined, and either to the person designated by the bill as payer or to his representative or some person authorized to pay or to refuse payment on his behalf, if, with the exercise of reasonable diligence such person can there be found. 2. When a bill is drawn upon, or accepted by two or more persons who are not partners, and no place of payment is specified, presentment must be made to them all. 3. When the drawee or acceptor of a bill is dead, and no place of payment is specified, presentment must be made to a personal representative if such there is, and with the exercise of reasonable diligence, he can be found.

Imp. § 45. As to presentment when the drawer or acceptor is dead, see Dana v. Bradley, (1862), 10 N. B. 292, and notes to §§ 88 and 89, infra.

Place of. When specified. When not specified. When no address is given. Other cases. 88. A bill is presented at the proper place: a) Where a place of payment is specified in the bill or acceptance, and the bill is there presented; b) Where no place of payment is specified, but the address of the drawee or acceptor is given in the bill, and the bill is there presented; c) Where no place of payment is specified and no address given, and the bill is presented at the drawee's or acceptor's place of business, if known, and if not at his ordinary residence, if known; d) In any other case, if presented to the drawee or acceptor wherever he can be found, or if presented at his last known place of business or residence.

Imp. § 45. Where place of payment specified. — Under the present Act where a place of payment is specified either in the bill as originally drawn or in the acceptance, the bill must be presented there or the drawer and indorsers will be discharged. — Driggs v. Waite, (1842), 6 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 310; Darling v. Gillies, (1888), 9 C. L. T. 120. See also O'Brien v. Stevenson, (1865), 15 L. C. R. 265; Ferrie v. Rykman, (1830), Dra. 61; Clayton v. McDonald, (1893), 25 N. S. 443; Biggs v. Wood, (1885), 2 Man. 272. See note to § 38, supra.

What is sufficient presentment at place specified. — If the bill is at the bank or other place of payment at the maturity, this is a sufficient presentment. — Richardson v. Daniels, (1838), 5 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 671; Bank of U. C. v. Street, (1846), 3 U. C. Q. B. 29; Blinn v. Dixon, (1848), 5 U. C. Q. B. 580; Harris v. Perry, (1858), 8 U. C. C. P. 407. See Union Bank v. McKilligan, (1886), 4 Man. 29; Rice v. Bowker, (1853), 3 L. C. R. 305. See also §§ 89 and 90, and note to § 98, infra.

What place is specified. — A note made in Boston and payable "at any bank" means any bank in Boston. — Baldwin v. Hitchcock, (1869), 12 N. B. 310. And a note dated at Brandon, Manitoba, and made payable "at the Imperial Bank" is payable of the office of that bank in Brandon, and not at the head office in Toronto. — Commercial Bank v. Bissett, (1891), 7 Man. 586. Where a note was made payable "at my office in Toronto," and it was presented at the maker's former place of business where he had left an agent, it was held that such place was the maker's office, at least for the day, and the presentment was sufficient. — Fitch v. Kelly, (1879), 44 U. C. Q. B. 578.

Where presentment may be made if not payable generally. — As to proof that a place was the maker's last place of residence, see Kinnear v. Goddard, (1860), 9 N. B. 559. The maker of a promissory note, a merchant, having absconded before the note became due and closed his store, it was held that presentment at his late dwelling house was sufficient without proof of presentment at the store or that the store remained closed on the day the note fell due. — Robinson v. Taylor, (1843), 4 N. B. 198. See also Evans v. Foster, (1879), 13 N. S. 66; Sharp v. Power, (1900), 33 N. S. 371. As to when a bill is payable generally, see Bécher v. Amherstburgh, (1874), 23 U. C. C. P. 602; McRobbie v. Torrance, (1888), 5 Man. 114, and other cases cited in note to § 183, infra.

Sufficient presentment. 89. Where a bill is presented at the proper place as aforesaid and after the exercise of reasonable diligence, no person authorized to pay or refuse payment can there be found no further presentment to the drawee or acceptor is required.

Imp. § 48. It would seem from this section that mere presentment is not sufficient, but reasonable diligence in an effort to find at the proper place a person authorized to pay or refuse payment, is essential. "The statute, it will be observed, does not limit the requirement of reasonable diligence to the cases where the bill is payable generally. It applies in terms to every case where the bill is presented at the proper place and after the exercise of reasonable diligence no person authorized to pay or refuse payment can be found there. It is only when these conditions have been satisfied that the statute says that no further presentment to the drawee or acceptor is required. But the statute does not seem to call for a search elsewhere than at the place named." — Russell on Bills, pp. 287, 288. A note payable generally was left for collection at a bank in the town where the maker lived. Before it matured he left town. A clerk went to present it at the house where he formerly lived and could not learn there where he had gone. He had heard before the note matured that the maker had left town but heard different reports as to where he had gone. No inquiry was made at any of these places. It was proved that his leaving was no secret and his business partner was not asked as to his whereabouts. Held, that reasonable diligence was not used and the indorser was discharged. — Browne v. Boulton, (1851), 9 U. C. Q. B. 64. See also as to what constitutes due diligence in an effort to find a person authorized to refuse payment, Robinson v. Taylor, (1843), 4 N. B. 198 and Kinnear v. Goddard, (1860), 9 N. B. 559, cited in note to § 88, supra. It seems that the question of reasonable diligence is one of fact for the jury. — See Browne v. Boulton, supra, and Russell on Bills, p. 287.

Presentment at post office. Through post office. 90. Where the place of payment specified in the bill or acceptance is any city, town, or village, and no place therein is specified, and the bill is presented at the drawee's or acceptor's known place of business or known ordinary residence therein, and if there is no such place of business or residence, the bill is presented at the post office, or principal post office in such city, town, or village, such presentment is sufficient. 2. Where authorized by agreement or usage, a presentment through the post office is sufficient.

Imp. § 45. Subsection 1 is new law in Canada. "The provisions of the section seem wholly inconsistent with the requirement of any diligence or effort to find the acceptor. The section does not occur in the Imperial Act . . . This somewhat haphazard amendment seems to say that the holder who has presented the bill at the actual known place of business or residence of the acceptor, or at the post office, if there is no such place of business or residence, has done all he is obliged to do. He need not present it at the last place of business or residence, and is not called upon to make any inquiries or use any diligence what ever to effect a personal presentation. It remains to be seen whether it will be so interpreted and how it will be harmonized with the other sections of the Act." — Russell on Bills, p. 288—289. Compare with §§ 88 and 89, supra, subsection 2 recognized a customary practice. It has been held that where it was the usual practice for bankers in Canada to present in this way cheques drawn upon their own correspondents, and the evidence showed that there was no suspicion of the credit or solvency of the drawee bank that transmission by mail was a proper mode of presentment. — Queen v. Bank of Montreal, (1886), 1 Ex. C. R. 154, 167. See notes to §§ 165 and 166, infra.

Delay in presentment. Diligence. 91. Delay in making presentment for payment is excused when the delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder, and not imputable to his default, misconduct, or negligence. 2. When the cause of delay ceases to operate, presentment must be made with reasonable diligence.

Imp. § 46. See Union Bank v. McKilligan, (1886), 4 Man. 29.

Dispensed with. Impracticable. Fictitious drawee. Useless. Accommodation bill. Waiver. Not dispensed with. 92. Presentment for payment is dispensed with: a) Where, after the exercise of reasonable diligence, presentment, as required by this Act, cannot be effected; b) Where the drawee is a fictitious person; c) As regards the drawer, where the drawee or acceptor is not bound, as between himself and the drawer, to accept or pay the bill, and the drawer has no reason to believe that the bill would be paid if presented; d) As regards an endorser, where the bill was accepted or made for the accommodation of that endorser, and he has no reason to expect that the bill would be paid if presented; e) By waiver of presentment, express or implied. 2. The fact that the holder has reason to believe that the bill will, on presentment, be dishonoured, does not dispense with the necessity for presentment.

Imp. § 46. Where by the exercise of reasonable diligence, presentment as required by §§ 88 and 90, supra, cannot be made, such presentment is dispensed with. — See Forward v. Thompson, (1854), 12 U. C. Q. B. 194. Whether reasonable diligence has been used has been held to be a mixed question of law and fact. — Perley v. Howard, (1844), 4 N. B. 518. See also as to what constitutes reasonable diligence, Brown v. Boulton, (1851), 9 U. C. Q. B. 64, cited in note to § 89, supra. See as to a similar question regarding notice of dishonour, § 106, infra. The dangerous illness of the maker of a note is not sufficient reason for dispensing with presentment. — Nowlin v. Roach, (1843), 4 N. B. 337. As to the presentment necessary in order to charge the indorser of an overdue note, see Davis v. Dunn, (1850), 6 U. C. Q. B. 327.

Where the drawee is a fictitious person. — See §§ 26 and 79 (a).

Where drawer has no reason to believe that bill would be paid if presented. — It has been held that a bill accepted for the accommodation of the drawer need not be presented in order to charge him where he has not provided funds to meet it. — Stayner v. Howatt, (1882), 15 N. S. 267. But it must be presented to charge the indorsers. — Knapp v. Bank of Montreal, (1850), 1 L. C. R. 252. But "the effect of the statute seems to be that a pleading that the presentment for payment was dispensed with under this section, would not be complete without setting forth the double condition: first, that the drawer or acceptor was not bound, as between himself and the drawer, to pay the bill; and secondly, that the drawer had no reason to believe that the bill would be paid if presented." — Russell on Bills, p. 293. So where a cheque was drawn on the 26th, and on the 27th the drawee bank failed and on that day the drawer served a writ on the bank in an action to recover a balance including the amount of the cheque, it was held that although suspension was not in itself an excuse for non-presentment and want of notice of dishonour before action, yet this event and the bringing of the action by the drawer, which operated as a countermand of payment, would do so. — Blackley v. McCabe, (1889), 16 O. A. R. 295.

Where bill accepted or made for accommodation of indorser. — See comment by Russell on § 92 (c), supra. Where a note was made and accepted for the accommodation of the last indorser and he made no provision for it, he is liable without presentment, but the prior indorsers are not. — In re Boutin, (1897), Q. R. 12 S. C. 186.

Waiver. — As to express waiver at time of drawing or indorsing, see § 34 (b), supra. A promise, oral or written, to pay after the bill is due with knowledge that the same has not been presented, is a waiver of presentment. — McCarthy v. Phelps, (1870), 30 U. C. Q. B. 57; McCuniffe v. Allen, (1850), 6 U. C. Q. B. 377; Johnson v. Geoffrion, (1863), 7 L. C. Jur. 125. See also McIver v. McFarlane, (1824), Tay. 113; Macauley v. McFarlane, (1840), Rob. & Jos. Dig. 493; City Bank v. Hunter, (1847), 2 Rev. de Leg. 171; Watters v. Lordley, (1842), 4 N. B. 13; Allen v. McNaughton, (1858), 9 N. B. 234; St. Stephen B. Ry. Co. v. Black, (1870), 13 N. B. 139; Colwell v. Robertson, (1877), 17 N. B. 481; Whitehouse v. Bedell, (1886), 26 N. B. 46; Deering v. Hayden, (1886), 3 Man. 219. See also cases cited in note to § 106, infra. Part payment is a waiver of presentment. — Rice v. Bowker, (1853), 3 L. C. R. 305. But where there is no evidence of knowledge by indorser that presentment was not duly made, a promise to pay after failure to receive notice of dishonour does not operate as a waiver of such presentment. — Murray v. Ayer, (1909), 6 East. L. R. 509. See Nowlin v. Roach, (1843), 4 N. B. 337, and McFtridge v. Williston, (1892), 25 N. S. 11. See also as to waiver in general Bank of U. C. v. Turcotte, (1865), 15 L. C. R. 203; Barnett v. Monaghan, (1871), 3 Rev. Leg. 448; Union Bank v. Gibeault, (1886), 12 Q. L. R. 145; Bank of N. B. v. Knowles, (1843), 4 N. B. 219. See also notes to §§ 106, 183, and 184, infra.

Where the holder has reason to believe that the bill will, on presentment, be dishonoured. — The insolvency of the acceptor does not dispense with necessity for presentment. — Quebec Bank v. Ogilvy, (1883), 3 Dorion, 200; Blackley v. McCabe, supra. But see Venner v. Futvoye, (1863), 13 L. C. R. 307. So it has been held that the fact that the bill was overdue when indorsed does not make presentment unnecessary. — Davis v. Dunn, (1850), 6 U. C. Q. B. 327. See § 23, supra.

When no place specified. If place specified. Neglect. Delivery on payment. 93. When no place of payment is specified in the bill or acceptance, presentment for payment is not necessary in order to render the acceptor liable. 2. When a place of payment is specified in the bill or acceptance, the acceptor, in the absence of an express stipulation to that effect, is not discharged by the omission to present the bill for payment on the day that it matures, but if any suit or action be instituted thereon before presentation the costs thereof shall be in the discretion of the Court. 3. When a bill is paid the holder shall forthwith deliver it up to the party paying it.

Imp. § 52. For comparison of this section with § 183, infra, and for cases which by analogy give an indication of the effect of this section, see note to § 183, infra.

Time for presentment. Parties in different places. Excuses for delay. 94. Where the address of the acceptor for honour of a bill is in the same place where the bill is protested for non-payment, the bill must be presented to him not later than the day following its maturity. 2. Where the address of the acceptor for honour is in some place other than the place where it is protested for non-payment, the bill must be forwarded not later than the day following its maturity for presentment to him. 3. Delay in presentment or non-presentment is excused by any circumstance which would in case of acceptance by a drawee excuse delay in presentment for payment or non-presentment for payment.

Imp. § 67.

Dishonour.

Non-payment on presentment. Excuse. Recourse. 95. A bill is dishonoured by non-payment: a) When it is duly presented for payment and payment is refused or cannot be obtained; or, b) When presentment is excused and the bill is overdue and unpaid. 2. Subject to the provisions of this Act, when a bill is dishonoured by non-payment, an immediate right of recourse against the drawer, acceptor and endorsers accrues to the holder.

Imp. § 47. When dishonoured. — In Quebec under the Civil Code it is held that a bill or note becomes immediately exigible against the acceptor or maker upon his becoming bankrupt and therefore subject to the provisions of this section as to dishonour. — La Banque Nationale v. Martel, (1889), Q. R. 17 S. C. 97. See also Lovell v. Meikle, (1853), 2 L. C. Jur. 69; Corcoran v. Montreal Abattoir Co., (1882), 6 Leg. News, 135. But see § 10, supra. No right of action accrues against drawer or indorser unless he also has become bankrupt. — La Banque Nationale v. Martel, supra. Prescription, however, does not begin to run until the time of maturity. — Wintley v. Pinkerton, (1892), Q. R. 2 S. C. 256. When, by the terms of the instrument, interest is payable at stated periods, the payment of any such instalment is subject to the provisions of this section in regard to dishonour, and therefore an immediate right of recourse as to that instalment arises against the drawer or indorser. — Jennings v. Napanee Brush Co., (1884), 4 C. L. T. 595. Although the dishonour by non-payment of such instalment does not dishonour the note as to future instalments of interest or principal, an indorsee with notice of such non-payment is not a holder in due course. — Moore v. Scott, (1906), 5 West. L. R. 8; s. c. (1907), 5 West. L. R. 381. See Union Investment Co. v. Wells, (1908), 39 S. C. R. 625. In an action on a bill or note payable in a particular place it is not necessary to show that there were not sufficient funds at the place named; all that is necessary even as against an indorser is to show presentment, non-payment, and notice of dishonour. — McDonald v. McArthur, (1883), 8 O. A. R. 553.

The immediate right of recourse given by this section is a right to notify the drawer or indorser, but not an immediate right of action. So it has been held that an action brought even against the acceptor before the expiration of the last day of grace, although after dishonour, is prematurely brought. — Demers v. Rousseau, (1892), Q. R. 1 S. C. 440; Westaway v. Stewart, (1908), 8 West. L. R. 907, aff'd., (1909), 10 West. L. R. 623, which followed the English case of Kennedy v. Thomas, (1894) 2 Q. B. 759, on the ground that where a colony had copied an English statute which had been construed by the English Court of Appeal, it was the duty of colonial courts to follow that decision, and distinguishing Sinclair v. Robson, post. In Ontario the opposite view has been taken. — Sinclair v. Robson, (1858), 16 U. C. Q. B. 211; Ontario Bank v. Foster, (1883), 6 Leg. News, 338. Accordingly it has there been held that the statute of limitations begins to run at dishonour. — Bank of Toronto v. McBean, (1900), 21 C. L. T. 44. But see Edgar v. McGee, (1882), 1 O. R. 287; Falconbridge, Banking and bills of exchange, p. 512. See §§ 42 supra, and 121 (b), and 162 infra.

Notice of dishonour. Subsequent holder. Notice of non-payment. Notice to acceptor. 96. Subject to the provisions of this Act, when a bill has been dishonoured by non-acceptance or by non-payment, notice of dishonour must be given to the drawer, and each endorser, and any drawer or endorser to whom such notice is not given is discharged: Provided that: a) Where a bill is dishonoured by non-acceptance, and notice of dishonour is not given, the rights of a holder in due course subsequent to the omission shall not be prejudiced by the omission; b) Where a bill is dishonoured by non-acceptance, and due notice of dishonour is given, it shall not be necessary to give notice of a subsequent dishonour by non-payment, unless the bill shall in the meantime have been accepted. 2. In order to render the acceptor of a bill liable it is not necessary that notice of dishonour should be given to him.

Imp. §§ 48, 52. Liability is conditional. — The liability of the drawer or indorser is conditional upon the notice provided for in this section. Consequently, in Quebec, notice of dishonour to the drawer or indorser is not made unnecessary by his bankruptcy. — Trottier v. Rivard, (1903), Q. R. 23 S. C. 526. See also Denenberg v. Mendelsohn, (1903), Q. R. 23 S. C. 128, and Molsons Bank v. Steel, (1903), Q. R. 23 S. C. 316. See § 34. Nor by the bankruptcy of both drawer and indorser before maturity. — La Banque Nationale v. Martel, (1899), Q. R. 17 S. C. 97. Failure to notify an indorser of a default in payment of interest due, by the terms of the instrument, at a certain time, releases him from liability as to that instalment. — Jennings v. Nepanee Brush Co., (1884), 4 C. L. T. 595. But not as to future instalments. — See Union Investment Co. v. Wells, (1908), 39 S. C. R. 625. The failure to give notice of dishonour by non-acceptance is not cured by notice of non-acceptance given with notice of non-payment. — Gore Bank v. Craig, (1857), 7 U. C. C. P. 344. See also Jones v. Wilson, (1813), 2 Rev. de Leg. 28.

To whom notice must be given. — Notice of dishonour is necessary to bind an indorser of a demand note as well as an indorser of one payable at a fixed time. — Royal Bank v. Kirk, (1907), 5 West. L. R. 432. An accommodation indorser, although irregular, is entitled to notice of dishonour. — Merchants Bank v. Cunningham, (1892), Q. R. 1 Q. B. 33; Gore Bank v. Craig, supra. See § 131. But a person who is interested in a bill to the knowledge of the holder, but whose name is not on it, is not entitled to notice of dishonour. — Anderson v. Archibald, (1872), 9 N. S. 88. An accommodation joint maker or acceptor, to the knowledge of the holder, however, not being an indorser, is not discharged by failure to give such notice. — Hough v. Kennedy, (1910), 13 West. L. R. 674. It has been so held even where no notice of dishonour was given to the payee and indorser for whose accommodation the note was given. — Grant v. Winstanley, (1871), 21 U. C. C. P. 257. But an accommodation maker or acceptor, to the knowledge of the holder, is released as a surety by delay in notice or other laches, on the part of the holder, which operates to impair the equitable remedy of the accommodation party against the party for whose accommodation the note was made or bill accepted. — Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Green, (1880), 45 U. C. Q. B. 81; Hough v. Kennedy, supra.

Effect of discharge. — Where the drawer or indorser of a bill is discharged for want of notice of dishonour, he is also discharged from any liability on the consideration for the bill. — Hart v. McDougall, (1892), 25 N. S. 38. And an indorser who pays the note or bill without notice of dishonour having been given him, or without legally waiving such notice of dishonour, cannot recover as against a prior or joint indorser although such indorser may have had due notice. — Savaria v. Paquette, (1899), Q. R. 20 S. C. 314, semble. See § 34, supra. See also § 162 infra.

Notice. Time for. By holder or endorser. Personal representative. Two drawees. 97. Notice of dishonour in order to be valid and effectual must be given: a) Not later than the juridical or business day next following the dishonour of the bill;

b) By or on behalf of the holder, or by or on behalf of an endorser, who at the time of giving it, is himself liable on the bill; c) In the case of the death, if known to the party giving notice, of the drawer or endorser, to a personal representative, if such there is and with the exercise of reasonable diligence he can be found; d) In case of two or more drawers or endorsers who are not partners, to each of them, unless one of them has authority to receive notice for the others.

Imp. § 49 (1, 9, 11, 12). Time of giving notice. — A notice properly addressed to an indorser and deposited in the post office nearest the place of presentment and dishonour, between 8 and 9 in the evening of the juridical day following, is a good notice within the meaning of this section, although not postmarked until the day after it was deposited. — Wilson v. Pringle, (1856), 14 U. C. Q. B. 230. See also Brent v. Lees, (1820), 2 Rev. de Leg. 335. See § 103.

Notice on behalf of holder. — Where a note is payable at a bank and is sent there for collection, protest may be secured and notice given by the bank as holder and will be good although the bank has no interest in the note other than an agent for collection. — Wilson v. Pringle, supra. See also Girvan v. Price, (1857), 8 N. B. 409; Howard v. Godard, (1860), 9 N. B. 452.

Where party is dead. — § 103. is apparently applicable only where the holder has no knowledge of such death, or cannot, with reasonable diligence, find a representative. — Maclaren, Bills, notes, and cheques, p. 272. If no administrator has as yet been appointed, a notice addressed to the deceased's last residence is good. — Gillespie v. Marsh, (1852), 1 U. C. C. P. 453, semble. It has further been held that where the indorser, a married woman, died intestate, a notice sent to her husband as executor, although not addressed to him at the former residence of the wife, which actually reached him at such residence, was binding on her separate estate although no letters of administration had as yet been taken out. — Merchants' Bank v. Bell, (1881), 29 Grant, 413. But where the notice of non-payment is addressed to no one by name, nor to any street or house, but merely "to the executrix or executor of the late Mr. Justice Jones, Toronto," such notice is not sufficient, it not having been actually received by the parties to be notified within the time limit imposed by this section. — Semble, Bank of B. N. A. v. Jones, (1850), 8 U. C. Q. B. 86. The actual receipt of the notice by the representative of the deceased indorser, during the juridical day following the day of dishonour, cures any defect in address. — McKenzie v. Northrop, (1872), 22 U. C. C. P. 383, distinguishing Bank of B. N. A. v. Jones, supra.

Two or more drawers or indorsers. — This section is, in this respect, contra to an important early dictum in Upper Canada. — See Bank of Michigan v. Gray, (1841), 1 U. C. Q. B. 422. See §§ 105—108, 162, infra.

Notice. Earliest time. To whom. By agent. Manner. Misdescription. 98. Notice of dishonour may be given: a) As soon as the bill is dishonoured; b) To the party to whom the same is required to be given, or to his agent in that behalf; c) By an agent either in his own name or in the name of any party entitled to give notice whether that party is his principal or not; d) In writing or by personal communication and in any terms which identify the bill and intimate that the bill has been dishonoured by non-acceptance or non-payment. 2. A misdescription of the bill shall not vitiate the notice unless the party to whom the notice is given is in fact misled thereby.

Imp. § 49 (2, 5, 7, 8, 12). When notice may be given. — The notice of dishonour may be given although no right of action has as yet accrued. — Westaway v. Stewart, (1909), 10 West. L. R. 623. See note to § 95.

To whom notice may be given. — Where it appeared that throughout transactions in connection with a note and renewals thereof the indorser had left arrangement of all details to her husband, who was also an indorser, it was held that the husband became agent for the wife for the purpose of receiving notice of dishonour. — Counsell v. Livingston, (1902), 4 O. L. R. 340. But the delivery of notice to an outdoor servant, splitting firewood in the indorser's yard, and not known and proved to be an inmate of the indorser's family, with instructions to give same to the indorser, is not sufficient. — Commercial Bank v. Weller, (1848), 5 U. C. Q. B. 543, semble. As to where an indorser goes to fill an office, temporarily leaving his family in his old home, and notice is left there, see Ryan v. Malo, (1861), 12 L. C. R. 8. In Quebec, notice to the curator upon abandonment of property of indorser, is not notice to indorser. — Denenberg v. Mendelsohn, (1903), Q. R. 23 S. C. 128; Molsons Bank v. Steel, (1903), Q. R. 23 S. C. 316.

By whom notice may be given. — See § 97 (b), and note.

Form of notice. — See forms G and H of Schedule to this Act. What is sufficient notice, when facts are undisputed, is a question of law. — Bank of U. C. v. Smith, (1847), 4 U. C. Q. B. 483. A notice stating that the note was duly protested for non-payment necessarily implies presentment and non-payment. — Blain v. Oliphant, (1852), 9 U. C. Q. B. 473. And a notice that a foreign bill has been returned protested is a sufficient notice of non-acceptance, without sending a copy of the protest with the notice. — O'Neil v. Perrin, (1839), Rob. & Jos. Dig. 496. See also Delaney v. Hall, (1858), 3 N. S. 401, and Wiedeman v. Guittard, (1902), 1 O. W. R. 110. So where the note is payable at a particular bank, and the bank as holder states in notice to indorser that the note remains there unpaid, such statement necessarily implies presentment so far as presentment is necessary. — Bank of U. C. v. Street, (1846), 3 U. C. Q. B. 29. And where the note is payable at a particular place other than a bank, a notice sent by holder from that place, stating that the note remains there unpaid, is sufficient, although it does not expressly state that there has been presentment and dishonour. — Blinn v. Dixon, (1848), 5 U. C. Q. B. 580; Harris v. Perry, (1858), 8 U. C. C. P. 407. The use of the words "not covered" in notice to the drawer of a cheque is equivalent to the use of the words "not paid." — Queen v. Bank of Montreal, (1886), 1 Ex. C. R. 154. A notice to the indorser, however, which does not expressly or impliedly state that the note has been presented and dishonoured but merely that it is overdue and unpaid, and that the holder looks to the indorser for indemnity, is not sufficient. — Bank of Montreal v. Grover, (1846), 3 U. C. Q. B. 27, distinguishing Bank of U. C. v. Street, supra. But a notice which, on its face, is insufficient, may by reason of special circumstances surrounding the whole transaction be sufficient. Thus the following notice was held to be good: "I beg to advise you that Mr. T. C. Livingston's note for £ 3,500 in your favour, and indorsed by yourself and wife and held by our estate, was due yesterday. As I have not received renewal, will you kindly see that the same is forwarded with cheque for discount as there is no surplus on hand?" — Counsell v. Livingston, supra. The following notice to the drawer of a cheque was held to be sufficient: "I am now advised that it (the cheque) has not yet been covered by the Bank of P. E. Island. In case of its being returned here unpaid, I deem it proper to notify you of circumstances, as I will be required in that event to reverse the entry and return it to the department." — Queen v. Bank of Montreal, supra. It was pointed out in this case that no notice of dishonour has been held bad in England for defect of form since 1841. The tendency of the modern decision, and the spirit of this Act is apparently in favor of holding any notice sufficient which would reasonably inform the party that the bill in which his name appears has been dishonoured. See Maclaren, Bills, notes, and cheques, p. 277. But see Commercial Bank v. Allan, (1894), 10 Man. 330. As to notice by telegram see McLean v. Garnier, (1882), 15 N. S. 276.

Misdescription. — The general rule prior to the adoption of this section was that a misdescription of the instrument in the notice did not invalidate the notice where there could be no reasonable doubt as to identity. The burden was on the defendant to show that there was another instrument of the same date and amount to which he was a party, or that he was otherwise actually misled by the notice. Thus a notice giving other particulars of the note but not mentioning the amount was held sufficient. — Handyside v. Courtney, (1857), 1 L. C. Jur. 250. So it was held, where the indorser was not actually misled by the error in the notice, that he was not discharged by a misstatement, in notice, of the amount of the note. — Thompson v. Cotterell, (1854), 11 U. C. Q. B. 185. Nor by giving the name of a party incorrectly. — Girvan v. Price, (1857), 8 N. B. 409. Nor by a misstatement of date when due. — Thorn v. Sandford, (1857), 6 U. C. C. P. 462; Robinson v. Taylor, (1843), 4 N. B. 198. Nor even where a note was duly presented and protested for non-payment when due, but notice on day following stated that the presentment and protest had occurred on the day of the notice. — Cassidy v. Mansfield, (1874), 24 U. C. C. P. 383; Blinn v. Dixon, (1848), 5 U. C. Q. B. 580; Low v. Owen, (1862), 12 U. C. C. P. 101.

Form. Return of bill. Signature. Verbal supplement. 99. In point of form: a) The return of a dishonoured bill to the drawer or an endorser is a sufficient notice of dishonour; b) A written notice need not be signed. 2. An insufficient written notice may be supplemented and validated by verbal communication.

Imp. § 49 (6, 7).

Notice to agent. Effect on principal. Time for. 100. Where a bill when dishonoured is in the hands of an agent he may himself give notice to the parties liable on the bill, or he may give notice to his principal, in which case the principal upon receipt of the notice shall have the same time for giving notice as if the agent had been an independent holder. 2. If the agent gives notice to his principal he must do so within the same time as if he were an independent holder.

Imp. § 49 (13). Maclaren says: "This and the following section lay down the rule for successive notices of dishonour, a practice not generally followed in Canada before the Act, where the usage has been for the holder at the time of dishonour to give notice to all the parties through the post office in accordance with the rules laid down in section 103." — Maclaren, Bills, notes, and cheques, p. 279. See note to § 101.

Notice to antecedent parties. 101. Where a party to a bill receives due notice of dishonour he has, after the receipt of such notice, the same period of time for giving notice to antecedent parties that a holder has after dishonour.

Imp. § 49 (14). As to time of notice see § 97. The different branches or agencies of a bank are to be regarded as separate and independent indorsers for the purpose of giving notices of dishonour. — Queen v. Bank of Montreal, (1886), 1 Ex. C. R. 154; Steinhoff v. Merchants' Bank, (1881), 46 U. C. Q. B. 25. See also note to § 103, infra.

Benefit enures. Parties to whom. 102. A notice of dishonour enures for the benefit: a) Of all subsequent holders and of all prior endorsers who have a right of recourse against the party to whom it is given, where given on behalf of the holder; b) Of the holder and of all endorsers subsequent to the party to whom notice is given, where given, by or on behalf of an endorser entitled under this Part to give notice.

Imp. § 49 (3, 4). See §§ 97 (b) and 101 and notes. Where a holder mails a notice to a deceased indorser at the place where the note was dated, being ignorant of the death of the indorser, a subsequent indorser who takes up the paper even though he knew prior to the mailing of notice by the holder at maturity, that the first indorser was dead, has right of action by subrogation against the estate of the deceased indorser. — Cosgrave v. Boyle, (1881), 6 S. C. R. 165.

Sufficiency of giving. Sufficiency of notice. Death of party. 103. Notice of the dishonour of any bill payable in Canada shall, notwithstanding anything in this Act contained be sufficiently given if it is addressed in due time to any party to such bill entitled to such notice, at his customary address or place of residence or at the place at which such bill is dated, unless any such party has, under his signature, designated another place, in which case such notice shall be sufficiently given if addressed to him in due time at such other place. 2. Such notice so addressed shall be sufficient, although the place of residence of such party is other than either of the places aforesaid, and shall be deemed to have been duly served and given for all purposes if it is deposited in any post office, with the postage paid thereon, at any time during the day on which presentment has been made, or on the next following juridical or business day. 3. Such notice shall not be invalid by reason only of the fact that the party to whom it is addressed is dead.

Effect of section on pre-existing law in general. — Maclaren says: "The Imperial Act has no provision exactly corresponding to this subsection, nor has the Negotiable Instruments Law. It is taken in part from section 5 of chapter 123 R. S. C. (1886), which was first enacted in 1874 and applied to the whole of Canada; and in part from section 23 of that chapter which applied to Ontario alone, and article 2328 of the Civil Code which applied to Quebec. Heretofore in Canada the usage has been for the holder at the time of dishonour to send notice to all parties entitled to it, through the post, addressed to them at the place at which the bill or note is dated. By section 104 when such a notice is addressed and posted, the sender is deemed to have given due notice, and by the present section such notice is sufficient. It is not likely in such a case where the notice does not reach the indorser that he will be held to have "received due notice" within the meaning of section 101, so as to make the delay run as to notice to antecedent parties; but the miscarriage being due to his own fault or neglect he might be held responsible under certain circumstances." — Maclaren, Bills, notes, and cheques, pp. 82—83. But in New Brunswick, before the Dominion Act of 1874 supra, it was held that a posted notice addressed to the drawee at the place where the bill was dated, was not valid in the absence of proof that a notice sent to that office would reach him. — Balloch v. Binney, (1847), 5 N. B. 440. Prior to the adoption of this section, it was held that the holder must use due diligence in obtaining the address of the indorser and in giving him notice of dishonour. Whether or not such due diligence was used, was a mixed question of law and fact. — Leith v. O'Neill, (1860), 19 U. C. Q. B. 233. The purpose of this section was to simplify the giving of notice and to relieve the holder of the uncertainty of the rule requiring due diligence. — Cosgrave v. Boyle, (1881), 6 S. C. R. 165.

Who may give notice by post. — Under the prior rule it was held that where the holder and indorser resided at the same post-office and where there was no local delivery, that a notice by depositing in that post-office was not sufficient. — See Taylor v. Grier, (1858), 17 U. C. Q. B. 222, and Chapman v. Bishop, (1852), 1 U. C. C. P. 432. But under this section the notice is sufficiently given if deposited, properly addressed, in any post-office whether or not both parties reside at that same post-office. — Merchants' Bank v. McNutt, (1883), 11 S. C. R. 126.

In what post-office notice must be deposited. — Prior to the adoption of this section, and a fortiori under this section, it is not necessary that the notice be deposited in the post-office nearest the place of presentment and dishonour. It is sufficient if deposited properly addressed and within the prescribed time, at any post-office regularly connected with the Canadian mail system, whether in Canada or not. — Taylor v. Grier, supra; Commercial Bank v. Eccles, (1847), 4 U. C. Q. B. 336; Howard v. Sabourin, (1854), 5 L. C. R. 45.

To what address notice may be mailed. — (1) Customary address or place of residence. — A notice of non-payment of a note sent to an indorser, addressed to him in "York Township" in which he resided, there being no evidence as to whether there were one or more post-offices in that township, nor any proof that a letter for any other purpose would usually have been addressed in any other manner is sufficient as a notice sent to his place of residence. — Bank of U. C. v. Bloor, (1849), 5 U. C. Q. B. 619. But a notice to an indorser at St. John addressed, "Mr. J. Duff-near Blake's mill, Nashawaak" is not sufficient without showing that the letter would probably reach him. — Robinson v. Duff, (1843), 4 N. B. 206. And where the holder of a note knows the name of the indorser, but the notary employed by the holder to protest the note, not being able to make out the signature, makes a facsimile of the signature of the indorser upon an envelope containing notice of dishonour, and addresses same to the customary address of the indorser, the signature not being readily identified, and the notice not being actually received, such notice is insufficient. — Baillie v. Dickson, (1882), 7 O. A. R. 759. A notice of protest addressed to a lady as "sir" instead of "madam" is not sufficient. — Seymour v. Wright, (1852), 3 L. C. R. 454. (2) Place at which bill dated. — Notice addressed to any party at such place is sufficient, no other place being designated, even though the holder may strongly suspect or even know the customary address or place of residence of the party to be elsewhere. — Cosgrave v. Boyle, (1881), 6 S. C. R. 165, semble; Howard v. Sabourin, supra. See Maclaren, pp. 282, 283, supra. (3) Place designated by party under his signature. — The place may be designated by an agent of the party as well as by the party himself. So where there is evidence that the words "Toronto P. O." were placed under the name of the indorser as his address, by the indorsee, with the knowledge and consent of the indorser, a notice mailed to that address is sufficient. — Hay v. Burke, (1889), 16 O. A. R. 463. And such notice is sufficient even though the person giving the notice knows or has reason to believe that such place is not the residence or place of business of the party. — Hay v. Burke, supra, citing Cosgrave v. Boyle, supra. Referring to Cosgrave v. Boyle, the Court further said, "It establishes the proposition that apart from the special Act of Parliament, the question is always one of due diligence on the part of the holder, having regard to the consideration of mercantile convenience. . . . In accordance with the reasoning in that case, I think mercantile convenience requires that the holder of a bill or note acting in good faith, may safely assume that the address written under the signature of any of the parties to it, was put there either in pursuance of the statute, or as the result of correct information obtained to further the negotiable character of the instrument, and that the inconvenience would be intolerable if bankers and others were obliged at their peril to inquire into the correctness of such addresses or into the circumstances under which they were written." — Hay v. Burke, supra. Contra to this dictum, however, is a later case in Quebec in which it was held that if a wrong address of an indorser is written under his name and no proof is given as to who wrote it, a notice sent to such address, not being the place where the instrument is dated, is not sufficient. — Bank Jacques Cartier v. Gagnon, (1894), Q. R. 5 S. C. 499. It had been held prior to the adoption of this section that where the maker sends the note after indorsement by the defendant, to the plaintiff bank for discount, and the messenger gives a wrong address for the indorser, that the plaintiff bank exercises due diligence in mailing notice to the defendant at the address so given, on the ground that the messenger is the agent of the indorser as well as of the maker. — Vaughan v. Ross, (1852), 8 U. C. Q. B. 506. So where an indorser for the accommodation of maker, gave the note back to the maker and maker discounted same, it was held that the indorser gave authority to the maker to consummate the indorsement by delivery and consequently gave the maker implied authority to bind the indorser by the address which he gave to the holder upon the discounting of the note. Accordingly a notice mailed to such address was sufficient. — McMurrich v. Powers, (1853), 10 U. C. Q. B. 481. Following Hay v. Burke, supra, it would seem that the same conclusion would follow under this section. But see contra, Merchants' Bank v. Cunningham, (1892), Q. R. 1 Q. B. 33. The words "under his signature" do not mean "below his signature" but mean that the address shall be written so that the signature covers it. — Bank Jacques Cartier v. Gagnon, supra.

When the notice must be given. — A notice mailed between eight and nine in the evening of the day after protest is sufficient, although the postmark is of the day following. — Wilson v. Pringle, (1856), 14 U. C. Q. B. 230. See also § 97 (a), supra. Prior to the adoption of this section it was held that where, on account of the infrequency of the post, a notice mailed on the day after dishonour would not have reached the indorser for several days, a notice sent by messenger so as to reach the indorser before he could have received the notice had it been so mailed, was sufficient as showing due diligence. — Chapman v. Bishop, (1852), 1 U. C. C. P. 432. It would seem, however, that a different result would follow from § 97 and the present section of this Act, which apparently require that notice be given not later than the day following presentment and dishonour and provide that posting the notice in accordance with the provision of the present section shall constitute the giving of such notice. See also § 105, infra.

Error in address cured by actual receipt within prescribed time. — A letter giving notice of dishonour of a bill although, from misdirection, it has not reached its destination so soon as it otherwise would have, is, nevertheless, a sufficient notice, if, being posted sooner than was necessary, it has in fact been received within the period allowed by the statute for giving notices of dishonour. — Bank of B. N. A. v. Ross, (1843), 1 U. C. Q. B. 199. See also Mitchell v. Browne, (1865), 9 L. C. Jur. 168.

Postage must be prepaid. — A note dated at Montreal, payable in Albany, New York, was protested there, and notice addressed to indorser at Montreal, was held sufficient as to form but invalid because it did not appear that postage was prepaid. — Howard v. Sabourin, (1854), 5 L. C. R. 45.

Notice where party to whom it is addressed is dead. — Maclaren says: "The last clause was added in harmony with the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Cosgrave v. Boyle, (1881), 6 S. C. R. 165." — Maclaren, Bills, notes, and cheques, p. 282. In that case Ritchie, C. J., said, "I am, therefore, not prepared to say that if the bank had known of the death of Boyle a notice addressed as this was, would not have been sufficient, but, as they did not know, the notice, in my opinion was clearly good." See note to § 97 (c), supra.

Proof of giving of notice. — The plaintiff must make out at least a prima facie case that the notice has been given. Thus even where the defendant had not testified to the non-receipt of notice, but the notary who had protested the note stated first that the notice had been given, but on referring to his book of notarial entries and finding no notarial charges, stated that he felt "rather staggered," the court refused to disturb a verdict for the defendant on the ground that not even a prima facie case was established. — McDougall v. Wordsworth, (1858), 8 U. C. C. P. 400. A statement in a certificate of protest that notice of dishonour has been duly given is prima facie evidence of the giving of such notice. See §§ 11 and 12. But this presumptive evidence is not sufficient in the face of a denial by the indorser of the receipt of the notice, to sustain a verdict that such notice has been given. — Ontario Bank v. Burke, (1885), 10 O. P. R. 561. To rebut the inference arising from such denial by indorser, it is not, however, necessary that the party claiming to have mailed same should have a personal recollection of having deposited that particular letter in the mail. So where the notary's clerk testifies that he has no doubt of having mailed the notice to the address given by the indorser, from the statement to that effect in the certificate of protest, which is in his handwriting, from the entries in his notarial ledger which is produced, and which contains entries of the day and hour of mailing such notice, and from his practice of making these entries just before he takes the notices over to the post-office, this is held to be sufficient evidence of mailing such notice, and a new trial will be granted after verdict for defendant, on a plea of no notice, on the ground that the verdict is contrary to the evidence. — Merchant's Bank v. McDougall, (1879), 30 U. C. C. P. 236. See, as to bills payable outside of Canada, § 162.

Miscarriage in post service. 104. Where a notice of dishonour is duly addressed and posted, as provided in the last preceding section, the sender is deemed to have given due notice of dishonour, notwithstanding any miscarriage by the post office.

Imp. § 49 (15). See note to § 103. Falconbridge says: "It is not clear, however, that the words 'as provided in the last preceding section' do not qualify 'addressed' as well as 'posted.' If they do, then sec. 104 must be confined to a notice which falls within the provisions of sec. 103, and does not apply to a case where a notice is addressed to the indorser at the place where he is in fact, but not being an address expressly authorized by sec. 103, and is lost in the post office. Such a case, if the words in question are to be so construed, is not provided for by the Act, and would have to be decided according to the common law of England (sec. 10)." — Falconbridge, Banking and bills of exchange, pp. 528, 529. It would seem, however, that in the case suggested the result would, at common law, be the same, as in the cases specifically provided for by this section. — See Woodcock v. Houldsworth, (1846), 16 M. & W. 124; Mackay v. Judkins, (1858), 1 F. & F. 208; Renwick v. Tighe, (1860), 8 W. R. 391; Packer v. Gordon, (1806), 7 East. 385; Dunlop v. Higgins, (1848), 1 H. L. Cas. 380. Further "By R. S. C. c. 66, s. 83, as soon as any letter is deposited in the post office, it ceases to be the property of the sender and becomes the property of the person to whom it is addressed. It is in accordance with principle that the loss should fall on the owner. — See Bank of U. C. v. Smith, (1846), 3 U. C. Q. B. 358, s. c. (1847), 4 U. C. Q. B. 483; Taylor v. Grier, (1858), 17 U. C. Q. B. 222; Shannon v. Hastings M. Ins. Co., (1877), 2 O. A. R. 81; Delaporte v. Madden, (1872), 17 L. C. Jur. 29." — Maclaren, Bills, notes, and cheques, p. 286.

Excuse for delay. Diligence. 105. Delay in giving notice of dishonour is excused where the delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the party giving notice, and not imputable to his default, misconduct, or negligence. 2. When the cause of delay ceases to operate the notice must be given with reasonable diligence.

Imp. § 50. Maclaren says: "In England and the United States, where no provision exists similar to that in section 103, recognizing as sufficient a notice posted to any party addressed to the place where the bill is dated, if no other address is given, circumstances would excuse delay, which would not be sufficient in Canada. Notice does not require to be given until after presentment and dishonour. Where delay in presentment is excused, a notice mailed the following day is regular. The only circumstances likely to arise in Canada to cause excusable delay in giving notice, would be the death or sudden illness of the holder, or some accident to the person making out the notices, or to the messenger charged with taking them to the post office." — Maclaren, Bills, notes, and cheques, p. 287. See as to excuses for delay under the earlier rule requiring in all cases reasonable diligence. — Tarratt v. Wilmot, (1849), 6 N. B. 353; Bank of N. B. v. Knowles, (1843), 4 N. B. 219. As to liability of a bank to the holder for negligent failure to give notice within reasonable time after the cause of delay ceased to operate, and where notice was not dispensed with, see Steinhoff v. Merchants' Bank, (1881), 46 U. C. Q. B. 25.

Dispensed with. Reasonable diligence. Waiver. Time of. 106. Notice of dishonour is dispensed with: a) When after the exercise of reasonable diligence, notice as required by this Act cannot be given to or does not reach the drawer or endorser sought to be charged; b) By waiver express or implied. 2. Notice of dishonour may be waived before the time of giving notice has arrived, or after the omission to give due notice.

Imp. § 50. As to reasonable diligence dispensing with notice, see note to § 105, supra.

Waiver. — As to express waiver at time of drawing or indorsing, see § 34 (b) supra.

Waiver by express promise, or admission after failure. — An express promise to pay with knowledge of default in giving notice is a waiver of such default. — Bank of B. N. A. v. Ross, (1843), 1 U. C. Q. B. 199; Bank of U. C. v. Cooley, (1834), 4 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 17; Beckett v. Cornish, (1847), 4 U. C. Q. B. 138; Ross v. Wilson, (1812), 2 Rev. de Leg. 28; McLaurin v. Seguin, (1896), Q. R. 12 S. C. 63. See also Ranger v. Aumais, (1903), 5 Q. P. R. 450. Such an express promise is held binding as being based upon a good moral consideration, as in the case of a promise by a debtor to pay a debt barred by the statute of limitations, or as amounting to a waiver of an implied condition in the liability of indorser. — Brown v. Marsh, (1852), 1 U. C. C. P. 438. In this case Macaulay, C. J., said: "Although due notice has now become a settled doctrine and virtually constitutes a part of the individual or implied undertakings of indorsers, unless excused or dispensed with on some peculiar ground, in the present case I find that the consideration was sufficient to support the express promise, as the plaintiff would have been entitled to recover on original or common law principles had not a legal maxim respecting notice of dishonour interposed, it being in the power of the party protested thereby to dispense with its operation." See also Gillespie v. Marsh, (1852), 1 U. C. C. P. 453; Shaw v. Salmon, (1860), 19 U. C. Q. B. 512. However, such a promise, although conditional, and although a promise to pay in land, has been held to constitute a waiver, not on the ground of its being a contract stipulation based on good consideration, but on the ground of estoppel. — Burke v. Elliott, (1857), 15 U. C. Q. B. 610. And it is held that such a promise made after action brought will avail the plaintiff in the same manner as if made before. — Burke v. Elliott, supra; McCuniffe v. Allen, (1848), 6 U. C. Q. B. 384. The promise must be clear and amount to an admission of holder's right as against promisor or of the duty of promisor to pay, and must, from the words used and all the circumstances be clearly referable to the particular note in question. Thus, where the plaintiff's agent testified that after the maturity of a bill, in conversation with him respecting the whole liability, which included liability on notes of the non-payment of which due notice had been given, defendant appeared willing to pay and said that if he and his brother (the acceptor) got time, it would be all right, but made no promise specifically mentioning this bill, it was held that this evidence was not sufficient to warrant a verdict for the plaintiffs. — Bank of Montreal v. Scott, (1864), 24 U. C. Q. B. 115. See also, as to what evidence is sufficient to establish such waiver by subsequent promise, Reed v. Mercer, (1866), 16 U. C. C. P. 279.

Waiver by implied promise or admission after failure to give notice. — The promise need not be express, but circumstances showing clearly an admission of liability on the part of indorser, with reference to the particular bill or note in question, are sufficient. So where the indorser goes to the holder when the note is due, offers renewal note and asks for time in which to pay, such conduct amounts to a waiver of due notice. — Smith v. Lang, (1902), 22 C. L. T. 418. But a statement to the holder by the indorser of a dishonoured note that he will see the maker about it and his subsequent statement that he has seen the maker who has promised to pay as soon as he can, with a request not to "crowd the note" are not in themselves sufficient evidence of such waiver. — Britton v. Milsom, (1892), 19 O. A. R. 96. See also Bank of Montreal v. Scott, supra, semble. Promises to pay, although not clear or definite enough to constitute an express or implied waiver, may nevertheless amount to evidence that the notice has been actually given and received. See Bank of B. N. A. v. Ross, supra; McCuniffe v. Allen, supra; Brown v. Marsh, supra; Britton v. Milsom, supra.

Knowledge of facts giving rise to defence essential. — It seems that a subsequent acknowledgment of liability, express or implied, to constitute a waiver, must be made with full knowledge of the facts which give rise to the defence of no notice of dishonour. — Murray v. Ayer, (1909), 6 East. L. R. 509; McFatrige v. Williston, (1892) 25 N. S. 11; Bank of U. C. v. Cooley, supra, semble. But see McLaurin v. Seguin, (1897), Q. R. 12 S. C. 63. Where a promise to pay, in writing, dated the day after the note fell due (April 30) and promising to pay the note if same was not paid by May 15th. was held to be a waiver of protest although there was no finding of knowledge on the part of the promisor that holder failed to have note protested.

Waiver before notice due. — Notice of dishonour may be waived or dispensed with before as well as after maturity. As to evidence sufficient to establish such waiver by prior dispensation, see Reed v. Mercer, (1866), 16 U. C. C. P. 279. In such a case it is necessary to plead particularly that notice is dispensed with, contrary to the rule which applies where the alleged waiver has taken place after the time for notice has expired. — Shaw v. Salmon, (1860), 19 U. C. Q. B. 512. Such waiver before maturity may be by representations calculated to induce and inducing holder to refrain from giving such notice, as well as by agreement, express or implied, not to insist upon the required notice. Thus, where the indorser before maturity wrote a letter to the holder, admitting his liability and stating that the maker had become bankrupt, and that indorser had procured confession of judgment from the maker, the letter being written for the purpose of throwing the holder off his guard and inducing him to refrain from giving notice of non-payment, such letter was held to amount to a waiver of the required notice. — Beckett v. Cornish, (1847), 4 U. C. Q. B. 138.

Who may waive notice. — Waiver of notice of dishonour by curator in Quebec does not bind the insolvent. — See note to § 110 and cases cited. For other cases applying the doctrine of waiver see note to § 92.

Dispensed with: same person; fictitious person; presented to drawer; no obligation; countermand. 107. Notice of dishonour is dispensed with as regards the drawer where: a) The drawer and drawee are the same person; b) The drawee is a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract; c) The drawer is the person to whom the bill is presented for payment; d) The drawee or acceptor is, as between himself and the drawer, under no obligation to accept or pay the bill; e) The drawer has countermanded payment.

Imp. § 50. See § 26 and note. Prior to the adoption of this section it was held that where a drawer had no effects in the hands of the drawee or any reasonable grounds for expecting he would have or that the bill would be honoured, he might be sued without previous notice of dishonour. — Knapp v. Bank of Montreal, (1850), 1 L. C. R. 252; Stayner v. Howatt, (1882), 15 N. S. 267.

Dispensed with. Fictitious person. Presented to endorser. Accommodation. 108. Notice of dishonour is dispensed with as regards the endorser where: a) The drawee is a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract, and the endorser was aware of the fact at the time he endorsed the bill; b) The endorser is the person to whom the bill is presented for payment; c) The bill was accepted or made for his accommodation.

Imp. § 50. An indorser is entitled to notice of dishonour whether or not the drawee has funds in his hands. — Griffin v. Philips, (1821), 2 Rev. de Leg. 30. Notice of dishonour to the indorser is not dispensed with when a note becomes exigible in the Province of Quebec before the date of maturity, under Art. 1092, Civil Code on account of insolvency of both maker and indorser. — Banque Nationale v. Martel, (1899), Q. R. 17 S. C. 97. See note to § 95.

Protest.

Necessity of. 109. In order to render the acceptor of a bill liable it is not necessary to protest it.

Imp. § 52.

Dispensed with. 110. Protest is dispensed with by any circumstances which would dispense with notice of dishonour.

Imp. § 51. See §§ 106, 107, and 108, supra, and notes. Waiver. — Thus a promise to pay made after maturity of note amounts to a waiver of protest. — Goldie v. Maxwell, (1841), 1 U. C. Q. B. 424, McLaurin v. Seguin, (1896), Q. R. 12 S. C. 63. But a waiver of protest has been held not to be necessarily an admission that the instrument is genuine or that the party is liable thereon. — Royal Bank v. Maughan, (1908), 12 O. W. R. 899. A waiver of protest by a curator in Quebec does not bind the insolvent. — Denenberg v. Mendelsohn, (1903), Q. R. 23 S. C. 128; Molsons Bank v. Steel, (1903), Q. R. 23 S. C. 316, overruling In re Boutin, (1897), Q. R. 12 S. C. 186. See also note to § 92, supra.

Delay excused. Diligence. 111. Delay in noting or protesting is excused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder, and not imputable to his default, misconduct, or negligence. 2. When the cause of delay ceases to operate, the bill must be noted or protested with reasonable diligence.

Imp. § 51. See §§ 91 and 105, supra, and notes.

Foreign bill, non-acceptance. Non-payment. Balance. Discharge. 112. Where a foreign bill appearing on the face of it to be such has been dishonoured by non-acceptance it must be duly protested for non-acceptance. 2. Where a foreign bill which has not been previously dishonoured by non-acceptance is dishonoured by non-acceptance is dishonoured by non-payment, it must be duly protested for non-payment. 3. Where a foreign bill has been accepted only as to part it must be protested as to the balance. 4. If a foreign bill is not protested as by this section required the drawer and endorsers are discharged.

Imp. §§ 44, 51. As to what is a foreign bill, see § 25, supra. See also § 162.

Protest of inland bill. Quebec. 113. Where an inland bill has been dishonoured, it may, if the holder thinks fit, be noted and protested for non-acceptance or non-payment as the case may be; but it shall not, except in the Province of Quebec, be necessary to note or protest an inland bill in order to have recourse against the drawer or endorsers.

Imp. § 51. As to what is an inland bill, see § 25, supra. For form of the noting of a bill for non-acceptance, see Form A in Schedule to this Act. For cases where protesting for non-acceptance is compulsory, see §§ 117 and 147, infra.

Discharge in default of protest. Protest unnecessary. 114. In the case of an inland bill drawn upon any person in the Province of Quebec or payable or accepted at any place in the said Province the parties liable on the said bill other than the acceptor are, in default of protest for non-acceptance or non-payment as the case may be, and of notice thereof, discharged, except in cases where the circumstances are such as would dispense with notice of dishonour. 2. Except as in this section provided, where a bill does not on the face of it appear to be a foreign bill, protest thereof in case of dishonour is unnecessary.

Imp. § 51 (1). Prior to the adoption of this section it was held that where a bill or note was payable in Lower Canada, the law of that Province governed as to the sufficiency of notice of dishonour, although the indorser resided in upper Canada and made the indorsement there. — City Bank v. Ley, (1843), 1 U. C. Q. B. 192; Smith v. Hall, (1847), 3 U. C. Q. B. 315.

Subsequent protest for non-payment. 115. A bill which has been protested for non-acceptance, or a bill of which protest for non-acceptance has been waived, may be subsequently protested for non-payment.

Imp. § 51.

Protest for better security. 116. Where the acceptor of a bill suspends payment before it matures, the holder may cause the bill to be protested for better security against the drawer and endorsers.

Imp. § 51. In Quebec, under the Code, upon the insolvency of the acceptor or maker, a bill or note becomes immediately exigible as against him. — Lovell v. Meikle, (1853), 2 L. C. Jur. 69. And where both acceptor and indorser become insolvent the bill is immediately exigible as against both, but protest and notice thereof are not thereby dispensed with. — Banque Nationale v. Martel, (1899), Q. R. 17 S. C. 97. See notes to §§ 95, 96, and 106, infra.

Acceptance for honour. Protest for non-payment. 117. Where a dishonoured bill has been accepted for honour supra protest, or contains a reference in case of need, it must be protested for non-payment before it is presented for payment to the acceptor for honour, or referee in case of need. 2. When a bill of exchange is dishonoured by the acceptor for honour, it must be protested for non-payment by him.

Imp. § 51. As to acceptance for honour, see §§ 147 — 152, infra.

Noting equivalent to protest. 118. For the purposes of this Act, where a bill is required to be protested within a specified time or before some further proceeding is taken, it is sufficient that the bill has been noted for protest before the expiration of the specified time or the taking of the proceeding.

Imp. § 93.

Noting or protest. Extending protest. 119. Subject to the provisions of this Act, when a bill is protested the protest must be made or noted on the day of its dishonour. 2. When a bill has been duly noted, the formal protest may be extended thereafter at any time as of the date of the noting.

Imp. § 51, 93. See Form D of Schedule to this Act for a form for extension of a certificate of protest where the bill has been duly noted.

Protest on copy or particulars. 120. Where a bill is lost or destroyed, or is wrongly or accidentally detained from the person entitled to hold it, or is accidentally retained in a place other than where payable, protest may be made on a copy or written particulars thereof.

Imp. § 51.

Place of protest. Where bill returned. Time when. 121. A bill must be protested at the place where it is dishonoured, or at some other place in Canada situate within five miles of the place of presentment and dishonour of such bill: Provided that: a) When a bill is presented through the post office and returned by post dishonoured, it may be protested at the place to which it is returned, not later than on the day of its return or the next juridical day; b) Every protest for dishonour, either for non-acceptance or non-payment may be made on the day of such dishonour, and in case of non-acceptance at any time after non-acceptance, and in case of non-payment at any time after three o'clock in the afternoon.

Imp. § 51. Subdivision (b) of this section has been relied upon in Ontario as establishing a difference between the English and Canadian law with the result that an action brought by holder on a writ sued out at 5:00 P. M. on the afternoon of the last day of grace was not deemed premature. — Sinclair v. Robson, (1858), 16 U. C. Q. B. 211. But in the late case of Westaway v. Stewart, (1908), 8 West. L. R. 907, aff'd., (1909), 10 West. L. R. 623, this distinction was expressly repudiated, the Court holding that in such a case the action was prematurely brought. See note to § 95, supra. In Westaway v. Stewart, supra, the Court said: "But [subsection (b) of sec. 121 of our Bills of Exchange Act is not contained in the English Act, and the effect of this subsection has to be considered. According to the law of England a bill or note may be presented for payment at any time within reasonable hours of the last day of grace, and, should payment be refused, the bill or note may be protested for non-payment. Yet the acceptor, or maker, as the case may be, has the whole of such day of grace within which to pay. This is the law as laid down in Kennedy v. Thomas, (1894) 2 Q. B. 759. In the face of sec. 42 of our Bills of Exchange Act, I cannot see that subsection (b) has any greater effect than to extend the time for presenting a bill or note till 3 o'clock of the last day of grace. I am of opinion that this subsection does not effect any other change. Under sec. 42 of our Bills of Exchange Act a bill (or note) is payable on the last day of grace. This is the same as sec. 14 of the English Bills of Exchange Act. Lord Justice Lopes in Kennedy v. Thomas, at p. 763, after referring to the provision in the English Act, says: 'I read that as meaning that the bill is due and payable at the end of the last day of grace, and that no cause of action by the holder against the acceptor exists until the end of the third day of grace. If he has not the whole of the third day during which to meet the bill, I cannot see how he gets three days of grace.' The decision in Sinclair v. Robson, if given effect to, would cause this section to read that the bill is due and payable at or before 3 o'clock. The Act 14 & 15 Vic. c. 94, the Act mentioned in Sinclair v. Robson, did not contain a provision similar to that of our section 42. If it had, the result in Sinclair v. Robson might have been different. This provision was first introduced in 1872."

Contents of protest. Person. Place. Reason. Proceeding. Excuse. 122. A protest must contain a copy of the bill, or the original bill may be annexed thereto, and the protest must be signed by the notary making it, and must specify: a) The person at whose request the bill is protested; b) The place and date of protest; c) The cause or reason for protesting the bill; d) The demand made and the answer given, if any; or, e) The fact that the drawee or acceptor could not be found.

Imp. § 51. This method of protesting was that followed in Ontario before the Act. — R. S. C. (1886), c. 123, § 24 and Schedule A. In Quebec the bill and indorsements were copied in the protest, which was made in duplicate. — C. S. L. C. c. 64, §§ 11, 12; R. S. C. (1836), c. 123, § 29, and Schedule B.

Necessity of official seal. — A seal is not necessary under this Act. This was the rule in Ontario and Quebec prior to the Act. — Goldie v. Maxwell, (1841), 1 U. C. Q. B. 424, semble; Russell v. Crofton, (1852), 1 U. C. C. P. 428; R. S. C. (1886), c. 123, Schedules A and B. But in Nova Scotia the seal was held to be necessary. — Merchants' Bank v. Spinney, (1879), 13 N. S. 87.

Not necessary to state the time of day of protest. — It is necessary to state in the certificate of protest that the protest was made after three o'clock in the afternoon of the day of dishonour. See Forms in Schedule to this Act. Prior to the Act of 1851, a certificate of protest, which did not state that the protest was made in the afternoon of the day it bore date, was invalid. — Joseph v. Belisle, (1851), 1 L. C. R. 244. See §§ 11 and 12, supra.

Official when notary is not accessible. 123. Where a dishonoured bill is authorized or required to be protested, and the services of a notary cannot be obtained at the place where the bill is dishonoured, any justice of the peace resident in the place may present and protest such bill and give all necessary notices and shall have all the necessary powers of a notary in respect thereto.

Imp. § 94. This section declares the law as it previously existed in Lower Canada and Quebec. — C. S. L. C., c. 64, § 24; C. C. Art. 2304.

Where notary disqualified. — A notary who is one of the indorsers on a promissory note is not entitled to act as notary to make the protest, even where he substitutes the name of another person for his own and purports to make the protest at the request of the person so substituted. — Pelletier v. Brosseau, (1890), M. L. R. 6 S. C. 331. See also § 13, supra.

When clerk may act for notary. — "In England, Canada, and most of the United States, bills, as a rule, are not presented by the notary in person, but by his clerk. Where such a usage prevails it will be recognized. So held in Ontario by Galt, C. J., in Boas v. McCartney, Feb. 18th, 1889; affirmed by Queen's Bench Divisional Court, May 23d, 1889 (not reported)." — Maclaren, Bills, notes, and cheques.

Expenses. Fees. 124. The expense of noting and protesting any bill and the postages thereby incurred, shall be allowed and paid to the holder in addition to any interest thereon. 2. Notaries may charge the fees in each Province heretofore allowed them.

Forms. Contents. 125. The forms in the Schedule to this Act may be used in noting or protesting any bill and in giving notice thereof. 2. A copy of the bill and endorsement may be included in the forms, or the original bill may be annexed and the necessary changes in that behalf made in the forms.

Imp. § 94.

When notice of protest shall be given. 126. Notice of the protest of any bill payable in Canada shall be sufficiently given and shall be sufficient and deemed to have been duly given and served, if given during the day on which protest has been made or on the next following juridical or business day, to the same parties and in the same manner and addressed in the same way as is provided by this Part for notice of dishonour.

Liabilities of parties.

Equitable assignment. 127. A bill, of itself, does not operate as an assignment of funds in the hands of the drawee available for the payment thereof, and the drawee of a bill who does not accept as required by this Act is not liable on the instrument.

Imp. § 53. The rule of this section was the law in Ontario before the enactment of this section. — Caldwell v. Merchants' Bank, (1876), 26 U. C. C. P. 294; Lamb v. Sutherland, (1875), 37 U. C. Q. B. 143; Hall v. Prittie, (1890), 17 O. A. R. 306. In Quebec, however, it was held that a cheque was a transfer of so much of the drawer's funds in the bank, and of itself gave the holder a right of action against the bank. — Marler v. Molsons Bank, (1879), 23 L. C. Jur. 293. But this section has abrogated the rule which previously obtained in Quebec. — Silverstone v. Bank of Hochelaga, (1901), 21 C. L. T. 309. The Ontario rule now prevails throughout Canada, and applies to cheques as well as to other bills. — Re Commercial Bank, (1894), 10 Man. 171. Where, however, a bill is drawn on the understanding of all the parties that it is to operate as an assignment of a certain fund, it has been held that it will operate as such. — Lane v. Dugannon, (1892), 22 O. R. 264. And where a bill is delivered to the drawee, who holds funds with which to pay, and he communicates to the payee the fact that he has funds of the drawer on hand to pay a pre-existing debt, due from the drawer to the payee, it has been held to operate either as an equitable assignment or as an irrevocable trust so as to be effective in equity without an acceptance. — Trunkfield v. Proctor, (1901), 2 O. L. R. 326.

Engagement by acceptance. 128. The acceptor of a bill, by accepting it, engages that he will pay it according to the tenor of his acceptance.

Imp. § 54. A collateral contract between acceptor and drawer that upon the happening of a contingency the bill shall be altered so as to postpone the day of payment, is available to the acceptor as an equitable defence against a purchaser of the bill with notice. — Goldstein v. Gillis, (1909), 10 West. L. R. 109.

Estoppel. Genuineness and authority. Capacity of drawer. Payee and capacity. 129. The acceptor of a bill by accepting it is precluded from denying to a holder in due course: a) The existence of the drawer, the genuineness of his signature, and his capacity and authority to draw the bill; b) In the case of a bill payable to drawer's order, the then capacity of the drawer to endorse, but not the genuineness or validity of his endorsement; c) In the case of a bill payable to the order of a third person, the existence of the payee and his then capacity to endorse, but not the genuineness or validity of his endorsement.

Imp. § 54. The drawee either by accepting or paying without acceptance a bill drawn upon him is precluded from denying the genuineness of the drawer's signature. — Union Bank v. Bank, (1880), 24 L. C. Jur. 309; Bank v. The King, (1907), 38 S. C. R. 258. But the drawee is not precluded from denying the genuineness of an indorsement. — Ryan v. Bank, (1887), 14 O. A. R. 533. As to fictitious payees, see § 21.

Drawer. Engages acceptance and compensation. Estoppel as to payee. 130. The drawer of a bill, by drawing it: a) Engages that on due presentment it shall be accepted and paid according to its tenor, and that if it is dishonoured he will compensate the holder or any endorser who is compelled to pay it, if the requisite proceedings on dishonour are duly taken; b) Is precluded from denying to a holder in due course the existence of the payee and his then capacity to endorse.

Imp. § 55. As to fictitious payees, see § 21. The drawer of a bill, being by his contract secondarily liable, is discharged by a binding agreement between the holder and the acceptor extending the latter's time for paying the bill. — See note to § 133, infra, and compare note to § 55, supra.

Liability by signature. Irregular endorsement. 131. No person is liable as drawer, endorser or acceptor of a bill who has not signed it as such: Provided that when a person signs a bill otherwise than as a drawer or acceptor he thereby incurs the liabilities of an endorser to a holder in due course and is subject to all the provisions of this Act respecting endorsers.

Imp. §§ 23, 56. Under this section one who indorses a note before its issue to the payee irregularly or pour aval, for the accommodation of the maker, is liable in the same manner as a regular indorser (see § 133, infra) to the payee as well as to subsequent holders in due course. — Robinson v. Mann, (1901), 31 S. C. R. 484; Slater v. Laboree, (1905), 10 O. L. R. 648; Ayr Co. v. Wallace, (1892), 21 S. C. R. 256, semble. See also Balcolm v. Phinney, (1892), 30 C. L. J. 240; Emard v. Marcille, (1892), Q. R. 2 S. C. 525; s. c. (1893), Q. R. 3 S. C. 268; Banque Cartier v. Gagnon, (1894), Q. R. 5 S. C. 499; Abbott v. Wurtele, (1894), Q. R. 6 S. C. 204; Watson v. Harvey, (1894), 10 Man. 641; Wells v. McCarthy, (1895), 10 Man. 639; Fraser v. McLeod, (1895), 2 Terr. L. R. 154; Pegg v. Howlett, (1897), 28 O. R. 473; Re Lehigh Mines, (1908), 12 O. W. R. 854; McDonough v. Cook, (1909), 29 C. L. T. 647; Knechtel Co. v. Ideal Co., (1909), 11 West. L. R. 344; Hatfield v. McCrohan, (1910), 15 West. L. R. 638; Johnson v. Macrae, (1911), 17 West. L. R. 132. But see, contra, Robertson v. Davis, (1897), 27 S. C. R. 571, 574, semble; Clapperton v. Mutchmor, (1899), 30 O. R. 595; Canadian Bank v. Ferram, (1899), 31 O. R. 116; Small v. Henderson, (1899), 27 O. A. R. 492; Secor v. Gray, (1901), 3 O. L. R. 34.

Trade or assumed name. Firm name. 132. Where a person signs a bill in a trade or assumed name he is liable thereon as if he had signed it in his own name. 2. The signature of the name of a firm is equivalent to the signature by the person so signing, of the names of all persons liable as partners in that firm.

Imp. § 23. One may adopt as his name, the name of his wife or his agent, in which event he will be chargeable on a bill or note signed, accepted, or indorsed, by his authority in his assumed name. — Ross v. Codd, (1850), 7 U. C. Q. B. 64, semble. But in the absence of such an adoption, the indorsement by an agent in his own name of a bill or note payable to him, is not the indorsement of the principal, even though the agent was acting for his principal in the transaction, one of the incidents of which was the making of the indorsement. — Ross v. Codd, supra. In that case Robinson, C. J., said (pp. 67, 68): "Williamson v. Johnson, 1 B. & C. 146. does not apply, because there was no evidence here that the defendant had been in the habit of transacting business under the name of Margaret E. Codd. Neither are any of those cases (Linders v. Bradwell, 5 C. B.) in point, where a wife, as agent for her husband, has endorsed a bill in her own name which she had taken for her husband, and the question has arisen, whether the maker could be sued by her indorsee, because there the only point was with respect to the passing the property in the bill, the action being against a party clearly liable on the face of the instrument. So also those cases are beside the present, where a husband has been sued as acceptor upon an acceptance signed by his wife in her own name, and it has been proved that she acted by his general or special authority; because in those cases the bill was addressed to the husband — his connection with it appears on the face of the bill — and the wife, by writing 'accepted' on such bill, and signing only her own name, may, without looking out of the instrument, be fairly taken to declare 'for A. B. on whom this bill is drawn, I accept it', and being, legally speaking, identified in person with her husband, the action has, under such circumstances, been sustained against him as acceptor. That is only an extension of the same principle as that on which Lord Ellenborough decided in Masson v. Ramsay et al., 1 Campb. 384, where a bill drawn on Messrs. Ramsay & Co. was accepted by one of the firm, thus 'accepted, T. Ramsay, sen.', without any words denoting that it was accepted for the firm. Lord Ellenborough said: 'If a bill is drawn upon a firm, and accepted by one of the partners, he must be understood to exercise his power to bind his co-partners and to accept the bill according to the terms in which it is drawn.' The acceptance by a partner of a bill drawn on the partnership in his own name, or in any other name, not that of the firm, does not bind the firm. — Royal Bank v. Wilson, (1874), 24 U. C. C. P. 362; Hovey v. Cassels, (1879), 30 U. C. C. P. 230.

Endorser. Engages acceptance or compensation. Genuineness and regularity. Validity. 133. [As amended by 7 & 8 Edw. 7, c. 8, § 1.] The endorser of a bill, by endorsing it, subject to the effect of any express stipulation hereinbefore authorized: a) Engages that on due presentment it shall be accepted and paid according to its tenor, and that if it is dishonoured he will compensate the holder or a subsequent endorser who is compelled to pay it, if the requisite proceedings on dishonour are duly taken; b) Is precluded from denying to a holder in due course the genuineness and regularity in all respects of the drawer's signature and all previous endorsements; c) Is precluded from denying to his immediate or a subsequent indorsee that the bill was, at the time of his endorsement, a valid and subsisting bill, and that he had then a good title thereto.

Imp. § 55. In an action against the last indorser of a note it is no defence that the names of the maker and prior indorsers are forged. — Eastwood v. Westley, (1839), 6 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 55; McLeod v. Carman, (1869), 12 N. B. 592. The indorser of an unaccepted bill is estopped from denying the genuineness of the signature or the legal capacity of the drawer. — Ross v. Dixie, (1850), 7 U. C. Q. B. 414; Merchants' Bank v. United Empire Club Co., (1879), 44 U. C. Q. B. 468; Norris v. Condon, (1888), 14 Q. L. R. 184. An accommodation indorser is similarly estopped. — Choquette v. Le Claire, (1900), Q. R. 19 S. C. 521. One of two joint payees who has indorsed cannot as against his immediate indorsee set up lack of indorsement by the other payee. — Thurgar v. Clarke, (1844), 4 N. B. 370. The indorser of a bill or note, being by his contract secondarily liable, is discharged by a binding agreement between the holder and the acceptor or maker, extending the latter's time for paying the instrument. — Vankoughnet v. Mills, (1856), 5 Grant, 653; Arthur v. Lier, 8 U. C. C. P. 180; Farrell v. Oshawa Co., (1859), 9 U. C. C. P. 239. Cp. note to §§ 55, 130, supra.

Measure of damages. Amount of bill. Interest. Expense. 134. Where a bill is dishonoured, the measure of damages which shall be deemed to be liquidated damages shall be: a) The amount of the bill; b) Interest thereon from the time of presentment for payment, if the bill is payable on demand, and from the maturity of the bill in any other case; c) The expenses of noting and protest.

Imp. § 57. "Amount of the bill" includes interest called for on its face. — Crouse v. Park, (1847), 3 U. C. Q. B. 458. The legal rate of interest allowed by the law of Canada is five per cent. — R. S. C. 1906, c. 120, § 3. The rate of interest payable on the face of the bill does not govern after maturity, the legal rate applying from that time. — St. John v. Rykert, (1884), 10 S. C. R. 278; Dalby v. Humphrey, (1875), 37 U. C. Q. B. 514; Simonton v. Graham, (1881), 8 O. P. R. 495; People's Loan and Deposit Co. v. Grant, (1890), 18 S. C. R. 262. These cases change the early rule. — Howland v. Jennings, (1861), 11 U. C. C. P. 272; Montgomery v. Boucher, (1864), 14 U. C. C. P. 45; O'Connor v. Clarke, (1871), 18 Grant, 422. But the parties may make a contract fixing any rate of interest, however exorbitant, to be paid after maturity, and such rate will govern. — Young v. Fluke, (1865), 15 U. C. C. P. 360. Under R. S. O. c. 116, § 3, which gave to a surety paying a debt and securing an assignment thereof the rights of the creditor, an indorser being forced to pay and securing the assignment of a joint judgment against himself and the maker, was held to be entitled to recover the whole amount of the judgment including costs. — Harper v. Culbert, (1883), 5 O. R. 152. In Quebec a demand note bears interest only from demand and default. — Cleroux v. Pigeon, (1888), 32 L. C. Jur. 236. But see Dechantal v. Pominville, (1860), 6 L. C. Jur. 88.

Recovery of same. 135. In case of the dishonour of a bill the holder may recover from any party liable on the bill, the drawer who has been compelled to pay the bill may recover from the acceptor, and an endorser who has been compelled to pay the bill may recover from the acceptor or from the drawer, or from a prior endorser, the damages aforesaid.

Imp. § 57. See notes to § 73.

Re-exchange and interest. 136. In the case of a bill which has been dishonoured abroad in addition to the damages aforesaid, the holder may recover from the drawer or any endorser, and the drawer or an endorser who has been compelled to pay the bill may recover from any party liable to him, the amount of the re-exchange with interest thereon until the time of payment.

Imp. § 57.

Transferer by delivery. Liability of. 137. Where the holder of a bill payable to bearer negotiates it by delivery without endorsing it, he is called a 'transferer by delivery.' 2. A transferer by delivery is not liable on the instrument.

Imp. § 58.

Warranty by. Genuineness. Right to transfer. Bona fides. 138. A transferer by delivery who negotiates a bill thereby warrants to his immediate transferee, being a holder for value: a) That the bill is what it purports to be; b) That he has a right to transfer it; and c) That at the time of transfer he is not aware of any fact which renders it valueless.

Imp. § 58. A person receiving bank notes in payment of property, or in exchange for cash, or on deposit to the credit of the payer, has the right in case of failure of the bank, to return the notes, if he does so within a proper time after receipt. — Conn v. Merchants' Bank, (1879), 30 U. C. C. P. 380. Where a note of a third party is transferred for valuable security, being given in payment of goods purchased, and the note is not endorsed by the transferer, a warranty is implied that the maker is not insolvent to the knowledge of the transferer. If it be proved that the maker of the note was insolvent to the knowledge of the transferer, the party who received it is entitled to offer it back and claim the amount from the transferer, without asking for the rescission of the contract in toto. — Lewis v. Jeffery, (1875), M. L. R. 7 Q. B. 141. Where a vendor of a colt takes, in payment of the purchase money, the note of a third party, unindorsed or otherwise guaranteed in writing by the purchaser, but which the purchaser (knowing the same to be worthless) represents to the vendor to be "as good as gold," and which proves to be really worthless in consequence of the insolvency of the parties thereto, the vendor may tender the note back and sue simply for the purchase money, without demanding the rescission of the sale. — Miller v. Daudelin, (1879), 24 L. C. Jur. 208. An indorser without recourse warrants to his vendee the genuineness of prior indorsements. — Bank v. Harty, (1906), 12 O. L. R. 218. Cp. Merchant's Bank v. Whidden, (1891), 19 S. C. R. 53.

Discharge of bill.

Payment. Payment in due course. Accommodation bill. 139. A bill is discharged by payment in due course by or on behalf of the drawee or acceptor. 2. Payment in due course means payment made at or after the maturity of the bill to the holder thereof in good faith and without notice that his title to the bill is defective. 3. Where an accommodation bill is paid in due course by the party accommodated, the bill is discharged.

Imp. § 59. Payment by the acceptor or maker operates as a discharge of the bill or note, i. e., as a discharge of the obligations of all parties, drawer and indorsers as well as acceptor or maker. — Breeze v. Baldwin, (1837), 5 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 444; Cuvillier v. Fraser, (1848), 5 U. C. Q. B. 152. But the payment must be by the acceptor or maker. Payment to the holder by a drawer or indorser, unless he is the party accommodated, does not discharge the instrument but only the party paying. — Bank v. Armour, (1860), 9 U. C. C. P. 401. After payment by him the maker may maintain an action against the payee for a re-delivery of the instrument to the maker. — Carden v. Finley, (1860), 8 L. C. Jur. 139. Payment made in behalf of the maker or acceptor, either by his bank at which he has made the bill or note payable, or even by the drawer or indorser, on behalf of the acceptor or maker, will discharge the instrument. — See Bank v. Armour, (1860), 9 U. C. C. P. 401; Nightingale v. Bank, (1876), 22 U. C. C. P. 74. But payment to operate as a discharge must be made at or after maturity. — Vanier v. Kent, (1902), Q. R. 11 K. B. 373, 383. If made before maturity, although it gives the acceptor or maker a personal defence against the holder to whom payment is made, it does not discharge the instrument, and a subsequent holder in due course can recover upon it. — Fairman v. Maybee, (1858), 7 U. C. C. P. 467, semble. The maker of a note cannot accelerate its maturity by tender. — Vanier v. Kent, (1902), Q. R. 11 K. B. 373. Payment to operate as a discharge must be made to the holder. Thus, payment at maturity to one after he has transferred the bill or note does not discharge the instrument, and a holder in due course may nevertheless charge all parties to the instrument. — Cleveland v. Bank, (1887), 31 L. C. Jur. 126; Robertson v. Northwestern Co., (1910), 13 West, L. R. 613.

And payment after maturity is no defence to a previous purchaser though he purchased after maturity. — Ferguson v. Stewart, (1856), 2 U. C. L. J. 116; Bank v. Viau, (1880), 4 Leg. News, 133. Presumptively payment to the person in possession of a bill or note payable to bearer or indorsed in blank is in due course. — Ferrie v. Wardens, (1845), 1 Rev. de Leg. 27. A covenant to pay the amount of a bill or note given by the acceptor or maker to the holder, whether the covenant be given upon the delivery of the bill or note, or before or after its maturity, and whether for payment at or after the maturity of the bill or note, is held to extinguish the holder's remedy on the bill or note by the merger of it in the higher security, unless it is expressly stipulated that the covenant shall be collateral security only. — Matthewson v. Brouse, (1844), 1 U. C. Q. B. 272; Kerr v. Hereford, (1859), 17 U. C. Q. B. 158; Commercial Bank v. Cuvillier, (1859), 18 U. C. Q. B. 378; Parker v. McCrea, (1858), 7 U. C. C. P. 124; Fairman v. Maybee, (1858), 7 U. C. C. P. 467; McLeod v. McKay, (1860), 20 U. C. Q. B. 258; Fraser v. Armstrong, (1861), 10 U. C. C. P. 506. However, such a covenant operates merely in effect to discharge the bill or note as against the covenantee or subsequent holders not holders in due course. — See Fairman v. Maybee, (1858), 7 U. C. C. P. 467. If such a covenant provides that it is for collateral security only, even though it does not become due until after the maturity of the bill or note to which it is collateral, it does not extinguish by merger the holder's remedies upon the bill or note. — Gore Bank v. Eaton, (1868), 27 U. C. Q. B. 332; Molsons Bank v. McDonald, (1877), 2 O. A. R. 102. The delivery of a renewal note by the acceptor or the maker will have the same effect as payment in money if the renewal note is accepted in absolute payment. — Cuvillier v. Fraser, (1848), 5 U. C. Q. B. 152. But, presumptively a renewal is taken in conditional payment only, and the holder's right of action on the original bill or note revives upon the dishonour of the renewal. — Saint-Arnaud v. Guilbault, (1910), Q. R. 39 S. C. 481. See note to § 53 supra. So an accord and satisfaction between the acceptor or maker and the holder by a conveyance of land by the former to the latter has the same effect as payment. — Adams v. Nelson, (1862), 22 U. C. Q. B. 199. The realization by foreclosure and sale by the holder upon a chattel mortgage given to secure a note operates as a payment of the note, and the holder may not thereafter enforce the note against the maker or a prior indorser. — Smith v. Judson, (1835), 4 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 134; Bank v. Jones, (1851), 8 U. C. Q. B. 86. Similarly, where a holder receives payment of the insurance money upon the destruction of property mortgaged to secure a note, the receipt of the insurance money operates as payment. — McKay v. O'Neil, (1890), 22 N. S. 346. Cp. Simonds v. Travis, (1870), 13 N. B. 14. Upon a sale of pledged property in breach of the contract of pledge, the note is paid only to the amount realized upon sale, and not to an amount equal to the pledgor's damage. — Kinnear v. Ferguson, (1859), 9 N. B. 391. Presumptively a bill or note is paid when it is in the possession of the acceptor or maker. — McKenzie v. Frizzell, (1874), Rams. App. 77. But the holder, upon proof that the surrender was accidental may recover against the maker. — Grenier v. Pothier, (1877), 3 Q. L. R. 377. See Vachon v. Lefebvre, (1909), 12 West. L. R. 203. Proof of payment of a bill or note may be made by parol in Quebec. — Carden v. Finley, (1860), 8 L. C. Jur. 139; Baril v. Tetreault, (1885), 29 L. C. Jur. 208.

Payment by drawer or endorser. Gives rights. Second negotiation. 140. Subject to the provisions aforesaid as to an accommodation bill, when a bill is paid by the drawer or an endorser it is not discharged; but: a) Where a bill payable to, or to the order of, a third party is paid by the drawer, the drawer may enforce payment thereof against the acceptor, but may not re-issue the bill; b) Where a bill is paid by an endorser, or where a bill payable to drawer's order is paid by the drawer, the party paying it is remitted to his former rights as regards the acceptor or antecedent parties, and he may, if he thinks fit, strike out his own and subsequent endorsements, and again negotiate the bill.

Imp. § 59. "When payment of a note is made by the maker at or after maturity, it is discharged and all rights of action on it are extinguished; but the payment of a note by an indorser does not totally discharge it, — it discharges him and all subsequent indorsers, but only operates as an assignment in his favour of all rights on the note against antecedent parties. — Vanier v. Kent, (1902), Q. R. 11 K. B. 373, 383. If the assignment is not effectuated by a retransfer to the drawer or indorser paying the bill or note, but the instrument remains in the holder's possession, he may maintain an action, notwithstanding the payment, against the acceptor or maker. — Bank v. Armour, (1860), 9 U. C. C. P. 401; Goodall v. Bank, (1887), M. L. R. 3 Q. B. 430. Contra, Cleveland v. Bank, (1887), 31 L. C. Jur. 126. But such a payment by the drawer or indorser made for and on behalf of the maker or acceptor, or by a drawer or indorser who is the party accommodated, discharges the bill or note. — Bank v. Armour, supra. Even though the holder holds under a special indorsement, no indorsement by him is necessary to effect a retransfer to the drawer or indorser. — Black v. Strickland, (1883), 3 O. R. 217; Nova Scotia Co. v. Lockhart, (1906), 1 East. L. R. 76. But see Velie v. Hemstreet, (1909), 11 West. L. R. 297. Such a retransfer, remits the indorser to his former position as legal holder of the bill, whether he has "paid" the bill or note or it has been returned to him without value paid. — Black v. Strickland, supra; Nova Scotia Co. v. Lockhart, supra. But see Velie v. Hemstreet, supra. Upon the retransfer of a bill payable to the order of a third person, the drawer may enforce the bill against the acceptor. — Nova Scotia Co. v. Lockhart, supra. Upon the retransfer to the drawer of a bill payable to the drawer's order, or of any bill or note to an indorser, the drawer or indorser as the case may be, may enforce the instrument against the acceptor or maker, or after striking out the indorsements negotiate the instrument. — Breeze v. Baldwin, (1837), 5 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 444; Latham v. Norton, (1841), 6 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 82; Black v. Strickland, supra; Nova Scotia Co. v. Lockhart, supra. But see Velie v. Hemstreet, supra. An indorser to whom a retransfer has been made, must, before he can make a valid negotiation of the bill or note, strike out the indorsements upon it, even though they are in blank. — Cuvillier v. Fraser, (1848), 5 U. C. Q. B. 152, semble. In addition to his rights upon the bill or note against the acceptor or maker, an indorser who has "paid" it, may recover against the acceptor or maker as for money paid to his use. — McNab v. Wagstaff, (1849), 5 U. C. Q. B. 588. See Bove v. McDonald, (1865), 16 L. C. R. 191. As to the liability of one indorsing after maturity, see §§ 23, 86 (b) supra, 166, 180, 181, 182, infra. See also Hovey v. Nolin, (1889), 18 Rev. Leg. 439.

Acceptor holding at maturity. 141. When the acceptor of a bill is or becomes the holder of it, at or after its maturity, in his own right, the bill is discharged.

Imp. § 61. Prior to the enactment of this section if the holder, at or after maturity, became the executor of the acceptor or maker, the bill or note was extinguished. — Jenkins v. McKenzie, (1849), 6 U. C. Q. B. 544, semble. Similarly, if the holder became the executor of a prior indorser, the obligation of the indorser would be extinguished and with it the liability of subsequent indorsers. — Jenkins v. McKenzie, supra. The result would appear to be different under this section in view of the phrase "in his own right." — See MacLaren, Bills, Notes, and Cheques, p. 356. A retransfer of a bill to the acceptor at maturity with intention to extinguish it, in exchange for the acceptor's promise to pay the bill at a later day, discharges the instrument; and upon the default of the acceptor, the holder receiving the bill from the acceptor, cannot charge the drawer. — Tessier v. Bank, (1905), Q. R. 28 S. C. 140. It has been held that an accidental surrender of a note after maturity to the maker by the holder does not discharge it and that the latter may maintain an action against the former for the amount of the note. — Grenier v. Pothier, (1877), 3 Q. L. R. 377. See also McKenzie v. Frizzell, (1874), Ram. App. 77. But see Vachon v. Lefebvre, (1909), 12 West. L. R. 203. It has also been held that the surrender of a note to one of two joint and several makers, upon the receipt of a renewal note of one of them is conditional payment, does not discharge the surrendered note. — Re Ives, (1886), 7 C. L. T. 146.

Renouncing rights. Writing. Holder in due course. 142. When the holder of a bill, at or after its maturity, absolutely and unconditionally renounces his rights against the acceptor, the bill is discharged. 2. The liabilities of any party to a bill may in like manner be renounced by the holder before, at, or after its maturity. 3. A renunciation must be in writing, unless the bill is delivered up to the acceptor. 4. Nothing in this section shall affect the rights of a holder in due course without notice of renunciation.

Imp. § 62. In Quebec it has been held that notwithstanding this section a parol renunciation by the payee of his rights against the maker is available as a defence to the maker against a transferee without indorsement. — Clonbrock Co. v. Browne, (1900), Q. R. 18 S. C. 375. See also McLeod v. Carman, (1869), 12 N. B. 592; McQuarrie v. Brand, (1896), 28 O. R. 69.

Cancellation of bill or of any signature. Discharge of endorser. 143. Where a bill is intentionally cancelled by the holder or his agent, and the cancellation is apparent thereon, the bill is discharged. 2. In like manner, any party liable on a bill may be discharged by the intentional cancellation of his signature by the holder or his agent. 3. In such case, any endorser who would have had a right of recourse against the party whose signature is cancelled is also discharged.

Imp. § 63.

Unintentional cancellation. Burden of proof. 144. A cancellation made unintentionally, or under a mistake, or without the authority of the holder, is inoperative: Provided that where a bill or any signature thereon appears to have been cancelled, the burden of proof lies on the party who alleges that the cancellation was made unintentionally, or under a mistake, or without authority.

Imp. § 63. Where an indorsee suing an indorser upon a bill or note produces it at the trial from his own custody, with the defendant's indorsement thereon cancelled, not as if by any accident, but in the most unequivocal manner, some explanation must be given to the jury for rejecting the inference that the note has been satisfied by the indorser whose name is thus cancelled. — Peel v. Kingsmill, (1850), 7 U. C. Q. B. 364. See also Isaacs v. Grothe, (1890), 29 N. B. 420.

Alteration of bill. Holder in due course. 145. Where a bill or acceptance is materially altered without the assent of all parties liable on the bill, the bill is voided, except as against a party who has himself made, authorized, or assented to the alteration and subsequent endorsers: Provided that where a bill has been materially altered, but the alteration is not apparent, and the bill is in the hands of a holder in due course, such holder may avail himself of the bill as if it had not been altered, and may enforce payment of it according to its original tenor.

Imp. § 64. Prior to the Act a material alteration of a bill or note avoided it completely. — Swaissland v. Davidson, (1882), 3 O. R. 320. Even in the hands of a holder in due course, it was unenforceable. — Halcrow v. Kelly, (1878), 28 U. C. C. P. 551; Reid v. Humphrey, (1881), 6 O. A. R. 403. If prior parties to the instrument have consented to the alteration of the instrument it can be enforced against them. — Fitch v. Kelly, (1879), 44 U. C. Q. B. 578; Lytell v. Foell, (1909), 13 O. W. R. 738. Since the Act, if the alteration is not apparent, a holder in due course may recover upon the instrument as if it had not been altered. — Cunnington v. Peterson, (1898), 29 O. R. 346, semble. See also, People's Bank v. Wharton, (1894), 27 N. S. 67; Mutual Life v. McLaughlin, (1903), 36 C. L. J. 630. But one not a holder in due course may not recover on an altered instrument even though he erases the inserted words before the objecting maker becomes aware of the change. — Banque Provinciale v. Arnoldi, (1901), 2 O. L. R. 624. If a holder may reasonably fail to detect the alteration it is not "apparent." — Cunnington v. Peterson, supra. As to ratification of a forged bill or note see note to § 49.

Material alteration: date; sum; time; place; adding places. 146. In particular any alteration: a) Of the date; b) Of the sum payable; c) Of the time of payment; d) Of the place of payment; e) By the addition of a place of payment without the acceptor's assent where a bill has been accepted generally; is a material alteration.

Imp. § 64. Whether a note has been altered is a question for the jury. — Domville v. Davies, (1879), 13 N. S. 159; Street v. Walsh, (1862), Stevens N. B. Dig. 250. The materiality of the alteration is a question of law. — Re Commercial Bank, (1894), 10 Man. 174; Pickup v. Northern Bank, (1908), 9 West. L. R. 173, 177. Alteration of date is a material alteration. — Meredith v. Culver, (1848), 5 U. C. Q. B. 218; Gladstone v. Dew, (1859), 9 U. C. C. P. 439; Beltz v. Molsons Bank, (1876), 40 U. C. Q. B. 253; Banque Ville Marie v. Primeau, (1881), 26 L. C. Jur. 20; Quebec Bank v. Ogilvy, (1883), 3 Dorion, 200; Boulton v. Langmuir, (1897), 24 O. A. R. 618. But where an erroneous date had been inadvertently inserted it may be corrected. — McLaren v. Miller, (1900), 36 C. L. J. 680. Alteration of the sum payable is a material alteration. — Halcrow v. Kelly, (1878), 28 U. C. C. P. 551; Fitch v. Kelly, (1879), 44 U. C. Q. B. 578; Hebert v. Banque Nationale, (1908), 40 S. C. R. 458. So also is an alteration of the time of payment. — McQueen v. McIntyre, (1879), 30 U. C. C. P. 426. An alteration even though it is an extension of time of benefit to the maker, discharges him. — Boulton v. Langmuir, supra. But see Canadian Investment Co. v. Brown, (1890), 19 Rev. Leg. 364. The following are also material alterations: Adding a place of payment. — Jones v. Reid, (1906), 7 O. W. R. 131. Changing a joint to a joint and several note. — Samson v. Yager, (1834), 4 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 3; Peoples Bank v. Wharton, (1894), 27 N. S. 67; Banque Provinciale v. Arnoldi, (1901), 2 O. L. R. 624. Adding words of negotiability to a non-negotiable note. — Lawton v. Millidge, (1844), 4 N. B. 520. Striking out the word "renewal." — Maxon v. Irwin, (1907), 15 O. L. R. 81. Erasing or obliterating a condition indorsed. — Campbell v. McKinnon, (1859), 18 U. C. Q. B. 612; Swaisland v. Davidson, (1883), 3 O. R. 320. Adding a new maker after issue. — Reid v. Humphrey, (1881), 6 O. A. R. 403; Carrique v. Beaty, (1897), 24 O. A. R. 302. But it is not a material alteration for the holder of a joint and several note to place his signature below the maker's. — Kinnard v. Tewsley, (1896), 27 O. R. 398. See also Lytell v. Foell, (1909), 13 O. W. R. 738. And where the change merely embodies the correction of an error, it is not a material alteration. — Laine v. Clarke, (1816), 3 Rev. de Leg. 434; Merchants' Bank v. Stirling, (1880), 13 N. S. 439; Abbott v. Wurtele (1894), Q. R. 6 S. C. 204.

Acceptance and payment for honour.

Acceptance for honour supra protest. 147. Where a bill of exchange has been protested for dishonour by non-acceptance, or protested for better security, and is not overdue, any person, not being a party already liable thereon, may, with the consent of the holder, intervene and accept the bill supra protest, for the honour of any party liable thereon, or for the honour of the person for whose account the bill is drawn.

Imp. § 65. One not the drawee cannot be charged as acceptor of a bill already conditionally accepted by the drawee. — Spalding v. McKay, (1838), 5 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 656.

In part. 148. A bill may be accepted for honour for part only of the sum for which it is drawn.

Imp. § 65.

Deemed to be for honour of drawer. 149. Where an acceptance for honour does not expressly state for whose honour it is made, it is deemed to be an acceptance for the honour of the drawer.

Imp. § 65.

Maturity of after sight bill. 150. Where a bill payable after sight is accepted for honour, its maturity is calculated from the date of protesting for non-acceptance, and not from the date of the acceptance for honour.

Imp. § 65. McLaren says: "In order to make it harmonize with section 23 (a), the words 'at sight or' should have been inserted as was done by amending the Act of 1891, in what are now sections 5, 30, 37 and 77. It is likely, however, that the Courts will interpret it as if the change had been made." — McLaren, Bills, notes, and cheques, p. 374.

Requirements: writing; signature. 151. An acceptance for honour supra protest, in order to be valid must: a) Be written on the bill, and indicate that it is an acceptance for honour; and b) Be signed by the acceptor for honour.

Imp. § 65.

Liability of acceptor for honour. 152. The acceptor for honour of a bill by accepting it engages that he will, on due presentment, pay the bill according to the tenor of his acceptance, if it is not paid by the drawee provided it has been duly presented for payment and protested for non-payment, and that he receives notice of these facts. 2. The acceptor for honour is liable to the holder and to all parties to the bill subsequent to the party for whose honour he has accepted.

Imp. § 66.

Payment for honour supra protest. If more than one offer. Refusal to receive payment. Entitled to bill. Liability for refusing. 153. Where a bill has been protested for non-payment, any person may intervene and pay it supra protest for the honour of any party liable thereon, or for the honour of the person for whose account the bill is drawn. 2. Where two or more persons offer to pay a bill for the honour of different parties, the person whose payment will discharge most parties to the bill shall have the preference. 3. Where the holder of a bill refuses to receive payment supra protest, he shall lose his right of recourse against any party who would have been discharged by such payment. 4. The payer for honour, on paying to the holder the amount of the bill and the notarial expenses incidental to its dishonour, is entitled to receive both the bill itself and the protest. 5. If the holder does not on demand in such case deliver up the bill and protest, he shall be liable to the payer for honour in damages.

Imp. § 68. One taking up a bill supra protest succeeds to the title of the person from whom he receives it, so as to sue thereon all parties except those subsequent to the one for whose honour he takes it up; but he cannot himself indorse the instrument over. — In Re Overend, Gurney & Co. Ex parte Swan, (1868), L. R. 6 Eq. 356. Approved in Cowan v. Doolittle, (1881). 46 U. C. Q. B. 398. See also MacArthur v. MacDowall, (1893), 23 S. C. R. 571.

Attestation of payment for honour. Declaration. 154. Payment for honour supra protest, in order to operate as such and not as a mere voluntary payment, must be attested by a notarial act of honour, which may be appended to the protest or form an extension of it. 2. The notarial act of honour must be founded on a declaration made by the payer for honour, or his agent in that behalf, declaring his intention to pay the bill for honour, and for whose honour he pays.

Imp. § 68.

Discharge. Subrogation. 155. Where a bill has been paid for honour, all parties subsequent to the party for whose honour it is paid are discharged, but the payer for honour is subrogated for, and succeeds to both the rights and duties of the holder as regards the party for whose honour he pays, and all parties liable to that party.

Lost instruments.

Holder to have duplicate of lost bill. Refusal. Compulsion. 156. Where a bill has been lost before it is overdue, the person who was the holder of it may apply to the drawer to give him another bill of the same tenor, giving security to the drawer, if required, to indemnify him against all persons whatever, in case the bill alleged to have been lost shall be found again. 2. If the drawer, on request as aforesaid, refuses to give such duplicate bill, he may be compelled to do so.

Imp. § 69.

Action on lost bill. Indemnity. 157. In any action or proceeding upon a bill, the Court or a Judge may order that the loss of the instrument shall not be set up, provided an indemnity is given to the satisfaction of the Court or Judge against the claims of any other person upon the instrument in question.

Imp. § 70. The loss must be proved to the satisfaction of the Court before secondary evidence is admissible. — Grover v. Clark, (1835), 5 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 208; Wante v. Robinson, (1816), 2 Rev. de Leg. 29; Beaupré v. Burn, (1821), 2 Rev. de Leg. 31; Carden v. Ruiter, (1864), 9 L. C. Jur. 217. Hence a plea denying the loss alone will be good. — Campbell v. McCrea, (1853), 11 U. C. Q. B. 93. If a note has been surrendered to the defendant through fraud on proof thereof it may be treated as a lost note. — Irwin v. Freeman, (1867), 13 Grant, 465; McIntyre v. McGregor (1900), 21 C. L. T. 25; Matthews v. Marsh, (1903), 5 O. L. R. 540. One suing on a lost note must make tender of indemnity to maker, before action. — Banque Jacques Cartier v. Strachan, (1869), 5 O. P. R. 159; Tessier v. Caillé, (1902), Q. R. 25 S. C. 207; Orton v. Brett, (1899), 12 Man. 448. But the tender may be waived by the defendant. — Abell v. Morrison, (1876), 23 Grant, 109. Indemnity is not required in the case of instruments not negotiable. — Cooley v. Dominion Building Society, (1878), 24 L. C. Jur. 111. But see Pillow Co. v. L'Espérance, (1902), Q. R. 22 S. C. 213. Commercial suretyship is sufficient, and a judicial suretyship is not required for indemnity. — Pittsburg Steel Co. v. Leprohon, (1910), 16 Rev. de Jur. 64.

Bill in a set.

Bills in set. Acceptance. 158. Where a bill is drawn in a set, each part of the set being numbered, and containing a reference to the other parts, the whole of the parts constitute one bill. 2. The acceptance may be written on any part, and it must be written on one part only.

Imp. § 71.

Endorsing more than one part. Negotiation to different holders. Acceptance in due course. More than one part accepted. Part accepted. Payments without delivery. Discharge. 159. Where the holder of a set endorses two or more parts to different persons, he is liable on every such part, and every endorser subsequent to him is liable on the part he has himself endorsed as if the said parts were separate bills. 2. Where two or more parts of a set are negotiated to different holders in due course, the holder whose title first accrues is, as between such holders, deemed the true owner of the bill: Provided that nothing in this subsection shall affect the rights of a person who in due course accepts or pays the part first presented to him. 3. If the drawee accepts more than one part, and such accepted parts get into the hands of different holders in due course, he is liable on every such part as if it were a separate bill. 4. When the acceptor of a bill drawn in a set pays it without requiring the part bearing his acceptance to be delivered up to him, and that part at maturity is outstanding in the hands of a holder in due course, he is liable to the holder thereof. 5. Subject to the provisions of this section, where any one part of a bill drawn in a set is discharged by payment or otherwise, the whole bill is discharged.

Imp. § 71.

Conflict of laws.

Requisites of form. Unstamped bills. Conforming to the law of Canada. 160. Where a bill drawn in one country is negotiated, accepted or payable in another, the validity of the bill as regards requisites in form is determined by the law of the place of issue, and the validity as regards requisites in form of the supervening contracts, such as acceptance or endorsement, or acceptance supra protest, is determined by the law of the place where the contract was made: Provided that: a) Where a bill is issued out of Canada, it is not invalid by reason only that it is not stamped in accordance with the law of the place of issue; b) Where a bill, issued out of Canada, conforms, as regards requisites in form, to the law of Canada, it may, for the purpose of enforcing payment thereof, be treated as valid as between all persons who negotiate hold or become parties to it in Canada.

Imp. § 72. "Drawing" includes not only the writing and signing, but also the delivery. — Wallace v. Souther, (1878), 2 S. C. R. 598, 613. When by the lex loci contractus the acceptance of a bill of exchange releases sureties on a debt, the foreign law will be recognized in Canada and the sureties discharged. — Bellingham v. Freer, (1837), C. R. 1 A. C. 95.

Lex loci. Law of Canada. 161. Subject to the provisions of this Act, the interpretation of the drawing, endorsement, acceptance, or acceptance supra protest of a bill, drawn in one country and negotiated, accepted, or payable in another, is determined by the law of the place where such contract is made: Provided that where an inland bill is endorsed in a foreign country, the endorsement shall, as regards the payer, be interpreted according to the law of Canada.

Imp. § 72. Unless the place of payment is specified and made exclusive, the note is payable generally and the lex loci contractus will govern the construction and rate of interest of a note. — Hooker v. Leslie, (1868), 27 U. C. Q. B. 295. See also, Northwestern Bank v. Jarvis, (1883), 2 Man. 53; Astor v. Benn (1812) 2 Rev. de Leg. 27. "Interpretation" in the Act means the legal effect. As to indorser's contract see London and Brazilian Bank v. Maguire, (1895), Q. R. 8 S. C. 358. The domicile of the drawer of a bill of exchange does not affect the operation of the lex loci contractus. — Story v. Mc Kay, (1888), 15 O. R. 169. In the absence of proof the lex loci contractus will be presumed to accord with the lex fori. — Griffin v. Judson, (1862), 12 U. C. C. P. 430; Security National Bank v. Pritt, (1910), 14 West L. R. 216. The foreign law must be proved as a fact. — Hope v. Caldwell, (1871), 21 U. C. C. P. 241; Robertson v. Caldwell, (1871), 31 U. C. Q. B. 402. A foreign accommodation making or indorsement followed by negotiation in Canada leaves the instrument a Canadian contract. — Merchants Bank v. Stirling, (1880), 13 N. S. 439; Cloyes v. Chapman, (1876), 27 U. C. C. P. 22.

Law as to duties to holder. 162. The duties of the holder with respect to presentment for acceptance or payment and the necessity for or sufficiency of a protest or notice of dishonour, are determined by the law of the place where the act is done or the bill is dishonoured.

Imp. § 72. What is a reasonable time for presentment is to be determined by the place of presentment, but where no proof is made of the law of such place it will be presumed to be the same as the law of the forum. — Security National Bank v. Pritt, (1910), 14 West. L. R. 216; Buffalo Bank v. Truscott, (1838), 1 Rob. & Jos. Dig. 495. See also Howard v. Sabourin, (1854), 5 L. C. R. 45; Allen v. Mc. Naughton, (1858), 9 N.B. 234.

Currency. 163. Where a bill is drawn out of but payable in Canada, and the sum payable is not expressed in the currency of Canada, the amount shall, in the absence of some express stipulation, be calculated according to the rate of exchange for sight drafts at the place of payment on the day the bill is payable.

Imp. § 72.

Due date. 164. Where a bill is drawn in one country and is payable in another, the due date thereof is determined according to the law of the place where it is payable.

Imp. § 72. Where the third day of grace falls on Sunday, the lex loci solutionis determines the day proper for protest. — Bank of America v. Copeland, (1881), 4 Leg. News, 154.

Part III. Cheques on a Bank.

Cheque defined. Provisions as to bills apply. 165. A cheque is a bill of exchange drawn on a bank, payable on demand. 2. Except as otherwise provided in this Part, the provisions of this Act applicable to a bill of exchange payable on demand apply to a cheque.

Imp. § 73. The exceptions mentioned in subsection 2 are to be found on §§ 166—175 inclusive.

Cheque accepted as conditional payment. — A cheque operates as conditional payment until it has been dishonoured. — Hughes v. Canada, etc., Soc. (1876), 39 U. C. Q. B. 221. See note to § 53. Laches is presenting the cheque of a third party accepted in conditional payment or in giving notice to debtor of dishonour will bar the rights of the creditor against the debtor on non-payment of the cheque. — Redpath v. Kolfage, (1858), 16 U. C. Q. B. 433; Sawyer v. Thomas, (1890), 18 O. A. R. 129. See also Owens v. Quebec Bank, (1870), 30 U. C. Q. B. 382; Queen v. Bank of Montreal, (1886), 1 Ex. C. R. 154.

Cheque accepted as accord and satisfaction. — When a cheque for an amount less than the debt, but bearing the words "in full of claim" is accepted by the creditor it is a question of fact whether it was taken in accord and satisfaction. — McPherson v. Copeland, (1908), 9 West. L. R. 623. MacLaren says this doctrine "would probably not be accepted in the Province of Quebec where the technical rules of the English law as to accord and satisfaction do not obtain." — MacLaren, Bills, notes, and cheques, p. 408. But see Paquet Co. v. Paquin, (1910), Q. R. 39 S. C. 58.

Certification. — The Canadian usage of certification was recognized in two appeals to the Privy Council. — Gaden v. Newfoundland Savings Bank, (1899) A. C. 281; Imperial Bank of Canada v. Bank of Hamilton, (1903) A. C. 49. By certification or acceptance the bank becomes liable to the holder and there is privity between them. — Banque Nationale v. City Bank, (1873), 17 L. C. Jur. 197; Exchange Bank v. Banque du Peuple, (1886), M. L. R. 3 Q. B. 232. See also Re Commercial Bank, (1894), 10 Man. 171; Wellesley v. Mc Faddin, (1911), 19 O. W. R. 637. The drawer and indorsers are thereby discharged from liability. — Boyd v. Nasmith, (1888), 17 O. R. 40; Légaré v. Arcand, (1895), Q. R. 9 S. C. 122; Banque Jacques Cartier v. Corporation de Limoilou, (1889), Q. R. 17 S. C. 211. A material alteration after certification will relieve the bank of liability. — Re Commercial Bank, (1894), 10 Man. 171. The mere initialling of a cheque by the cashier does not amount to a certification or acceptance. — Commercial Bank v. Fleming, (1872), 1 Stevens' N. B. Dig. 294. When the account against which a cheque is drawn bears interest, the interest ceases to run on certification to the money may not be drawn out until long after. — Wilson v. Banque Ville Marie, (1880), 3 Leg. News, 71. Allowing another bank to put on its cheques "payable at Bank of Montreal, Toronto, at par," does not oblige the Bank of Montreal to pay them if the drawer has no funds in its hands. — Rose-Belford Printing Co. v. Bank of Montreal, (1886), 12 O. R. 544.

Presentment for payment. Measure of damage. Holder becomes creditor. Reasonable time. 166. Subject to the provisions of this Act: a) Where a cheque is not presented for payment within a reasonable time of its issue, and the drawer or the person on whose account it is drawn had the right at the time of such presentment, as between him and the bank, to have the cheque paid, and suffers actual damage through the delay, he is discharged to the extent of such damage, that is to say, to the extent to which such drawer or person is a creditor of such bank to a larger amount than he would have been had such cheque paid; b) The holder of such cheque as to which such drawer or person is discharged, shall be a creditor, in lieu of such drawer or person, of such bank to the extent of such discharge, and entitled to recover the amount from it. 2. In determining what is a reasonable time, within this section, regard shall be had to the nature of the instrument, the usage of trade and of banks, and the facts of the particular case.

Imp. § 74. Exceptions: The provisions of the Act to which this section is subject are the sections relating to excuses for delay in presentment and non-presentment. See §§ 91 and 92.

Difference between cheques and other bills of exchange payable on demand. — "As regards the drawer the effect of not presenting a cheque within a reasonable time differs from that relating to other bills payable on demand. In the case of the latter the drawer, as well as the indorsers, are wholly discharged by the failure to present it for payment within a reasonable time. § 85. This part of the Act relating to cheques does not modify the rule as regards the indorsers; but the present section lays down a different rule as regards the drawer, who is only discharged to the extent to which he actually suffers damage by the delay and otherwise is not discharged until relieved by prescription or the Statute of Limitations." — Maclaren, Bills, notes, and cheques, p. 415. Accordingly it has been held that in an action on a cheque payable to order, brought by the indorsee, it is not necessary to allege that the cheque had been presented within a reasonable time at the bank where it was payable and that payment had been refused and that the cheque had been protested for non-payment. These are matters of defence. It is for the drawer to allege and prove damage. — De Gerres v. Euard, (1899), Q. R. 17 S. C. 199. See also Crowell v. Longard, (1896), 28 N. S. 257; Nacliod v. Stern, (1897), 30 N. S. 251. Compare subsection b with § 127.

Reasonable time. — Chalmers says: "This subsection (2), perhaps, introduces a new and less rigorous measure of reasonable time." — (Chalmers's Bills of Exchange (7th ed.) p. 275. The Canadian law in the absence of special circumstances construed reasonable time for presentment or forwarding for presentment to be the day following receipt of the cheque. — Blackley v. McCabe, (1889), 16 O. A. R. 295; Owens v. Quebec Bank, (1870), 30 U. C. Q. B. 382. This rule has always been subject to relaxations in particular cases. Thus, where according to the trade usage of a locality cheques are not always presented for payment immediately, but are frequently kept for some days and are transferred from hand to hand as a convenient circulating medium, a delay of ten days is not unreasonable. — Campbell v. Riendeau, (1892), Q. R. 2 Q. B. 604. See also Bank v. Warren, (1909), 19 O. L. R. 257, cited in note to § 70, supra. But under special circumstances unusual haste in presentment may be required. Thus, where the cheque is for a large amount and there is prevalent a spirit of distrust of the solvency of the bank upon which the cheque is drawn, three days is clearly an unreasonable time. — Banque Jacques Cartier v. Corporation de Limoilou, (1899), Q. R. 17 S. C. 211. See also Mailer v. Stewart, (1878), Cons. Que. Dig. 212; Légaré v. Arcand, (1895), Q. R. 9 S. C. 122. As to effect of presentment for certification by payee, see note to § 165. Compare this section and note with § 77 and 85, supra, and § 180, infra.

Authority to pay. Countersignature. Death. 167. The duty and authority of a bank to pay a cheque drawn on it by its customer, are determined by: a) Countersignature of payment; b) Notice of the customer's death.

Imp. § 75. A bank having funds of a customer sufficient to meet a cheque is bound to pay it and for failure so to do is liable to an action for damages. — Todd v. Union Bank, (1887), 4 Man. 204; Perreault v. Bank, (1905), Q. R. 27 S. C. 149. But if the customer be a non-trading depositor in a savings bank his damages for wrongful refusal to allow him to withdraw his deposit are limited to the interest on the deposit. — Henderson v. Bank of Hamilton, (1894), 25 O. R. 641; s. c. (1895), 22 O. A. R. 414. A bank may in the absence of special instructions pay out of his general deposit any bill or note of which the customer is acceptor or maker, and which is accepted or drawn, payable at the bank. — Nightingale v. Bank, (1876), 26 U. C. C. P. 74; Jones v. Bank, (1869), 29 U. C. Q. B. 448, 454, semble.

Crossed cheques.

Definition. General. Special. 168. Where a cheque bears across its face an addition of: a) The word "bank" between two parallel transverse lines, either with or without the words "not negotiable;" or, b) Two parallel transverse lines simply, either with or without the words "not negotiable;" such addition constitutes a crossing, and the cheque is crossed generally. 2. Where a cheque bears across its face an addition of the name of a bank, either with or without the words "not negotiable," that addition constitutes a crossing, and the cheque is crossed specially and to that bank.

Imp. § 76. "Sections 168 to 175, inclusive, treat of crossed cheques. They are copied from the Imperial Act, with the substitution of 'bank' for 'banker', as private bankers are not recognized by the Canadian Act. The practice of crossing cheques did not obtain in Canada before the Act of 1890, and it has been adopted only to a very limited extent since, as the drawer can protect himself by making a cheque payable to order, since our Parliament refused to adopt section 60 of the Imperial Act, which relieves a bank from responsibility for the genuineness or authorisation of the endorsement on cheques drawn upon it." — Maclaren, Bills, notes, and cheques, p. 421. See also Falconbridge, Banking and bills of exchange, p. 619, and Russell on Bills, pp. 423—9.

By drawer. By holder. Varying. Words may be added. By bank for collection, Changing crossing. Uncrossing. 169. A cheque may be crossed generally or specially by the drawer. 2. Where a cheque is uncrossed, the holder may cross it generally or specially. 3. Where a cheque is crossed generally, the holder may cross it specially. 4. Where a cheque is crossed generally or specially, the holder may add the words "Not negotiable." 5. Where a cheque is crossed specially the bank to which it is crossed may again cross it specially to another bank for collection. 6. Where an uncrossed cheque, or a cheque crossed generally, is sent to a bank for collection, it may cross it specially to itself. 7. A crossed cheque may be re-opened or uncrossed by the drawer writing between the transverse lines, the words "Pay cash," and initialling the same.

Imp. § 77.

Materially altering crossing. 170. A crossing authorized by this Act is a material part of the cheque. 2. It shall not be lawful for any person to obliterate or, except as authorized by this Act, to add to or alter the crossing.

Imp. § 78.

Crossed to more than one bank. 171. Where a cheque is crossed specially to more than one bank, except when crossed to another bank as agent for collection, the bank on which it is drawn shall refuse payment thereof.

Imp. § 79.

Liability for improper payment. Bona fides. 172. Where the bank on which a cheque so crossed is drawn, nevertheless pays the same, or pays a cheque crossed generally otherwise than to a bank, or, if crossed specially, otherwise than to the bank to which it is crossed, or to the bank acting as its agent for collection, it is liable to the true owner of the cheque for any loss he sustains owing to the cheque having been so paid: Provided that where a cheque is presented for payment which does not at the time of presentment appear to be crossed, or to have had a crossing which has been obliterated, or to have been added to or altered otherwise than as authorized by this Act, the bank paying the cheque in good faith and without negligence shall not be responsible or incur any liability, nor shall the payment be questioned by reason of the cheque having been crossed, or of the crossing having been obliterated or having been added to or altered otherwise than as authorized by this Act, and of payment having been made otherwise than to a bank or to the bank to which the cheque is or was crossed, or to the bank acting as its agent for collection, as the case may be.

Imp. § 79.

Protection in such case. 173. Where the bank, on which a crossed cheque is drawn, in good faith and without negligence pays it, if crossed generally to a bank, or, if crossed specially, to the bank to which it is crossed, or to a bank acting as its agent for collection, the bank paying the cheque, and if the cheque has come into the hands of the payee, the drawer, shall respectively be entitled to the same rights and be placed in the same position as if payment of the cheque had been made to the true owner thereof.

Imp. § 80.

"Not negotiable" cross. 174. Where a person takes a crossed cheque which bears on it the words "not negotiable," he shall not have and shall not be capable of giving a better title to the cheque than that which had the person from whom he took it.

Imp. § 81.

Customer without title. Bank paying. Bona fides. 175. Where a bank, in good faith and without negligence, receives for a customer payment of a cheque crossed generally or specially to itself, and the customer has no title, or a defective title thereto the bank shall not incur any liability to the true owner of the cheque by reason only of having received such payment.

Imp. § 82.

Part IV. Promissory Notes.

Definition. Endorsed by maker. Pledge. Invalidity. 176. A promissory note is an unconditional promise in writing made by one person to another, signed by the maker, engaging to pay, on demand or at a fixed or determinable future time, a sum certain in money, to, or to the order of, a specified person, or to bearer. 2. An instrument in the form of a note payable to the maker's order is not a note within the meaning of this section, unless it is endorsed by the maker. 3. A note is not invalid by reason only that it contains also a pledge of collateral security with authority to sell or dispose thereof.

Imp. § 83. As to the formal requisites of bills and notes, see notes to §§ 17 and 18, supra. A blank indorsement transforms such instrument into a note payable to bearer. — Burns v. Harper, (1849), 6 U. C. Q. B. 509; Wallace v. Henderson, (1849), 7 U. C. Q. B. 88. See also Ennis v. Hastings, (1860), 9 N. B. 482. A written acknowledgment of indebtedness is not a promissory note unless it is coupled with a promise to pay, and fulfils the other requirements for negotiability. — Whishaw v. Gilmour, (1862), 6 L. C. Jur. 319; De Sola v. Ascher, (1889), 17 Rev. Leg. 315; Hulsted v. Hirschman, (1908), 18 Man. 103. A banker's deposit receipt, if negotiable where issued will be recognized as negotiable by the lex fori. — Security National Bank v. Pritt, (1910), 14 West. L. R. 216. When a note states that it is given as collateral security it is not a promissory note. — Hall v. Merriek, (1877), 40 U. C. Q. B. 566; Sutherland v. Patterson, (1884), 4 O. R. 565. As to the negotiability of a note given for chattels and providing that the title to the articles shall remain in the vendor until the note is paid, see note to § 17. The right to claim collateral security given with a note, passes with a transfer of the note. — Central Bank v. Garland, (1890), 20 O. R. 142; Vezina v. Maltais, (1904), 10 Rev. de Jur. 301. See also Cochran v. Boucher, (1883), 3 O. R. 462, 472. The right of the creditor to hold such securities is not lost by the bar to recovery on the note raised by the Statute of Limitations. — Wiley v. Ledyard, (1883), 10 O. P. R. 182.

Inland note. Foreign note. 177. A note which is, or on the face of it purports to be, both made and payable within Canada, is an inland note. 2. Any other note is a foreign note.

Imp. § 83.

Delivery. 178. A promissory note is inchoate and incomplete until delivery thereof to the payee or bearer.

Imp. § 84. See note to § 40, and § 41.

Joint and several note. Individual promise. 179. A promissory note may be made by two or more makers, and they may be liable thereon jointly, or jointly and severally according to its tenor. 2. Where a note runs "I promise to pay," and is signed by two or more persons, it is deemed to be their joint and several note.

Imp. § 85. By the common law the obligation of two or more makers of a promissory note is joint unless a joint and several liability is expressly stipulated. A note reading "we promise" signed by several is their joint note. — Chalmers, Bills of Exchange Act (7th ed.), p. 298. In Quebec under Civil Code, art. 1105, such a note, if given as part of a commercial transaction, would be the joint and several note of the makers. — Malhiot v. Tessier, (1870), 2 Rev. Leg. 625; Perrault v. Bergevin, (1886), 14 Rev. Leg. 604; Drouin v. Gauthier, (1903), Q. R. 12 K. B. 442; Dagneau v. Decaire, (1906), 5 Q. P. R. 141. Section 10, supra, is held, however, to have introduced into Quebec the common law rule for determining the character of the maker's obligation. Consequently, such a note is now held in Quebec to be the joint note of the makers. — Crepau v. Beauchesne, (1898), Q. R. 14 S. C. 495; Noble v. Forgrave, (1899), Q. R. 17 S. C. 234. But the character of the obligation of the makers having been determined as either joint or joint and several, the legal consequences of a joint or a joint and several obligation are determined by the principal law. — Cook v. Doods, (1903), 6 O. L. R. 608; Noble v. Forgrave, supra. But see Crepeau v. Beauchesne, supra. See also note to § 10, supra. A note in the form "I promise", signed by several makers is their joint and several note. — Creighton v. Fretz, (1867), 26 U. C. Q. B. 627; Congregation v. Backman, (1906), Q. R. 31 S. C. 23. Where two infants are among the makers of a joint and several note, their privy may be overlooked and the note may be described as the contract of the adult maker or makers. — Park v. Pullishy, (1911), 16 West. L. R. 457. See also Metro-politan Bank v. Austin, (1911), 18 O. W. R. 830.

Demand note presentment. Reasonable time. 180. Where a note payable on demand has been endorsed, it must be presented for payment within a reasonable time of the endorsement. 2. In determining what is a reasonable time, regard shall be had to the nature of the instrument, the usage of trade and the facts of the particular case.

Imp. § 86. It is held that whether or not presentment has been made within a reasonable time is a mixed question of law and fact. — See note to § 77, supra. Where the facts are not disputed, whether or not presentment was made within reasonable time is a question for the Court. — See note to § 77, supra and Security Bank v. Pritt, (1910), 14 West. L. R. 216.

What is reasonable time. — A certificate of deposit, or deposit receipt, payable to the order of defendant on demand was issued to defendant by a bank in Minnesota, U. S. A. Defendant indorsed the same over to plaintiff who sent it on the same day to another bank for collection. Three days later plaintiff received notice that the issuing bank had suspended payment. Plaintiff at once wrote to the defendant that the certificate had been returned unpaid and asked for reimbursement. There was no evidence that this letter was received by the defendant. After waiting five days and receiving no answer, the plaintiff sent the certificate to an agent in Minnesota who, at once, but ten days after indorsement of note by defendant to plaintiff, presented it to the issuing bank for payment which was refused. Held, that under these circumstances the certificate, which was treated as a demand note, had been presented within a reasonable time after indorsement. The Court said: "When it was returned to them, they held it only 5 days in order to notify the defendant before sending it again for presentment and protest. This delay did not in any way injure the defendant, the Scott County Bank being then insolvent, and I think that, under the circumstances they did not hold the same an unreasonable time before presenting it for payment, and that it was therefore presented within a reasonable time and dis-honoured, of which due notice was given to the defendant." So where the defendant indorsed a demand note on which interest was payable only from demand March 28, 1885, for the maker, a friend whom he knew to be bankrupt, and the note was not protested until August 28, 1888, the indorser was not discharged, as he was not injured but rather benefited by the delay. $ 50 having been paid September 27, 1887, and the maker's circumstances having improved in the mean time. — Dandurand v. Roulier, (1889), 33 L. C. Jur. 167. The Court, through Johnson, J., said: "Apart from the strict observance of the law regarding protest and notice in cases of notes due at a fixed date, there is nothing to prevent an indulgence to the maker, unless it makes the condition of the indorser worse. In this case it is admitted that the indorser knew all along of the maker's insolvency." — See note to § 86, supra. Where a demand note is payable with interest, this has been considered an indication that an early presentment was not contemplated. — Thorne v. Scovil, (1844), 4 N. B. 557; Commercial Bank v. Allan, (1894), 10 Man. 330. But where a demand note which did not on its face bear interest, was made and indorsed August 25, 1891, but not presented for payment before May 7, 1894, the maker having been in the holder's employment during nearly all the intervening time until his death, (which occurred before presentment for payment) and never having paid anything on account, the indorser was held to be discharged. — La Banque du Peuple v. Denicourt, (1896), Q. R. 10 S. C. 428.

Endorser discharged. Security. 181. If a promissory note payable on demand, which has been endorsed is not presented for payment within a reasonable time the endorser is discharged: Provided that if it has, with the assent of the endorser, been delivered as a collateral or continuing security it need not be presented for payment so long as it is held as such security.

Imp. § 86. As to reasonable time see § 180, supra, and note.

Note given as collateral or continuing security. — Where the directors of a joint stock company indorsed a note of the company, which was given to the bank as continuing security, and it was held for twenty-seven months before payment was demanded, it was held that the indorsers were not discharged. — Merchants' Bank v. Whitfield, (1881), 2 Dorion, 157.

Not deemed overdue. 182. Where a note payable on demand is negotiated, it is not deemed to be overdue, for the purpose of affecting the holder with defects of title of which he had no notice, by reason that it appears that a reasonable time for presenting it for payment has elapsed since its issue.

Imp. § 86. As to defects of title, see note to § 56, supra. Where a promissory note payable on demand is indorsed to the plaintiffs on the day it bears date it is clearly not overdue when negotiated so as to affect the plaintiffs as holders with defects of title of which they had no notice. — Northern Crown Bank v. International Elec. Co., (1910), 22 O. L. R. 339, aff'd., 19 O. W. R. 392. In this case the Court said: "As sec. 186 makes the provisions of the Act relating to bills of exchange applicable to promissory notes — sec. 70, but for the provisions of sec. 182, would be applicable to promissory notes. But, inasmuch as promissory notes payable on demand had always stood on a different footing from bills of exchange so payable, being, as it was said, more in the nature of continuing securities, sec. 182 was enacted for the purpose of continuing that distinction, and in order to provide that, though a bill payable on demand was to be deemed to be overdue when it appears on its face that it has been in circulation for an unreasonable length of time, a different rule should be applicable to a promissory note payable on demand, which should not be deemed to be overdue because at the time of its negotiation it appeared that a reasonable time for presenting it for payment had elapsed since its issue — I mean, of course, 'overdue' within the meaning and for the purposes of sec. 70. Although the provision of sec. 182 is a negative one, that 'a note payable on demand is not to be deemed to be overdue . . .' the same effect ought to be given to it as to the affirmative one contained in sec. 70. It is probable that the negative form of expression was used by the draftsman because the purpose of sec. 182 was to make an exception to the rule prescribed by sec. 70." See also § 70, supra, and Russell, on Bills, pp. 451, 2.

Presentment, where. Liability of maker. Note payable generally. 183. Where a promissory note is in the body of it made payable at a particular place, it must be presented for payment at that place. 2. In such case the maker is not discharged by the omission to present the note for payment on the day that it matures; but if any suit or action is instituted thereon against him before presentation, the costs thereof shall be in the discretion of the Court. 3. If no place of payment is specified in the body of the note, presentment for payment is not necessary in order to render the maker liable.

Imp. § 87. Where a note is made payable at a particular place. — Under this section a note made payable "to the order of C. at Halifax" is payable at a particular place. — Cunard v. Simon-Kaye, (1894), 27 N. S. 344. Where the note is payable at a bank the office of the bank at the place where the note is dated, rather than the general office, is the particular place of payment. — Commercial Bank v. Bissett, (1891) 7 Man. 586; Canada Paper Co. v. Gazette Pub. Co., (1893), 32 N. B. 689. So a note payable "at any bank" means any bank in the place where the note is dated. — Baldwin v. Hitchcock, (1869), 12 N. B. 310. See note to § 88, supra.

What is necessary to presentment. — If the bill is payable at a particular place and is lying there when due, this is sufficient presentment. See note to § 88. supra. See also De la Chevrolière v. Guilmet, (1886), 9 Leg. News, 412.

Whether or not presentment at the particular place named in body of note is necessary under this section has been the subject of conflicting decisions. "The first clause of this section and the first clause of its subsection 2 are but declaratory of the common law as interpreted in Rhodes v. Gent, 5 B. & Ald. 244, and Anderson v. Cleveland, 13 East, 430, viz., that the presentment at the place named is essential, if the note is made payable at a particular place but the maker is not discharged by any delay in such presentation short of the period fixed by the Statute of Limitations." — Fitzgerald, J., in Sinclair v. Deacon, (1909), 7 East. L. R. 222; McLellan v. McLellan, (1866), 17 U. C. C. P. 109; Driggs v. Waite, (1842), 6 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 310; Miller v. Dodge, (1891), 23 N. S. 191; Pigeon v. Moore, (1891), 23 N. S. 246. In Prince Edward Island and Ontario before the Act of 1890 it was not necessary to present a promissory note payable at a particular place, as against the maker unless the words "and not otherwise or elsewhere" were added. — R. S. C. (1886) c. 123 §§ 9, 16. See § 38. The rule in Quebec, was that no presentment was necessary but that costs lay in the discretion of the court if the action was brought before presentment. — Crepeau v. Moore, (1882), 8 Q. L. R. 197. Thus, where a note was made payable at the plaintiff's house, on demand, but subsequently plaintiff gave the note to his attorney and it was not in his hands to return it to the defendant, and the defendant, upon action brought without demand, paid the money into court with his plea, it was held that he was not liable for the costs of the action. — Lessard v. Genest, (1883), Ram. App. 86. See also Mount v. Dunn, (1854), 4 L. C. R. 348; Rice v. Bowker, (1853), 3 L. C. R. 305; O'Brien v. Stevenson, (1865), 15 L. C. R. 265; Mineault v. Lajoie, (1877), 9 Rev. Leg. 382; Archer v. Lortie, (1877), 3 Q. L. R. 159; Dorion v. Benoit, (1879), 2 Leg. News, 171. The new matter in this section is: "But if any suit or action is instituted thereon against him before presentation, the costs thereof shall be in the discretion of the court." It is on the interpretation of this new matter that the difference of opinion arises. The view supported by the weight of authority is that presentment before action brought is not necessary, but in such a case the costs lie in the discretion of the court. — Freeman v. Canadian G. L. Ins. Co., (1908), 17 O. L. R. 296, following the dictum of Armour, C. J., in Merchants' Bank v. Henderson, (1897), 28 O. R. 360, 365; Sinclair v. Deacon, (1909), 7 East. L. R. 222. In Sinclair v. Deacon, supra, the court said: "It is suggested that this proviso only refers to non-presentation on the day the note matures. This cannot be, as no question of costs could possibly arise where due presentment was made before action brought. At no time was the holder as against the maker bound to present on the day of maturity; and the statute makes no change in that respect. What is there to support the idea that the holder might now be punished in costs for non-presentment on the day? And, it is suggested, that it refers to the defendant's costs, in this way, that when he succeeds, as it is contended he must, if presentation is not made before action, the Court might still deprive him of the costs usually given to a successful suitor. It is difficult to see why, if presentation is necessary before suit brought, the defendant has relied upon his rights, and won his suit through the clear default of the holder to make the necessary presentation. The better and fuller interpretation of this section appears to me to be, 'you must present the note at the particular place it is made payable, not necessarily — as against the maker — on the day of its maturity, nor indeed, before suit; but if presentment is not made before suit, the costs being in the discretion of the Court, the maker will be protected from costs should — for instance — the funds to meet the note have been duly placed by him at the place named.'" To the same effect is the opinion of the majority of the Court in Robertson v. Northwestern Register Co., (1910), 13 West. L. R. 613, Cameron, J. expressly approving the dictum in Merchants' Bank v. Henderson, supra, and decisions in Freeman v. Canadian G. L. Ins. Co. and Sinclair v. Deacon, supra. To the effect that the above is the correct interpretation of this section see MacLaren, Bills, notes, and cheques, p. 449, and Russell, on Bills, pp. 299 and 453. Comparing § 93, supra and the present section, Russell says (p. 299): "With respect to the corresponding section in reference to a promissory note, the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia has decided, in Warner v. Symon-Kaye Syndicate, that presentment is necessary before action is brought, in order to charge to maker. It is difficult to suppose that the legislature meant to make any difference in this regard between the maker of a note payable at a particular place named in the body of the note, and the acceptor of a bill made so payable, either in the body of the bill or by the terms of the acceptance. If the decision of the Nova Scotia Court is correct, it may, however, be held that there is a difference. Some stress was laid on the enactment in section 183 that the note 'must be presented for payment' at the place named. There are no such words in the corresponding section as to a bill of exchange. In section 85 it is said that subject to certain provisions a bill must be presented for payment, but the consequence of non-compliance that immediately follows is, that the drawer and indorsers shall be discharged. The case of the acceptor is dealt with in this section, and the apparent intention would seem to be that if the holder fails to present the bill before action, the acceptor shall nevertheless be bound to pay it, as he ought to be; but inasmuch as he should have had it presented, the costs of the unnecessary and strictly speaking premature action shall be in the discretion of the court. Reading the section as a whole it is difficult to see what the legislature meant if it did not mean this. The suggestion made by the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, with reference to the corresponding words as to costs, that if the acceptor should succeed for want of presentment, the court may still deprive him of the costs usually given to a successful suitor, is ingenious, but far-fetched. There can be little doubt that this provision was meant to enable the Court to deprive the holder of the costs that he has occasioned by his omission to present the bill." On the other hand it has been held that the clause referred to merely obviates presentment on the day of maturity and that presentment before action brought is necessary under this section. — Warner v. Symon-Kaye Syndicate, (1894), 27 N. S. 340; Jones v. England, (1906), 5 West. L. R. 83. In the latter case Newlands, J., said: "Defendant also contends that, though the note was payable at the Union Bank of Canada at Regina, it was not before action brought presented there for payment (this is not denied by plaintiff), and therefore plaintiff cannot recover. In support of this contention plaintiff (defendant?) cites Warner v. Symon-Kaye Syndicate, 27 N. S. R. 340, where the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia held that where a note was payable at a particular place it must be presented for payment before action. Mr. Justice Graham, after citing sec. 86 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1890, said: 'First there is the expression "must," which is imperative. Here, too, it is dealing with the necessity of presentment in the case of the maker and the maker only, because sub-secs. 2 and 3 deal with the necessity of presentment in order to make the indorser liable. Then the maxim expressio unius exclusio alterius is to be applied to this provision: "But the maker is not discharged by the omission to present the note for payment on the day it matures." Some effect must be given to a clause like that. The same may be said of this further clause: "If no place of payment is specified in the body of the note, presentment for payment is not necessary in order to render the maker liable." The provision as to costs will have effect too, in this as well as in the other case,' namely, that, if the maker succeeds on the ground that there has been no presentment proved, the Court may still deprive him of the costs usually given to a successful suitor.'" To the same effect are the dissenting opinion of Richards, J. A., in Robertson v. Northwestern Register Co., supra, and comments by Falconbridge, Banking and bills of exchange, pp. 506 and 638. See also Teague v. Scoular, (1908), 17 Man. 593.

Waiver of presentment. — If presentment is necessary under this section it may, of course be dispensed with in the same manner as before the adoption of this section. So a letter from maker to holder expressing inability to pay and asking further time, is a waiver of presentment. — McDonnell v. Lowrey, (1833), 3 U. C. Q. B. (O. S.) 302. So the obtaining of a renewal of a note waives presentment of that note. — Robertson v. Northwestern Reg. Co., supra, semble. But waiver of presentment by indorser does not waive presentment to the maker. — McLellan v. McLellan, (1866), 17 U. C. C. P. 109, semble.

Necessity of presentment as against accommodation maker. — Where two joint makers are principal and surety to the knowledge of the holder, the surety is not discharged by failure to present and to give him notice of dishonour by principal. — Gardner v. Shaver, (1893), 13 C. L. T. 287. It has been held that where defendant made a note jointly with H. for H.'s accommodation, he was not discharged as against holder by holder's failure to present the note to H. for payment and to give notice of non-payment by H., even though in reliance upon the absence of such notice defendant, assuming that the note had been paid, allowed an opportunity to recover from H. to pass by and when defendant did receive notice H. had become insolvent. — Wilson v. Brown, (1881), 6 O. A. R. 87. In a late case, however, it has been held that an accommodation joint maker, known to be such by the holder, although not entitled to insist upon presentment and notice of dishonour, will be discharged if through the default of the holder in not promptly proceeding against the principal maker, he suffers damage. — Hough v. Kennedy, (1910), 13 West. L. R. 674.

Where note is payable generally. — It has been held that where debentures were payable at a bank which had ceased to exist, and which had had numerous branches, and no particular branch was designated, that it was unnecessary to aver presentment for payment at any particular place in an action on such debentures. — Becher v. Amherstburgh, (1874), 23 U. C. C. P. 602. Query, whether under this Act a promissory note so payable would be considered as payable generally. — See McRobbie v. Torrance, (1888), 5 Man. 114.

No presentment necessary where note is payable generally. — It is evident under this section that no presentment need be made where a note is payable generally. — Canadian Co-operative Co. v. Trauniczek, (1908), 8 West. L. R. 550. So a note payable at a particular place named at the foot or in the margin but not in the body of the note, need not be presented in order to bind the maker. — Grant v. Heather, (1885), 2 Man. 201.

Demand note payable generally. — It has been held that the amount of a note payable on demand by a Lower Canada debtor to a foreign creditor is recoverable with costs in Lower Canada, without proof of any demand made before institution of action. — Shuter v. Paxton, (1860), 5 L. C. Jur. 55. But a later case holds that although in an action against the maker of a note payable on demand and generally, want of presentment is not a ground for demurrer, yet if an action on such a note is brought before demand is made, the defendant upon tender of debt with interest before plea is entitled to judgment against the plaintiff for his costs. — Archer v. Lortie, (1877), 3 Q. L. R. 159. See as to this section generally McIver v. McFarland, (1824), Tay. 113; Macaulay v. McFarlane, (1840), Rob. & Jos. Dig. 493; Chandler v. Beckwith, (1838), 2 N. B. 423; Ratchford v. Griffith, (1843), 4 N. B. 112; Biggs v. Wood, (1885), 2 Man. 272.

As to endorser. Place where. What sufficient. 184. Presentment for payment is necessary in order to render the endorser of a note liable. 2. Where a note is in the body of it made payable at a particular place, presentment at that place is necessary in order to render an endorser liable. 3. When a place of payment is indicated by way of memorandum only, presentment at that place is sufficient to render the endorser liable, but a presentment to the maker elsewhere, if sufficient in other respects, shall also suffice.

Imp. § 87. Due presentment for payment is necessary to bind the indorser. — Siddall v. Gibson, (1858), 17 U. C. Q. B. 98. As to the necessity of such presentment, see § 85. As to the time, manner, and place of such presentment, see §§ 85—90, and 183 supra, and § 186, infra. As to waiver of such presentment see §§ 92, 106, and 183, supra. As to what constitutes sufficient presentment at a particular place, see notes to §§ 88—90 and § 98. See generally § 186, infra.

Maker. Engagement. Estoppel. 185. The maker of a promissory note, by making it: a) Engages that he will pay it according to its tenor; b) is precluded from denying to a holder in due course the existence of the payee and his then capacity to endorse.

Imp. § 88. For the definition of a holder in due course see § 56 supra. By subsection (b) the maker of a note payable to a bankrupt, even though he was in ignorance of the bankruptcy, is precluded from changing the payee's capacity to indorse it over, and cannot deny such capacity in a suit by the indorsee. — Perkins v. Beckett, (1878), 29 U. C. C. P. 395. But this section is subject to the modification of § 58 and if the payee's incapacity was due to the illegality of its existence (an unchartered corporation) the burden of proof devolves on the plaintiff to show that he took in good faith without notice of the illegality. — Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Rogers, (1911), 23 O. L. R. 109.

Application of Act to notes. Terms corresponding. Provisions inapplicable. 186. Subject to the provisions of this Part, and except as by this section provided, the provisions of this Act relating to bills of exchange apply, with the necessary modifications, to promissory notes. 2. In the application of such provisions the maker of a note shall be deemed to correspond with the acceptor of a bill, and the first endorser of a note shall be deemed to correspond with the drawer of an accepted bill payable to drawer's order. 3. The provisions of this Act as to bills relating to: a) Presentment for acceptance; b) Acceptance; c) Acceptance supra protest; d) Bills in a set; do not apply to notes.

Imp. § 89.

Protest of foreign notes. 187. Where a foreign note is dishonoured, protest thereof is unnecessary, except for the preservation of the liabilities of endorsers.

Imp. § 89.

Where the period, if any, fixed for the duration of the company by the Ordinance, charter, or instrument of incorporation has expired; or where the event, if any, has occurred upon the occurrence of which it is provided by the Ordinance or charter, or instrument of incorporation that the company is to be dissolved and the company in general meeting has passed a resolution requiring the company to be wound up; 2. Where the company has passed a special resolution requiring the company to be wound up; 3. When by order of the Court. 5. Where no such resolution has been passed as mentioned in the next preceding section, the Court may, on the application of a contributory, make an order for winding up in case the Court is of opinion that it is just and equitable that the company should be wound up.

Commencement of winding up. 6. A winding-up shall be deemed to commence at the time of the passing of the resolution authorising the winding-up or the making of the order directing the winding up as the case may be.

If one person only is appointed liquidator all the provisions herein contained in reference to several liquidators shall apply to him; 5. Upon the appointment of liquidators all the powers of the directors shall cease; except in so far as the company in general meeting, or the liquidators, may sanction the continuance of such powers; 6. The members of the company may at any meeting appoint one or more inspectors to superintend and direct the proceedings of the liquidators in the management and winding-up of the estate; and in case of an inspector or inspectors being appointed all the powers of the liquidator shall be exercised subject to the advice and direction of such inspector or inspectors; and the members of the company may also at any subsequent meeting held for that purpose revoke any such appointment; and upon such revocation or in case of death, resignation, or absence from the Territories of an inspector, may appoint another in his stead; and such inspector may be paid such remuneration as the members of the company may determine; 8. If one person only is appointed inspector or if by reason of death, resignation, absence from the Territories or otherwise there is only one inspector all the provisions herein contained in reference to inspectors shall apply to such sole inspector; 9. The members of the company may at any meeting pass any resolution or order directing the liquidators how to dispose of the property, real or personal, of the company; and in default of their doing so the liquidators shall be subject to the directions, orders, and instructions which they from time to time receive from the inspectors, if any, with regard to the mode, terms, and conditions on which they may dispose of the whole or any part of the property of the company.

the debts, the liquidators find that there remain debts due the attempt to collect which would be more onerous than beneficial to the estate, they shall report the same to the members of the company or inspectors, if any; and with their sanction the liquidators may sell the same by public auction after such advertisement thereof as the members of the company or the inspectors, if any, may order; and pending such advertisement the liquidators shall keep a list of the debts to be sold, open to inspection at their office, and shall also give free access to all documents and vouchers explanatory of such debts; but all debts amounting to more than $ 100 shall be sold separately except as herein otherwise provided; 5. To draw, accept, make, and indorse any bill of exchange or promissory note in the name and on behalf of the company; and to raise upon the security of the assets of the company, from time to time, any requisite sum or sums of money; and the drawing, accepting, making, or indorsing of such bill of exchange or promissory note on behalf of the company shall have the same effect with respect to the liability of the company as if such bill or note had been drawn, accepted, made, or indorsed by or on behalf of the company in the course of carrying on the business thereof; 6. To take out, if necessary, in their official name, letters of administration to the estate of any deceased contributory; and to do in their official name any other act which may be necessary for obtaining payment of any money due from a contributory or from his estate, and which act can not be conveniently done in the name of the company; and in all cases where the liquidators take out letters of administration, or otherwise use their official name for obtaining payment of any money due from a contributory, such money shall for the purpose of enabling them to take out such letters or recover such money be deemed to be due to the liquidators themselves; 7. The liquidators may fix a certain day on or before which creditors of the company and others having claims thereon are to send in their claims. 2. Such day shall not be less than two months from the first publication or notice thereof. 3. Where liquidators have given notice of the said day by publication in an issue of a newspaper published at or nearest to the chief place of business of the company, in each of the first four weeks of said two months, the liquidator shall, at the expiration of the time named for sending in such claims be at liberty to distribute the assets of the company, or any part thereof, amongst the parties entitled thereto having regard to the claims of which the liquidators have then notice and the liquidators shall not be liable for the assets, or any part thereof, so distributed to any person of whose claim such liquidators had not notice at the time of distributing the said assets, or part thereof, as the case may be; but nothing in this Ordinance contained shall prejudice the right of any creditor or claimant to follow assets into the hands of the person who may have received the same.

Priority of wages or salary. 10. In distributing the assets of a company under the provisions of this Ordinance the liquidator shall pay in priority to the claims of the ordinary or general creditors of the company the wages or salary of all persons other than directors in the employment of the company at the time of the making of the winding-up resolution or order, or within one month before the making thereof not exceeding three months' wages or salary, and such persons shall be entitled to rank as ordinary or general creditors of the company for the residue, if any, of their claims.

Arrangements may be authorized with creditors. 11. The liquidators may, with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the company, or of the Court, make such compromise or other agreement as they deem expedient, with any creditors, or persons claiming to be creditors, or persons having or alleging to have any claim, present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages, against the company, or whereby the company may be rendered liable.

between the company and any contributory or other debtor or person apprehending liability to the company, and all questions in any way relating to or affecting the assets of the company, or the winding-up of the company, upon the receipt of such sums, payable at such times, and generally upon such terms as may be agreed upon; with power for the liquidators to take any security for the discharge of such debts or liabilities, and to give a complete discharge in respect of all or any such calls, debts or liabilities.

Any sale made or arrangement entered into by the liquidators in pursuance of this section shall be binding on the members of the company which is being wound up, subject to the proviso that if any member of the company which is being wound up, who has not voted in favour of such special resolution passed by the company of which he is a member, at either of the meetings held for passing the same, expresses his dissent from any such special resolution, in writing, addressed to the liquidators or one of them, and left at the head office of the company not later than seven days after the date of the meeting at which such special resolution was passed, such dissentient members may require the liquidators to do one of the following things as the liquidators may prefer, that is to say, either: a) To abstain from carrying such resolution into effect, or b) To purchase the interest held by such dissentient member at a price to be determined in manner hereinafter mentioned, such purchase money to be paid before the company is dissolved, and to be raised by the liquidators in such manner as may be determined by special resolution. 3. No special resolution shall be deemed invalid for the purposes of this section by reason that it is passed antecedently to or concurrently with any resolution for winding up the company or for appointing liquidators. 4. The price to be paid for the purchase of the interest of any dissentient member may be determined by agreement but if the parties dispute about the same such dispute shall be settled by arbitration. 5. For the purposes of the arbitration the liquidators shall appoint one arbitrator and the dissentient member shall appoint another and the two arbitrators thus chosen or in case they disagree the Court shall appoint a third arbitrator. 6. The arbitrators thus chosen, or any two of them, or the arbitrator of one party and an arbitrator appointed by the Court in case of the refusal or neglect of either party to appoint an arbitrator shall finally determine the matter in dispute. 7. Every shareholder or member of the company or his representative is liable to contribute the amount unpaid on his shares of the capital, or on his liability to the company or to its members or creditors, as the case may be under the Ordinance, charter, or instrument of incorporation of the company; and the amount which he is liable to contribute shall be deemed assets of the company and to be a debt due to the company payable as may be directed or appointed under this Ordinance. 3. Where a shareholder has transferred his shares under circumstances which do not by law free him from liability in respect thereof, or where he is by law liable to the company or its contributories or any of them to an amount beyond the amount unpaid on his shares, he shall be deemed a member of the company for the purposes of this Ordinance and shall be liable to contribute as aforesaid to the extent of his liabilities to the company or the contributories independently of this Ordinance and the amount which he is so liable to contribute shall be deemed assets and a debt as aforesaid. 4. The list of contributories shall distinguish between persons who are contributories as being representatives of or liable for others. 5. Any list so settled shall be prima facie evidence of the liability of the persons named therein to be contributories.

Settlement of list by the Court. Procedure on settling list by the Court. Certificate of result of settlement. 15. The list of contributories may be settled by the Court in which case the liquidators shall make out and leave at the chambers of the Judge a list of the contributories of the company; and such list shall be verified by the affidavit of the liquidators or one of them and shall, so far as is practicable, state the respective addresses of, and the number of shares or extent of interest to be attributed to each such contributory, and distinguish the several classes of contributories; and the list may from time to time by leave of the Judge be varied or added to by the liquidators. 2. Upon the list of contributories being left at the chambers of the Judge, the liquidators shall obtain an appointment for the Judge to settle the same, and shall give notice in writing of the appointment to every person included in the list, and stating in what character and for what number of shares, or interest, such person is included in the list; and in case any variation in or addition to the list is at any time made by the liquidators, a similar notice in writing shall be given to every person to whom the variation or addition applies; all such notices shall be served four clear days before the day appointed to settle such list, or such variation or addition. 3. The result of the settlement of the list of contributories shall be stated in a certificate by the clerk or Registrar of the Court; and certificates may be made from time to time for the purpose of stating the result of the settlement down to any particular time, or to any particular person, or stating any variation of the list.

Provision for administration if personal representative fails to pay. 16. If a person made a contributory as personal representative of a deceased contributory makes default in paying any sum to be paid by him proceedings may be taken for administering the estate of the deceased contributory and for compelling payment thereof of the money due.

Calls on contributories. 17. The liquidators may, at any time and before they have ascertained the sufficiency of the assets of the company, call on all or any of the contributories, for the time being settled on the list of contributories, to pay, to the extent of their liability, all or any sums the liquidators deem necessary to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company and the costs, charges, and expenses of winding it up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves; and the liquidators may, in making a call, take into consideration the probability that some of the contributories upon whom the call is made may partly or wholly fail to pay their respective portions of the same.

At every meeting of the members of the company the liquidators shall produce a bank pass book showing the amount of deposits made for the company, the dates at which the deposits were made, the amounts withdrawn and dates of such withdrawal; of which production mention shall be made in the minutes of the meeting, and the absence of such mention shall be prima facie evidence that the pass book was not produced at the meetings. 6. The liquidators shall also produce the pass book whenever so ordered by the Court at the request of the inspectors or a member of the company, and on their refusal to do so they shall be treated as being in contempt of Court. 7. Every liquidator or inspector shall be subject to the summary jurisdiction of the Court in the same manner and to the same extent as the ordinary officers of the Court are subject to its jurisdiction; and the performance of his duties may be compelled, and all remedies sought or demanded for enforcing any claim for a debt, privilege, mortgage, lien, or right of property upon, in, or to any effects or property in the hands, possession, or custody of a liquidator, may be obtained by an order of the Court on summary application, and not by any action, attachment, seizure, or other proceeding of any kind whatever; and obedience by a liquidator, to such order may be enforced by the Court under the penalty of imprisonment as for contempt of Court or disobedience thereto; or he may be removed in the discretion of the Court.

The liquidators may from time to time, during the continuance of the winding-up, summon general meetings of the company for the purpose of obtaining the sanction of the company by special resolution or extraordinary resolution, or for any other purpose they think fit. 3. In the event of the winding-up continuing for more than one year the liquidators shall summon a general meeting of the company at the end of the first year and of each succeeding year from the commencement of the winding-up, or as soon thereafter as may be convenient; and shall lay before the meeting an account showing their acts and dealings and the manner in which the winding-up has been conducted during the preceding year. 4. The liquidators shall also call meetings of the members of the company whenever required in writing so to do, by the inspector or five members of the company or by the Court, and they shall state succinctly in the notice calling any meeting the purpose thereof. 5. The members of the company may, from time to time at any meeting, determine whether subsequent meetings shall be held and in the absence of such a resolution all meetings of the members of the company shall be held at the office of the liquidators or of the company, unless otherwise ordered by the Court. 6. Notice of any meeting shall for the purposes of this Ordinance be deemed to be duly given, and the meeting to be duly held, whenever the notice is given, and meeting held in manner prescribed by the Ordinance, charter, or instrument of incorporation or by the regulations of the company, or by the Court; or notice of the meeting may be given by publication thereof for at least two weeks in the Official Gazette, or by such other or additional notice as the Court, or the inspectors, or the company may direct, and except where the Court otherwise directs, by addressing notices of the meeting to the contributories within the Territories, and to the representatives within the Territories of contributories who reside out of the Territories; and the notices shall be posted at least ten days before the day on which the meeting is to take place, the postage being prepaid by the liquidators. 7. The Court at any time after the issue of a summons for winding up a company and before making an order for winding up a company, may restrain further proceedings in any action or proceeding against the company other than under any other authority over which the Legislative Assembly of the Territories has no jurisdiction in and upon such terms as the Court thinks fit. 3. The Court may make an order that no action or other proceedings shall be proceeded with or commenced against the company except with the leave of the Court, and subject to such terms as the Court may impose, and a copy of such order shall forthwith be advertised as the Court may direct; but this subsection shall not apply to proceedings under any Act of the Parliament of Canada under its jurisdiction in matters of bankruptcy and insolvency or otherwise. 4. The Court may settle the list of contributories. 5. The Court may direct any meeting of the members of the company to be summoned, held, and conducted in such manner as the Court thinks fit for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes and may appoint a person to act as chairman of any such meeting and to report the result of such meeting to the Court. 6. The Court may make an order on any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories directing payment to be made, in manner in the order mentioned, of moneys due from him or from the estate of the person whom he represents, to the company, exclusive of moneys which he or the estate of the person whom he represents may be liable to contribute by virtue of any call made or to be made by the Court in pursuance of this Ordinance. 8. The Court may order any contributory, purchaser, or other person from whom money is due to the company to pay the same into any bank appointed for the purpose in any general order made under this Ordinance, or in default of such bank into a bank named in the order, or into a branch of such bank, to the account of the liquidators instead of to the liquidators, and the order may be enforced in the same manner as if it had directed payment to the liquidators. 9. An order made by the Court in pursuance of this Ordinance upon any contributory shall, subject to the provisions herein contained for appealing against such order, be conclusive evidence that the moneys, if any, thereby appearing to be due, or ordered so to be paid, are due; and all other pertinent matters stated in the order are to be taken to be truly stated as against all persons and in all proceedings whatsoever. 10. The Court may make such order for the inspection by the creditors and contributories of the company of its books and papers as the Court thinks just; and any books and papers in the possession of the company may be inspected in conformity with the order of the Court, but not further or otherwise. 11. The Court may, at any time after the commencement of the winding-up of the company, summon to appear before the Court or liquidators any officers of the company, or any other person known or suspected to have in his possession any of the estate or effects of the company, or supposed to be indebted to the company, or any person whom the Court may deem capable of giving information concerning the trade, dealings, estate, or effects of the company; and in case of refusal to appear or answer the questions submitted he may be committed and punished by the judge as for a contempt. 12. If any person so summoned, after being tendered the fees to which a witness is entitled in the Court, refuses to come before the Court or liquidators at the time appointed, having no lawful impediment, the Court may cause such person to be apprehended and brought before the Court or liquidators for examination. 14. The Court or liquidators may examine upon oath any person appearing or brought before them in the manner aforesaid concerning the affairs, dealings, estate, or effects of the company, and may reduce into writing the answers of every such person and require him to subscribe the same. 15. In any proceeding under this Ordinance the Court may order a writ of subpoena ad testificandum or of subpoena duces tecum to issue commanding the attendance as a witness of any person within the limits of the Territories. 16. Where any person claims a lien on papers, deeds, or writings, or documents produced by him such production shall be without prejudice to the lien; and the Court shall have jurisdiction in the winding-up to determine all questions relating to such lien. 17. Where in the course of winding-up a company under this Ordinance it appears that any past or present director, manager, liquidator, or any officer of the company has misapplied or retained in his own hands or become liable or accountable for moneys of the company, or been guilty of any misfeasance or breach of trust in relation to the company the Court may, on the application of a liquidator or of any contributory of the company, notwithstanding that the offence is one for which the offender is criminally responsible, examine into the conduct of such director, manager, liquidator, or other officer, and compel him to repay the moneys so misapplied or retained, or for which he has become liable or accountable together with interest at such rate as the Court thinks just, or to contribute such sums of money to the assets of the company by way of compensation in respect of such misapplication, retainer, misfeasance, or breach of trust, as the Court thinks just.

Proceedings by contributories at their own expense and for their own benefit only. 23. If at any time a member of the company desires to cause any proceeding to be taken which, in his opinion would be for the benefit of the company, and the liquidators, with or without the authority of the members of the company or of the inspectors, refuse or neglect to take such proceeding, after being duly required so to do, such member of the company shall have the right to obtain an order of the Court, authorising him to take such proceeding in the name of the liquidators or company, but at his own expense and risk, upon such terms and conditions as to indemnity to the liquidators as the Court may prescribe: and thereupon any benefit derived from such proceeding shall belong exclusively to the member of the company instituting the same, for his benefit and that of any other member of the company who may have joined him in causing the institution of such proceeding; but if, before such order is granted, the liquidators signify to the Court their readiness to institute such proceeding for the benefit of the company, an order shall be made prescribing the time within which they shall do so and in that case any advantage derived from such proceeding shall appertain to the company.

Appointment by Court. Removal of liquidator. The case of no liquidator. 24. If from any cause there is no liquidator acting either provisionally or otherwise the Court may, on the application of a member of the company, appoint a liquidator or liquidators. 2. The Court may also on due cause shown remove a liquidator and appoint another liquidator. 3. When there is no liquidator the estate shall be under the control of the Court until the appointment of a new liquidator.

Rescinding of resolution, etc. by the Court. Confirmation or variation of resolutions, etc. Costs. 25. Any one or more members of the company whose shares therein in the aggregate exceed $ 500, who may be dissatisfied with the resolution adopted or orders made by the members of the company or the inspectors, or with any action of the liquidators for the disposal of the property of the company, or any part thereof, or for postponing the disposal of the same, or with reference to any matter connected with the management or winding-up of the estate, may, within four clear days after meeting of the members of the company in case the subject of dissatisfaction is a resolution or order of the members of the company or within four clear days after becoming aware or having notice of the resolution of the inspectors or action of the liquidators where such resolution or action is the subject of dissatisfaction, give to the liquidators notice that he or they will apply to the Court, on the day and at the hour fixed by such notice not being later than four clear days after such notice has been given or as soon thereafter as the parties may be heard before the Court, to rescind such resolutions or orders. 2. The Court, after hearing the inspectors, the liquidators and members of the company present at the time and place so fixed, may approve, rescind, or modify the said resolutions or orders. 3. In case of the application being refused the party applying shall pay all costs occasioned thereby, and in other cases the costs and expenses shall be in the discretion of the Court.

Appeals. Security for damages and costs. Dismissal of appeal. Judgment final. 26. Any party who is dissatisfied with any order or decision of the Court in any proceeding under this Ordinance may appeal therefrom to the Court en banc. 2. No such appeal shall be entertained unless the appellant has, within eight days after the rendering of such order or decision, taken proceedings on the said appeal in accordance with the rules of the Court in respect to appeals from final judgments nor unless within the said time he has given security by way of deposit or otherwise to the satisfaction of the Court that he will duly prosecute the said appeal and pay such damages and costs as may be awarded to the respondent. 3. If the party appellant does not proceed with his appeal according to the law or the rules of practice the Court, on the application of the respondent, may dismiss the appeal and condemn the appellant to pay the respondent the costs by him incurred. 4. Where a company has been wound up under this Ordinance and is about to be dissolved the books, accounts, and documents of the company and of the liquidators may be disposed of in such a way as the company by an extraordinary resolution directs. 4. After the lapse of five years from the date of such dissolution no responsibility shall rest on the company or liquidators, or any one to whom the ## Sale of Goods.

Cons. Ords., 1905, c. 39. An Ordinance respecting the Sale of Goods.<sup>1)</sup>

Short title.

Short title. 1. This Ordinance may be cited as The Sale of Goods Ordinance [2—58. Are identical in all material respects with the Imperial Sale of Goods Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vic. c. 71), §§ 1—62. There is no market overt in Alberta. Contracts for the sale of goods over $ 50 must be in writing.]

Memorandum in writing required by § 4 must embody all the terms of the contract. Where goods are sold on credit the term must be set forth. — Calder v. Nallett (1900), 5 Terr. L. R. 1. In the absence of evidence indicating a different intention, the words "F. O. B." any particular place mean that the goods must arrive there before delivery is complete. — Stephens Bros. v. Burch, (1908), 2 Alb. 68. Where there was an agreement to sell goods at certain price, F. O. B. Leduc, "delivery to be made a reasonable time after the 22d of October," and on the 26th October the buyer wrote that he did not intend to carry on the contract, the measure of damages for the buyer's failure to accept was the difference between the market price at Leduc on 26th October, and the contract price. — Rex Fruit Co. v. Anderson, (1909), 2 Alb. 361. The rule caveat emptor only protects the seller against damages resulting to him by decrease in the actual value of the goods sold. But the rule does not extend to collateral damage to the buyer occasioned by a defect in the article sold, and known to the seller. — Urch & Patterson v. Strathcona Horse Repository, (1909), 2 Alb. 83. Where there is a sale of a specific chattel and there is no evidence that the vendor did not intend to assert ownership, there is an implied warranty of title. — Dickie v. Dunn, (1887), 1 Terr. L. R. 83. Unless the buyer has notice of some defect in the seller's title. In such case there is no warranty of title as against such defect. — Terriff v. McHugh, (1889), 1 Terr. L. R. 186. Mere expressions of commendation are not representations or warranties. The implied warranty of fitness under § 16 (1) does not apply where the seller is not a regular dealer in the class of goods sold, and semble, not to second-hand goods. — Robertson v. Morris, (1908), 1 Alb. 493. Where a contract for the sale of machinery provided that "the above description is for the purpose of identification only and the buyer expressly agrees that such machinery is not sold by description, and that there are no conditions or warranty, either general, expressed, or implied, other than the conditions and warranty set forth below," it was held that this clause was an express agreement under § 53, negating the conditions implied under § 16, that the goods were reasonably fit for the special purpose for which they were purchased. Stuart, J., dissented on the ground that the words "express agreement" as used in § 53 mean "an agreement which explicitly and in direct terms, and not by means of an inference or logical syllogism, however obvious, declares that a particular obligation implied by law, specifying what that obligation is, shall not apply to the sale in question." — Reeves v. Chase, (1909), 2 Alb. 133, reversing s. c., (1908), 1 Alb. 274. On a contract containing a provision that the machinery was sold "upon and subject to the following mutual and independent conditions," and one condition was that "it was warranted to be made of good material and durable, with good care and with proper usage to do as good work as any of the same size sold in Canada," and that written notice must be given to the seller if the machinery did not satisfy the warranty, and that "there are no other warranties or guaranties, promises or agreements, than those contained herein," it was held that nevertheless, there was an implied condition under § 16 (1) as to reasonable fitness for the purpose for which the article was bought. — Sawyer-Massey Co. v. Ritchie, (1910), 13 West. L. R. 89. The evidence showed that the plaintiff and defendant drove to plaintiff's ranch, and saw the plaintiff's bunch of horses, and that the defendant stated that he would purchase, and specified the horses that were not suitable for his purposes, which were thereupon marked and separated from the others. The defendant gave the plaintiff three dollars with which to purchase oats to feed the horses, and also bought and gave the plaintiff rope with which to make halters for the horses. The horses never left the possession of the plaintiff. Held, not a sufficient receipt so as to make a contract binding under § 4. — Livingstone v. Colpitts, (1900), 4 Terr. L. R. 441.

Amendment of assignment by judge. 10. No advantage shall be taken or gained by any creditor of any mistake, defect, or imperfection in any assignment under this Act for the general benefit of creditors if the same can be amended or corrected; and any such mistake, defect, or imperfection shall be amended by any Judge; such amendment may be made on application of the assignee or of any creditor of the assignor on such notice being given to other parties concerned as the Judge shall think reasonable; and the amendment when made shall have relation back to the date of the assignment, but so as not to prejudice the rights of innocent purchasers.

Notice of assignment to be published. 11. No assignment made for the general benefit of creditors under this Act shall be within the operation of The Bills of Sale Ordinance, but a notice of the assignment shall as soon as conveniently possible be published at least once in The Alberta Gazette and not less than twice in at least one newspaper having a general circulation in the judicial district in which the property assigned is situate.

Assignment to be registered. 12. A duplicate original or copy of every such assignment shall also within ten days from the execution thereof be registered (together with an affidavit of a witness thereto of the due execution of such duplicate original or of the assignment of which the copy filed purports to be a copy) in the office of the clerk of the registration district for mortgages and other transfers of personal property, where the assignor if a resident in Alberta resides at the time of the execution thereof, or if he is not a resident then in the office of the clerk of the said registration district where the personal property so assigned is or where the principal part thereof (in case the assignment includes property in more registration districts than one) is at the time of the execution of such assignment; and such clerks shall file all such instruments presented to them respectively for that purpose, and shall indorse thereon the time of receiving the same in their respective offices and the same shall be kept there for the inspection of all persons interested therein. The burden of proving the time of such delivery or assent shall be upon the assignee; b) Such penalties may be recovered with costs by action in the Court having jurisdiction to the amount of any penalty sought to be recovered and one-half of the penalty shall go to the party suing and the other half for the benefit of the estate of the assignor; c) In case of an assignment to an official assignee he shall not be liable for any of the penalties imposed in this section unless he has been paid or tendered the cost of advertising and registering the assignment a reasonable time before the time required for so advertising and registering nor shall he be compelled to act under the assignment until his costs in that behalf are paid or tendered to him.

Compelling publication and registration. 14. In case the assignment is not registered and notice thereof published within the time hereinbefore prescribed an application may be made by any one interested in the assignment to a judge to compel the registration of the assignment and publication of such notice: and the judge shall make his order in that behalf and with or without costs or upon the payment of costs by such person as he may in his discretion direct to pay the same.

Assignment not invalidated by omission to publish, etc. 15. The omission to publish or register as aforesaid or any irregularity in the publication or registration shall not invalidate the assignment.

Appointment of substituted assignee. 16. A majority in number and value of the creditors who have proved claims to the amount of one hundred dollars or upwards may at their discretion substitute some other person resident within the Province for an assignee to whom an assignment has been made and in case an assignee has died a new assignee may in a like manner be appointed by the creditors: 2. An assignee may be removed and another substituted or a new assignee appointed by order of the Court upon application for that purpose.

Rights and duties of the substituted assignee. 17. Where a new assignee is substituted or appointed as in the last preceding section provided the estate shall forthwith vest in the new assignee without a conveyance or transfer, and he shall register an affidavit of his appointment in the office in which the original assignment was filed; such an affidavit may also be filed under The Land Titles Act, and such registration or filing shall have the same effect as the registration of a conveyance or transfer.

Assignee to call meeting of creditors. 18. It shall be the duty of the assignee immediately to inform himself by reference to the debtor and his records of account of the names and residences of the debtor's creditors and within five days from the date of assignment to convene a meeting of the creditors for the appointment of inspectors and the giving of directions with reference to the disposal of the estate by mailing prepaid and registered to every creditor known to him a circular calling a meeting of creditors to be held in his office or some other convenient place to be named in the notices not later than twelve days after the mailing of such notice; and he shall also publish such notice by advertisement in The Alberta Gazette in the first issue after the expiration of such period of five days.

Meeting of creditors by request of majority thereof. 19. In case of a request in writing signed by a majority of the creditors having claims duly proved of one hundred dollars and upwards computed according to the provisions of the twenty-second section of this Act, it shall be the duty of the assignee within two days after receiving such request to call a meeting of the creditors at a time not later than twelve days after the assignee receives the request. In case of default the assignee shall be liable to a penalty of twenty-five dollars for every day after the expiration of the time limited for the calling of the meeting until the meeting is called.

Judge to give directions in case creditors do not attend. 20. In case a sufficient number of creditors do not attend the meeting mentioned in the last preceding section, or fail to give directions with reference to the disposal of the estate any judge may give all necessary directions in that behalf.

Voting at meeting. 21. At any meeting of creditors the creditors may vote in person or by proxy authorized in writing; but no creditor whose vote is disputed shall be entitled to vote until he has filed with the assignee an affidavit in proof of his claim stating the amount and nature thereof.

Scale of vote. Upon claims acquired after assignment. Casting vote. 22. Subject to the provisions of the sixteenth and twentieth sections hereof all questions discussed at meetings of creditors shall be decided by the majority of votes and for such purpose the votes of creditors shall be calculated as follows:

For every claim of or over one hundred dollars and less than two hundred dollars, one vote;

For every claim of or over two hundred dollars and less than five hundred dollars, two votes;

For every claim of or over five hundred dollars and less than one thousand dollars, three votes;

For every additional one thousand dollars or fraction thereof, one vote: a) No person shall be entitled to vote on a claim acquired after the assignment unless the entire claim is acquired, but this shall not apply to persons acquiring notes, bills or other securities upon which they are liable: b) In case of a tie the assignee shall have a casting vote.

Creditors' claims.

Proof of claim. 23. Every person claiming to be entitled to rank on the estate assigned shall furnish to the assignee particulars of his claim proved by affidavit and such vouchers as the nature of the case admits of.

Limiting time for proof of claim. 24. In case a person claiming to be entitled to rank on the estate assigned does not within a reasonable time after receiving notice of the assignment and of the name and address of the assignee furnish to the assignee satisfactory proofs of his claim as provided by this and the preceding sections of this Act, a Judge may upon a summary application by the assignee or by any other person interested in the debtor's estate (of which application at least three days' notice shall be given to the person alleged to have made default in proving a claim as aforesaid), order that unless the claim be proved to the satisfaction of the Judge within a time to be limited by the order the person so making default shall no longer be deemed a creditor of the estate assigned and shall be wholly barred of any right to share in the proceeds thereof; and if the claim is not so proved within the time so limited or within such further time as the said Judge may by subsequent order allow, the same shall be wholly barred and the assignee shall be at liberty to distribute the proceeds of the estate as if no such claim existed, but without prejudice to the liability of the debtor therefor.

Creditor may prove claim not due. 25. A person whose claim has not accrued due shall nevertheless be entitled to prove under the assignment and vote at meetings of creditors, but in ascertaining the amount of any such claim a deduction for interest shall be made for the time which has to run until the claim becomes due.

Set-off. 26. The law of set-off shall apply to all claims made against the estate and also to all actions instituted by the assignee for the recovery of debts due to the assignor in the same manner and to the same extent as if the assignor were plaintiff or defendant as the case may be.

How claims are to rank where different estates. 27. If any assignee or assignors executing an assignment under this Act for the general benefit of his or their creditors owes or owe debts both individually and as a member of different co-partnerships, the claims shall rank first upon the estate by which the debts they represent were contracted and shall only rank upon the other or others after all the creditors of such other estate or estates have been paid in full.

Workmen's wages not exceeding three months privileged claims under assignment for benefit of creditors. Provisions applicable to all wages. When wages to be payable on distribution of estate by assignee, administrator, etc. 28. In case of an assignment under this Act the assignee shall pay in priority to the claims of the ordinary or general creditors of the person making the same the wages or salary of all persons in the employ of such person at the time of the making of such assignment or within one month before the making thereof, not exceeding three months' wages or salary, such wages or salary to be for arrears only and not for any unearned portion; and such persons shall be entitled to rank as ordinary or general creditors for the residue, if any, of their claims for arrears of such wages or salary; the provisions of this section shall apply to wages or salary whether the employment in respect of which the same may be payable by the day, week, month, or year. 2. The wages in respect of which priority is herein conferred shall become due and be payable by the assignee within one month from the time when the estate which is being wound up or distributed shall have been received by or placed under the control of such assignee unless it shall appear to him that the said estate is not of sufficient value to pay the ordinary expenses and disbursements of winding-up and distributing the said estate; but such ordinary expenses shall not include the cost of litigation or other unusual expenses concerning the estate or any part thereof, unless the persons entitled to the said preferential claim for wages shall have consented in writing to such proceedings being taken before they were commenced or shall afterwards have adopted or ratified in writing such proceedings.

Creditors to value securities. 29. Every creditor in his proof of claim shall state whether he holds any security for his claim or any part thereof; and if such security is on the estate of the debtor or on the estate of a third party for whom such debtor is only secondarily liable he shall put a specified value thereon; and the assignee under the authority of the creditors may either consent to the right of the creditor to rank for the claim after deducting such valuation or he may require from the creditor an assignment of the security at an advance of ten per cent. upon the specified value to be paid out of the estate; and in such case the difference between the value at which the security is retained and the amount of the gross claim of the creditor shall be the amount for which he shall rank and vote in respect of the estate.

Right to revalue in certain cases. 30. If a creditor holds a claim based upon negotiable instruments upon which the debtor is only indirectly or secondarily liable and which is not mature or exigible, such creditor shall be considered to hold security within the meaning of the last preceding section, and shall put a value on the liability of the party primarily liable thereon as being his security for the payment thereof; but after the maturity of such liability and its non-payment he shall be entitled to amend and revalue his claim.

When creditor holding security fails to value the same. 31. In case a person claiming to be entitled to rank on the estate assigned holds security for his claim or any part thereof of such nature that he is required by this Act to value the same and he fails to value such security a Judge may upon summary application by the assignee or by any other person interested in the debtor's estate of which application three days' notice shall be given to such claimant order that unless a specified value shall be placed on such security and notified in writing to the assignee within a time to be limited by the order such claimant shall in respect of the claim or the part thereof for which the security is held for part only of the claim be wholly barred of any right to share in the proceeds of such estate; and if a specified value is not placed on such security and notified in writing to the assignee according to the exigency of the said order or within such further time as the said Judge may by subsequent order allow the said claim or the said part as the case may be shall be wholly barred as against such estate but without prejudice to the liability of the debtor therefor.

Contestation of claim. Service of process on solicitors. 32. At any time after the assignee receives from any person claiming to be entitled to rank on the estate proof of his claim, notice of the contestation of the claim, or of any part thereof, may be served by the assignee upon the claimant; within thirty days after the receipt of the notice, or such further time as a Judge may on application allow, the claimant shall apply for and may if a Judge sees fit obtain an originating summons to decide the validity of such claim under the practice regarding originating proceedings set forth in The Judicature Ordinance or of any Act hereafter passed or Rules of Court hereafter promulgated by competent authority in substitution for or amendment of The Judicature Ordinance or of the Rules of Court therein contained, and such summons shall be served on the assignee; and in default of such summons being served within the time aforesaid the claim or such part thereof as has been so contested shall be forever barred: a) The notice by the assignee shall contain the name and place of business of a solicitor upon whom service of the summons may be made; and service upon such solicitor shall be deemed sufficient service of the summons.

Procedure where assignee is satisfied with proof of claim and debtor desires to dispute same. 33. In case the assignee is satisfied with the proof adduced in support of a claim he shall notify the debtor of his decision with regard thereto within a reasonable time after coming to such decision, and if the debtor desires to dispute the claim or any part thereof, he shall notify the assignee in writing stating his grounds of dispute; and such notice shall be given within ten days of such debtor being notified in writing by the assignee that he is satisfied with the proof adduced as aforesaid and not afterwards unless by special leave of a Judge: a) If upon receiving such notice of dispute the assignee does not deem it proper to require the claimant to take proceedings to establish his claim he shall notify the debtor in writing of this fact and the debtor may thereupon and within ten days of his receiving such notice apply to a Judge for an order requiring the assignee to serve a notice of contestation; the Judge shall only make such order if after notice to the assignee the Judge is of the opinion that there are good grounds for contesting the claim; in case the debtor does not make an application as aforesaid, the decision of the assignee shall as against him be final and conclusive; b) If proceedings are brought by the claimant against the assignee the debtor may intervene either personally or by counsel for the purpose of contesting the claim.

Dividends.

Dividends when to be paid. 34. As large a dividend as can with safety be paid shall be paid by every assignee under this Act within six months from the date of any assignment made hereunder and earlier if required by the inspectors; and thereafter a further dividend shall be paid every six months and more frequently if required by the inspectors, until the estate is wound up and disposed of.

Notice of dividend sheet. 35. So soon as a dividend sheet is prepared, notice thereof shall be given by letter posted to each creditor enclosing an abstract of receipts and disbursements, showing what interest has been received by the assignee for moneys in his hands, together with a copy of the dividend sheet noting thereon the claims objected to, and stating whether any reservation has or has not been made therefor; and after the expiry of eight days from the day of mailing such notice, abstract, and dividend sheet as aforesaid, dividends on all claims not objected to within that period shall be paid.

Administration of estate.

Assets not to be removed out of the Province, and moneys to be deposited in a bank. Penalty. 36. No property or assets of an estate assigned under the provisions of this Act shall be removed out of the Province without the order of a Judge; and the proceeds of the sale of any such property or assets and all moneys received on account of any estate shall be deposited by the assignee in one of the incorporated banks within this Province, and shall not be withdrawn or removed without the order of a Judge except in payment of dividends and other charges incidental to the winding-up of the estate, which shall include rent, wages, mortgages, secured and preferred and partly secured and preferred claims: a) Any assignee or other person acting in his stead or on his behalf violating the provisions of this section shall be liable to a penalty of five hundred dollars, which may be recovered summarily with costs before the court, and one-half of the said penalty shall go to the person suing therefor and the other half shall belong to the said estate; but in default of payment of the said penalty and all costs which may be incurred in any action or proceeding for the recovery thereof, such assignee or other person may be imprisoned for any period not exceeding thirty days, and shall be disqualified from acting as assignee of any estate while such default continues.

Accounts to be kept accessible. 37. Upon the expiration of one month from the first meeting of creditors, or as soon as may be after the expiration of such period, and afterwards from time to time at intervals of not more than three months, the assignee shall prepare and keep constantly accessible to the creditors accounts and statements of his doings as such assignee and of the position of the estate.

Confessions or warrants to confess judgment given by insolvents to defeat or delay creditors or to give one preference over the other to be void. 38. In case any person, being at the time in insolvent circumstances, or unable to pay his debts in full, or knowing himself to be on the eve of insolvency, voluntarily or by collusion with a creditor or creditors, gives a confession of judgment, cognovit actionem or warrant of attorney to confess judgment with intent, in giving such confession, cognovit actionem, or warrant of attorney to confess judgment, to defeat or delay his creditors wholly or in part or with intent thereby to give one or more of the creditors of any such person a preference over his other creditors, or over any one or more of such creditors, every such confession, cognovit actionem, or warrant of attorney to confess judgment shall be deemed and taken to be null and void as against the creditors of the party giving the same, and shall be invalid and ineffectual to support any judgment or writ of execution.

Gifts, transfers, etc., made by insolvents which defeat or prejudice creditors to be void. 39. Subject to the provisions of the forty-fifth, forty-sixth, forty-seventh, and forty-eighth sections of this Act every gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer, delivery over or payment of goods, chattels, or effects or of bills, bonds, or securities or of shares, dividends, premiums, or bonus in any bank, company, or corporation or of any other property real or personal made by a person at a time when he is in insolvent circumstances or is unable to pay his debts in full or knows that he is on the eve of insolvency with intent to defeat, hinder, delay, or prejudice his creditors or any one or more of them, shall, as against the creditor or creditors injured, delayed, or prejudiced, be utterly void.

Transfers with intent to prefer creditors. 40. Subject to the provisions of the forty-fifth, forty-sixth, forty-seventh, and forty-eighth sections of this Act every gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer, delivery over or payment of goods, chattels, or effects or of bills, bonds, notes, or securities, or of shares, dividends, premiums, or bonus in any bank, company, or corporation or of any other property real or personal made by a person at a time when he is in insolvent circumstances or is unable to pay his debts in full or knows that he is on the eve of insolvency to or for a creditor with intent to give such creditor preference over his other creditors or over any one or more of them, shall, as against the creditor or creditors injured, delayed, prejudiced, or postponed, be utterly void.

Conveyance set aside as fraudulent. — Smith v. Sugarman (1909), 2 Alb. 442; affirmed by Supreme Court of Canada (1910).

Transfers having effect of preference void if attacked within sixty days. 41. Subject to the provisions of the forty-fifth, forty-sixth, forty-seventh, and forty-eighth sections of this Act every gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer, delivery over or payment of goods, chattels, or effects or of bills, bonds, notes, or securities or of shares, dividends, premiums, or bonus in any bank, company, or corporation or of any other property real or personal, made to or for a creditor by a person at any time when he is in insolvent circumstances, or is unable to pay his debts in full, or knows that he is on the eve of insolvency, and which has the effect of giving such creditor a preference over the other creditors of the debtor, or over any one or more of them, shall, in and with respect to any action or proceeding which within sixty days thereafter is brought, had or taken to impeach or set aside such transaction, be utterly void as against the creditor or creditors injured, delayed, prejudiced, or postponed.

Or if assignment made within sixty days. 42. [As amended by St. 1909, c. 4, § 14.] Subject to the provisions of the forty-fifth, forty-sixth, forty-seventh, and forty-eighth sections of this Act every gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer, delivery over or payment of goods, chattels, or effects or of bills, bonds, notes, or securities or shares, dividends, premiums, or bonus in any bank, company, or corporation or of any other property real or personal made to or for a creditor by a person at any time when he is in insolvent circumstances or is unable to pay his debts in full, or knows that he is on the eve of insolvency, and which has the effect of giving such creditor a preference over the other creditors of the debtor or over one or more of them, shall, if the debtor within sixty days after the transaction makes an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, whether such assignment is or is not void under the provisions of this Act, be utterly void as against the assignee or any creditor authorized to take proceedings to avoid the same under the forty-ninth section hereof.

What transactions to be deemed preferential. Intent or motive immaterial. Pressure or want of knowledge on part of creditor not to save the transaction.

43. A transaction shall be deemed to be one which has the effect of giving a creditor a preference over other creditors within the meaning of the two last preceding sections if by such transaction a creditor is given, or realizes, or is placed in a position to realize payment, satisfaction, or security for the debtor's indebtedness to him or a portion thereof greater proportionately than could be realized by or for the unsecured creditors generally of such debtor or for the unsecured portion of his liabilities out of the assets of the debtor left available and subject to judgment, execution, attachment or other process; and such effect shall not be deemed dependent upon the intent or motive of the debtor or upon the transaction being entered into voluntarily or under pressure; and no pressure by a creditor or want of notice to the creditor alleged to have been so preferred of the debtor's circumstances, inability, or knowledge as aforesaid or of the effect of the transaction shall avail to protect the transaction except as provided by the forty-fifth and forty-eighth sections hereof, but independent entirely of the intent with which the transaction was entered into the preferential effect or result of the transaction impeached shall govern.

"Creditor" for certain purposes to include surety and indorser. 44. When the word "creditor" or "creditors" occurs in any of the four last preceding sections, such word shall be deemed to include any surety and the indorser of any promissory note or bill of exchange who would upon payment by him of the debt, promissory note or bill of exchange in respect of which such suretyship was entered into or such indorsement was given, become a creditor of the person giving the preference within the meaning of said sections, and such word shall include a cestui que trust or other person to whom the liability is equitable only.

Assignments for benefit of creditors and bona fide sales, etc., protected. Proviso.

45. Nothing in the last six preceding sections shall apply to any assignment made to an official assignee or with the consent of a majority of the creditors having claims of one hundred dollars and upwards, computed according to the provisions of the twenty-second section of this Act to any other person resident within the Province for the purpose in each of the said cases of paying rateably and proportionately and without preference or priority all the creditors of the debtor their just debts; nor to any bona fide sale or payment made in the ordinary course of trade or calling to innocent purchasers or parties; nor to any payment of money to a creditor nor to any bona fide conveyance, assignment, transfer, or delivery over of any goods, securities, or property of any kind as above mentioned which is made in consideration of any present actual bona fide payment in money or by way of security for any present actual bona fide advance of money or which is made in consideration of any present actual bona fide sale or delivery of goods or other property: Provided that the money paid or the goods or other property sold or delivered bear a fair and reasonable relative value to the consideration thereof.

Transfer to creditor of consideration for sale invalid. 46. In case of a valid sale of goods, securities, or property and payment or transfer of the consideration or part thereof by the purchaser to a creditor of the vendor under circumstances which would render void such a payment or transfer by the debtor personally and directly, the payment or transfer even though valid as respects the purchaser shall be void as respects the creditor to whom the same is made.

Security given up upon void payment to be returned. 47. In case a payment has been made which is void under this Act and any valuable security was given up in consideration of the payment, the creditor shall be entitled to have the security restored or its value made good to him before or as a condition of the return of the payment.

Payment of wages protected. Exchange of securities protected. Certain assignments to be valid. 48. Nothing herein contained shall affect the priority of a claim for wages or salary under the twenty-eighth section of this Act, or shall prevent a debtor providing for payment of wages or salary due by him in accordance with the provisions of the said section; nor shall anything herein contained affect any payment of money to a creditor where such creditor by reason or on account of such payment has lost or been deprived of, or has in good faith given up any valid security which he held for the payment of the debt so paid unless the value of the security is restored to the creditor nor the substitution in good faith of one security for another security for the same debt so far as the debtor's estate is not thereby lessened in value to the other creditors; nor shall anything herein contained invalidate a security given to a creditor for a pre-existing debt where by reason or on account of the giving of the security an advance in money is made to the debtor by the creditor in the bona fide belief that the advance will enable the debtor to continue his trade or business and pay his debts in full.

Rights of action of assignee. Creditor may proceed in certain cases if assignee refuses. 49. Except as is hereinafter otherwise provided the assignee shall have an exclusive right of suing for the rescission of agreements, deeds and instruments or other transactions made or entered into in fraud of creditors or made or entered into in violation of this Act: a) If at any time a creditor desires to cause any proceeding to be taken which in his opinion would be for the benefit of the estate, and the assignee under authority of the creditors or inspectors refuses or neglects to take such proceeding after being duly required so to do, the creditor shall have the right to obtain an order of a judge authorizing him to take the proceedings in the name of the assignee but at his own expense and risk, upon such terms and conditions as to indemnity to the assignee as the judge may prescribe; and thereupon any benefit derived from the proceedings shall, to the extent of his claim and full costs, belong exclusively to the creditor instituting the same for his benefit; but if before such order is granted the assignee shall signify to the judge his readiness to institute the proceedings for the benefit of the creditors, the order shall prescribe the time within which he shall do so, and in that case the advantage derived from the proceeding, if instituted within such time, shall belong to the estate.

Creditors suing for rescission to void transactions for benefit of creditors generally. 50. Where there is no valid assignment for the benefit of creditors, one or more creditors may for the benefit of creditors generally or for the benefit of such creditors as have been injured, delayed, prejudiced, or postponed by the impeached transaction, sue for the rescission of or to have declared void agreements, deeds, instruments, or other transactions made or entered into in fraud of creditors, or in violation of this Act or thereby declared void; and in case any amendment of the statement of claim be made the same shall relate back to the commencement of the action for the purpose of the time limited by the forty-first section hereof.

Following proceeds of property fraudulently transferred. Taking proceeds under execution. Creditor suing on behalf of himself and other creditors. Protection of innocent purchasers. 51. In the case of a gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer of any property real or personal, which in law is invalid against creditors if the person to whom the gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer was made, shall have sold or disposed of, realized or collected the property or any part thereof, the money or other proceeds or the amount thereof, whether further disposed of or not, may be seized or recovered in any action by a person who would be entitled to seize and recover the property if it had remained in the possession or control of the debtor or of the person to whom the gift, conveyance, transfer, delivery, or payment was made, and such right to seize and recover shall belong not only to an assignee for the general benefit of the creditors of the said debtor, but in case there is no such assignment shall exist in favour of all creditors of such debtor: a) Where there has been no valid assignment for the benefit of creditors and the proceeds are of a character to be seizable under execution, they may be seized under the execution of any creditor, and shall be distributable amongst creditors under The Creditors' Relief Ordinance; b) Where there has been no valid assignment for the benefit of creditors, and whether the proceeds realized as aforesaid are or are not of a character to be seized under execution, an action may be brought therefor, or to recover the amount thereof by a creditor (Whether a judgment creditor or not) on behalf of himself and all other creditors or such other proceedings may be taken as may be necessary to render the said proceeds or the amount thereof available for the general benefit of the creditors; c) This section shall not apply as against innocent purchasers of any such property.

Examination of assignor or employees. 52. Where there has been an assignment for the benefit of creditors, the assignee upon resolution passed by a majority vote of the creditors present, or represented at a meeting of the creditors of the assignor, regularly called, or upon the written request or resolution of the majority of the inspectors of the estate may without an order examine the assignor or any person who is or has been an agent, clerk, servant, officer, or employee of any kind of the assignor upon oath before any person authorized to hold examination for discovery under The Judicature Ordinance or of any Act hereafter passed or Rules of Court hereafter promulgated by competent authority in substitution for or amendment of the Judicature Ordinance or of the Rules of Court therein contained, or appointed for the purpose by a Judge touching the estate and effects of the assignor, and as to the property and means he had when the earliest of the debts or liabilities of the assignor existing at the date of the assignment was incurred, and as to the property and means he still has of discharging his debts and liabilities, and as to the disposal he has made of any property since contracting such debt or incurring such liability, and as to any and what debts are owing to him.

Procedure upon examination of an assignor. 53. The rules and procedure from time to time in force in the Court for the examination of judgment debtors shall, as far as may be, apply to an examination under this Act of an assignor in all respects as if the assignor were a judgment debtor.

When assignor does not attend or refuses to answer questions. 54. In case such assignor does not attend as required by any appointment or appointment and order, as the case may be, served on him, and does not allege a sufficient excuse for not attending, or if attending refuses to disclose his property or his transactions respecting the same, or does not make satisfactory answers respecting the same, or if it appears from such examination of the assignor that such assignor has concealed or made away with any part of his property in order to defeat or defraud his creditors or any of them, any Judge may on summary proceedings before him order the assignor to be committed to gaol for any term not exceeding twelve months.

Service of appointment. 55. Any person liable to be examined under the fifty-second section of this Act may be served with an appointment signed by the examiner mentioned in the fifty-second section of this Act or a copy thereof, and where the examination is to take place under an order, also with a copy of the order; such service to be made at least forty-eight hours before the time appointed for the examination, and the person to be examined is to be paid the same fees as a witness.

Conduct of examination. 56. The examination under the fifty-second section of this Act shall be conducted in the same manner as in the case of an oral examination of an opposite party in a suit or action.

Compelling attendance and production of books. 57. Any person liable to be examined under the fifty-second section hereof may be compelled to attend and testify and to produce books and documents in the same manner and subject to the same rules of examination and the same consequences of neglecting to attend or refusing to disclose the matters in respect of which he may be examined as in the case of a witness in an action in the Court.

Calling upon persons having information as to assignor's affairs to give evidence and produce documents, etc. Examination of person failing to produce documents or to deliver property. Enforcing attendance and production. 58. In case any person has or is believed or suspected to have in his possession or power any of the assignor's property, or any book, document, or paper of any kind relating in whole or in part to the assignor, his dealings or property, such person may upon resolution passed by a majority vote of the creditors present or represented at a regularly called meeting of the creditors of the assignor (exclusive of such person if he is a creditor) or upon the written request or resolution of the majority of the inspectors of the estate be required by the assignee to produce such books, documents, or papers for the information of such assignee or to deliver over to him any such property of the debtor: a) In case such person fails to produce the said book, document or other paper, or to deliver over such property within four days of his being served with a copy of the said resolution and a request of the assignee in that behalf, or in case the assignee or the majority of the inspectors is not satisfied that full production or delivery has been made, the assignee may without an order examine the said person before any of the officers mentioned in the fifty-second section of this Act, touching any such property or document or other paper which he is supposed to have received; b) Any such person may be compelled to attend and testify and to produce upon his examination any book, document, or other paper which under this section he is liable to produce in the same manner and subject to the same rules of examination and the same consequences of neglecting to attend or refusing to disclose the matters in respect of which he may be examined as in the case of a witness in an action in the Court.

Remuneration of assignee. 59. The assignee shall receive such remuneration as shall be voted to him by the creditors at any meeting called for the purpose after the first dividend sheet has been prepared, or by the inspectors in case of the creditors failing to provide therefor subject to the review of a Judge if complained of by the assignee or any of the creditors.

Where remuneration not fixed before the final dividend. 60. In case the remuneration of the assignee has not been fixed under the last preceding section before the final dividend the assignee may insert in the final dividend sheet and retain as his remuneration a sum not exceeding five per cent. of the cash receipts, subject to review by a Judge, as hereinbefore provided; but no application by the assignee to review the said allowance shall be entertained unless previous to the preparation of the final dividend sheet the question of his remuneration has been brought before a meeting of creditors competent to decide the same.

Remuneration of inspectors. 61. The assignee may pay or allow to each inspector appointed under this Act a reasonable charge or sum for the due performance of his duties as such inspector, but no such payment or allowance to an inspector in any estate shall exceed the sum of twenty-five dollars.

General.

Affidavits. 62. Any affidavit authorized or required under this act may be sworn before any person authorized to administer oaths.

63. In this Act unless the context otherwise indicates: 1. The expression "Court" means the Supreme Court of Alberta in all cases except those in which the property assigned is of the value of 400 $ or less, in which case "Court" means the District Court of the district in which the assignment is made; 2. The expression "Judge" means a Judge of such Court or of such District Court respectively.

Act not to apply to assignments prior to Act. Nor to actions commenced. 64. This Act shall not apply to any assignment executed before this Act comes into force or to any proceedings thereunder; nor shall the repeal mentioned in the following section affect any act done or any right or right of action existing, accruing, or accrued or any action or proceeding commenced in a civil cause before such repeal takes effect, but such rights may be enforced and such action or proceeding continued as though this Act had not been passed.

Repeal. 65. Chapter 42 of the Consolidated Ordinances 1898 and chapter 11 of the Ordinances of 1900 are hereby repealed.

b) St. 1910, (Sess. II) c. 4. An Act to prevent Priority among Execution Creditors (16th December, 1910).

Short title. 1. This Act may be cited as The Creditors' Relief Act.

Interpretation. 2. In this Act: 1. "District" shall mean a judicial district; 2. "Execution" shall include a writ of fieri facias and every subsequent writ for giving effect thereto; 3. "Judge" shall mean a judge of the District Court of the district, the sheriff of which is required to take the proceedings directed by this Act; 4. "Sheriff" shall include any officer to whom an execution is directed; 5. Where a Judge is disqualified to act in a matter arising under this Act a Judge of the District Court of an adjoining district shall have jurisdiction to act in his place.

No priority among execution creditors. 3. Subject to the provisions hereinafter contained there shall be no priority among creditors by execution from the Supreme Court or from a District Court.

Attachment to be for benefit of all creditors. Payment to be made to sheriff. Attachments in small debt case. Money paid to sheriff who has no execution in hand. Money paid into District Court. Attaching creditor to share with other creditors. Sheriff's poundage. Sheriff may recover attached debt. 4. 1. A creditor who attaches a debt shall be deemed to do so for the benefit of all creditors of his debtor as well as for himself. 2. Payment of such debt shall be made to the sheriff of the district in which the garnishee resides, or if there are more garnishees than one in respect of the same debt then to the sheriff of the district in which any one of them resides. 3. This section shall not apply to debts attached by proceedings in a small debt case unless, before the amount recovered by the garnishee proceedings is actually received by the creditor, an execution against the property of the debtor is placed in the hands of the sheriff of such district. 4. Where money is paid to a sheriff in whose hands there is no execution against the property of the debtor, and there is in the hands of the sheriff of another district an execution against the property of the debtor, the Court or a Judge on the application of such last mentioned sheriff or of a creditor or of the debtor may direct, on such terms as to costs and otherwise as may seem just, that such money be paid over to such last mentioned sheriff to be distributed by him as if such money had then been paid to him by the garnishee; and the Court or Judge shall fix the compensation to be paid to the sheriff by whom the money was received from the garnishee for his services. 5. Where money which a sheriff is entitled to receive under the provisions of this section is paid into a District Court in a small debt action the sheriff shall be entitled to demand and receive the same from the clerk of such Court for the purpose of distributing it under the provisions of this Act. 6. An attaching creditor shall be entitled to share in respect of his claim against the debtor in any distribution made under the provisions of this Act, but his share shall not exceed the amount recovered by his garnishee proceedings unless he has in due time placed an execution or a certificate given under this Act in the sheriff's hands. 7. The sheriff shall be entitled to poundage upon money received and distributed by him under the provisions of this section at the rate of one and a quarter per cent. and no more. 8. If an attached debt which the sheriff is entitled to receive, or any part of it, is received by the attaching creditor, the sheriff may recover the same from him; but a clerk of a District Court shall not be liable for making payment to the creditor in a small debt action unless at the time of payment he has notice that there is an execution against the property of the debtor in the sheriff's hands.

Sheriff after levy to enter notice thereof. Distribution. Moneys realized on sale under interpleader order. Rights of creditors in case of interpleader proceedings. Order as to carrying on proceedings. Time allowed in interpleader. Application of subsequent levy. Notice and distribution on further levy. Credit to be given of payment received. Lands and goods writs share equally. What creditors may share. Money realized under rules of Court relating to absconding debtors. Wages or salary due by execution debtor. 5. 1. Where a sheriff levies money under an execution against the property of a debtor, or receives money under proceedings had and taken under the rules of Court relating to the attachment of personal property of an absconding debtor, he shall forthwith make an entry, form 1, in a book to be kept in his office open to public inspection without charge. 2. The money shall thereafter be distributed rateably among all execution creditors and other creditors whose executions or certificates given under this Act were in the sheriff's hands at the time of the levy or receipt of the money, or who deliver their executions or certificates to the sheriff within one month from the entry; subject, however, to the provisions hereinafter contained as to the retention of dividends in the case of contested claims, and to the payment of the costs of the creditor under whose execution the amount was made; and subject also to the provisions of subsection 6 of the next preceding section, and, as respects money recovered by garnishee proceedings, subject to the payment thereof to the creditor who obtained the attaching order of his costs of such proceedings. 3. Subsection 2 shall not apply to money received by a sheriff as the proceeds of a sale of property by him under an interpleader order but upon the determination of the interpleader proceeding in favour of the creditors the moneys whether in the sheriff's hands or in Court pending such determination, shall, subject to the provisions of subsection 4, be distributed by the sheriff among the creditors contesting the adverse claims. 4. Where proceedings are taken by a sheriff for relief under any provisions relating to interpleader those creditors only who are parties thereto and who agree to contribute pro rata in proportion to the amount of their executions or certificates to the expense of contesting any adverse claim shall be entitled to share in any benefit which may be derived from the contestation of such claim so far as may be necessary to satisfy their executions or certificates. 5. The Judge making the interpleader order may direct that one creditor shall have the carriage of the interpleader proceedings on behalf of all creditors interested, and the costs thereof as between solicitor and client shall be a first charge upon the money or goods which may be found by the proceedings to be applicable upon the executions or certificates. 6. Upon any interpleader application the Judge may allow to other creditors who desire to take part in the contest a reasonable time in which to place their executions or certificates in the sheriff's hands upon such terms as to costs and otherwise as may be deemed just. 7. Where the sheriff, subsequently to the entry, but within the month, levies a further amount from the property of a debtor or receives money in respect of a debt which has been attached or sold, the same shall be dealt with as if such amount had been levied or received prior to the entry. 8. If after the month a further amount is so levied or received a new notice shall be entered and the distribution to be made of the amount so levied or received and of any further amount levied or received within a month of the entry of the last mentioned entry shall be governed by the entry thereof in accordance with the foregoing provisions of this section, and so from time to time as further amounts are so levied or received. 9. Where a creditor has shared in a previous distribution he shall be entitled to share in a subsequent one only in respect of the amount remaining due to him after crediting what he has received in any previous distribution. 10. In the distribution of money under this section creditors who have executions against goods or lands only or against goods and lands shall be entitled to share rateably with all others any moneys realized under execution against either goods or lands or against both, or under an attaching order. 11. Subject to the provisions of subsection 6 of section 4 a creditor shall not be entitled to share in the distribution unless by delivery of an execution, or otherwise under this Act, he has established a claim against the debtor either alone or jointly with some other person. 12. Where moneys in the hands of the sheriff for distribution are the proceeds of the property of an absconding debtor against whom an order of attachment has been issued under the rules of Court relating to the attachment of personal property of absconding debtors the period mentioned in subsection 2 shall be two months, and subsection 8 shall be read as if the words "the month" in the first line were "the two months". 13. All persons who are at the time of the seizure by the sheriff, or who within one month prior thereto have been in the employment of the execution debtor, and who shall become entitled to share in the distribution of money levied out of the property of a debtor, shall be entitled to be paid out of such money the wages or salary due to them by the execution debtor, not exceeding three months' wages or salary, in priority to the claims of the other creditors of the execution debtor, and shall be entitled to share pro rata with such other creditors as to the residue, if any, of their claims.

Proceedings where debtor allows execution to remain unsatisfied. 6. If a debtor permits an execution issued against him under which any of his goods or chattels are seized by a sheriff to remain unsatisfied in the sheriff's hands until within two days of the time fixed by the sheriff for the sale thereof, or for twenty days after the seizure, or allows an execution against his lands to remain unsatisfied for nine months after it has been placed in the sheriff's hands, the proceedings hereinafter authorized may be taken by other creditors or claimants in respect of debts which are overdue.

Affidavit, of creditor. Filing affidavit or certificate. Service on debtor. Service out of Alberta. 7. 1. An affidavit, form 2, of the debt and the particulars thereof may be made in duplicate by the creditor, or by one of the creditors in case of a joint debt, or by a person cognizant of the facts. 2. Prior to or simultaneously with the filing with the clerk of the District Court of the affidavit there shall be filed with him a certificate of the sheriff or an affidavit showing that such proceedings have been had against the debtor as entitle the creditor to proceed under this Act.

3. The claimant shall serve on the debtor one of the duplicates and a notice, form 3. 4. Where the affidavit and notice are to be served out of Alberta the judge shall by order fix the time after which the next step may be taken by the claimant as hereinafter provided.

Notice by debtor of address for service. Entry of notice. Service at address. Service by mail. Filing affidavit. Service generally. 8. 1. An execution debtor may give notice in writing to the sheriff that any claims to be served upon him may be served upon a solicitor in Alberta whose name and address shall be given, or by mailing the same to an address stated in the notice. 2. The sheriff shall thereupon enter the notice in the book mentioned in subsection 1 of section 5, and so long as any execution which was in the sheriff's hands at the time the notice was given shall remain in his hands shall repeat such entry immediately below any entry, form 1, made in respect of the execution, unless the notice is revoked in writing, in which case the entry thereof shall be marked "revoked." 3. So long as the notice is not revoked the affidavit of claim and notice, form 3, may, where a solicitor is named, be served upon an execution debtor by serving the same upon the solicitor, or if mailing is required then by mailing the same by registered post to the address in the notice given by the execution debtor. 4. Where the notice, form 3, served on a debtor does not state some place in or within three miles of the office of the clerk of the district within which the proceedings are being taken, at which service may be made upon the claimant, or does not give the name and address of some solicitor in Alberta who may be served on the claimant's behalf, service of any notice, paper or document may be made upon the claimant by mailing the same, by registered post addressed to the claimant at the town where the said clerk's office is situated. 5. The claimant shall file with the clerk of the District Court of the district, the sheriff of which has the execution, one of the duplicate affidavits of claim, and a copy of the notice with an affidavit of service thereof, form 4. 6. The affidavit and the notice shall where practicable be personally served upon the debtor; but if it is made to appear to the Judge that the claimant is unable to effect prompt personal service the Judge may order substitutional or other service, or may direct some act to be done which shall be deemed sufficient service.

Certificate where claim not disputed. Delivery to sheriff and effect of certificate. Address for service to be endorsed. Further levy to be made. Time of remaining in force. Execution or certificate expiring within month of levy. 9. 1. Where the claim is not contested in manner hereinafter mentioned, after ten days from the day of service, or after the time mentioned in the order provided for by subsection 4 of section 7 (as the case may be), on the application of the claimant and his filing proof of due service of the affidavit and notice, or where the claim is contested, upon the determination of the dispute in favour of the claimant, either in whole or in part, the clerk of the District Court shall deliver to the creditor a certificate, form 5; and where the claim is disputed as to a part only the claimant may elect by a writing filed with the clerk to abandon such part and shall be entitled to a certificate as to the residue. 2. Upon delivery of the certificate to the sheriff the claimant shall be deemed to be an execution creditor within the meaning of this Act and be entitled to share in any distribution as if he had delivered an execution to the sheriff, and the certificate shall bind the lands and goods of the debtor in the same manner as an execution; subject, however, to the debt being afterwards disputed by a creditor as hereinafter provided. 3. For the purpose of interpleader proceedings the certificate shall be deemed to be an execution. 4. If the certificate is obtained by a solicitor his name and address shall be endorsed thereon; and if obtained by the claimant in person there shall be endorsed thereon a statement of some place within three miles of the office of the clerk of the district within which proceedings are being taken, at which service may be made upon him, and in default thereof service of any notice, paper, or document may be made upon the claimant by mailing the same by registered post addressed to him at the town where the clerk's office is situated. 5. On receiving the certificate the sheriff shall make a further seizure of the property of the debtor to the amount of the debt so claimed, and the sheriff's fees; and so from time to time in case further certificates are received. 6. A certificate shall remain in force for two years from the date thereof but may from time to time be renewed in the same manner as an execution. 7. Notwithstanding the expiry of an execution or certificate before the termination of the month during which a notice of money having been levied or received is required to be entered, the execution or certificate, as to any money levied or received during such month shall be deemed to be in full force and effect.

Contesting claim. Affidavit of debtor. Filing and serving affidavit. Contestation by creditor. Notice of contestation. Certificate of contestation. Address for service.

10. 1. The claim may be contested by the debtor or by a creditor of the debtor. 2. Where the debtor contests the claim he shall file with the clerk an affidavit stating that he has a good defence to the claim or to a specified part of it on the merits, but the Judge may dispense with the affidavit on terms or otherwise. 3. The debtor shall file the affidavit and serve upon the claimant a copy thereof within ten days after service upon him of the affidavit of claim and the notice, or within the time mentioned in the order provided for by subsection 4 of section 7, as the case may be, or within such further time as the Judge may allow. 4. Where the contestation is by a creditor he shall file with the clerk an affidavit to the effect that he has reason to believe that the debt claimed is not really and in good faith due from the debtor to the claimant; but the Judge may dispense with the affidavit on terms or otherwise. 5. Notice of contestation, whether by the debtor or by a creditor, together with a copy of the affidavit, if any, shall be served upon the claimant within five days after filing the affidavit, or after the order of the Judge if the affidavit is dispensed with. 6. The affidavit by a creditor may be filed and a certificate thereof delivered to the sheriff at any time before distribution is made, and the sheriff shall forthwith give notice of the receipt of such certificate to the claimant. 7. The affidavit of the debtor or other contestant shall have endorsed thereon a statement of some place in or within three miles of the office of the clerk of the district within which proceedings are being taken at which service may be made upon him, or the address of a solicitor in Alberta who may be served on his behalf, and in default thereof service of any notice, paper or document may be made upon the debtor or contestant by mailing the same by registered post addressed to him at the town where the office of the clerk of the district within which proceedings are being taken is situated.

Service on solicitor by mailing. 11. Where the address of a solicitor is given for service which is not within three miles of the clerk's office in which the proceedings are being carried on service may be made upon him by mailing papers by registered post to him at the address so given.

Distribution in case of contestation. Claimant may apply for allowance of claim. When contest is not in good faith. 12. 1. Where a claim is contested by a creditor after a certificate has been placed in the sheriff's hands the sheriff, unless the Judge otherwise orders, shall levy as if such contestation had not been made, and shall until the determination of the contestation retain in a bank the amount which would be apportionable to the claim if valid, and shall as soon after the expiry of the month as is practicable distribute the residue of the money made amongst those entitled. 2. The claimant whose claim is contested may apply to the Judge for an order allowing his claim and determining the amount; and if he does not make such application within eight days after receiving notice of the contestation or within such further time, if any, as the Judge may allow he shall be taken to have abandoned his claim. 3. Where the contestant is a creditor and there is reason to believe that the contestation is not being carried on in good faith any other creditor may apply for an order permitting him to intervene in the contestation.

Trial of contestation. Where amount in controversy exceeds $ 400. Proceedings where issue tried. 13. 1. The Judge may determine any question in dispute in a summary manner, or may direct an action to be brought or an issue to be tried in any court and in any district for the determination thereof, and make such order as to the costs of the proceedings as he may deem just. 2. Where the sum in controversy appears to be over $ 400 exclusive of costs the Judge shall direct that the action be brought or the issue tried in the Supreme Court, and subject to any order which the supreme Court or a Judge thereof may make in that behalf shall name the district in which the trial is to take place. 3. Where an issue is directed the trial shall take place and all proceedings subsequent thereto shall be the same as if it had been an action in the Court in which it is ordered to be tried.

Production, examination, etc. 14. The same proceedings may be had for the production of documents and for the examination of parties or others, either before or at the trial as may be taken in an ordinary action, and such proceedings may also be taken before the application to the Judge, and as a foundation therefor.

Clerk to keep book of record. Effect of entry. Index. Copy of entry evidence.

15. 1. The clerk of the District Court shall keep a book in which before giving a certificate or issuing an execution for a claim he shall enter the following particulars with reference to every claim in respect of which he gives a certificate or issues an execution: a) The name of the claimant, and of the debtor; b) The date of the entry; c) The amount of the debt, exclusive of costs; d) The amount of costs; e) If the proceedings have been set aside, that fact, and shortly the reason therefor. 2. The entry shall (subject to the provisions of this Act) have the effect of and be a final judgment of the Court for the debt and costs. 3. The clerk shall index the entries in a book alphabetically under the names of the debtors. 4. Where the original papers are lost or destroyed, a copy of the entry shall be evidence of the matters therein set forth.

Establishing claim in another district. 16. Where a creditor has taken in one district the prescribed proceedings in respect of his claim and desires to establish his claim for the purposes of this Act in another district he may do so by obtaining from the clerk of the District Court of the district first mentioned another certificate, form 5, and delivering the same to the sheriff of such other district, and the delivery of the certificate to the sheriff shall have the same effect in such other district from the time of the delivery thereof as if the certificate had been issued by the clerk of the District Court of such other district upon proceedings therein.

Executions may issue to any district. 17. A creditor, entitled to obtain a certificate from the clerk of a District Court, may also sue out an execution into any district in the same manner as on an ordinary judgment; but this shall not prejudice the right of any other creditor to contest the claim of such first mentioned creditor under the provisions of this Act.

Decision in one district binding in others. 18. 1. Where a claim is contested in one district the decision thereon shall, as between the parties to the contestation, determine the amount of the claim for the purposes of this Act in all other districts in which the claim is filed, and the certificate of the clerk of the District Court of the district in which the contestation has taken place, of the result thereof, shall be sufficient evidence of the decision. 2. Upon payment of a fee of fifty cents the certificate shall be granted to any party to the proceedings who applies therefor.

Application of money paid by debtor voluntarily to sheriff. 19. 1. Where the debtor, without a sale by the sheriff, pays the full amount owing in respect of the executions and claims in the sheriff's hands at the time of such payment and no other claim has been filed, or where all executions and certificates in the sheriff's hands are withdrawn and any claims filed are paid or withdrawn, notice shall not be entered under the provisions of section 5 and no further proceedings shall be taken under section 6. 2. Save as aforesaid after a certificate has been delivered to the sheriff the withdrawal or expiry of the execution upon which the proceedings are founded, or any stay of the same, or the satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim thereon, or the setting aside or return of the execution, shall not affect the proceedings which may be taken under this Act, and except so far as the action taken with respect to the execution may affect the amount to be levied the sheriff shall levy upon the property of the debtor as he would have done had the execution remained in his hands in full force for execution and he may also take the like proceedings as he would have been entitled to take had the execution been a writ of venditioni exponas; 3. Where a debtor, without a sale by the sheriff, pays to him part of the amount owing in respect of an execution or certificate in his hands, and there is at the time no other execution or certificate in his hands, he shall apply the same on the execution or certificate, and section 5 shall not apply to the money so paid.

Costs of proceedings against absconding debtors. 20. 1. Where proceedings have been taken against a debtor under the rules of Court relating to the attachment of personal property of absconding debtors, and his property has been attached under an order of attachment, before an execution has been placed in the hands of the sheriff, and the moneys levied are the proceeds of such property or a part thereof, the cost of the order of attachment, or if there are more than one the one first placed in the sheriff's hands and the proceedings thereon shall have priority over the claim of all other creditors. 2. Where an attaching creditor is entitled to priority under subsection 1 of this section the priority provided for by subsection 2 of section 5 shall not be given to the execution creditor.

Costs of claimant. 21. 1. The clerk of the District Court shall ascertain and state in his certificate the amount of the costs to which the claimant is entitled as against the debtor. 2. Such costs shall be the following: a) For serving the affidavit of claim and notice in the case of claims over $ 400 on the scale of the Supreme Court, and in the case of claims not exceeding $ 400 on the District Court scale; b) The fees paid to the clerk of the District Court on the scale for like proceedings in the District Court; c) Where there is no contest $ 5 for fees of a solicitor, if one is employed, unless the amount of the claim does not exceed $ 200; in which case the sum of $ 2 shall be allowed; d) Where there is a contest such additional costs as the Judge may allow, to be taxed on the scale of the Supreme Court or District Court, according as the amount in dispute is within the jurisdiction of one or other of such courts.

Payment to sheriff of fund in Court. 22. Where there is in any Court a fund belonging to an execution debtor or to which he is entitled the same, or a sufficient part thereof to meet the executions and certificates in the sheriff's hands, may, on the application of the sheriff or any person interested, be paid over to the sheriff, and the same shall be deemed to be money levied under execution within the meaning of this Act.

Money made by receiver. 23. Where a judgment creditor obtains the appointment of a receiver by way of equitable execution of property of his debtor the receiver shall pay into Court the money received by him by virtue of his receivership, and the same shall be subject to the provisions of the next preceding section, but the creditor shall be entitled to be paid thereout the costs of and incidental to the receivership order and the proceedings thereon in priority to the claims of all other creditors.

Apportionment of money when amount insufficient to pay claim in full. 24. Where the amount levied by the sheriff is not sufficient to pay the executions and certificates with costs in full the money shall be applied to the payment rateably of such debts and costs of the creditors after retaining the sheriff's fees including poundage, and after payment in full of the taxed costs and the costs of the execution to the creditor at whose instance and under whose execution the seizure and levy were made where he is entitled to priority therefor under the provisions of this Act.

Levy of interest and costs of renewal. 25. The sheriff if directed by an endorsement upon a certificate shall, in addition to the amounts named therein, levy interest on such amounts from the date of the certificate or from the date named in that behalf in the certificate, and also $ 1.35 for the disbursements on every renewal of the certificate; and where such renewal is made upon the application of a solicitor he shall also levy $ 1.25 for the solicitor's costs on the renewal.

Sheriff's poundage. 26. Where money is to be distributed by the sheriff under this Act he shall not be entitled to poundage as upon separate executions or certificates, but only upon the net proceeds distributable by him at the same rate as if the whole amount had been payable upon one execution.

Money made on any writ to be considered as made on all writs entitled to benefit thereof. Compelling payment by sheriff. 27. 1. Where money is made under an execution it shall be taken to have been made under all the executions and certificates entitled to the benefit thereof, and upon payment being made to the person entitled under any such execution or certificate the sheriff shall endorse thereon a memorandum of the amount so paid, but he shall not, except on the request of the party who issued the execution, or by direction of the Court out of which the same issued, or of a Judge thereof, return the execution until the same has been fully satisfied or has expired, in which later case the sheriff shall make a formal return of the amount made thereunder. 2. The like proceedings may be taken to compel payment by the sheriff of money payable in respect to a certificate as can now be had to compel the return by the sheriff of an execution.

Statement to be kept in sheriff's office pending distribution. 28. Pending the distribution the sheriff shall keep in the book mentioned in section 5 a statement, form 6, showing the following particulars: a) The amounts levied or received and the dates of levy or receipt; b) Each execution, certificate or order in his hands at the time of making the entry, form 1, or subsequently received during the month, the amount thereof, for debt and costs, and the date of receipt, and such statement shall be amended from time to time as additional amounts are levied or received or further executions, certificates, or orders are received.

Sheriff to give information as to estate of debtor. 29. The sheriff shall at all times without fee answer any reasonable question which he may be asked orally in respect to the property of the debtor by a creditor, or any one acting upon his behalf and shall facilitate the obtaining by him of full information respecting the same and the probable dividend to be realized therefrom in his district, or any other information in connection with the property which the creditor may reasonably desire to obtain.

Distribution by sheriff where amount levied insufficient to meet all claims. 30. 1. Where at the time for distribution the money is insufficient to pay all claims in full the sheriff shall first prepare for examination by the debtor and his creditors a list of the creditors entitled to share in the distribution, with the amount due to each for principal, interest and costs; 2. The list shall be so arranged as to show the amount payable to each creditor and the total amount to be distributed; and the sheriff shall deliver, or send by registered post to each creditor or his solicitor, a copy of the list; 3. If within eight days after all the copies have been delivered or posted, or within such further time as the Judge may allow, no objection is made as provided by this Act the sheriff shall make distribution forthwith pursuant to such list; 4. If objection is made the sheriff shall forthwith distribute rateably so much of the money made, and among such persons, as will not interfere with the effect of the objection in case the same should be allowed; 5. Any person affected by the proposed scheme of distribution may contest the same by giving within the time mentioned in subsection 3 a notice in writing to the sheriff, stating his objection to the scheme and the grounds thereof; 6. The contestant shall within eight days thereafter apply to the Judge for an order adjudicating upon the matter in dispute, otherwise the contestation shall be taken to be abandoned; 7. The contestant shall within the time mentioned in the next preceding subsection obtain from the Judge an appointment for hearing and determining the matter in dispute; 8. A copy of the appointment and a notice in writing, form 7, of the objections stating the grounds thereof shall be served by the contestant upon the debtor unless he is the contestant, and upon the creditors or such of them as the judge may direct; 9. The Judge may determine any question in dispute in a summary manner, or may direct an action to be brought or an issue to be tried with or without a jury in any Court and in any district for the determination thereof, and may make such order as to the costs of the proceedings as he may deem just, and the provisions of subsections 2 and 3 of section 13 shall apply; 10. Where a claimant is held to be not entitled, or to be entitled to part only of his claim, the money retained pending the contestation, or the portion as to which the claimant shall have failed, shall be distributed among the creditors who would have been entitled thereto, as the same would have been distributed had the claim in respect thereof not been made.

Directions by Judge to avoid unnecessary parties and trials. 31. Where several creditors are interested in a contestation, either for or against the same, the Judge shall give such directions for saving the expense of an unnecessary number of parties and trials, and of unnecessary proceedings, as he may deem just, and shall direct by whom and in what proportions any costs incurred in the contestation or in any proceedings thereunder shall be paid, and whether any and what costs shall be paid out of the money levied.

Direction by Judge to sheriff where claim is disputed. 32. The Judge may direct the sheriff to levy for an amount sufficient to cover a claim which is in dispute or part thereof, or if it appears to the Judge that it is improbable that the debtor has other sufficient property he may direct the sheriff to retain in his hands during the contestation the share which if the claim is sustained will be apportionable to it, or a part thereof. 2. An order to levy under this section shall confer on the sheriff the same authority as he would have under an execution.

Decisions to be binding on all creditors. 33. The decision of a Judge of the Supreme or District Court or of the Court en banc on an appeal shall bind the debtor and all his creditors, unless it appears that the decision was obtained by fraud or collusion.

Sheriff to deposit moneys in bank. 34. Where money comes into the hands of a sheriff he shall whenever the same amounts to $100 deposit it in some chartered bank designated for that purpose by order of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council; 2. The deposit shall be made in a special account in the name of the sheriff, as "Trustee for the creditors of . . . .," (the debtor.)

Attaching orders by sheriff or creditor. 35. Where there are in the sheriff's hands several executions and certificates, and there does not appear to be sufficient property to pay all and his own fees, he may apply for an order attaching any debt owing to the execution debtor by any person resident in the district of such sheriff, whether the debt is owing by such person alone or jointly with another person resident or not resident in such district, and to procure the order and to obtain and enforce payment of the debt the sheriff may take the same proceedings as a creditor; and in such case an execution may be directed to him in the same manner as if the attachment were by a creditor; and the proceeds of the debt attached shall be dealt with and distributed in the same manner as if he had realized the same under execution.

Appeal. 36. If any party to a contestation or matter upon which a judge has rendered or made a final judgment or order is dissatisfied with such judgment or order, and the same is in respect to a question involving a sum greater than $ 200, he may appeal therefrom to the Supreme Court en banc, as nearly as may be according to the practice in force in respect of appeals from a District Court or a Judge thereof.

Powers of Judge. 37. For the purpose of giving effect to this Act and carrying out its provisions a Judge shall have all the powers which a District Court or a Judge thereof has by law for other purposes; and any proceedings erroneously taken under this Act may be set aside by the Judge or without costs as he thinks fit.

Evidence on proceeding before Judge. 38. Upon any proceeding before the Judge the evidence may be taken orally or by affidavit as the Judge may direct.

39. The following fees shall be payable to the clerk in law stamps upon all claims filed:

On an affidavit of claim where the amount claimed does not exceed $ 400	$ .80
On every such affidavit where the claim exceeds $ 400 . . . . .	1.50
On every certificate of the clerk given under section 9, where the claim does not exceed $ 400 . . . . .	.80
On every such certificate where the claim exceeds $ 400. . . . .	1.50
On every order made by the Judge allowing or disallowing a claim, where the claim does not exceed $ 400 . . . . .	.50
On every such order where the claim exceeds $ 400 . . . . .	1.00

There shall be paid to the sheriff on certificates placed in his hands under this Act, the same fees as are payable on writs of execution.

Application of Judicature Act and rules of Court. 40. Except where inconsistent with this Act, the provisions of The Judicature Act and rules of Court as to practice and procedure shall apply to proceedings under this Act.

When Act is applicable. 41. The provisions of this Act shall not apply to the proceeds of any seizure allowed under section 4 of chapter 27 of The Consolidated Ordinances.

Repeal. 42. Chapter 26 of The Consolidated Ordinances of 1898 and all amendments thereto are repealed.

Existing proceedings not affected. 2. [As amended by St. 1909, c. 4, § 20.] Nothing herein contained shall be taken to imply or to mean that the said Debtors' Act has been in force in the Province, prior to the date of the coming into force of this Act; nor shall the passage of this Act in any way affect any proceedings already taken or orders made, if any, under and by virtue of the said Debtors' Act, but notwithstanding anything herein contained such proceedings, if any, or any other necessary proceedings under the said Debtors' Act, that may be required to complete, alter or discharge any such proceedings had, or orders made, prior to the coming into force of this Act, may be had and taken as though this Act had not been passed. And nothing herein contained shall be deemed to have brought into force within the Province the law of England as to arrest or imprisonment for making default in payment of a sum of money as the same existed either immediately prior to the passing of the said Imperial Debtors' Act of 1869, or in the year 1670; and it is hereby declared that the said law of England as to arrest or imprisonment for making default in payment of a sum of money as the same existed at either of the dates mentioned is not in force in the Province.

Short title. 1. This Act may be cited as the Partnership Act.
1894, c. 36, § 86; Imp. § 1.

Part I. Respecting General Partnerships.

[2—46. Substantially embody the provisions of the Imperial Partnership Act, 1890, (53 & 54 Vic. c. 39).]

See notes to the General Partnership Acts of the other Provinces, especially those of Ontario and Manitoba. An agreement to form a partnership entered into between a person who had made a tender on certain government work and another who intended to bid on the same, providing that the latter should make a higher bid than the former and that in the event that the tender of the former should be accepted the profits should be divided, creates a partnership upon the happening of the condition, and is not void as against public policy. — Stevenson v. Boyd, (1897), 5 B. C. 626. Where persons are in partnership as architects, and one member of the firm receives an appointment from Government as supervising architect of a government building, the partner so appointed may, in the absence of a specific provision to the contrary, dissolve the partnership, and the other partners are not entitled to share in the salary after the dissolution. — Cane v. McDonald, (1902), 9 B. C. 297; affirmed (1903), 10 B. C. 444. Quære, whether a company authorized to enter into contracts for the purposes of its business may enter into an agreement with an individual to amalgamate the businesses theretofore carried on separately by the two concerns, and to divide the profits. — Roedde v. News-Advertiser Publishing Co., (1897), 4 B. C. 7. Although the statements of a partner are admissible against the partnership, they are not admissible against the co-partner to establish the existence of the partnership itself. — British Columbia Iron Works v. Buse, (1894), 4 B. C. 419. As to mining partnerships, see Gray v. McCallum, (1896), 5 B. C. 462; Wells v. Petty, (1896), 5 B. C. 353; McNerhanie v. Archibald, (1898), 6 B. C. 260. As to the application of the Statute of Frauds to partnership agreements, see Wells v.

R. 240, reversing Gordon v. Horne, (1908), 14 B. C. 138. Partners and the executors of a deceased partner must account to the other partners for all sums obtained from partnership transactions. — Oppenheimer v. Sweeny, (1906), 13 B. C. 117. A bank has no lien on the separate accounts of the partner to cover overdrafts of the firm. — Richards v. Bank of British North America, (1901), 8 B. C. 143; affirmed on this point, (1901), 8 B. The Registrar shall receive from the person filing the declaration, for the use of Her Majesty, the sum of two dollars.

Notice of partnership to be published in B. C. Gazette. 54. No such partnership shall be deemed to have been formed until a certificate has been made, certified, filed, and recorded as above directed, and notice thereof published in the British Columbia Gazette; and if any false statement is made in such certificate, all the persons interested in the partnership shall be liable for all the engagements thereof as general partners.

1894, c. 36, § 53; Imp. § 10.

Alteration in names of partners or nature of business deemed dissolution. 56. Every alteration made in the names of the partners, in the nature of the business, or in the capital or shares thereof, or in any other matter specified in the original certificate, shall be deemed a dissolution of the partnership, and every such partnership in any manner carried on after any such alteration has been made, shall be deemed a general partnership, unless renewed as a special partnership, according to the provisions of the next preceding section.

Business to be conducted in a firm-name, in which name of special partner not to appear. 57. The business of the partnership shall be conducted under a firm name in which, or in connection with which, the name of a special partner shall not under any circumstances appear or be used; and if the name of a special partner so appears or is so used, he shall ipso facto be and be deemed to be a general partner.

1894, c. 36, § 56.

Actions in relation to the business of the partnership, how brought. 58. Actions in relation to the business of the partnership may be brought and conducted by and against the general partners in the same manner as if there were no special partner.

Capital stock contributed by special partner not to be withdrawn by him or received as dividends, etc., but he may receive annual interest and his proportion of the profits. 59. No part of the sum which a special partner has contributed to the capital stock shall be withdrawn by him, or paid or transferred to him in the shape of dividends, profits, or otherwise, at any time during the continuance of the partnership; but any partner may annually receive lawful interest on the sum so contributed by him, if the payment of such interest does not reduce the original amount of the capital; and if, after the payment of such interest, any profits remain to be divided, he may also receive his portion of such profits.

If special partner receives part of original capital as interest, etc., he shall re-pay. 60. If it appears that by the payment of interest or profits to a special partner the original capital has been reduced, the partner receiving the same shall be bound to restore the amount necessary to make good his share of the deficient capital with interest.

Special partner may examine state and progress, etc., and advise; but shall not conduct the business nor act as agent, etc.; if he does, deemed general partner. 61. A special partner may from time to time examine into the state and progress of the partnership concerns, and may advise as to their management; but he shall not transact any business on account of the partnership, nor be employed for that purpose as agent, attorney, or otherwise; and if he interferes contrary to these provisions, he shall be deemed a general partner.

Notice of dissolution to be filed and published. 64. No dissolution of such partnership by the acts of the parties shall take place previous to the time specified in the certificate of its formation, or in the certificate of its renewal, until a notice of such dissolution has been filed in the office in which the original certificate was recorded, and has been published once in each week for three weeks in a newspaper published in the County or District where the partnership has its principal place of business, if there be a newspaper published there, and for the same time in the British Columbia Gazette.

Application of Part I. 65. Save as hereinbefore provided for in this Part, limited partnerships shall be governed by the provisions, so far as applicable, of Part I. of this Act.

1894, c. 36, § 64; Imp. § 7.

Part III. Respecting Registration of General Partnerships.

Members of general partnership to make declaration. 66. [As amended by 1899, c. 57, § 2.] 1. All persons now associated in or hereafter entering into a general partnership for trading, manufacturing, or mining purposes, shall cause to be delivered to the Registrar of the County Court of the county in which they carry or intend to carry on business, a declaration in writing, signed by the several members of such firm. 2. If, however, any of the said members are absent from the place where they carry or intend to carry on business at the time of making the declaration, then the declaration shall be signed by the members present in their own names and also for their absent co-members, under their special authority to that effect, and such special authority shall be at the same time filed with the Registrar and annexed to the declaration. 3. Provided that where there is more than one Registrar of a County Court for any county such declaration shall be delivered to the Registrar whose office is nearest to the place of business of such partnership, and in the same county.

Form of declaration, etc., and what it shall contain. 67. The declaration shall be in the form or to the effect of Schedule B to this Act, and shall contain the names, surnames, additions, and residences of each and every partner as aforesaid, and the firm-name, and shall state also the time during which the firm has existed or is to exist, and declare that the persons therein named are the only members of such firm.

1894, c. 36, § 66.

Declaration filed, when. 68. The declaration shall, in the case of firms formed after the coming into force of this Act, be filed within three months next after the formation of the firm, and in the case of firms existing at the time of the coming into force of this Act, within three months after the coming into force of the Act.

1894, c. 36, § 67.

Declaration on change and alteration in firm. 69. A similar declaration shall in like manner be filed when and so often as any change or alteration takes place in the membership of the firm, or in the firm-name, or in the case of any member of the firm ceasing to reside in the Province; and every new declaration shall state the alteration in the membership of firm or in the firm-name.

1894, c. 36, § 68.

Allegations in declaration not controvertible against certain parties. 70. The allegations made in the declarations aforesaid shall not be controvertible as against any party by any person who has signed the same, nor as against any party not being a member of the firm by any person who has signed the same, or who was really a member of the firm therein mentioned at the time the declaration were respectively made.

Until new declaration made, deemed to be a partner; partners may be sued. 71. Until a new declaration is made and filed by him or by his partners, or any of them as aforesaid, no such signer shall be deemed to have ceased to be a partner; but nothing herein contained shall exempt from liability any person who, being a partner, fails to declare the same as already provided; and such person may, notwithstanding such omission, be sued jointly with the partners mentioned in the declaration, or they may be sued alone, and if judgment is recovered against them, any other partner or partners may be sued jointly or severally in an action on the original cause of action upon which the judgment was rendered; nor shall anything in this Part be construed to affect the rights of any partners with regard to each other, except that no declaration as aforesaid shall be controverted by any signer thereof.

Certificate of dissolution. 72. Upon the dissolution of a firm, any or all of the persons who composed the firm, may sign a declaration certifying the dissolution of the firm; such declaration may be in the form of Schedule C to this Act.

1894, c. 36, § 71.

If declaration not filed in certain cases, action may be brought against one without naming the others, under firm-name. Where action brought on instrument in writing. 73. 1. If any persons are associated as partners for trading, manufacturing, or mining purposes, and no declaration is filed under this Part with regard to such partnership, then any action which might be brought against all the members of the firm may also be brought against any one or more of them, as carrying on or having carried on business jointly with others, without naming such others in the writ, or plaint, or other process, under the name and style of their said partnership or firm; and if judgment be recovered against him or them, any other partner or partners may be sued jointly or severally on the original cause of action on which such judgment is rendered. 2. If any such action be founded on any obligation or instrument in writing in which all or any of the partners bound by it are named, then all the partners named therein shall be made parties to such action, and a judgment rendered against any member of such existing firm for a firm debt or liability, may be executed by process of execution against all and every the firm stock, property, and effects in the same manner and to the same extent as if such judgment had been rendered against such firm.

Every person trading under firm-name implying plurality of partners to file declaration. 74. Every person who is engaged in business for trading, manufacturing, or mining purposes, and who is not associated in partnership with any other person or persons, but who uses as his business style some name or designation other than his own name, or who in such style used his own name with the addition of "and Company," or some other word or phrase indicating a plurality of members in the firm, shall cause to be delivered to the Registrar of the County Court of the county in which such person carries on or intends to carry on business, a declaration in writing signed by such person.

The Court may make an order confirming the alteration either wholly or in part, and on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit, and may make such order as to costs as it thinks proper. 5. The Court shall, in exercising its discretion under this section, have regard to the rights and interests of the members of the company or of any class of them, as well as to the rights and interests of the creditors, and may, if it thinks fit, adjourn the proceedings in order that an arrangement may be made to the satisfaction of the Court for the purchase of the interests of dissentient members; and may give such directions and make such orders as it may think expedient for facilitating or carrying into effect any such arrangement: Provided that no

C. 61. Where a portion of the shares in a company purporting to be fully paid and non-assessable shares is sold by one of the promoters to a person who is unaware that the shares were originally issued at a discount, the purchaser is not liable for the difference between the face value of the shares and the amount actually paid for them, although the transfer was at the instance of the seller made directly from the company to the purchaser. — Kettle River Mines v. Bleasdel, (1900), 7 B. C. 507. Where a company is formed to take over the business of a partnership, and the partners receive a number of fully paid-up shares at par in satisfaction of their claims, the transaction does not amount to a payment in cash nor can the debt owing to the partners as the price of the business be set off against their liability on the shares. — *Turner v. Power to return accumulated profits in reduction of paid-up share capital. 47. 1. When a company has accumulated a sum of undivided profits, which with the sanction of the shareholders may be distributed among the shareholders in the form of a dividend or bonus, it may, by special resolution, return the same, or any part thereof, to the shareholders in reduction of the paid-up capital of the company, the unpaid capital being thereby increased by a similar amount. 2. The resolution shall not take effect until a memorandum, showing the particulars required by this Act in the case of a reduction of share capital, has been produced to and registered by the Registrar of Companies, but the other provisions of this Act with respect to reduction of share capital shall not apply to a reduction of paid-up share capital under this section. 3. On a reduction of paid-up capital in pursuance of this section any shareholder, or any one or more of several joint shareholders, may within one month after the passing of the resolution for the reduction, require the company to retain, and the company shall retain accordingly, the whole of the money actually paid on the shares held by him either alone or jointly with any other person, which, in consequence of the reduction, would otherwise be returned to him or them, and thereupon those shares shall, as regards the payment of dividend, be deemed to be paid up to the same extent only as the shares on which payment has been accepted by the shareholders in reduction of paid-up capital, and the company shall invest and keep invested the money so retained in such securities authorised for investment by trustees as the company may determine, and on the money so invested or on so much thereof as from time to time exceeds the amount of calls subsequently made on the shares in respect of which it has been retained, the company shall pay the interest received from time to time on the securities. 4. The amount retained and invested shall be held to represent the future calls which may be made to replace the share capital so reduced on those shares, whether the amount obtained on sale of the whole or such proportion thereof as represents the amount of any call when made produces more or less than the amount of the call. 5. On a reduction of paid-up share capital in pursuance of this section, the powers vested in the directors of making calls on shareholders in respect of the amount unpaid on their shares shall extend to the amount of the unpaid share capital as augmented by the reduction.

6. After any reduction of share capital under this section the company shall specify in the annual list of members required by this Act the amounts retained at the request of any of the shareholders in pursuance of this section, and shall specify in the statements of account laid before any general meeting of the company the amount of undivided profits returned in reduction of paid-up share capital under this section.

Imp. § 40.

The powers conferred by this section with respect to subdivision of shares must be exercised by special resolution. 3. Where any alteration has been made under this section in the memorandum of a company, every copy of the memorandum issued after the date of the alteration shall be in accordance with the alteration. If a company makes default in complying with this provision it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five dollars for each copy in respect of which default is made; and every director and manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty. 4. A cancellation of shares in pursuance of this section shall not be deemed to be a reduction of share capital within the meaning of this Act.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 15; Imp. § 41.

Notice to Registrar of consolidation of share capital, conversion of shares into stock, etc. 49. Effect of conversion of shares into stock. 50. Where a company having a share capital has converted any of its shares into stock, and given notice of the conversion to the Registrar of Companies, all the provisions of this Act which are applicable to shares only shall cease as to so much of the share capital as is converted into stock; and the register of members of the company, and the list of members to be forwarded to the Registrar, shall show the amount of stock held by each member instead of the amount of shares and the particulars relating to shares hereinbefore required by this Act.

A company limited by shares may, by special resolution confirmed by an order of the Court, modify the conditions contained in its memorandum so as to reorganise its share capital, whether by the consolidation of shares of different classes or by the division of its shares into shares of different classes: Provided that no preference or special privilege attached to or belonging to any class of shares shall be interfered with except by a resolution passed by a majority in number of shareholders of that class holding three-fourths of the share capital of that class and confirmed at a meeting of shareholders of that class in the same manner as a special resolution of the company is required to be confirmed, and every resolution so passed shall bind all shareholders of the class. 2. Where an order is made under this section an office copy thereof shall be filed with the Registrar of Companies within seven days after the making of the order, or within such further time as the Court may allow, and the resolution shall not take effect until such a copy has been so filed.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 73; Imp. § 73.

Addition to name of company of "and reduced." 55. On and from the confirmation by a company of a resolution for reducing share capital, or where the reduction does not involve either the diminution of any liability in respect of unpaid share capital, or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, then on and from the presentation of the petition for confirming the reduction, the company shall add to its name, until such date as the Court may fix, the words "and reduced," as the last words in its name, and those words shall, until that date, be deemed to be part of the name of the company: Provided that, where the reduction does not involve either the diminution of any liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, the Court may, if it thinks expedient, dispense altogether with the addition of the words "and reduced."

Objections by creditors, and settlement of list of objecting creditors. 56. 1. Where the proposed reduction of share capital involves either diminution of liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, and in any other case if the Court so directs, every creditor of the company who at the date fixed by the Court is entitled to any debt or claim which, if that date were the commencement of the winding-up of the company, would be admissible in proof against the company, shall be entitled to object to the reduction. 2. The Court shall settle a list of creditors so entitled to object, and for that purpose shall ascertain, as far as possible without requiring an application from any creditor, the names of those creditors and the nature and amount of their debts or claims, and may publish notices fixing a day or days within which creditors not entered on the list are to claim to be so entered or are to be excluded from the right of objecting to the reduction. 3. Where a creditor entered on the list whose debt or claim is not discharged or determined does not consent to the reduction, the Court may, if it thinks fit, dispense with the consent of that creditor, on the company securing payment of his debt or claim by appropriating, as the Court may direct, the following amount, that is to say: a) If the company admits the full amount of his debt or claim, or, though not admitting it, is willing to provide for it, then the full amount of the debt or claim; b) If the company does not admit or is not willing to provide for the full amount of the debt or claim, or if the amount is contingent or not ascertained, then an amount fixed by the Court after the like inquiry and adjudication as if the company were being wound up by the Court.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, §§ 74, 75; Imp. § 49.

Order confirming reduction. 57. The Court, if satisfied, with respect to every creditor of the company who under this Act is entitled to object to the reduction, that either his consent to the reduction has been obtained or his debt or claim has been discharged or has determined, or has been secured, may make an order confirming the reduction on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 73, Imp. § 50.

The Registrar of Companies on production to him of an order of the Court confirming the reduction of the share capital of a company, and the delivery to him of a copy of the order and of a minute (approved by the Court), showing with respect to the share capital of the company, as altered by the order, the amount of the share capital, the number of shares into which it is to be divided, and the amount of each share, and the amount (if any) at the date of the registration deemed to be paid up on each share, shall register the order and minute. 2. On the registration, and not before, the resolution for reducing share capital as confirmed by the order so registered shall take effect. 3. Notice of the registration shall be published in such manner as the Court may direct. 4. The Registrar shall certify under his hand the registration of the order and minute, and his certificate shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of this Act with respect to reduction of share capital have been complied with, and that the share capital of the company is such as is stated in the minute.

Nothing in this section shall affect the rights of the contributories among themselves.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 78; Imp. § 53.

Concealing name of creditor entitled to object. 61. If any director, manager, or officer of the company wilfully conceals the name of any creditor of the company entitled to object to the reduction, or wilfully misrepresents the nature or amount of the debt or claim of any creditor, or if any director or manager of the company aids or abets in or is privy to any such concealment or misrepresentation as aforesaid, every such director, manager, or officer shall, for every such violation of this Act, upon summary conviction, be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars.

The provisions of this section as to the forwarding and filing of the statutory report shall not apply in the case of a private company.

If the directors do not proceed to cause a meeting to be held within twenty-one days from the date of the requisition being so deposited, the requisitionists, or a majority of them in value, may themselves convene the meeting, but any meeting so convened shall not be held after three months from the date of the deposit. 4. If at any such meeting a resolution requiring confirmation at another meeting is passed, the directors shall forthwith convene a further extraordinary general meeting for the purpose of considering the resolution and, if thought fit, of confirming it as a special resolution; and, if the directors do not convene the meeting within seven days from the date of the passing of the first resolution, the requisitionists, or a majority of them in value, may themselves convene the meeting. 5. At any meeting at which an extraordinary resolution is submitted to be passed or a special resolution is submitted to be passed or confirmed, a declaration of the chairman that the resolution is carried shall, unless a poll is demanded, be conclusive evidence of the fact without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against the resolution. 4. At any meeting at which an extraordinary resolution is submitted to be passed or a special resolution is submitted to be passed or confirmed a poll may be demanded, if demanded by three persons for the time being entitled according to the articles to vote, unless the articles of the company require a demand by such number of such persons, not in any case exceeding five, as may be specified in the articles. 5. When a poll is demanded in accordance with this section, in computing the majority on the poll reference shall be had to the number of votes to which each member is entitled by the articles of the company. 6. For the purposes of this section notice of a meeting shall be deemed to be duly given and the meeting to be duly held when the notice is given and the meeting held in manner provided by the articles.

1898, c. 13, § 5; R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 123. This section is not in conflict with the Dominion Companies Act. That Act gives to a company organized under its power to carry on business in the various Provinces, consistently with the laws thereof. A Province may require as a condition precedent to doing business within it the securing of a license. — Waterous Engine Works Co. v. Okanagan Lumber Co., (1908), 14 B. C. 238. An unlicensed extra-provincial company carrying on business in British Columbia can not sue on a contract entered into within the Province. — Northwestern Construction Co. v. Young, (1907), 13 B. C. 297; overruling De Laval Separator Co. v. Walworth (No. 1), (1907), 13 B. C. 74.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 138. Where the principal place of business and the head office of a company was in England, and the contract of service with a person provided that accounts should be settled in England, his administrator could not sue the company in British Columbia. — Wilson v. Hudson Bay Co., (1884), 1 B. C. II. 102. Note that the Companies Act does not apply to the Hudson Bay Company. — § 11, supra.

Rights and duties of registered companies. 142. Every extra-provincial company registered as a company under this Act shall, subject to the provisions of its charter and regulations, and of this Act, have and may exercise all the rights, powers, and privileges by this Act granted to and conferred upon companies incorporated thereunder; and every such extra-provincial company and the directors, officers, and members thereof shall be subject to and shall, subject as aforesaid, observe, carry out, and perform every act, matter, obligation, and duty by this Act prescribed and imposed upon companies incorporated thereunder, or upon the directors, officers, and members thereof.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 140.

Surrender of certificate of registration for licence. 144. Every extra-provincial company duly incorporated under the laws of Great Britain or Ireland, or of the Dominion of Canada, or of the late Province of Canada, or of any of the Provinces of Canada, heretofore registered in this Province as a foreign company under the provisions of any Act, may surrender to the Registrar the certificate of registration of the company issued under such Act and obtain from him a licence under the provisions of this Part; and for the purpose of obtaining such licence the surrender of such certificate of registration and the filing of the power of attorney prescribed by clause (d) of section 154 of this Act shall be deemed to be a sufficient compliance with the requirements of this Part.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 141; 1898, c. 13, § 10.

What extra-provincial companies subject to the Act. 145. Every extra-provincial company registered in this Province before the passage of the Companies Act, 1897, as a foreign company under the provisions of any Act in that behalf (other than a company entitled to obtain, and which has obtained, or may obtain a licence under this Part), and the directors, officers, and members thereof shall be subject to and shall observe, carry out, and perform every act, matter, obligation, and duty by this Act prescribed and imposed upon companies incorporated thereunder, or upon the directors, officers, and members thereof.

Security for costs by extra-provincial company. 146. In case of any suit or other proceeding being commenced by any extra-provincial company against any person or corporation residing or carrying on business in this Province, such extra-provincial company shall furnish security for costs, if demanded.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 144. An extra-provincial company must give security for costs, although it is suing along with a resident of British Columbia, and has assets within the Province. — McClary v. Howland, (1900), 7 B. C. 299; Alaska Steamship Co. v. Macanlay, (1900), 7 B. C. 338; affirmed (1901), 8 B. C. 84.

Chinese company. 147. Nothing contained in this Part of this Act shall authorise the registration of any Chinese or Japanese company or association.

Lieutenant-Governor's power to suspend or revoke licence. 148. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, by an Order in Council, to be published in three consecutive issues of the Gazette, suspend or revoke and make null and void any licence granted or any registration effected, under this Part, to any company which refuses or fails to keep a duly appointed attorney within the Province, or to comply with any of the provisions of the Part, and notwithstanding such suspension or revocation, the rights of creditors of the company shall remain as at the time of such suspension or revocation.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, §§ 131, 137.

What certificate of registration or licence to extra-provincial companies to contain. 149. The licence issued in pursuance of section 144 of this Act, or the certificate issued in pursuance of section 162, to an extra-provincial company heretofore registered as a foreign company need not contain in detail the objects of the company, but may incorporate them by reference to the former certificate of registration of the company

1898, c. 13, § 11.

Special provisions relating to insurance companies.

The fee to be paid by such extra-provincial company for such licence shall be two hundred and fifty dollars.

1905, c. 11, § 2.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 130.

Special and limited licences.

Registration of extra-provincial companies.

Power for extra-provincial company to register. 159. Any other extra-provincial company, duly authorised by its charter and regulations to carry out or effect any of the purposes or objects to which the legislative authority of the Legislature of British Columbia extends, may register the company as a company under this Act on compliance with the provisions of this Part and on payment to the Registrar in respect of the several matters mentioned in the table marked B in the first Schedule hereto the several fees therein specified, and such company shall, subject to the provisions of the charter and regulations of the company, and of this Act, thereupon have the same powers and privileges in this Province as if incorporated under the provisions of this Act.

Proceedings by such company to obtain registration. 160. Any extra-provincial company desiring to become registered as a company under this Act as aforesaid may petition therefore under the common seal of the company, and with such petition shall file in the office of the Registrar: a) A true copy of the charter and regulations of the company, verified in manner satisfactory to the Registrar, and showing that the company by its charter has authority to carry on business in the Province of British Columbia; and if any instrument included in the aforesaid is not written in the English language, a notarially certified translation thereof; b) An affidavit or statutory declaration that the said company is still in existence and legally authorised to transact business under its charter; c) In the case of an insurance company, a copy of the last balance-sheet and auditor's report thereon; d) A duly executed power of attorney, under its common seal, empowering some person therein named and residing in the city or place where the head office of the company in this Province is situate, to act as its attorney and to sue and be sued, plead or be impleaded, in any Court, and generally, on behalf of such company and within the Province, to accept service of process and to receive all lawful notices, to issue and transfer shares or stock, and to do all acts and to execute all deeds and other instruments relating to the matters within the scope of the power of attorney and of the company to give to its attorney, and such company may from time to time, by a new or other power of attorney, executed and deposited as aforesaid, appoint another attorney within the Province for the purposes aforesaid to replace the attorney formerly appointed. R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 133.

Powers of attorney by extra-provincial companies seeking registration. 161. 1. The Registrar may accept from any extra-provincial company, proceeding to obtain registration under the provisions of section 160 of this Act, a power of attorney which varies in substance from that called for by clause (d) of said section, in that it omits to empower the attorney named therein to issue and transfer shares or stock, upon its being shown to his satisfaction either that the company is not a public company, the shares or stock whereof are upon the market, or that although the company is a public company, and the shares or stock thereof are upon the market, yet that, either owing to the small quantity of the shares or stock of the company held in the Province, and to the fact that the company does not propose to place any of the shares or stock upon the market in the Province, or to the fact that the consent of the holders of shares or stock within the Province has been obtained, the preponderance of convenience is in favour of exempting the company from empowering their attorney in the manner specified: a) Such certificate of registration issued to the company under the provisions of section 162 shall state, after the name, address, and occupation of the attorney, that such attorney is not empowered to issue or transfer shares or stock; b) The company shall thereupon be relieved from compliance with section 143 of this Act. 2. Any company which has heretofore filed a power of attorney empowering its attorney to issue and transfer shares and stock may have such power of attorney amended on summary application to the Registrar, and on satisfying him as aforesaid, and shall thereafter be relieved in manner aforesaid. The Registrar may direct the amendment to be given publicity in such manner as he may deem necessary.

Contents of certificate. Publication. 162. [As amended by 1911, c. 8, § 23.] The Registrar shall issue to any extra-provincial company registered under this Act a certificate of registration which shall set forth: a) The corporate name of the company; b) The place where the head office of the company is situate; c) The place where the head office of the company in this Province is situate; d) The name, address, and occupation of the attorney of the company; e) The amount of the capital of the company; f) The number of shares in which it is divided, and the amount of each share; g) The time of the existence of the company, if incorporated for a limited period; h) In the case of a limited company, that the company is limited; i) In the case of a mining company, to which the non-personal liability sections of this Act apply, that the liability of the members of the company is so specially limited; and such certificate, together with a statement by the Registrar of the objects for which the company has been established and registered, shall be published at the expense of the company for four weeks: j) In the Gazette; [k) and l) are repealed]; and such certificate shall be conclusive evidence of compliance with all the requirements of this Act. And notice of the appointment of a new attorney, or of the company ceasing to carry on business in this Province, shall likewise be published for the time and in manner aforesaid.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 134; 1898, c. 13, § 9; 1900, c. 5, § 10.

Evidence of such registration. 163. The certificate of registration, or any copy thereof certified under the hand and seal of the Registrar, or a copy of the Gazette containing such certificate of registration, shall be sufficient evidence in any proceeding in any Court in this Province of the due registration of the company as aforesaid.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 135.

Substitutional service on such company. 164. If the power of attorney hereinbefore prescribed becomes invalid or ineffectual from any reason, or if other service can not readily be effected, the Court or Judge may order substitutional service of any process or proceeding upon the company to be made by such publication as is deemed requisite to be made in the premises, for at least three weeks in at least one newspaper; and such publication shall be held to be due service upon the company of such process or proceeding.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 136.

Provision requiring all transactions of an unregistered company to conform to the laws of this Province. 165. No act, matter, disposition, or thing affecting the corporate rights and property of the company within this Province, made, done, or executed by any extra-provincial company entitled to registration only under this Part, although valid by the laws of the country or state under which such company is incorporated, or permissible under its original corporate powers, shall be of any force or effect, or enforceable by the company or any one on its behalf by action in any Court in this Province, unless such act, matter, disposition, or thing be valid and permissible by the laws of British Columbia.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 143.

Disabilities and penalties.

Penalty for doing business without licence. Proviso. 166. If any extra-provincial company shall, without being licensed or registered pursuant to this Part, carry on in the Province of British Columbia any part of its business, such extra-provincial company shall be liable to a penalty of fifty dollars for every day upon which it so carries on business, and so long as it remains unlicensed or unregistered under this Act it shall not be capable of maintaining any action, suit, or other proceeding in any Court in British Columbia in respect of any contract made in whole or in part within this Province in the course of or in connection with its business, contrary to the requirements of this Part: Provided, however, that upon the granting or restoration of the licence or the issuance or restoration of the certificate of registration or the removal of any suspension of either the licence or the certificate, any action, suit, or other proceeding may be maintained as if such licence or certificate had been granted or restored or such suspension removed before the institution of any such action, suit, or other proceedings.

Cannot hold land. Proviso. 167. No extra-provincial company shall be capable of acquiring or holding lands or any interest therein in British Columbia, or registering any title thereto under the Land Registry Act, unless duly licensed or registered under this Act: Provided, however, that the granting of a licence or certificate of registration shall operate as a removal of any disability under this section.

It was once held that the Registrar is not justified in refusing to register a non-registered foreign company as the owner of land. — Ex parte New Vancouver, etc., Co. (1901), 9 B. C. 571; reversing s. c. (1890), 2 B. C. 8.

Penalty for agent of unlicensed or unregistered company carrying on business. 168. If any company, firm, broker, or other person acting as the agent or representative of or in any other capacity for an extra-provincial company not licensed or registered under this Act shall carry on any of its business contrary to the requirements of this Part, such company, firm, broker, agent, or other person shall be liable to a penalty of twenty dollars for every day it, he, or they shall so carry on such business.

Power to remit penalties. 169. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, when or after a licence has been granted or a certificate issued, remit in whole or part any penalty incurred under this Act by the company receiving the licence or the certificate, or by any representative or agent thereof, and may also remit in whole or part the costs of any action or proceeding commenced for the recovery of any such penalty, and thereupon the whole or such part of the costs, as the case may be, shall not be recoverable.

Penalties only recoverable by or with consent of Attorney-General. 170. [As amended by 1911, c. 8, § 24.] The penalties imposed by this Part shall be recoverable only by action at the suit of or brought with the written consent of the Attorney-General of British Columbia, and any action or proceeding to recover any such penalty shall be commenced within six months after the liability for such penalty has been incurred, and not afterwards. Provided that in any action to recover any such penalty the onus of proving that a company is duly licensed or registered under this or some former Act shall be upon the defendant.

Part VII. Process Against Unregistered Extra-Provincial Companies.

Definition of "company" in this Part. 171. In this Part the word "company" shall be construed to mean any unlicensed and unregistered extra-provincial company which has done, entered into, or made any act, matter, contract, or disposition giving to any person or company a right of action in any Court in this Province.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 146.

Service of process on unregistered company. 172. Any writ or summons, plaint, injunction, or other legal proceeding duly issued at the instance or suit of any person by any competent Court of the Province, or officer of such Court, may be served as against the company by delivering the same at Victoria to the Registrar of the Supreme Court.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 147.

Publication of such process. 173. It shall be the duty of such Registrar to cause to be inserted in the four regular issues of the Gazette, consecutively, following the delivery of such process to him, a notice of such process with a memorandum of the date of delivery, stating generally the nature of the relief sought and the time limited and the place mentioned for entering an appearance.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 148.

When such service valid. 174. After such advertisement shall have appeared in such four issues, the delivery of such process to the Registrar as aforesaid shall be deemed, as against the defendant company, to be good and valid service of such process.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 149.

Procedure on entering up judgment against company. 175. In entering up, applying for or obtaining a judgment by default, or for the purpose of taking any proceeding consequent or following on such service, it shall not be necessary, so far as such service is concerned, to file any affidavit, but the plaintiff shall, instead thereof, file a copy of each of the four issues of the Gazette in which the advertisement shall have appeared: Provided, always, that when service of process shall have been effected as hereinbefore mentioned, the plaintiff shall and he is hereby required to prove the amount of the debt or damages claimed by him in manner following, that is to say: If the action shall have been brought in the Supreme Court, then before a jury, or before a Judge, or before the Registrar, as a Judge of the said Court may direct, or if the action shall have been brought in the County Court, before the County Court Judge; and the making of such proof shall be a condition precedent to the plaintiff obtaining judgment.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 150.

Averment in action against company. 176. In any action, suit, or proceeding against the company, it shall not be necessary to aver in any pleading, or to adduce any evidence, that the company was organised or incorporated under the laws of any foreign state or jurisdiction, or that the company had power under its organisation or incorporation to make the contract or incur the liability in respect of which the action, suit, or proceeding against the company shall be brought.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 151.

Act not to affect remedies against companies. 177. Nothing in this Part contained shall be deemed to limit, abridge, or take away any legal right, recourse, or remedy against a company not therein enacted or recognised, nor to absolve or lessen any obligation, rule, or duty imposed by law on a company.

R. S., B. C., c. 44, § 152.

Part VIII. Winding-Up.

Preliminary.

Modes of winding-up. 178. 1. The winding-up of a company may be either: a) By the Court; or b) Voluntary; or c) Subject to the supervision of the Court. 2. ### Contributories.

Liability as contributories of present and past members. 179. 1. In the event of a company being wound up, every present and past member shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be liable to contribute to the assets of the company to an amount sufficient for payment of its debts and liabilities and the costs, charges, and expenses of the winding-up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves, with the qualifications following, that is to say: a) A past member shall not be liable to contribute if he has ceased to be a member for one year or upwards before the commencement of the winding-up; b) A past member shall not be liable to contribute in respect of any debt or liability of the company contracted after he ceased to be a member; c) A past member shall not be liable to contribute unless it appears to the Court that the existing members are unable to satisfy the contributions required to be made by them in pursuance of this Act; d) In the case of a company limited by shares, no contribution shall be required from any member exceeding the amount (if any) unpaid on the shares in respect of which he is liable as a present or past member; e) In the case of a company limited by guarantee, no contribution shall be required from any member exceeding the amount undertaken to be contributed by him to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up; f) Nothing in this Act shall invalidate any provision contained in any policy of insurance or other contract whereby the liability of individual members on the policy or contract is restricted, or whereby the funds of the company are alone made liable in respect of the policy or contract; g) A sum due to any member of a company, in his character of a member, by way of dividends, profits, or otherwise, shall not be deemed to be a debt of the company, payable to that member in a case of competition between himself and any other creditor not a member of the company; but any such sum may be taken into account for the purpose of the final adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves. 2. In the winding-up of a limited company, any director or manager, whether past or present, whose liability is, in pursuance of this Act, unlimited, shall, in addition to his liability (if any) to contribute as an ordinary member, be liable to make a further contribution as if he were, at the commencement of the winding-up, a member of an unlimited company: Provided that: a) A past director or manager shall not be liable to make such further contribution if he has ceased to hold office for a year or upwards before the commencement of the winding-up; b) A past director or manager shall not be liable to make such further contribution in respect of any debt or liability of the company contracted after he ceased to hold office; c) Subject to the articles of the company, a director or manager shall not be liable to make such further contribution unless the Court deems it necessary to require that contribution in order to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges, and expenses of the winding-up. 3. In the winding-up of a company limited by guarantee which has a share capital, every member of the company shall be liable, in addition to the amount undertaken to be contributed by him to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up, to contribute to the extent of any sums unpaid on any shares held by him.

Definition of contributory. 180. The term "contributory" means every person liable to contribute to the assets of a company in the event of its being wound up, and, in all proceedings for determining and in all proceedings prior to the final determination of the persons who are to be deemed contributories, includes any person alleged to be a contributory.

If a contributory dies either before or after he has been placed on the list of contributories, his personal representatives and his heirs and devisees shall be liable in a due course of administration to contribute to the assets of the company in discharge of his liability, and shall be contributories accordingly. 2. Where the personal representatives are placed on the list of contributories, the heirs or devisees need not be added, but they may be added as and when the Court thinks fit. 3. If the personal representatives make default in paying any money ordered to be paid by them, proceedings may be taken for administering the personal and real estates of the deceased contributory, or either of them, and of compelling payment thereof of the money due.

Imp. § 126.

Either the number of members is reduced, in the case of a private company, below two, or, in the case of any other company, below five; or 2. The shares in respect of which he is a contributory, or some of them, either were originally allotted to him or have been held by him and registered in his name for at least six months during the eighteen months before the commencement of the winding-up, or have devolved on him through the death of a former holder; and b) A petition for winding up a company on the ground of default in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory meeting shall not be presented by any person except a shareholder, nor before the expiration of fourteen days after the last day on which the meeting ought to have been held. 2. Where a company is being wound up voluntarily or subject to supervision, a petition may be presented by the liquidator, as well as by any other person authorised in that behalf under the other provisions of this section, but the Court shall not make a winding-up order on the petition unless it is satisfied that the voluntary winding-up or winding-up subject to supervision cannot be continued with due regard to the interests of the creditors or contributories.

Imp. § 140.

Powers of Court on hearing petition. 189. 1. On hearing the petition the Court may dismiss it with or without costs, or adjourn the hearing conditionally or unconditionally, or make any interim order, or any other order that it deems just, but the Court shall not refuse to make a winding-up order on the ground only that the assets of the company have been mortgaged to an amount equal to or in excess of those assets, or that the company has no assets. 2. Where the petition is presented on the ground of default in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory meeting, the Court may order the costs to be paid by any persons who, in the opinion of the Court, are responsible for the default.

Any member of the committee may be removed by an ordinary resolution at a meeting of creditors (if he represents creditors) or of contributories (if he represents contributories), of which seven days' notice has been given, stating the object of the meeting. 7. On a vacancy occurring in the committee the liquidator shall forthwith summon a meeting of creditors or of

If the liquidator elects to purchase the member's interest, the purchase money must be paid before the company is dissolved, and be raised by the liquidator in such manner as may be determined by special resolution. 5. The meeting shall be called by advertisement in the Gazette, specifying the time, place, and object thereof, and published continuously for one month at least before the meeting. 3. the meeting, the liquidator shall make a return to the Registrar of Companies of the holding of the meeting and of its date, and in default of so doing shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty-five dollars for every day during which the default continues. 4. The Registrar on receiving the return shall forthwith register it, and on the expiration of three months from the registration of the return the company shall be deemed to be dissolved: Provided that the Court may, on the application of the liquidator or of any other person who appears to the Court to be interested, make an order deferring the date at which the dissolution of the company is to take effect for such time as the Court thinks fit. 5. It shall be the duty of the person on whose application an order of the Court under this section is made, within seven days after the making of the order, to file with the Registrar an office copy of the order, and if that person fails so to do he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty-five dollars for every day during which the default continues.

Where a company incorporated under any Public Act in this Province or a registered extra-provincial company has failed for any period of two years after such incorporation or registration to send or file any return notice or document required to be made or filed or sent to the Registrar pursuant to this Act or any former Public Act, or the Registrar has reasonable cause to believe that such company or an extra-provincial licensed company is not carrying on business or in operation, he shall send to such company by post a registered letter inquiring whether such company is carrying on business or in operation and notifying it of its default (if any); and 2. If within one month no reply to such letter is received by the Registrar, or such company fails to fulfil the lawful requirements of the Registrar or notifies the Registrar that it is not carrying on business or in operation, he may, at the expiration of another fourteen days, publish in the Gazette and send to such company a notice that at the expiration of two months from the date of that notice the name of such company mentioned therein will, unless cause is shown to the contrary, be struck off the register, and the company, if one incorporated as aforesaid, will be dissolved. 3. At the expiration of the time mentioned in such last-mentioned notice, the Registrar shall, unless cause to the contrary is previously shown by such company, strike the name of such company off the register and shall publish notice thereof in the Gazette for one month, and on such last-mentioned publication the company, being an incorporated company as aforesaid, shall be dissolved; or, being an extra-provincial company, shall be deemed to have ceased to do business in the Province, under its licence or certificate of registration: Provided that the liability (if any) of every director, managing officer, and member of any such company shall continue and may be enforced as if the name of said company had not been struck off the register. 4. If any such company or a member or creditor thereof feels aggrieved by the name of such company having been struck off the register in pursuance of this section, the company or member or creditor may, before the completion of the last-mentioned publication, apply to the Court; and the Court, if satisfied that the company was at the time of the striking off carrying on business or in operation and that it is just to do so, may, upon such terms as the Court may see fit to impose, including the payment of any costs and expenses, order the name of the company to be restored to the register, and thereupon the company shall be deemed to have continued in existence as if the name thereof had never been struck off; and the Court may by the order give such directions and make such provisions as seem just for placing the company and all other persons in the same position, as nearly as may be, as if the name of the company had never been struck off. 5. A letter or notice authorised or required for the purpose of this section to be sent to any such company may be sent by post addressed to the company at its registered or head office in this Province, or if no office has been registered addressed to the care of some director or officer of the company, or if there be no director or officer of the company whose name and address are known to the Registrar the letter or notice in identical form may, in the case of a company incorporated as aforesaid, be sent to each of the persons who subscribed the memorandum of association, addressed to him at the address mentioned in the memorandum, and in the case of an extra-provincial company sent to the attorney of such company. 6. Where a company is being wound up, and the Registrar has reasonable cause to believe either that no liquidator is acting or that the affairs of the company are fully wound up and the returns required to be made by the liquidator have not been made for a period of three consecutive months, after notice by the Registrar demanding the returns has been sent by post to the registered address of the company and to the liquidator at his last known place of business, the provisions of this section shall apply in like manner as if the Registrar had not within one month after sending the letter first mentioned received any answer thereto.

In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires: The expression "assignment under this Act," means any assignment of property made by a debtor for the benefit of his creditors generally, and not made under the authority of any Act of the Parliament of Canada respecting bankruptcy or insolvency. There is no Dominion Act at present in force.

Assignment for the benefit of creditors to be deemed valid if its construction and effect accord with its purpose. 3. Every instrument executed after the 26th day of April, 1890, whereby any property shall be expressed to be conveyed, assigned, or otherwise transferred by any person to an assignee for the purpose of paying and satisfying, rateably or proportionately, and without preference or priority, all the creditors of such person their just debts, shall be deemed to be and be a good, valid and subsisting conveyance, if its construction and effect shall accord with its expressed purpose, and shall not be set aside or defeated on any account whatsoever, except actual fraud, notwithstanding any statute or law to the contrary.

Apart from any statutory provision the assignee is in the same position in reference to the impeachment of conveyances made by the assignor as the assignor himself. — McKenzie v. Bell, Irving, Patterson & Co. (1892), 2 B. C. 241.

Description of property. 4. Every assignment under this Act shall be valid and sufficient if it describes the property intended to be affected thereby in the words following, that is to say: "All my personal property, real estate, credits, and effects, which may be seized and sold under execution," or if it is in words to the like effect; and an assignment so expressed shall vest in the assignee all the real and personal estate, rights, property, credits, and effects, whether vested or contingent, belonging at the time of the assignment to the debtor, except such as are by law exempt from seizure or sale under execution or certificate of judgment, subject, however, as regards lands, to the provisions of the Land Registry Act, and the Torrens Registry Act, 1899.

Where an assignment is made of all personal property, credits, and effects that may be seized and sold under execution, the assignor can not claim exemption of chattels not coming within this description. — In re Ley, (1900), 7 B. C. 94. An unregistered deed confers on the grantee a title good as against a registered assignment for the benefit of creditors of the grantor, provided the grantee, or anyone claiming under him, subsequently registers the deed. — Westfall v. Stewart, (1907), 13 B. C. 111.

Dating assignment. 5. No assignment under this Act shall be dated after the execution thereof by the assignor.

Amendment of assignment by Judge. 6. No advantage shall be taken or gained by any creditor of or by any mistake, defect, or imperfection in any assignment under this Act, if the same can be amended or corrected, and if there be any mistake, defect, or imperfection therein, the same shall be amended by any Judge of the Supreme Court of British Columbia on application by any creditor of the assignor or on application by the assignee, on such notice being given to other parties concerned as the Judge shall think reasonable, and such amendment, when made, shall have relation back to the date of said assignment, but no such amendment shall be made so as to prejudice the rights of any innocent purchaser.

Notice of assignment. 7. No assignment under this Act shall be within the operation of the Bills of Sale Act, but notice of the assignment shall be published by the assignee in one issue of the British Columbia Gazette and in one issue of one newspaper having a general circulation in the county in which such assignment is registered. Such notice shall be published in the regular issue of said British Columbia Gazette and said newspaper issued first after ten days from the date of the assignment. Such notice shall contain the date of the assignment, the name, residence, and occupation of the debtor and assignee.

Assignment to be registered. 8. A counterpart of every such assignment shall also, within twenty-one days from the date thereof, be registered, together with an affidavit of a witness thereto of the due execution of such assignment, in the office of any County Court Registrar in which a bill of sale of the personal property or any part thereof so assigned should be registered; and such Registrar shall file all such instruments presented to him for that purpose, and shall endorse thereon the time of receiving the same in his office, and the same shall be kept there for inspection by all persons interested therein. The said Registrar shall number and enter such assignments, and shall collect the same fees as if such assignments had been registered under the Bills of Sale Act.

Penalty against assignor for neglecting publication or registration. 9. If the said notice is not published in the regular number of the British Columbia Gazette and in such newspaper as aforesaid, which shall respectively be issued first after twenty-one days from the date of the assignment, or of the assignment is not registered, as aforesaid, within twenty-one days from the execution thereof, the assignor shall be liable to a penalty of ten dollars for each and every day which shall pass after the issue of the number of the Gazette or newspaper in which the notice should have appeared until the same shall have been published, and a like penalty for each and every day which shall pass after the expiration of twenty-one days from the date of the assignment until the same shall have been registered.

Penalty against assignee for neglecting publication or registration. 10. [As amended by 1902, c. 18, § 2.] The assignee shall be subject to the like penalty as in section 9 hereinbefore provided for each and every day which shall pass after the expiration of twenty-one days from the delivery of the assignment to him, or of twenty-one days after his assent thereto until the assignment is published and registered as aforesaid.

Recovery of above-mentioned penalties. 11. Such penalties may be recovered summarily before a Judge of the Supreme Court or of the County Court of the County in which the assignment ought to be published or registered. One-half of the penalty shall go to the party suing, and the other half for the benefit of the estate of the assignor.

Compelling publication and registration. 12. In case the assignment be not registered and notice thereof published, an application may be made, by any one interested in the assignment, to a Judge of the Supreme or County Court to compel the publication and registration thereof, and the Judge shall make his order in that behalf, with or without costs, or upon the payment of costs by such person as he may, in his discretion, direct to pay the same.

Assignment not invalidated by omission to publish. 13. The omission to publish or register as aforesaid, or any irregularity in the publication or registration, shall not invalidate the assignment.

Effect upon land of registration of assignment. Precedence of assignment. 14. [As amended by 1902, c. 18, § 3.] 1. Every such assignment, when registered in any Land Registry Office, or under the provisions of the Torrens Registry Act, 1899, shall take precedence of all certificates of judgments and executions and attachments against land not completely executed by payment, subject to a lien for the costs of such judgment creditors: Provided, however, that this section shall not interfere with any priorities given by section 9 of Chapter 11 of the Revised Statutes, 1897, but such priorities shall apply only to judgments registered prior to the coming into force of this Act. 2. Every such assignment shall take precedence of all judgments, of all executions against goods, and of all attachments of debts not completely executed by payment, subject to a lien in favour of such execution creditors for their costs.

Assignee to call meeting of creditors. 15. It shall be the duty of the assignee immediately to inform himself, by reference to the debtor and his records of accounts, of the names and residences of the debtor's creditors, and within five days from the date of assignment to convene a meeting of the creditors for the giving of directions with reference to the disposal of the estate, by mailing, prepaid and registered, to every creditor known to him, a circular calling a meeting of creditors to be held at some convenient place to be named in the notices, not later than fourteen days after the mailing of such notice, and by advertisement in the British Columbia Gazette, and all other meetings shall be called and held in like manner, except that no advertisement shall be required.

Voting at creditors' meetings. 16. At any meeting of creditors a creditor may vote in person or by proxy, authorised in writing, but no creditor whose vote is disputed shall be entitled to vote until he has filed with the assignee an affidavit or declaration in proof of his claim, stating the amount and nature thereof.

Proof of claim. 17. 1. Every person claiming to be entitled to rank on the estate assigned shall furnish to the assignee particulars of his claim, proved by affidavit or declaration, and such vouchers as the nature of the case admits of. A creditor proving his claim shall deduct therefrom all trade discounts, but he shall not be compelled to deduct any discount not exceeding five per centum on the net amount of his claim, which he may have agreed to allow for payment in cash. 2. With regard to claims not bearing interest, creditors shall be entitled to add to such claims interest from the time the same were payable to the date of the assignment, at the legal rate.

Creditor may prove claim not due. 18. A person whose claim has not accrued due shall, nevertheless, be entitled to prove under the assignment and vote at the meeting of creditors, but in ascertaining the amount of any such claim a deduction for interest shall be made for the time which has to run until the claim becomes due.

Set-off against claims. 19. The law of set-off shall apply to all claims made against the estate, and also to all suits instituted by the assignee for the recovery of debts due to the assignor, in the same manner and to the same extent as if the assignor were plaintiff or defendant, as the case may be, except in so far as any claim or set-off shall be affected by the provisions of any Act respecting frauds or fraudulent preferences: Provided, however, that there shall be no set-off allowed of any claim against the estate acquired after the date of the assignment as against a claim made by the estate against the person so acquiring any such claim against the estate.

The Act relating to fraudulent preferences is printed infra.

Personal and partnership debts. 20. If any assignor executing an assignment under this Act for the general benefit of his creditors, owes debts both individually and as a member of a co-partnership or co-partnerships, the claim shall rank first upon the estate by which the debts they represent were contracted, and shall only rank upon the others after all the creditors of those others have been paid in full.

An assignment by a partnership for the benefit of partnership creditors may be construed as an assignment of partnership assets only, and be valid as such under this Act. — Eastman v. Pemberton, (1900), 7 B. C. 459. As to assignments for the benefit of creditors by surviving partners, see Hudson Bay Co. v. Green, (1881), 1 B. C. I. 247.

Calculation of votes. 21. Except with regard to the provisions of section 23 of this Act, all subjects discussed at meetings of creditors shall be decided by the majority of votes, and for such purpose the votes of creditors shall be calculated as follows: There shall be allowed: a) For every claim of or over twenty-five dollars, and not exceeding one hundred dollars, one vote; and b) For every claim over one hundred dollars, and not exceeding three hundred dollars, two votes; and c) For every claim over three hundred dollars, and not exceeding six hundred dollars, three votes; and d) For every claim over six hundred dollars, and not exceeding one thousand dollars, four votes; and e) For every additional one thousand dollars, or portion thereof, one vote: Provided, however, that in case any question arises respecting the claim of any creditor, or respecting the securities held by any creditor, such creditor shall not be allowed to vote on such question.

Casting vote. 22. In case of a tie the assignee, or if there are two assignees, then the assignee nominated for that purpose by the creditors, shall have a casting vote.

Resolution at first meeting of creditors requiring assignee to transfer estate. 23. At the first meeting of creditors, or at any subsequent meeting, a majority in votes of the creditors present in person or by proxy may pass a resolution requiring the assignee to transfer the estate to some other person named in such resolution as assignee, then and in such case the said original assignee shall forthwith deliver over to such person the property and effects belonging to the estate, and execute all conveyances, assignments, and transfers necessary to vest the said estate in said assignee, and thereupon such person so named shall become and be the assignee of such estate under the provisions of this Act.

Remuneration of original assignee upon transfer of estate. 24. Said original assignee shall, in case of such change, be entitled to be paid such remuneration as the creditors may at the meeting at which such change is made decide, subject to an appeal to the District Registrar of the Supreme Court for the district in which the assignment is registered. In case the creditors do not settle the said remuneration as aforesaid, then such District Registrar shall have power to do so on application by the original assignee on notice to the new assignee.

Verification of resolution requiring change of assignee. Registration of resolution. 25. A copy of said resolution mentioned in section 23, signed by the chairman or other presiding officer of the meeting and verified by an affidavit of some person present at the meeting, setting forth the names of the creditors present in person or by proxy at said meeting, and the result of the vote on the resolution, may be registered in any Land Registry Office or Land Titles Office, and when so registered shall have the effect of vesting in such new assignee all the real estate situate in the district of such office which the debtor vested in the original assignee by virtue of the deed of assignment, and such resolution so verified may be registered in any office provided for the registration of bills of sale, and when so registered shall the effect of vesting in such new assignee all the personal property situate in the county of such office which the debtor vested in the original assignee by virtue of the assignment.

Removal of assignee by Judge of Supreme Court. 26. Any Judge of the Supreme Court may, on the application of any creditor of the debtor, made by petition, supported by the affidavit of the applicant, remove any person who for the time being shall be entitled to act under any trust declared in or created by any such assignment as aforesaid, from the office of assignee, and appoint another person as assignee in the place of the person so removed, and also, with the consent of a majority in number representing three-fourths in value of the creditors of the debtor, expunge from any such assignment any condition or stipulation therein contained, or with the like consent alter or vary any trust in or by the assignment declared or created, and the costs of and incidental to any such application shall be a charge on and paid out of the trust estate, unless otherwise ordered by the Judge.

Semble, even in the absence of statute a Court of Equity has power to remove a trustee. Where an assignee is also employed as a solicitor to manage the insolvent estate, his interest as solicitor conflicts with his duty as assignee, and the Court may remove such a person. — In re Dickinson, (1892), 2 B. C. 262.

Mode of transfer where assignee neglects or refuses to transfer. 27. In case any such assignee refuses or neglects to deliver over to such new assignee so appointed by the creditors, or a Judge, any of the property of the estate, or refuses or neglects to execute any document required for the purpose of vesting such property in such new assignee, a Judge of the Supreme Court of British Columbia may, on the application of such new assignee, or of any creditor of such estate for one hundred dollars or more, make an order calling upon such assignee to deliver over such property, or to execute such document or documents, and to pay the costs of such application, and failure to obey such order shall be punished by committal.

Publication of resolution for transfer. 28. The resolution, referred to in section 23, shall be published in one issue of the British Columbia Gazette as soon as it conveniently can be after being passed.

Verified copy of resolution as evidence. 29. The production of a resolution of the creditors, verified as aforesaid, shall in all Courts of Justice be taken as prima facie evidence of the vesting of the debtor's estate in the assignee.

Application to certain assignments executed before 17th April, 1896, and to all assignments executed after that date. Statement of security in proof of claim. Negotiable instruments. Judge may order claim to be proved within certain time. Saving effect of Trustees and Executors Act. Contest of claim by assignee. Procedure. Address for service of writ. Claims for interest. 30. The provisions of this section shall apply to all assignments executed after the 17th day of April, 1896, and to any estate which on the 17th day of April, 1896, remained undistributed in the hands of any assignee under any assignment theretofore executed; but the said provisions shall not be deemed to refer to any estate which had been partially distributed, or affect or prejudice any act done, or any payment or distribution of assets made, by any such assignee, prior to the said 17th day of April, 1896: a) Every creditor in his proof of claim shall state whether he holds any security for his claim, or any part thereof, and if such security is on the estate of the debtor or on the estate of a third party for whom such debtor is only secondarily liable, he shall put a specified value thereon; and the assignee, under the authority of the creditors, may either consent to the right of the creditor to rank for the claim after deducting such valuation, or he may require from the creditor an assignment of the security at the specified value, to be paid, together with interest thereon at the legal rate from the date filing the claim until payment, out of the estate as soon as the assignee has realised such security, and in such case the difference between the value at which the security is retained and the amount of the gross claim of the creditor shall be the amount for which he shall rank and vote in respect of the estate. Before assigning such security such creditor shall be entitled to receive security from such assignee for the value of such security so to be assigned. In case of any dispute a Judge of the Supreme or County Court may settle the same on a summary application; b) If a creditor holds a claim based upon negotiable instruments upon which the debtor is only indirectly or secondarily liable, and which is not mature or exigible, such creditor shall be considered to hold security within the meaning of this section, and shall put a value on the liability of the party primarily liable thereon as being his security for the payment thereof, but after the maturity of such liability and its non-payment he shall be entitled to amend and re-value his claim; c) In case a person claiming to be entitled to rank on the estate assigned does not, within a reasonable time after receiving notice of the assignment and of the name and address of the assignee, furnish to the assignee satisfactory proofs of his claim as provided by this Act, a Judge of the Supreme or County Court may, upon the summary application by the assignee, or by any other person interested in the debtor's estate (of which application at least three days' notice shall be given to the person alleged to have made default in proving a claim as aforesaid), order that unless the claim be proved to the satisfaction of the Judge within a time to be limited by the order, the person so making default shall no longer be deemed a creditor of the estate assigned, and shall be wholly barred of any right to share in the proceeds thereof; and if the claim is not so proved within the time so limited, or within such further time as a Judge may by subsequent order allow, the same shall be wholly barred, and the assignee shall be at liberty to distribute the proceeds of the estate as if no such claim existed, but without prejudice to the liability of the debtor therefor; d) The preceding subsection is not intended to interfere with the protection afforded the assignee by the Trustees and Executors Act; e) At any time after the assignee receives from any person claiming to be entitled to rank on the estate proof of his claim, notice of contestation of the claim may be served by the assignee upon the claimant. Within thirty days after the receipt of the notice, or such further time as a Judge of the Supreme or County Court may on application allow, an action shall be brought by the claimant against the assignee to establish the claim, and a copy of the writ in the action served on the assignee; and in default of such action being brought and writ served within the time aforesaid, the claim to rank on the estate shall be forever barred; f) The notice by the assignee shall contain the name and place of business of one of the solicitors of the Supreme Court, upon whom service of the writ may be made; and service upon such solicitor shall be deemed sufficient service of the writ; g) Except as provided in subsection (a) hereof, no creditor shall be entitled to rank upon the estate for or in respect of any claim for interest for any subsequent to the date of the assignment, until after all claims for principal money, and all claims for interest on such principal money (where interest is by law payable thereon) calculated down to the date of the assignment, have been fully paid and satisfied.

Assignee to call meeting upon request. 31. In case of a request in writing, signed by a majority of the creditors having claims, duly proved or admitted, of fifty dollars and upwards, computed according to the provisions of section 21 of this Act, it shall be the duty of the assignee, within two days after receiving such request, to call a meeting of the creditors, for a day not later than fourteen days after such request is received.

Remuneration of assignee. 32. 1. The permanent assignee shall be entitled to such remuneration as may be voted to him by the creditors, subject to an appeal to a District Registrar of the Supreme Court. In case no remuneration is voted by the creditors, at the first meeting of creditors, or at the meeting at which such permanent assignee is appointed, such remuneration shall be settled by a District Registrar on notice to the Inspectors. There shall be an appeal from the decision of the District Registrar either by the assignee or the Inspectors, or any creditor on behalf of the creditors, to a Judge of the Supreme Court. Notice of such appeal must be given within four days after the decision of the District Registrar. 2. Such remuneration shall be in the nature of a commission or percentage, of which one part shall be payable on the amount realised and the other part on the amount distributed in dividends. 3. The resolution shall express what expenses the remuneration is to cover, and no liability shall attach to the debtor's estate or to the creditors in respect of any expenses which the remuneration is expressed to cover. 4. An assignee shall not, under any circumstances whatever, make any arrangement for, or accept from the assignor or any solicitor, auctioneer, or any other person that may be employed about an assignment, any gift, remuneration, or pecuniary or other consideration or benefit whatever beyond the remuneration paid by the creditors and payable out of the estate, nor shall he make any arrangement for giving up, or give up, any part of his remuneration, either as assignee, manager, or trustee, to the assignor or any solicitor or other person that may be employed about an assignment.

Remuneration fixed at five per cent. — An re Ley, (1900), 7 B. C. 94.

Inspectors. 33. At the first or any subsequent meeting the creditors may appoint one or more of their number, but not exceeding three, as Inspectors, who shall superintend the proceedings of the assignee and the management and winding up of the estate, and they may also revoke the appointment of any or all of the Inspectors, and upon such revocation or in case of the death, resignation, or absence from the Province of an Inspector, may appoint another in his stead, and anything to be done by the Inspectors may be done by the majority, or by the sole Inspector if there is only one. The Inspectors shall not be entitled to any remuneration.

Application of Trustees and Executors Act. 34. The provisions of the Trustees and Executors Act relating to: a) The payment of debts and claims, the accepting of any composition, or of any security, real or personal, for any debts, the allowing of time for payment of debts, and the submission to arbitration of any matters affecting a trust or trust estate; b) The distribution of assets after due notice given, without liability to creditors having claims of which no notice has been received; and c) The right to apply to a Judge of the Supreme Court for opinion and advice in the management of the trust estate shall apply to and shall be construed so as to include an assignee acting under assignments under this Act: Provided, however, that such assignee must obtain the approval of the creditors before acting.

Registration of order by Judge appointing new assignee. 35. In the case of the appointment by a Judge of a new assignee a copy of the order may be registered as provided in section 25 and with the same effect.

Wages. 36. Whenever an assignment is made of any real or personal property for the general benefit of creditors, the assignee shall pay in priority to all claims of the ordinary or general creditors of the person making the same, the wages or salary of all persons in the employment of such person at the time of making such assignment, or within one month before the making thereof, not exceeding three months' wages or salary, and such persons shall be entitled to rank as ordinary general creditors for the residue, if any, of their claims.

Where an assignment is made on 27th November, a workman whose employment terminated on 26th October preceding, is not entitled to a preference under this section. — In re Clayo-quot Fishing & Trading Co., (1902), 9 B. C. 80. Where a workman is employed and receives compensation both by way of salary and for piece work, the preference must be restricted to the salary. — Tam v. Robertson, (1903), 9 B. C. 505.

Application of preceding section. 37. The preceding section shall apply to wages or salary, whether the employment in respect of which the same shall be payable be by the day, by the week, by the job or piece, or otherwise.

Compromising debts. 38. The assignee may with the approval of the creditors compromise all debts and liabilities capable of resulting in debts, and all claims whether present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages subsisting or supposed to subsist both to and by the debtor upon the receipt of payment of such sums, payable at such times and generally upon such terms as are agreed upon.

Deposit of moneys received by assignee. 39. All moneys received by the assignee on account of the estate shall forthwith be paid by him into a chartered bank, to be named by the creditors, to the credit of a special account for the estate, and at every meeting of the creditors the bank book shall be produced by the assignee and shall always be open to inspection by the Inspectors or any creditor. The assign-nee shall not in any case pay money received by him on account of the estate into his private account at any bank.

Payments by debtor made 30 days before execution of assignment void. 40. Every payment made within ten days next before the execution of an assignment under this Act by the debtor on account of a pre-existing debt shall be void, and the amount so paid may be recovered back from the person to whom it was paid by the assignee by suit in any Court of competent jurisdiction, but if any valuable security was given up in consideration of such payment such security or the value thereof must be restored or credited to the creditor: Provided, however, that no payment for wages (not exceeding three months), or for rent, taxes, or water rates, which are a lien on the property of the debtor, shall be affected by this section.

Solicitor to estate. 41. At any meeting of creditors a resolution may be passed directing the assignee to employ a person or firm named in the resolution as solicitor or solicitors to the estate, and thereafter no other solicitor shall be employed by the assignee. Such appointment of solicitor may be changed at any meeting of the creditors by resolution. No such solicitor, after his appointment, shall act in any way for the debtor as long as he continues to act as solicitor for the estate.

Qualifications of assignee and his deputies. 42. No person other than a permanent and bonâ fide resident of this Province shall have power to act as an assignee under this Act, nor shall an assignee under this Act have power to appoint as deputy or delegate his duties as assignee to any person who is not a permanent and bonâ<sup>1)</sup> resident of this Province, and no charge shall be made or recoverable against the assignor or his estate for any services or expenses of any such assignee, deputy, or delegate of any assignee, who is not a permanent and bonâ fide resident of this Province.

Vesting effect of assignment. 43. Every assignment hereafter executed for the general benefit of creditors, whether the assignment is or is not expressed to be made under or in pursuance of this Act, and whether the debtor has or has not included all his real and personal estate, shall vest the estate, whether real or personal or partly real and partly personal, thereby assigned in the assignee therein named for the general benefit of creditors, and such assignment and the property thereby assigned shall be subject to all the provisions of this Act, and the provisions of this Act shall apply to the assignee named in such assignment.

Assignee's accounts. 44. Upon the expiration of one month from the date of assignment, and afterwards from time to time at intervals of not more than three months, the assignee shall prepare, and keep constantly accessible to the creditors, accounts and statements of his doings as such assignee, and of the position of such estate.

Dividends. 45. From time to time, whenever there is sufficient money on hand for that purpose, the assignee shall declare and pay a dividend of ten per cent. or more on the claims of creditors. Before any dividend is paid, a dividend sheet shall be prepared, showing all claims allowed and all claims (if any) objected to, and showing an abstract of receipts and disbursements, and such dividend sheet shall be certified to by the assignee and the Inspectors (if any).

Interest. 46. All sums received by the assignee for interest on moneys belonging to the estate shall belong to the estate.

Debtor to give information to assignee. Compensation to debtor for his services. 47. 1. The debtor shall give such information to the assignee or Inspectors respecting his estate and affairs, attend at such times on the assignee or Inspectors and at such meetings of his creditors, execute at the expense of the estate such powers of attorney, conveyances, deeds, and instruments, and generally do all such acts and things in relation to his property and to the distribution of the proceeds thereof amongst his creditors as are reasonably required by the assignee or Inspectors; and he shall aid, to the utmost of his power, in the realisation of his property and the distribution of the proceeds thereof among his creditors. 2. The assignee may from time to time, with the consent of the creditors, make such allowance as he thinks just to the debtor out of the estate as compensation for his services in connection with the winding-up of his estate.

Examination of debtor. Time, place, and adjournment of examination. Examination may be by counsel. Committing debtor for refusing to appear or to answer questions. 48. 1. The creditors or the Inspectors may direct the debtor to be examined upon oath before the assignee, or before such Judge of the Supreme or County Court as they may name, touching his estate and effects, assets and liabilities, the conduct and management of his business, the causes of his insolvency, and his affairs generally; and such assignee or Judge may administer any necessary oath. 2. Such examination shall take place at such time and place as is appointed by the Judge on application by the creditors, or by the Inspectors, and it may be adjourned from time to time; but a Judge of the Supreme or County Court may, on the application of any person interested, and on being satisfied that the affairs of the debtor have been sufficiently investigated, make an order directing that the examination be concluded by such time as is named in the order. 3. Such examination may be conducted by counsel or by such persons as are appointed by the creditors or Inspectors, and notes of the evidence given at such examination, which may be taken in shorthand, shall be deposited with the assignee and shall be open to inspection, without charge, by any creditor or by the duly authorised representatives of any creditor. 4. In case the debtor neglects or refuses to appear or to be sworn, or to answer any proper question, a Judge of the Supreme or County Court may, on the application of the assignee or of any person interested, order that the debtor be committed as for a contempt of court, and may make such order as to the payment of the costs of any application under this section as to him seems right.

Examination of persons other than debtor touching estate. Apprehension of such persons refusing to attend. Procedure upon such examination. Ordering such persons to deliver up property belonging to estate. Committing such persons for contempt.

49. 1. A Judge of the Supreme or County Court may, on the application of the assignee, or of a creditor having an unsecured claim of one hundred dollars or upwards, summon before him any person, including the husband or wife of the debtor, known or suspected to have in his possession any of the estate or effects of the debtor, or any person who is represented to such Judge as capable of giving information concerning the debtor, his dealings or property, and such Judge may require any such person to produce any documents in his custody or power, or under his control, relating to the debtor, his dealings or property. 2. If the person so summoned, after having been tendered the ordinary witness fees allowed in suits before the Court, without reasonable excuse refuses to come before the Judge at the time appointed, the Judge may, by warrant, cause him to be apprehended and brought before him. 3. Such person may be examined upon oath concerning the debtor, his dealings or property, by or before the Judge, or by or before such person and in such manner as the Judge directs, and such Judge or person may administer any necessary oath; and notes of the evidence given at any such examination, which may be taken in shorthand, shall be deposited with the assignee and shall be open to inspection, without charge, by any creditor, or the duly authorised representative of any creditor; and the Judge may make such order as to the payment of the costs of any such examination as to him seems right. 4. If on such examination such person admits that he has in his possession any property belonging to the debtor, and to which the assignee is legally entitled, the Judge may order him to deliver to the assignee such property, or any part thereof, at such time, in such manner, and on such terms as seems just. 5. In case of refusal to appear, or to be sworn, or to answer any questions that may lawfully be asked touching the debtor, his dealings or property, or to produce any document which he is required to produce, or to obey any order of the Judge made under and by virtue of this section, the person so refusing may be committed as for a contempt of court.

Arrest of debtor. Affidavit leading to order for arrest. 50. A Judge of the Supreme or County Court may, at any time after the execution of an assignment under this Act, on the application of the assignee or any creditor having a claim for one hundred dollars or more against the assignor, by warrant to the sheriff of the county, or other proper officer, cause the debtor to be arrested, and any books, papers, moneys, and goods in his possession to be seized, and him and them to be safely kept as prescribed until such time as the Judge orders, if such facts and circumstances are shown by affidavit as satisfy the Judge: a) That there is good and probable cause for believing that the debtor is about to abscond and conceal himself to avoid appearance at any meeting of his creditors at which he is required to appear, or to avoid examination in respect of his affairs, or otherwise to avoid, delay, or embarrass any proceedings against him under this Act; or b) That there is good and probable cause for believing that he is about to remove his goods with intent to prevent or delay possession being taken of them by the assignee, or that he has concealed or destroyed, or is about to conceal or destroy, any of his goods or money, or any books, documents, or writing which might be of use to his creditors in the course of the proceedings under this Act; or c) That, without good cause shown, he has failed to attend any meeting or examination which he was required to attend under the provisions of this Act.

Rescission of contracts in fraud of creditors. 51. Where there is any assignment under this Act the assignee, save as herein otherwise provided or implied, shall have an exclusive right of suing for the rescission of agreements, deeds, and instruments, or other transactions made or entered into in fraud of creditors, or made or entered into in violation of this or any other Act.

When and how creditors authorised to sue. 52. If at any time any creditor desires to cause any proceeding to be taken which in his opinion would be for the benefit of the estate, and the assignee refuses or neglects to take such proceedings after being duly required so to do, such creditor so desiring shall have the right to obtain an order of the Judge aforesaid authorising him to take such proceedings in the name of the assignee, but at his own expense and risk, upon such terms and conditions as to indemnity to the assignee as the Judge may prescribe, and thereupon any benefit derived from such proceedings shall belong exclusively to the creditor instituting the same for his benefit; but if before such order is granted the assignee shall signify to the Judge his readiness to institute such proceedings for the benefit of the creditors, the order shall prescribe the time within which he shall do so, and in that case the advantage derived from such proceedings, if instituted within such time, shall appertain to the estate.

Disposal of estate. 53. The creditors may at any meeting pass any resolution or order directing the assignee how to dispose of the estate, or any part thereof, and in default of their so doing he shall, subject to the directions, order, and instructions he may from time to time receive from the Inspectors (if any) with regard to the mode, terms, and conditions on which he may dispose of the whole or any part of the estate, sell and dispose of the same in such manner as seems to him most advantageous in the interests of the estate, subject always to the provisions of this Act; but the assignee, or any Inspector or the solicitor of the estate, shall not purchase, directly, or indirectly, any part of the stock in trade, debts or any assets of any description of the estate.

Leases. 54. 1. If the debtor, at the date of the assignment, is a tenant of property, the assignee shall, notwithstanding any condition, covenant, or agreement that such tenancy shall determine in case of the bankruptcy or insolvency of the tenant, have the right to hold and retain such property for a period not exceeding three months from the date of the assignment, or until the expiration of the tenancy, whichever shall first happen, on the same terms and conditions as the debtor might have held such property had no assignment been made. 2. If the debtor at the date of the assignment is a tenant of property, the tenancy of which is not determined by his insolvency, the assignee, under the authority of the creditors, may give notice in writing to the lessor of his wish to determine the same at the expiration of three months from the giving of such notice, and such tenancy shall terminate at the expiration of such three months; but nothing herein shall prevent the assignee, under the authority of the creditors, from selling, transferring, or otherwise disposing of any lease or leasehold premises, or any interest of the debtor therein, for the unexpired term thereof, or any part thereof, to as full an extent as could have been done by the debtor had an assignment not been made; and if there is any covenant, condition or agreement that the lessee or his assigns should not assign or sub-let the property without the leave or consent of the lessor, or other person, such covenant, condition or agreement shall be of no effect in case of such sale, transfer, sub-lease, or disposition of the lease or leasehold property as aforesaid, if a Judge of the Supreme Court, on the application of the assignee, and after notice of such application to the lessor or other person whose leave or consent is required, approve of the sale, transfer, sub-lease, or disposition so made of the lease or leasehold property. 3. The lessor may, in the event of the tenancy being determined by the assignee by notice in manner hereinabove provided, file a claim against the debtor's estate for the damages (if any) sustained in consequence of such termination, which claim shall be proved in a similar manner to ordinary claims against the estate; and in his proof of claim he shall set forth the amount of damages claimed and how such amount is arrived at; and any such claim may be objected to in the same manner as herein provided in regard to claims made against the estate; and the lessor, on his claim being established or allowed, shall have all the rights of voting and otherwise enjoyed by ordinary unsecured creditors who have proved claims against the estate. 4. In estimating such damages, regard shall be had to the rental payable under the tenancy so determined, and to the yearly value of the property at the time of such termination, and regard shall also be had to the additional value given to the property by any buildings, fixtures, or improvements placed thereon by the debtor, or those through whom he claims, but no regard shall be had to the chance of leasing the property at a greater or less rent than that payable by the debtor or his estate at the time of the termination of the tenancy. 5. The lessor shall have a privileged claim against the estate of the debtor for arrears of rent due or accruing due in respect of the six months next preceding the date of the assignment, together with all costs of distraint properly made before the date of assignment in respect to the rent or any part of the rent hereby made a privileged claim, but for all other arrears of rent he shall have a claim provable against the estate as an ordinary creditor. He shall also have a privileged claim against the estate for all rent accruing due after the date of assignment during the period the property and premises are held by the assignee. 6. The lessor shall not be entitled to distraint upon the goods of the assignee after they become vested in the assignee, and all goods then distrained upon shall, on demand, be delivered by the person holding them to the assignee, but the lessor shall not by reason of such delivery be deprived of any lien or rights in reference to such goods which he may have acquired by such distress, should the goods be claimed by and be delivered to any person other than the assignee. 7. The lessor shall not be entitled to any further or other rent from the debtor or from his estate than as set forth in this section.

For a case where, under the circumstances, the landlord was held not entitled to a preferential claim for rent accruing due after the assignment, see Gold v. Roffs, (1903), 10 B. C. 80.

Disclaimer of liability for shares, stocks, etc. 55. 1. When any part of the property of the debtor consists of shares or stock in companies or unprofitable contracts, or of any other property that is not saleable or readily saleable by reason of its binding the possessor thereof to the performance of any onerous act or to the payment of a sum of money, the assignee may, with the authority of the creditors, by writing under his hand, disclaim such property at any time within six months from the date of his appointment, notwithstanding that he has endeavoured to sell, or has taken possession of such property, or has exercised any act of ownership in relation thereto: Provided that when any such property has not come to the knowledge of such assignee within six months after his appointment he may disclaim such property at any time within six months after he first became aware thereof. 2. Such disclaimer shall operate to determine, as from the date thereof, the rights, interests, and liabilities of the debtor and his property in or in respect of the property disclaimed, and shall also discharge the assignee from all personal liability in respect of the property disclaimed as from the date when the property vested in him, but shall not, except so far as is necessary for the purpose of releasing the debtor and his property and the assignee from liability, affect the rights or liabilities of any other person. 3. The assignee shall not be entitled to disclaim any property in pursuance of this section in any case where an application in writing has been made to the assignee, by any person interested in the property, requiring him to decide whether he will disclaim or not, and the assignee has, for a period of one month after the receipt of such application, or such extended period as may be allowed by a Judge of the Supreme Court, declined or neglected to give notice whether he disclaims the property or not; and in the case of a contrast, if the assignee, after such application as aforesaid, does not, within the said period or extended period, disclaim the contract, he shall be deemed to have adopted it. 4. A Judge of the Supreme Court may, on the application of any person who is, as against the assignee, entitled to the benefit or subject to the burden of a contract, made with the debtor, make an order rescinding the contract, on such terms as to payment by or to either party of damages for the non-performance of the contract, or otherwise, as to the Judge may seem equitable, and any damages payable under the order to any such person may be proved by him as a debt provable under this Act against the estate of the debtor. 5. A Judge of the Supreme Court may, on application by any person either claiming an interest in any disclaimed property, or under any liability not discharged by this Act in respect of any disclaimed property, and on hearing such persons as he thinks fit, make an order for the vesting of the property in or delivery thereof to any person entitled thereto, or to whom it may seem just that the same should be delivered by way of compensation for such liability as aforesaid, or a trustee for him, and on such terms as the Judge thinks just; and on any such vesting order being made the property comprised therein shall vest accordingly in the person named therein in that behalf without any conveyance or assignment for the purpose. 6. Any person injured by the operation of a disclaimer under this section shall be deemed to be a creditor of the debtor to the extent of the injury, and may prove the same as a debt provable under this Act against the estate of the debtor. 7. The provisions of this section shall not extend to leases or leasehold property.

Dividends at time of discharge of assignee. 56. All dividends remaining unclaimed at the time of the discharge of the assignee shall be paid over the Minister of Finance, and if afterwards claimed shall be paid over to the person entitled thereto.

Balance of estate after payment of claims. 57. If any balance remains of the estate of the debtor, or of the proceeds thereof, after the payment in full of all his debts and liabilities and the costs of winding up his estate, such balance shall be paid or transferred to the debtor.

Discharge of assignee. 58. After the declaration of the final dividend the assignee shall prepare his final account and make application to a Judge of the Supreme Court for his discharge, giving at least ten days' previous notice of such application to the debtor, and to the inspectors (if any) and to the creditors by circular; and he shall produce and file, on such application, a bank certificate of the deposit of any dividends remaining unclaimed, and of any balance in his hands, and also a statement, under oath, showing the nominal and realised value of the assets of the insolvent, the amount of claims proved, dividing them into classes according to the nature thereof, the amount and rate upon the dollar of dividends paid to the creditors, and the entire expense of winding up the estate. The Judge may, after causing the accounts of the assignee to be audited by the inspectors, or by such creditor, or by such competent person as he may name, and after hearing all parties interested, grant, conditionally or unconditionally, the application for discharge or refuse it, and may make any order as to costs which he thinks proper.

Retention by debtor of any portion of estate after assignment. 59. If after the date of the assignment the debtor retains or receives any portion of his estate or effects, or of any moneys, securities for money, business papers, documents, books of account or evidences of debt, belonging or appertaining to his business or estate, and retains and withholds the same from the assignee, without lawful right, the assignee may apply to a Judge of the Supreme or County Court for an order for the delivery thereof to him, and in default of delivery in conformity with such order the debtor may be imprisoned in the common jail until the same are delivered, or for such time, not exceeding one year, as the Judge may order; but nothing herein shall interfere with or diminish any other penalty to which, under this Act, he may be subject in consequence of the non-delivery of such property, effects, documents, or money.

Time and place of creditors' meetings. 60. The creditors may, at any meeting, determine where subsequent meetings shall be held, but in default of their so doing all such meetings, after the first meeting, shall be held at the office or place of business of the assignee.

Procedure at creditors' meetings. 61. 1. At all meetings the creditors may appoint the chairman, and in default of such appointment the assignee shall be chairman. 2. The chairman shall decide all disputes or questions that may be raised at such meetings as to the eligibility of a creditor to vote or as to the amount on which he should vote, or any other question of procedure at such meetings. 3. The chairman shall cause to be kept full minutes of all proceedings, resolutions, and decisions at such meetings, and shall include therein an accurate list of the creditors present or represented, which minutes shall be signed by him and shall be filed with and kept by the assignee, and on the final discharge of the assignee, shall be deposited with the District Registrar of the Supreme Court as ordered by the Judge granting such discharge.

Voting. 62. 1. A creditor shall be entitled to vote at any meeting of creditors in respect of and to the extent of his claim against the estate as determined by this Act, but such creditor shall not be entitled to vote at any meeting of creditors until he has proved his claim in manner hereinbefore provided, and if his claim is dependent upon a condition or contingency, or for other reason does not bear a certain value, not until the value of such claim has been ascertained in manner hereinbefore provided. 2. In the case of contested claims the creditor shall, until such contestation is decided or an agreement between such creditor and the assignee is arrived at, be considered as a creditor for the amount admitted by the assignee (if any). 3. Persons purchasing claims against the estate after the date of assignment shall not be entitled to vote in respect of such claims, but shall in all other respects, unless otherwise specially provided, have the same rights as other creditors. 4. The assignee, his partner, agent, clerk, or employee, or any person in the employ of a partnership or company of which he is a member, shall not be entitled to vote upon any resolution affecting the remuneration or removal from office or the conduct of the assignee, or the security to be given by him, but on all other questions, if creditors, they may vote as such creditors.

Proxies. 63. Except as herein otherwise provided, no creditor shall vote at any meeting unless present personally or represented by some person having written authority, which may be by power of attorney, letter, post card, or telegraphic message, such authority to be filed with the assignee. Such authority may be either general or limited, but in no case shall the assignee, his partner, or anyone in his employ, or in the employ of a partnership or company of which he is a member, act for or represent any creditor of the estate.

Assignee subject to summary jurisdiction of Court. 64. Every assignee shall be subject to the summary jurisdiction of the Supreme or County Court in the same manner and to the same extent as the ordinary officers of the Court are subject to its jurisdiction, and the Court may compel him to perform his duties, or may restrain him from taking or continuing proceedings which are not in the interest of the estate, or of the creditors generally, and obedience by the assignee to any order of the Court may be enforced by the Court under the penalty of imprisonment as for contempt of Court, and by removal from his office.

Application to Judge to rescind resolution passed at creditors' meeting. 65. Any one or more creditors whose claims in the aggregate exceed ten per cent. in value of all claims ranking against the estate, who are entitled to vote, and who are dissatisfied with any resolution adopted, or orders made by the creditors or the Inspectors, or with any action of the assignee for the disposal of the estate, or any part thereof, or for postponing the disposal of the estate, or any part thereof, or for the disposal of the same, or with reference to any matter connected with the management or the winding-up of an estate, or with any decision of the chairman of a meeting, may, within two days after the adoption of the resolution, or the making of the order or decision, or the performance of the action complained of, give to the assignee notice that he or they will apply to a Judge of the Supreme or County Court on the day and at the hour fixed in such notice, not being later than two days after such notice has been given, or as soon thereafter as the parties may be heard before such Judge, to rescind such resolution or order or to reverse such decision, or for such order as is indicated in such notice, and the Judge, after hearing the Inspectors, the assignee, and creditors present at the time and place so fixed, may approve of, rescind, or modify the said resolution or order, decision, or action, or make such order in the premises as to him seems proper. In case of the application not being proceeded with, or being refused, the parties appealing shall pay all costs occasioned thereby, otherwise the costs and the expenses shall be at the discretion of the Judge.

Delegation of power to Inspectors. 66. The creditors may generally or for a special occasion delegate to the Inspectors any of the powers conferred upon them by sections 30, subsection (a), 38, 44 and 55, subsection (2).

Reference to Judge for directions as to matters not provided for. 67. If any matter arises in connection with any assignment under this Act not provided for herein, such matter may be referred summarily to a Judge of the Supreme or County Court by the assignee, or the Inspectors, or by any creditor for an amount of one hundred dollars or more, and upon such application such Judge may give such directions as to notifying other parties and as to other matters as he may think proper, and may make such order as he may think fit, including the costs of the application.

Security by assignee. 68. At any time after an assignment is executed, the debtor, the Inspectors or any creditor for one hundred dollars or more, may apply to a Judge of the Supreme or County Court to fix the security to be given by the assignee for the faithful performance of his duties as such assignee, and for accounting for all moneys and property coming to his hands. If such order as is made by such Judge is not carried out by such assignee, such Judge may remove him and appoint some other person in his place, and such order appointing a new assignee may be registered as provided in section 25 for the registration of a resolution of creditors, and with the same effect.

This Act not to interfere with insolvency laws. 69. This Act is not intended to interfere with the insolvency laws which may from time to time be in force in this Province, but this Act is intended to be subject to such laws.

Repeal. 70. Chapter 11 of the Revised Statutes, 1897, being the Creditors' Trust Deeds Act, and Acts amending the same, are hereby repealed.

Commencement. 71. This Act shall not come into force until proclaimed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

Registration how effected. 72. [Added by c. 18 of 1902, § 4.] The registration of an assignment under the provisions of section 14, and of a copy of a resolution of creditors under the provisions of section 25, shall be effected by filing said documents in the respective offices mentioned in said sections.

Registration fees. 73. [Added by c. 18 of 1902, § 4.] For the registration of an assignment in a Land Registry Office or Land Titles Office there shall be charged a fee of two dollars, and for the registration under section 25 of a copy of the resolution of creditors requiring the assignee to transfer the estate, there shall be charged a fee of two dollars.

b) 1902, c. 18. An Act to amend the Creditors' Trust Deeds Act, 1901 (21st June, 1902).

Short title. 1. This Act may be cited as the Creditors' Trust Deeds Act, 1901, Amendment Act, 1902.

[2—4. Amend 1901, c. 15, and are there incorporated.]

c) 1905, c. 24. An Act respecting Assignments and Preferences by Insolvent Persons (8th April, 1905).

Short title. 1. This Act may be cited as the Fraudulent Preferences Act, 1905.

Confessions or warrants to confess judgments, given by insolvents to defeat or delay creditors, or to give one preference over the other, to be void. 2. In case any person, being at the time in insolvent circumstances or unable to pay his debts in full, or knowing himself to be on the eve of insolvency, voluntarily or by collusion with a creditor or creditors, gives a confession of judgment, cognovit actionem, or warrant of attorney to confess judgment, with intent, in giving such confession, cognovit actionem, or warrant of attorney to confess judgment, to defeat or delay his creditors wholly or in part, or with intent thereby to give one or more of his creditors of any such person a preference over his other creditors, or over any one or more of such creditors, every such confession, cognovit actionem, or warrant of attorney to confess judgment, shall be deemed and taken to be null and void as against the creditors of the party giving the same, and shall be invalid and ineffectual to support any judgment or writ of execution.

Gifts, transfers, etc., made by insolvents which defeat or prejudice creditors to be void. Transfers having effect of preference void if attacked within sixty days. Pressure or want of knowledge on part of creditor not to save the transaction. 3. 1. Subject to the provisions of section 4 of this Act, every gift, conveyance, assignment, transfer, delivery over, or payment of goods, chattels or effects, or of bills, bonds, notes, or securities, or of shares, dividends, premiums, or bonus in any bank, company, or corporation, or of any other property, real or personal, made by a person at a time when he is in insolvent circumstances, or is unable to pay his debts in full, or knows that he is on the eve of insolvency, shall: a) If made with intent to defeat, hinder, delay, or prejudice his creditors or any one or more of them, be, as against the creditor or creditors injured, delayed, or prejudiced, utterly void; and b) If made to or for a creditor with intent to give such creditor preference over his other creditors or over any one or more of them, be, as against the creditor or creditors injured, delayed, prejudiced, or postponed, utterly void. 2. Subject to the provisions of section 4 aforesaid, every such gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer, delivery over or payment as aforesaid, made to or for a creditor by a person at any time when he is in insolvent circumstances, or is unable to pay his debts in full, or knows that he is on the eve of insolvency, and which has the effect of giving such creditor a preference over the other creditors of the debtor or over one or more of them, shall: a) In and with respect to any action or proceeding which, within sixty days thereafter, is brought, had, or taken to impeach or set aside such transaction, be utterly void as against the creditor or creditors injured, delayed, prejudiced, or postponed; and b) If the debtor, within sixty days after the transaction, makes an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, be utterly void as against the assignee or any creditor authorised to take proceedings to avoid the same. 3. A transaction shall be deemed to be one which has the effect of giving a creditor a preference over the other creditors within the meaning of subsection (2) of this section, if by such transaction a creditor is given or realises, or is placed in a position to realise, payment, satisfaction, or security for the debtor's indebtedness to him, or a portion thereof, greater proportionately than could be realised by or for the unsecured creditors generally of such debtor, or upon the unsecured portion of his liabilities, out of the assets of the debtor left available and subject to judgment, execution, attachment, or other process, and such effect shall not be deemed dependent upon the intent or motive of the debtor or upon the transaction being entered into voluntarily or under pressure; and no pressure by a creditor or want of notice to the creditor alleged to have been so preferred of the debtor's circumstances, inability or knowledge as aforesaid, or of the effect of the transaction, shall avail to protect the transaction, except as provided by section 4 hereof. 4. When the word "creditor" or "creditors" occurs in subsections (1), (2) and (3) of this section, such word shall be deemed to include any surety and the indorser of any promissory note or bill of exchange who would, upon payment by him of the debt, promissory note, or bill of exchange, in respect of which such suretyship was entered into or such indorsement was given, become a creditor of the person giving the preference within the meaning of said subsections, and such word shall include a cestui que trust or other person to whom the liability is equitable only.

The doctrine of pressure which applied under the older Acts (C. S., 1888, c. 51; R. S. 1897, c. 87) is done away with by subsection (3), and the cases dealing therewith rendered obsolete. For the old law see: Anderson v. Shorey, (1885), 1 B. C. II. 325; Doll v. Hart, (1890), 2 B. C. 32; Cascaden v. McIntosh, (1892), 2 B. C. 268; Stewart v. Wilson, (1894), 3 B. C. 369; Brown v. Jowett (1895), 4 B. C. 44; Edison General Electric Co. v. Vancouver, etc., Co., (1895), 4 B. C. 460, reversed by Privy Council, (1897), A. C. 193; Adams v. Bank of Montreal, (1899), 8 B. C. 314; McClary Mfg. Co. v. Howland Sons & Co., (1902), 9 B. C. 479.

Assignments for benefit of creditors and bonâ fide sales, etc., protected. Proviso. Transfer to creditor of consideration for sale invalid. Security given up upon void payment to be returned. Payment of wages protected. Exchange of securities protected. Certain assignments to be valid. 4. 1. Nothing in the preceding section shall apply to any assignment made by a debtor for the benefit of his creditors generally under the provisions of the Creditors' Trust Deeds Act., 1901, for the purpose of paying, ratably and proportionately and without preference or priority, all the creditors of the debtor their just debts; nor to any bonâ fide sale or payment made in the ordinary course of trade or calling to innocent purchasers or parties; nor to any payment of money to a creditor, nor to any bonâ fide conveyance, assignment, transfer, or delivery over of any goods, securities, or property of any kind as above mentioned, which is made in consideration of any present actual bonâ fide payment in money, or by way of security for any present actual bonâ fide advance of money, or which is made in consideration of any present actual bonâ fide sale or delivery of goods or other property; provided that the money paid, or the goods or other property sold or delivered, bear a fair and reasonable relative value to the consideration therefor. 2. In case of a valid sale of goods, securities, or property, and payment or transfer of the consideration or part thereof by the purchaser to a creditor of the vendor, under circumstances which would render void such payment or transfer by the debtor personally and directly, the payment or transfer, even though valid as respects the purchaser, shall be void as respects the creditor to whom the same is made. 3. In case a payment has been made which is void under this Act, and any valuable security was given up in consideration of the payment, the creditor shall be entitled to have the security restored or its value made good to him before, or as a condition of, the return of the payment. 4. Nothing herein contained shall affect a claim for wages or salary under the provisions of the Creditors' Trust Deeds Act, 1901, and amending Acts, or shall prevent a debtor providing for payment of preferred wages or salary due by him in accordance with the provisions of the said Act, or payments or securities given for the said preferred wages or salary, or any payment of money to a creditor where such creditor, by reason or on account of such payment, has lost or been deprived of or has in good faith given up any valid security which he held for the payment of the debt so paid, unless the value of the security is restored to the creditor, nor the substitution in good faith of one security for another security for the same debt, so far as the debtor's estate is not thereby lessened in value to the other creditors. Nor shall anything herein contained invalidate a security given to a creditor for a pre-existing debt where, by reason or on account of the giving of the security, an advance in money is made to the debtor by the creditor in the bonâ fide belief that the advance will enable the debtor to continue his trade or business and to pay his debts in full.

A conveyance made by collusion or upon an immoral consideration will be set aside. — Holten v. Vanvall, (1900), 7 B. C. 331. When a voluntary conveyance has the effect of defeating creditors, the burden of proof to show its legality is on the assignor. — Lai Hop v. Jackson, (1895), 4 B. C. 168; Cunningham v. Curtis, (1896), 5 B. C. 472. But a creditor may be estopped from contesting the validity of the conveyance. — Boulton v. Rolls, (1895), 4 B. C. 137. Where a settlor on the eve of engaging in a hazardous enterprise makes a voluntary settlement, the same may be set aside at the instance of persons who extended credit subsequent to the transaction. — Lai Hop v. Jackson, (1895), 4 B. C. 168.

Following proceeds of property fraudulently transferred. 5. In the case of a gift, conveyance, assignment or transfer of any property real or personal, which in law is invalid against creditors, if the person to whom the gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer was made shall have sold or disposed of, realised, or collected the property or any part thereof, the money or other proceeds or the amount or value thereof, may be seized or recovered in any action by a person who would be entitled to seize and recover the property if it had remained in the possession or control of the debtor or of the person to whom the gift, conveyance, transfer, delivery, or payment was made.

Repeals R. S. 1897, c. 87. 6. Chapter 87 of the Revised Statutes, 1897, being the Fraudulent Preference of Creditors Act, is hereby repealed.

III. Manitoba.

Law in force.

The law of England as in force at the date of the Hudson's Bay Company's charter, 1670, was operative in the territory now comprised in the Province of Manitoba until 1870<sup>1</sup>). By an Ordinance of 11th April, 1862, it was provided that "in place of the laws of England of the date of the Hudson's Bay Company's charter, the laws of England of Her Majesty's accession, so far as they may be applicable to the Colony, shall regulate the proceedings of the General Court till some higher authority or this Council itself shall have expressly provided, either in whole or in part, to the contrary." This was amended 7th January, 1864, as follows: "To remove all doubts as to the true construction of the Code of 11th April, 1862, the proceedings of the General Court shall be regulated by the laws of England, not only of the date of Her present Majesty's accession, so far as they may apply to the condition of the Colony, but also by such laws of England of subsequent date as may be applicable to the same; in other words the proceedings of the General Court shall be regulated by the existing laws of England for the time being, in as far as the same are known to the Court, and are applicable to the conditions of the Colony"<sup>2</sup>).

<sup>1</sup>) Sinclair v. Mulligan, (1888), 5 Man. 17, overruling Keating v. Moises, (1883), 2 Man. 47. Sinclair v. Mulligan is followed in Templeton v. Stewart, (1893), 9 Man. 487. See also In re Tait, (1890), 9 Man. 617. — <sup>2</sup>) Cons. St. Man. 1880, p. LXXIX.

Under the Manitoba Act, 34 Vic. c. 2, establishing a Supreme Court in the Province, it was provided that "as far as possible consistently with the circumstances of the country, the laws of evidence and the principles which govern the administration of justice in England shall obtain in the Supreme Court of Manitoba."

In 1874 a provincial Act<sup>1)</sup> was passed providing that "the Court of Queen's Bench shall decide and determine all matters of controversy relative to property and civil rights according to the laws existing, or established and being in England, as such were, existed, and stood on the 15th day of July, 1870, so far as the same can be made applicable to matters relating to property and civil rights in this Province." This statute is at present in force, in substantially the same form<sup>2)</sup>, and is uniformly treated as introducing into Manitoba the law of England as it stood at the date mentioned<sup>3)</sup>. It would, however, be limited to such laws as were within the competence of a provincial legislature under the British North America Act. To remedy this defect a Dominion Act<sup>4)</sup> was passed putting the English law as it existed at the same date, in so far as applicable, except as modified by an Act of Parliament of the United Kingdom applicable in Manitoba, or by an Act of the Dominion Parliament.

[4—47. These sections are identical in all material respects with the Imperial Partnership Act, 1890, (53 & 54 Vic. c. 39).]

The implied authority of a partner to sign the partnership name to a negotiable instrument is limited to doing so for the purposes of the partnership. A person taking such an instrument bearing the partnership name with knowledge that it was not executed for the purposes of the partnership must show that the partner purporting to act on behalf of the partnership was in fact authorized to bind his copartners. — Union Bank v. Bulmer, (1885), 2 Man. 380. A partner in a firm engaged in the lumbering business has power to borrow money for the purposes of the firm. But if the money was borrowed upon his own credit, then, even if it is applied to the purposes of the partnership business, the firm is not liable. — Hudson's Bay Co., v. Stewart, (1889), 6 Man. 8. Where one of two partners, without the knowledge of the other, purchases goods in his own name, intending to exclude the other partner from the contract, the latter is not liable upon the contract by ratification, although the goods are subsequently taken into the stock of the firm. — Fraser v. Sweet, (1900), 13 Man. 147. Where under the terms of an agreement of dissolution one partner assumed all the liabilities of the old firm, and a creditor aware of the agreement extended the time of payment to this partner, the retiring partners were released. — Munroe v. O'Neil, (1886), 1 Man. 245. As to liability by holding out, see Cameron v. Cameron, (1886), 3 Man. 308; Richards v. Rowe, (1887), 4 Man. 112. As to the liability of an infant partner, see Woods v. Woods, (1885), 3 Man. 33. As to grounds for dissolution, see Kennedy v. Eriksen, (1910), 13 West. L. R. 602.

Registration of copartnerships.

48. All persons who at the time of the coming into force of this Act are, or who hereafter may be, associated in partnership for trading, manufacturing, or mining purposes in this Province shall cause to be filed in the proper office for the judicial district in which the principal place of business of the partnership is situate, or intended to be situate, a declaration in writing signed by the several members of such copartnership: Provided, however, that if, at the time of making such declaration, any of the said members be absent from the place where they carry on or intend to carry on business, then it shall be signed by the members present in their own names, and also for their absent co-members under their special authority to that effect, such special authority to be at the same time filed and annexed to such declaration.

good; and hereafter such declaration shall be filed within six months next after the formation of any partnership; and a similar declaration shall in like manner be filed when and so often as any dissolution of partnership, or any change or alteration in the membership of such partnership, or in the name, style, or firm under which they intend to carry on business, or in the place of residence of a member of said firm, shall take place.

R. S. M. c. 114, § 6.

Declaration to be filed by person using the term "and company." 52. R. S. M. c. 114, § 10.

Companies existing may apply under this Act. 14. Any company, for purposes or objects within the scope of the provisions herein contained, heretofore incorporated, whether under a special or general Act, and now being a subsisting and valid corporation, may apply for letters patent under the foregoing provisions; and the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, upon proof that notice of the application has been inserted for four weeks in The Manitoba Gazette, may direct the issue of letters patent incorporating the shareholders of the said company as a company under the foregoing provisions, and thereupon all the rights and obligations of the former company shall be transferred to the new company, and all proceedings may be continued or commenced by or against the new company, that might have been continued or commenced by or against the old company; and it shall not be necessary in any such letters patent to set out the names of the shareholders; and after the issue of the letters patent the company shall be governed in all respects by the provisions hereof, except that the liability of the shareholders to creditors of the old company shall remain as at the time of the issue of the letters patent.

Letters patent to recite all material averments of notice and petition. 15. The letters patent shall recite all the material averments of the notice and petition, as established under the preceding sections of the Act.

Restrictions in letters patent. 16. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may restrict such letters patent of incorporation in any manner which may seem desirable.

Provisions preliminary to issue of letters patent to be directory. 17. The provisions of this Act relating to matters preliminary to the issue of the letters patent shall be deemed directory only; and no letters patent issued or which have heretofore been issued under The Manitoba Joint Stock Companies Incorporation Act, or under this Act or any other Act or Acts for which this Act is substituted, shall be held void or voidable on account of any irregularity in any prescribed notice, or on account of the insufficiency of any such notice, or on account of any irregularity in respect of any other matter preliminary to the issue of such letters patent.

Notice of issue of letters patent to be published. 18. Notice of the granting of the letters patent shall, at the expense of the applicants, be forthwith given by the Provincial Secretary in The Manitoba Gazette in the form in Schedule A to this Act, and from the date of the issue of the letters patent the persons named therein and their successors shall be a body corporate and politic by the name mentioned therein.

All powers subject to restrictions and provisions of this Act. 19. All powers given to the company by the letters patent granted in its behalf shall be exercised subject to the provisions and restrictions herein contained.

Lieutenant-Governor in Council may change name of company; not to affect rights and obligations of company. Constitution of proceedings. 20. In case it should be made to appear that any company is incorporated under the same name as, or under a name similar to that of, an existing company, it shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to direct the issue of supplementary letters patent reciting the former letters and changing the name of the company to some other name to be set forth in the supplementary letters patent; and no such alteration of the name shall affect the rights or obligations of the company; and all proceedings may be continued and commenced by or against the company by its new name, that might have been continued or commenced by or against the company by its former name; and the Court of King's Bench may compel an application under this section whenever a company improperly assumes the name of, or a name similar to that of, an existing company.

Supplementary letters patent. 21. [As amended by Acts, 1904, c. 6, § 1; 1907, c. 8, § 2.] In case a resolution, authorizing an application to the Lieutenant-Governor therefor, is passed by a vote of not less than two-thirds in value of the shareholders, present in person or by proxy at a general meeting of the company, duly called for considering the subject of such resolution, the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council may, upon proof that notice of the application has been published by one insertion in The Manitoba Gazette one month before the application is made, from time to time direct the issue of supplementary letters patent to the company, embracing any or all of the following matters: a) Extending the powers of the company to any objects, within the scope of this Act, which the company may desire; b) Limiting or increasing the amount which the company may borrow upon debentures or otherwise; c) Providing for the formation of a reserve fund; d) Varying any provision contained in the letters patent, so long as the alteration desired is not contrary to the provisions of this Act; e) Making provision for any other matter or thing in respect of which provision might have been made by the original letters patent. Notwithstanding anything herein contained the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council may, upon petition, but without requiring such resolution and advertisement in The Gazette, direct the issue of supplementary letters patent to the company, varying or striking out any provision contained in the letters patent when, in the opinion of the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, such variation or striking out is merely for the purpose of remedying some clerical error or defect or provision of a formal or unimportant nature in such letters patent.

Before commencing business 10 per cent. to be subscribed, etc. 22. No company incorporated under The Manitoba Joint Stock Companies Incorporation Act, or under this Act or any other Act or Acts for which this Act is substituted, shall commence business until at least ten per cent. of the capital stock of the said company shall have been subscribed, and at least ten per cent. of the amount of stock so subscribed actually paid up.

Forfeiture of charter for non-user. 23. The charter of the company shall be forfeited by non-user during three consecutive years at any one time, or if the company do not go into actual operation within three years after it is granted; and no declaration of such forfeiture by any Act of the Legislature shall be deemed an infringement of such charter.

Future legislation. 24. The company shall be subject to such further and other provisions; as the Legislature of Manitoba may hereafter deem expedient, in order to secure the due management of its affairs and the protection of its shareholders and creditors.

Directors.

Number. 25. The affairs of every such company shall be managed by a board of not less than three nor more than nine directors.

First directors. 26. The persons named as such in the letters patent shall be the directors of the company, until replaced by others duly appointed in their stead.

Directors to be shareholders. 27. No person shall be elected or appointed a director, unless he is a shareholder owning stock absolutely in his own right, and not in arrear in respect of any calls thereon.

Penalty for allowing use of name for consideration. Person guilty of violation of subsection (1) not to retain shares or other benefit. Suit to recover or forfeit same. 27 A. [Added by Acts, 1907, c. 14, § 1.] 1. No person shall accept an allotment or receive a transfer of any shares in the stock of any company or corporation incorporated under this Act, or under any statute of this Province, or accept or receive any other benefit or advantage from any such company or corporation, or from any person connected with it, in consideration of allowing the use of his name as a director, trustee, or member of the board of management of any such company or corporation, under a penalty of not less than one hundred dollars and not more than two thousand dollars, to be recovered on summary conviction before a police magistrate or two justice of the peace. 2. No person guilty of any violation of subsection (1) hereof shall be entitled to retain or hold any shares or stock, or other benefit or advantage, allotted, or transferred to, or received by him for any such consideration as aforesaid, and all such shares or other benefit or advantage, whether in the hands of such person or of any person acquiring the same with notice or knowledge that the transferor or assignor had been guilty of any such violation, shall be illegal and of no value, and shall not confer any benefit to the person receiving the same, and may, at the suit of the company or corporation or of any shareholder thereof, be declared by any Court of competent jurisdiction to be absolutely forfeited to the company or corporation, and any such Court may order that the same be restored or retransferred or the value thereof paid to the company or corporation, together with costs of any such suit.

Directors to be elected. Term of office. 28. The directors of the company shall be elected by the shareholders in general meeting of the company assembled at some place within the Province, at such times, in such wise, and for such terms, not exceeding two years, as the letters patent or, in default thereof, the by-laws of the company may prescribe.

Mode of election, in default of express provisions. Yearly. Thirty days' notice. Voting. By ballot. Vacancies, how filled. Officers. 29. In default of other express provisions in such behalf by letters patent or by by-laws of the company: a) Such election shall take place yearly, all the members of the board retiring and, if otherwise qualified, being eligible for re-election; b) Notice of the time and place for holding general meetings of the company shall be given at least thirty days previously thereto, in some newspaper published at, or as near as may be to, the office or chief place of business of the company, and also, in the case of companies having a capital exceeding five thousand dollars, in The Manitoba Gazette; c) At all the general meetings of the company every shareholder shall be entitled to as many votes as he owns shares in the company, and may vote by proxy; d) Elections of directors shall be by ballot; e) Vacancies occurring in the board of directors may unless the by-laws otherwise direct, be filled by the board for the unexpired remainder of the term, from among the qualified shareholders of the company; f) The directors shall, from time to time, elect from among themselves a president of the company; and shall also appoint and may remove at pleasure all other officers thereof.

Failure to elect directors, how remedied. 30. If at any time an election of directors be not made or do not take effect at the proper time, the company shall not be held to be thereby dissolved; but such election may take place at any general meeting of the company duly called for that purpose; and the retiring directors shall continue in office until their successors are elected. ‡

Powers and duties of directors. By-laws. Confirmation of by-laws. Special general meetings. Disposal of stock. Payment to president or director. 31. The directors of the company shall have full power in all things to administer the affairs of the company; and may make or cause to be made for the company any description of contract which the company may, by law, enter into; and may, from time to time, make by-laws, not contrary to law nor to the letters patent of the company, to regulate the allotment of stock, the making of calls thereon, the payment thereof, the issue and registration of certificates of stock, the forfeiture of stock for non-payment, the disposal of forfeited stock and of the proceeds thereof, the transfer of stock, the declaration and payment of dividends, the number of the directors, their term of service, the amount of their stock qualification, the appointment, functions, duties, and removal of all agents, officers, and servants of the company, the security to be given by them to the company, their remuneration, the time at which and place where the annual meetings of the company shall be held, the calling of meetings, regular and special, of the board of directors and of the company, the quorum, the requirements as to proxies, and the procedure in all things at such meetings, the imposition and recovery of all penalties and forfeitures admitting of regulation by by-law, and the conduct in all other particulars of the affairs of the company, and may, from time to time, repeal, amend, or re-enact the same; but every such by-law, and every repeal, amendment, or re-enactment thereof, unless in the meantime confirmed at a general meeting of the company duly called for that purpose, shall only have force until the next annual meeting of the company; and in default of confirmation thereat, shall, at and from that time only, cease to have force, and in that case no new by-law to the same or like effect shall have any force until confirmed at a general meeting of the company: a) Provided, always, that one-fourth part in value of the shareholders of the company shall at all times have the right to call a special meeting thereof for the transaction of any business specified in such written requisition and notice as they may issue to that effect; b) Provided, also, that no by-law for the allotment or sale of stock at any greater discount, or at any less premium, than what had been previously authorized at a general meeting, or for the payment of the president or any director, shall be valid or acted upon, until the same has been confirmed at an annual meeting or a special general meeting; c) [Added by Acts, 1911, c. 8, § 3.] Each director shall have power to nominate any other director, or any person approved for that purpose by the other directors of the company, to act as alternate director in his place for any period or successive periods, not exceeding six calendar months each, and at his discretion to remove such alternate director, and on such appointment being made the alternate director shall be subject in all respects to the terms and conditions subsisting with reference to the other directors of the company, and the director so nominating shall not be responsible for the acts and defaults of the alternate director so nominated.

Liability of directors declaring a dividend when company is insolvent, etc. How a director may avoid liability. 32. The directors of the company shall not declare or pay any dividend when the company is insolvent, or any dividend the payment of which renders the company insolvent or diminishes the capital stock thereof; but if any director present when such dividend is declared do forthwith, or if any director then absent do within twenty-four hours after he shall become aware thereof and able so to do, enter in the minutes of the board of directors his protest against the same, and within eight days thereafter publish the same in at least one newspaper published at, or as near as may be possible to, the office or chief place of business of the company, such director may thereby, and not otherwise, exonerate himself from liability.

Liability of directors for wages. 33. The directors of the company shall be jointly and severally liable to the laborers, servants, and apprentices thereof, excluding the officers of the company, for all debt not exceeding one year's wages due for services performed for the company whilst they are such directors respectively; but no director shall be liable in an action therefor, unless the company has been sued therefor within one year after the debt became due, nor yet unless such director is sued therefor within one year from the time when he ceased to be such director, nor yet before an execution against the company has been returned unsatisfied in whole or in part; and the amount due on such execution shall be the amount recoverable with costs against the directors.

Directors can not escape liability under this section by showing that they hold shares in the company in trust in violation of section 27 of the Act. The provisions of this section are remedial and not penal in their nature. The statute merely withholds from the directors in respect of wages the freedom from personal liability for the debts of the company. — McDonald v. Drake, (1907), 16 Man. 220.

Capital Stock. Shares.

Allotment of stock. 34. If the letters patent make no other definite provision, the stock of the company, so far as it is not allotted thereby, shall be allotted when and as the directors by by-law or otherwise may ordain.

An agreement to take shares in a company, although accompanied by the giving of a promissory note in part payment is merely an application for the shares and is not binding on the applicant until accepted by the company. — Kruger v. Harwood, (1907), 16 Man. 433. See note to § 31, supra.

Directors may make by-laws to subdivide shares. 35. The directors of the company, if they see fit any at time, may make a by-law subdividing the existing shares into shares of a smaller amount.

Also to increase capital stock. 36. The directors of the company, if they see fit, at any time after the whole capital stock of the company shall have been taken up and thirty per centum thereon paid in, but not sooner, may make a by-law for increasing the capital stock of the company to any amount which they may consider requisite to the due carrying out of the objects of the company.

What such by-law shall provide. 37. Such by-law shall declare the number and value of the shares of the new stock, and may prescribe the manner in which the same shall be allotted; and, in default of its so doing, the control of such allotment shall be held to vest absolutely in the directors.

And to decrease capital stock. 38. The directors of the company, if they see fit at any time, may make a by-law for decreasing the capital stock of the company to any amount which they may consider sufficient in order to the due carrying out of the undertaking of the company, and advisable; but such by-law shall declare the number and value of the shares so decreased and the allotment thereof, or the rule or rules by which the same shall be made.

Shareholders to sanction increase or decrease of capital stock or subdivision of shares by two-thirds the value vote. 39. But no by-law for increasing or decreasing the capital stock of the company, or subdividing the shares, shall have any force or effect whatever, until it shall have been sanctioned by a vote of not less than two-thirds in value of the shareholders then present or represented by proxy at a general meeting of the company duly called to consider the same, and afterwards confirmed by supplementary letters patent.

Liability of shareholders to creditors at time of reduction. 40. The liability of the shareholders to persons who were, at the time of the reduction of the capital, creditors of the company, shall remain as though the capital had not been decreased.

Directors may petition Lieutenant-Governor for supplementary letters patent. What petition must show. Evidence to be taken. 41. At any time, not more than six months after such sanction of such by-law, the directors may petition the Lieutenant-Governor, through the Provincial Secretary, for the issue of supplementary letters patent to confirm the same: a) With such petition they must produce such by-law and establish to the satisfaction of the Provincial Secretary, or of such other officer as may be charged by order of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to report thereon, the due passing and sanction of such by-law, and, if the petition is in respect of increase or decrease of capital, the bona fide character of the increase or decrease of the capital thereby provided for, and that notice of the application for supplementary letters patent has been inserted for one month in The Manitoba Gazette; b) And to that end the Provincial Secretary or such other officer may take and keep of record any requisite evidence in writing.

A company has power to make a by-law provided that a lien shall exist upon the shares of any shareholder for any debt or liability to the company. — Montgomery v. Mitchell, (1908), 18 Man. 37.

Lieutenant-Governor on proof may grant supplementary letters patent. Notice to be given by Provincial Secretary in Gazette. 42. Upon the due proof of the same being so made, the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council may grant such supplementary letters patent under the great seal of the Province, and notice thereof shall forthwith be given by the Provincial Secretary in The Manitoba Gazette in the form in Schedule B to this Act, and thereupon, from the date of the supplementary letters patent, the shares shall be subdivided or the capital stock of the company shall be and remain increased or decreased, as the case may be, to the amount, in the manner and subject to the conditions set forth by such by-law; and the whole of the stock, as so increased or decreased, shall become subject to the provisions hereof in like manner, so far as may be, as though every part thereof had formed part of the stock of the company originally subscribed.

By-law creating preferential stock. Holders of such stock may be empowered to elect certain directors. Requirements for sanction of by-law creating preference shares. Position of holders of such stock. Proviso as to rights of creditors. 43. [As amended by Acts, 1908, c. 8, § 2.] The directors of any company incorporated under this Act, or any other general Act of this Province for the incorporation of companies by letters patent, may make a by-law for creating and issuing any part of the capital stock as preference stock, giving the same such preference and priority, as respects dividends and otherwise, over ordinary stock, as may be declared by the by-law. a) The by-law may provide that the holders of such preference shares shall have the right to select a certain stated proportion of the board of directors, or may give them such other control over the affairs of the company as may be considered expedient; b) No such by-law shall have any force or effect whatever until after it has been sanctioned by a vote of shareholders representing not less than two-thirds of the par value of the subscribed capital stock, present in person or by proxy at a general meeting of the company duly called for considering the same: c) Holders of such preference stock shall be shareholders within the meaning of this Act, and shall in all respects possess the rights and be subject to the liabilities of shareholders within the meaning of this Act, provided, however, that in respect of dividends and otherwise they shall, as against the original or ordinary shareholders, be entitled to the preference given by any by-law as aforesaid; d) Nothing in this section shall affect or impair the rights of creditors of any company; e) The directors of a company which has heretofore issued, or may hereafter issue, preference stock may, for the purposes of cancelling such preference stock or parts thereof from time to time, pass by-laws providing for the purchase or acquisition by the company of such stock, or parts thereof, with the consent of the holders, and for the cancellation of the stock so purchased or acquired and for the reduction pro rata according to the amount of stock so cancelled of any reserve set apart, or required to be set apart, in respect of such preference stock, but no such by-law shall be valid or acted upon unless and until the same has been sanctioned by a vote of at least two-thirds in value of the shareholders of the company present in person, or represented by proxy, at a special meeting duly called for considering the same, and unless and until such by-law has been confirmed by supplementary letters patent; f) At any time, not more than three months after the sanction of such by-law by the shareholders as aforesaid, the company may petition the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, through the Provincial Secretary, for the issue of supplementary letters patent to confirm the same; with the petition the company shall produce the by-law and establish to the satisfaction of the Provincial Secretary, or of such other officer as may be charged by him to report thereon, the due passage and sanction of the by-law and the bona fide character of the same, and thereupon the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council may, by supplementary letters patent, confirm the by-law, and may, with the consent of the board of directors of the company, by the supplementary letters patent, add such terms and conditions thereto as to him may seem proper, and thereupon from the date of the supplementary letters patent the by-law, with such added terms and conditions, if any, shall be valid and may be acted upon; notice of the issue of supplementary letters patent shall be given by the Provincial Secretary in The Manitoba Gazette.

Stock personal estate. 44. The stock of the company shall be deemed personal estate, and shall be transferable in such manner only, and subject to all such conditions and restrictions, as herein, or in the letters patent, or in the by-laws of the company, are contained.

Company not to be liable in respect of trusts. 45. The company shall not be bound to see to the execution of any trust, whether express, implied, or constructive, in respect of any share; and the receipt of the shareholder in whose name the same may stand in the books of the company shall be a valid and binding discharge to the company for any dividend or money payable in respect of such share, and whether or not notice of such trust has been given to the company; and the company shall not be bound to see to the application of the money paid upon such receipt.

Liability of shareholders.

Liability of shareholders. Law of set-off applies. 46. Each shareholder, until the whole amount of his stock has been paid up, shall be individually liable to the creditors of the company to an amount equal to that not paid up thereon, but shall not be liable in an action therefor by any creditor before an execution against the company has been returned unsatisfied in whole or in part, and the amount due on such execution shall, subject to the provisions of the next succeeding section, be the amount recoverable, with costs, against such shareholders: Provided that any shareholder may plead by way of defence, in whole or in part, any set-off which he could set up against the company, except a claim for unpaid dividends, or a salary or allowance as a president or director.

Limited to amount of stock. 47. The shareholders of the company shall not, as such, be held responsible for any act, default, or liability whatsoever of the company, or for any engagement, claim, payment, loss, injury, transaction, matter, or thing whatsoever, relating to or connected with the company, beyond the unpaid amount of their respective shares in the capital stock thereof.

Trustees or mortgagees not personally liable. 48. No person holding stock in the company as an executor, administrator, tutor, curator, guardian, or trustee shall be personally subject to liability as a shareholder; but the estate and funds in the hands of such person shall be liable in like manner, and to the same extent as the testator or intestate, or the minor, ward, or other interested person in such trust fund, would be, if competent to act and holding such stock in his own name; and no person holding such stock as collateral security shall be personally subject to such liability, but the person pledging such stock shall be considered as holding the same and shall be liable as a shareholder accordingly.

Trustees may vote. 49. Every such executor, administrator, tutor, curator, guardian, or trustee shall represent the stock in his hands at all meetings of the company, and may vote accordingly as a shareholder; and every person who pledges his stock may nevertheless, represent the same at all such meetings, and may vote accordingly as a shareholder.

Actions between company and shareholders. 50. Any description of action may be prosecuted and maintained between the company and any shareholder thereof.

Calls.

Calling in instalments. 51. The directors of the company may call in and demand from the shareholders thereof, respectively, all sums of money by them subscribed, at such times and places, and in such payments or instalments, as the letters patent, or the provisions hereof, or the by-laws of the company, may require or allow, and interest shall accrue and fall due at the rate of six per centum per annum, upon the amount of any unpaid call, from the day appointed for the payment of such call.

Ten per cent. within first year. 52. Not less than ten per centum upon the allotted stock of the company shall, by means of one or more calls, be called in and made payable within one year from the incorporation of the company; the residue, when and as the by-laws of the company shall direct.

Enforcement of payment of calls by action. 53. The company may enforce payment of all calls and interest thereon by action in any competent Court; and in such action it shall not be necessary to set forth the special matter, but it shall be sufficient to allege that the defendant is a holder of one share or more, stating the number of shares, and is indebted in the sum of money to which the calls in arrear amount, in respect of one call or more upon one share or more, stating the number of calls and the amount of each, whereby an action hath accrued to the company; and a certificate under its seal, and purporting to be signed by any officer of the company, to the effect that the defendant is a shareholder, that such call or calls has or have been made, and that so much is due by him and unpaid thereon, shall be received in all Courts as prima facie evidence to that effect.

Forfeiture of shares. 54. If, after such demand or notice as by the letters patent or by-laws of the company may be prescribed, any call made upon any share or shares be not paid within such time as by such letters patent or by-laws may be limited in that behalf, the directors in their discretion, by vote to that effect reciting the facts, the same being duly recorded in their minutes, may summarily forfeit any share or shares whereupon such payment is not made; and the same shall thereupon become the property of the company and may be disposed of as<sup>1)</sup> by-laws or otherwise the directors shall ordain.

Restrictions as to transactions. 55. No share or shares shall be transferable until all previous calls thereon have been fully paid in, or until declared forfeited for non-payment of calls thereon.

Shareholders in arrears not to vote. 56. No shareholder, being in arrear in respect of any calls, shall be entitled to vote at any meeting of the company.

Stock books.

Books to be kept and what to contain. Copy of letters patent. Names of shareholders. Their addresses. Number of shares. Amount paid. All transfers in order. Names of all directors. 57. The company shall cause a book or books to be kept by the secretary, or by some other officer especially charged with that duty, wherein shall be kept recorded: a) A copy of the letters patent incorporating the company, and of any supplementary letters patent for increasing or decreasing the capital stock thereof, and of all by-laws thereof; b) The names, alphabetically arranged, of all persons who are or have been shareholders; c) The address and calling of every such person while such shareholder; d) The number of shares of stock held by each shareholder; e) The amount paid in and remaining unpaid, respectively, on the stock of each shareholder; f) All transfers of stock in their order as presented to the company for entry, with the date and other particulars of each transfer, and the date of the entry thereof; and g) The names, addresses, and calling of all persons who are or have been directors of the company, with the several dates at which each ever became, or ceased to be, such director,

Refusal to enter transfer if calls not paid. 58. The directors may refuse to allow the entry into any such book of any transfer of stock whereon any call has been made which has not been paid in.

Transfer valid only after entry. 59. No transfer of stock, unless made by sale under execution, shall be valid for any purpose whatever, save only as exhibiting the rights of the parties thereto towards each other, and as rendering the transferee liable ad interim jointly and severally with the transferor, to the company and its creditors, until the entry thereof has been duly made in such book or books.

Books to be open for inspection. 60. Such books shall, during reasonable business hours every day except holidays, be kept open for the inspection of shareholders and creditors of the company and their personal representatives at the office or chief place of business of the company; and every such shareholder, creditor, or representative may make extracts therefrom.

Books to be prima facie evidence. 61. Such books shall be prima facie evidence of all facts purporting to be thereby stated in any suit or proceeding against the company or against any shareholder.

Penalty for false entries. 62. No director, officer, or servant of the company shall knowingly make, or assist in making, any untrue entry in any such book, or shall refuse or neglect to make any proper entry therein; and any persons violating the provisions of this section shall, besides being punished criminally, be liable in damages for all loss or injury which any person interested may sustain thereby.

Liability for refusal to allow inspection of books. 63. Any director or officer refusing to permit any person entitled thereto to inspect such book or books, or make extracts therefrom, shall forfeit and pay to the party aggrieved the sum of one hundred dollars; and in case the amount be not paid within seven days after the recovery of a judgment, the Court in which a judgment is recovered, or a judge thereof, may direct the imprisonment of the offender for any period not exceeding three months, unless the amount with costs be sooner paid.

Contracts.

Contracts, when to be binding on company. Proviso as to notes, banking, and insurance. 64. Every contract, agreement, engagement, or bargain made, and every bill of exchange drawn, accepted, or indorsed, and every promissory note and cheque made, drawn, or indorsed, on behalf of the company by any agent, officer, or servant of the company, in general accordance with his powers as such agent, officer, or servant under the by-laws of the company or otherwise, shall be binding upon the company; and in no case shall it be necessary to have the seal of the company affixed to any such contract, agreement, engagement, bargain, bill of exchange, promissory note, or cheque, or to prove that the same was made, drawn, accepted, or indorsed, as the case may be, in pursuance of any by-law or special vote or order; nor shall the party so acting as agent, officer, or servant of the company be thereby subjected individually to any liability whatsoever to any third party therefor: Provided, always, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to authorize the company to issue any note payable to the bearer thereof, or any promissory note intended to be circulated as money or as the note of a bank, or to engage in the business of banking or insurance as aforesaid.

Powers with reference to real estate and otherwise.

Company may acquire, hold and transfer real estate. Provision in case of land company. 65. [As amended by Acts, 1911, c. 8, § 1.] Every company so incorporated, subject to the limitations contained in its letters patent of incorporation, may acquire, hold, alienate, and convey real estate requisite for the carrying on of the undertaking of such company, and in case of a company incorporated for the purpose of the buying and selling of land (hereinafter called a land company) in addition to any real estate requisite for the business of the company, and shall forthwith become and be invested with all rights, real and personal, heretofore held by or for the company under a trust created with a view to its incorporation, and with all the powers, privileges, and immunities requisite to the carrying on of its undertaking, as though the company had been incorporated by a special Act of the Legislature making the company a body politic and corporate and embodying all the provisions herein contained and of the letters patent. For such license there shall be paid to His Majesty for the public uses of Manitoba such fee as the Lieutenant-Governor may prescribe, and compliance with section 15 hereof may be dispensed with by the Lieutenant-Governor in whole or in part. Any such license obtained by any such corporation shall be deemed to ratify and confirm all previous acts of the corporation, and shall be construed as if such license had been granted before such corporation commenced to carry on business in Manitoba; saving all matters or things which shall have been questioned before the taking out of such license by proceedings commenced in any court of law in this Province.

The liquidator or any member of the company may apply to the Court to determine any question arising in the matter of the winding-up; or to exercise all or any of the powers following; and the Court, if satisfied that the determination of the question, or the required exercise of power, will be just and beneficial, may accede wholly or partially to the application, on such terms and subject to such conditions as the Court thinks fit; or it may make such other order on the application as the Court thinks just: a) The Court, at any time after the presentation of a petition for winding up a company and before making an order for winding up the company, may restrain further proceedings in any action or proceeding against the company (except under the insolvent Acts in force at the time, or any other authority over which this Legislature has no jurisdiction), in and upon such terms as the Court thinks fit; b) The Court may make an order that no action or other proceedings shall be proceeded with or commenced against the company except with the leave of the Court, and subject to such terms as the Court may impose; but this subsection shall not apply to proceedings under any Act of the Parliament of Canada under its jurisdiction in matters of bankruptcy and insolvency or otherwise. A copy of such order shall forthwith be advertised as the Court may direct; c) The Court may settle the list of contributories; d) The Court may direct meetings of the members of the company to be summoned, held and conducted in such manner as the Court thinks fit, for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and may appoint a person to act as chairman of any such meeting, and to report the result of such meeting to the Court. e) The Court may require any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories, or any trustee, receiver, banker, agent, or officer of the company, to pay, deliver, convey, surrender, or transfer forthwith, or within such time as the Court directs, to or into the hands of the liquidator, any sum or balance, books, papers, estate, or effects which happen to be in his hands for the time being, and to which the company is prima facie entitled; f) The Court may make an order on any contributory, for the time being settled on the list of contributories, directing payment to be made, in manner in the order mentioned, of moneys due from him or from the estate of the person whom he represents to the company, exclusive of moneys which he or the estate or the person whom he represents may be liable to contribute by virtue of any call made or to be made by the Court in pursuance of this Act; g) The Court may order any contributory, purchaser, or other person from whom money is due to the company to pay the same into any bank appointed for this purpose in any general order made under this Act, or in default of such bank into a bank named in the order, or into a branch of such bank, to the account of the liquidator, instead of to the liquidator, and the order may be enforced in the same manner as if it had directed payment to the liquidator; h) An order made by the Court in pursuance of this Act upon any contributory shall, subject to the provisions herein contained for appealing against such order, be conclusive evidence that the moneys, if any, thereby appearing to be due, or ordered to be paid, are due; and all other pertinent matters stated in the order are to be taken to be truly stated, as against all persons, and in all proceedings whatsoever; i) The Court may make such order for the inspection by the creditors and contributories of the company of its books and papers as the Court thinks just; and any books and papers in the possession of the company may be inspected in conformity with the order of the Court, but not further or otherwise; j) The Court may, at any time after the commencement of the winding up of the company, summon to appear before the Court or liquidator any officer of the company, or any other person known or suspected to have in his possession any of the estate or effects of the company, or supposed to be indebted to the company, or any person whom the Court may deem capable of giving information concerning the trade, dealings, estate, or effects of the company; and in case of refusal to appear or answer the questions submitted, he may be committed and punished by the Judge as for a contempt; k) The Court may require any such officer or person to produce any books, papers, deeds, writings, or other documents in his custody or power relating to the company; l) If any person so summoned, after being tendered the fees to which a witness is entitled in the Court, refuses to come before the Court or liquidator at the time appointed, having no lawful impediment, the Court may cause such person to be apprehended, and brought before the Court or liquidator for examination; m) The Court or liquidator may examine, upon oath, any person appearing or brought before it or him in the manner aforesaid, concerning the affairs, dealings, estate, or effects of the company, and may reduce into writing the answers of every such person, and require him to subscribe the same; n) In any proceeding under this Act, the Court may order a writ of subpoena ad testificandum or of subpoena duces tecum to issue, commanding the attendance as a witness of any person within the limits of Manitoba; o) Where any person claims a lien on papers, deeds, writings, or documents produced by him, such production shall be without prejudice to the lien; and the Court shall have jurisdiction in the winding-up to determine all questions relating to such lien; p) Where in the course of winding-up a company under this Act, it appears that any past or present director, manager, official or other liquidator, or any officer of the company, has misapplied, or retained in his own hands, or become liable or accountable for, moneys of the company, or been guilty of any misfeasance or breach of trust in relation to the company, the Court may, on the application of a liquidator, or of any contributory of the company, notwithstanding that the offence is one for which the offender is criminally responsible, examine into the conduct of such director, manager, or other officer, and compel him to repay the moneys so misapplied or retained, or for which he has become liable or accountable, together with interest after such rate as the Court thinks just, or to contribute such sums of money to the assets of the company, by way of compensation in respect of such misapplication, retainer, misfeasance, or breach of trust, as the Court thinks just.

Sale of Goods.

a) R. S. M. 1902, c. 152. An Act relating to the Sale of Goods.

(This chapter is identical in all material respects with the Imperial Sale of Goods Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vic. c. 71). The Act applies to sales of goods of the value of $ 50.00 and upwards, instead of £10 and upwards. The doctrine of market overt does not apply.)

Growing wild hay sold to a person who is to cut and remove it is "goods" within the meaning of the Act. — Fredkin v. Glines, (1909), 18 Man. 249. A contract to put up a building with frame for a tent "according to plans for $ 500.00," is a contract of sale of a chattel, at least under circumstances where the person supplying the labour and materials pulls down and carries away the structure without the sanction of the other party. — Ross v. Doyle, (1887), 4 Man. 434. Where goods are placed in a warehouse or elevator, nominally on storage, but giving to the person to whom the goods are delivered the right to mix them up with goods of a similar character, and where under the terms of the agreement the party delivering the goods can only require an equivalent amount of the same kind and quality, the contract is one of sale and not of bailment, as the property in the goods passes to the warehouseman. — Lawlor v. Nicol, (1898), 12 Man. 224. Goods were ordered through a representative of the plaintiff. On 12th December plaintiff wrote defendant that he would consign only, not sell. This letter was never received, but defendant received a telegram as follows: "Can only fill order forty off hardware, forty and ten flatware. You pay express. Answer if satisfactory," to which defendant replied: "All right; send goods at once." The goods were shipped on 16th December, and at the same time plaintiff wrote defendant that the goods were consigned only, and not sold, but this letter was not mailed until the 18th, and not received until after the goods had been received and accepted. The invoice was headed "Consigned" to the defendant. It was held that the transaction was a sale, and that the property vested in the defendant. — Aeme Silver Co. v. Perret, (1887), 4 Man. 501. An express warranty in a contract for the sale of goods by description does not exclude the implied warranty that the goods shall correspond with the description. Darrell*, (1906), 15 Man. 553. Where the seller fills an order for goods with the provision specially written in it by his agent that the goods are to be satisfactory to the purchasers he thereby waives any limitation of the authority of his agent as to giving warranties, even though the contract contains a printed form of warranty as to the fitness of the goods and a provision that the agent of the seller may not "add to, abridge, or change" the warranty in any manner. — New Hamburg Mfg. Co. v. Shields, (1907), 16 Man. 212. Where an engine was sold under a warranty that it was in first-class repair and in good running order, and the buyer discovered certain defects before he started using the machine and other defects almost immediately thereafter, but, instead of proceeding at once to have the missing parts supplied, continued to operate the machine in its defective condition without complaining to the seller of anything but the friction, it was held that there could be no recovery for damage, which might have been prevented by reasonable efforts on the defendant's part. The measure of the buyer's damage is the amount that it would have cost to put the engine in the condition it was warranted to be in, plus his loss of profits or from delays during the time that would necessarily elapse before these repairs could be made had he acted promptly after discovery. — Mawhinney v. Porteous, (1908), 17 Man. 184. Where an article is returned by the buyer with a statement of his inability to pay for it, and is accepted by the seller and kept for a long period of time, and where there are circumstances where the seller had tried to sell the article during this period, it will be regarded as an accord and satisfaction, even though the buyer stated that he would buy back the article in the future should his circumstances become such as to warrant it. — Boyce v. Soames, (1907), 16 Man. 109.

b) 1909, c. 60. An Act to regulate the Purchase, Sale, and Transfer of Stocks of Goods in Bulk (10th March, 1909).

Short title. 1. This Act may be cited as the Bulk Sales Act, 1909.

Purchaser of stock of goods in bulk to demand and vendor to furnish statement showing particulars of all debts over $ 50, verified by statutory declaration. Form of statement. 2. It shall be the duty of every person who shall bargain for, buy or purchase any stock of goods, wares, or merchandise in bulk, for cash or on credit, before closing the purchase of the same, and before paying to the vendor any part of the purchase price, or giving any promissory note or notes or any security for the said purchase price, to demand of and receive from such vendor, and it shall be the duty of each vendor of such goods to furnish a written statement, verified by the statutory declaration of the vendor or his duly authorized agent, or, if the vendor is a corporation, by the declaration of the president, vice-president, secretary-treasurer, or manager of such corporation, which statement is to contain the names and addresses of all the creditors of the said vendor for amounts exceeding $ 50, together with the amount of the indebtedness or liability due, owing, payable or accruing due, or to become due and payable, by said vendor to each of said creditors, which said statement may be in the form set forth in Schedule A hereto.

If such statutory declaration not demanded and furnished, sale deemed fraudulent and shall be void as against the creditors of the vendor. Unless proceeds applied in payment of debts. 3. [As amended by Acts, 1911, c. 52, § 1.] Whenever any person shall bargain for or purchase any stock of goods, wares, or merchandise in bulk, for cash or on credit, and shall pay any part of the purchase price or execute or deliver to the vendor or to his order, or to any person for his use, any promissory note or other document for or on account of the purchase price of said goods, or any part thereof, without first having demanded and obtained from the vendor, or from his agent, a statutory declaration purporting to be such as is provided for in the preceding section of this Act, then such sale shall be deemed to be fraudulent and shall be absolutely void as against the creditors of the vendor, unless all of the creditors of the vendor are paid in full out of the proceeds of such sale.

Duty of purchaser in such case. Distribution of money. Fees of trust company. 4. [As amended by Acts, 1911, c. 52, §§ 2, 3.] Any such purchaser, upon obtaining such statutory declaration, shall either obtain the written waiver from the creditors of the vendor hereinafter referred to, or shall pay the whole of his purchase money or deliver his promissory note or notes or other documents securing the same, or part thereof, into the hands of a trust company or an official assignee, for distribution pro rata among the creditors of the said vendor, subject to any preferences provided for by law or by previous contract. Such distribution shall be made in like manner as moneys are distributed by an official assignee under The Assignments Act, and in making such distribution the claims of the creditors shall be subject to the same provisions as are contained in sections 23 to 33, both inclusive, of The Assignments Act. The fees of any such trust company or official assignee shall not exceed 3 per cent. of the total proceeds of such sale which shall come to its or his hands, and shall, together with any disbursements, be paid by being deducted out of the moneys to be received by the said creditors and shall in no event be charged to the debtor; provided further that from and after the furnishing of such declaration no preference or priority shall be obtainable by any creditor by attachment or garnishing process or otherwise. a) Provided, however, that if the purchase price to be paid is less than the amount of the total indebtedness of the vendor to his creditors, as shown by the said written statement, the purchaser must obtain the written consent to such bargain or purchase from creditors representing at least sixty per cent in number and amount of the claims against such vendor as shown by said written statement and any sale for such purchase price without such written consent shall be fraudulent and void against the creditors of the vendor.

Consequence if purchaser fails to carry out requirements of Act. 5. [As amended by Acts, 1911, c. 52, § 2.] If such purchaser, upon receiving such statutory declaration, shall fail to observe the requirements of the last preceding section without obtaining the written waiver from creditors hereinafter referred to, then such sale shall be deemed to be fraudulent and shall be absolutely void as against the creditors of the vendor, unless all creditors of the vendor are paid in full out of the proceeds of such sale.

What to be deemed "a sale in bulk." If waiver from creditors produced, Act shall not apply. 6. [As amended by Acts, 1911, c. 52, § 5.] Any sale or transfer of a stock of goods, wares, or merchandise, or part thereof, out of the usual course of business or trade of the vendor, or whenever substantially the entire stock-in-trade of the vendor shall be sold or conveyed, or whenever an interest in the business or trade of the vendor is sold or conveyed, or attempted to be sold and conveyed, such sale, transfer, or conveyance shall be deemed "a sale in bulk" within the meaning of this Act; provided, however, that if the vendor produces and delivers to the vendee a written waiver of the provisions of this Act from his creditors, representing sixty per cent. in number and value of the claims as shown by said statutory declaration, then the provisions of this Act shall not apply.

Only sales by traders and merchants affected. 7. This Act shall only apply to sales by traders and merchants defined as follows: a) Persons who as their ostensible occupation buy and sell goods, wares, and merchandise, ordinarily the subject of trade and commerce; b) Commission merchants; c) Manufacturers.

Certain sales in bulk not affected. 8. Nothing in this Act contained shall apply to or affect any sale by executors, administrators, receivers, assignees for the benefit of creditors, or any public official acting under judicial process.

Security to be given by official assignee. 3. No official assignee shall accept any assignment or trust, or execute any duties under this Act, unless and until he has given security to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, by bond or bonds or otherwise, to His Majesty, His heirs and successors, in the sum of ten thousand dollars for the due accounting and payment over of all moneys received by him as such assignee.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 40.

Expense of furnishing bond. 4. An official assignee may charge up to each estate which comes into his hands the sum of five dollars to re-imburse himself the expense incident to the furnishing of said bonds.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 41.

Assignments.

General assignment not in accordance with Act, when void. 5. Every assignment for the general benefit of creditors which is not void under any of the sections of this Act numbered from thirty-eight to forty-two inclusive of both such numbers, but is not made to an official assignee, nor to any other person with the consent of the proportion of creditors prescribed by the forty-fourth section of this Act, shall be absolutely null and void to all intents and purposes.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 3 (3).

Form of assignment for general benefit of creditors. 6. Every assignment made under this Act for the general benefit of creditors shall be valid and sufficient if it is in the words following, that is to say: "All my personal property and all my real estate, credits, and effects, which may be seized and sold under execution," or if it is in words to the like effect; and an assignment so expressed shall vest in the assignee all the real and personal estate, rights, property, credits, and effects, whether vested or contingent, belonging at the time of the assignment to the assignor, except such as are by law exempt from seizure or sale under execution or other legal proceedings, subject, however, as regards lands, to the provisions of The Registry Act, and The Real Property Act as to the registration of the assignment.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 5.

All assignments for general benefit of creditors to be subject to this Act. 7. Every assignment hereafter executed in accordance with this Act for the general benefit of creditors, whether the assignment is or is not expressed to be made under or in pursuance of this Act, and whether the debtor has or has not included all his real and personal estate, shall vest the estate, whether real or personal or partly real and partly personal, thereby assigned in the assignee therein named for the general benefit of creditors, and such assignment and the property thereby assigned shall be subject to all the provisions of this Act, and the provisions of this Act shall apply to the assignee named in such assignment.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 6.

Assignments to take precedence of judgments, executions, etc. 8. An assignment for the general benefit of creditors under this Act shall take precedence of all attachments of debts by way of garnishment where the money has not been actually paid over to the garnishing creditor, as well as of all other attachments and of all judgments and registered certificates of judgments and of all executions not completely executed by payment, subject to the lien, if any, of execution or attaching creditors for their costs.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 11.

Sheriff to hand over property seized. 9. In case a deed of assignment as aforesaid has been duly executed and registered, the sheriff or bailiff of a County Court having seized property of the assignor under execution or attachment shall, upon receiving a copy of the assignment, duly certified by the clerk of the County Court in the office of which it is registered, forthwith deliver to the assignee all the estate and effects of the execution debtor in his hands, upon payment by the assignee to the sheriff or bailiff of his fees and charges and the costs of the execution creditor or creditors who has or have a lien as above provided. If the sheriff or bailiff has sold the debtor's estate or any part thereof, he shall deliver to the assignee the moneys so realized by him, less his fees and the said execution creditor's costs. The assignee shall have the same power to enforce a return and the same remedies for failure or neglect to return that an execution creditor has under The Kings Bench Act, or The County Courts Act, or otherwise.

58 & 59 Vic. c. 6, r. 695a.

Amendment of assignment by Judge. 10. No advantage shall be taken or gained by any creditor of any mistake, defect, or imperfection in any assignment under this Act for the general benefit of creditors, if the same can be amended or corrected; and any such mistake, defect, or imperfection shall be amended by any Judge of the Court of King's Bench or of the County Court in the office of which it is registered or by this Act required to be registered. Such amendment may be made on application of the assignee or of any creditor of the assignor, on such notice being given to other parties concerned, as the Judge shall think reasonable; and the amendment, when made, shall have relation back to the date of the assignment, but so as not to prejudice the rights of innocent purchasers.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 12.

Notice of assignment to be published. 11. No assignment made for the general benefit of creditors under this Act shall be within the operation of The Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, but a notice of the assignment shall, as soon as conveniently possible, be published at least once in The Manitoba Gazette and not less than twice in at least one newspaper having a general circulation in the judicial district in which the property assigned is situate.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 13 (1).

Assignment to be registered. 12. A counterpart or copy of every such assignment shall also, within ten days from the execution thereof, be registered (together with an affidavit of a witness thereto of the due execution of such counterpart or of the assignment of which the copy filed purports to be a copy) in the office of the clerk of the County Court of the judicial division where the assignor, if a resident in Manitoba, resides at the time of the execution thereof, or if he is not a resident, then in the office of the clerk of the County Court of the judicial division where the personal property so assigned is or where the principal part thereof (in case the assignment includes property in more judicial divisions than one) is at the time of the execution of such assignment; and such clerks shall file all such instruments presented to them respectively for that purpose and shall endorse thereon the time of receiving the same in their respective offices, and the same shall be kept there for the inspection of all persons interested therein. The said clerks respectively shall number and enter such assignments, and be entitled to the same fees for services in the same manner as if such assignments had been registered under The Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 13 (2).

Penalty for neglecting publication or registration. Liability of official assignee. 13. If the said notice is not published in the regular number of The Manitoba Gazette and in such newspaper as aforesaid within ten days from the execution of the assignment by the assignor, or if the assignment is not registered as aforesaid within ten days from the execution thereof, the assignor shall be liable to a penalty of twenty-five dollars for each and every day which shall pass after the issue of the number of the newspaper in which the notice should have appeared until the same shall have been published; and a like penalty for each and every day which shall pass after the expiration of ten days from the execution of the assignment by the assignor until the same shall have been registered: a) The assignee shall be subject to a like penalty for any such delay for each and every day which shall pass after the expiration of ten days from the delivery of the assignment to him, or of ten days after his assent thereto. The burden of proving the time of such delivery or assent shall be upon the assignee; b) Such penalties may be recovered summarily with costs before any Judge of the Court of King's Bench, and one-half of the penalty shall go to the party suing and the other half for the benefit of the estate of the assignor; c) In case of an assignment to an official assignee, he shall not be liable for any of the penalties imposed in this section unless he has been paid or tendered the cost of advertising and registering the assignment a reasonable time before the time required for so advertising and registering, nor shall he be compelled to act under the assignment until his costs in that behalf are paid or tendered to him.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 14.

Compelling publication and registration. 14. In case the assignment is not registered and notice thereof published within the time hereinbefore prescribed, an application may be made by anyone interested in the assignment to a Judge of the Court of King's Bench to compel the registration of the assignment and publication of such notice; and the Judge shall make his order in that behalf, and with or without costs, or upon the payment of costs by such person as he may in his discretion direct to pay the same.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 15.

Assignment not invalidated by omission to publish, etc. 15. The omission to publish or register as aforesaid, or any irregularity in the publication or registration, shall not invalidate the assignment.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 16.

Creditors' assignees.

Appointment of substituted assignee. 16. A majority in number and value of the creditors who have proved claims to the amount of one hundred dollars or upwards may at their discretion substitute any other person for the assignee to whom an assignment has been made.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 8 (1).

Rights and duties of the substituted assignee. 17. Where a new assignee is substituted or appointed as in the last preceding section provided, the estate shall forthwith vest in the new or additional assignee, without a conveyance or transfer, and he shall register an affidavit of his appointment in the office in which the original assignment was filed. Such an affidavit may also be registered under The Registry Act or filed under The Real Property Act, and such registration or filing shall have the same effect as the registration of a conveyance or filing of a transfer.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 8 (2).

Meetings of creditors.

Assignee to call meeting of creditors. 18. It shall be the duty of the assignee immediately to inform himself, by reference to the debtor and his records of account, of the names and residences of the debtor's creditors, and, within five days from the date of assignment, to convene a meeting of the creditors for the appointment of inspectors and the giving of directions with reference to the disposal of the estate, by mailing prepaid and registered to every creditor known to him a circular calling a meeting of creditors to be held in his office, or some other convenient place to be named in the notices, not later than twelve days after the mailing of such notice; and he shall also publish such notice by advertisement in The Manitoba Gazette in the first issue after the expiration of such period of five days.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 17.

Meeting of creditors by request of majority thereof. 19. In case of a request in writing signed by a majority of the creditors having claims duly proved of one hundred dollars and upwards, computed according to the provisions of the twenty-second section of this Act, it shall be the duty of the assignee, within two days after receiving such request, to call a meeting of the creditors at a time not later than twelve days after the assignee receives the request. In case of default, the assignee shall be liable to a penalty of twenty-five dollars for every day after the expiration of the time limited for the calling of the meeting until the meeting is called.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 18 (1).

Judge to give directions in case creditors do not attend. 20. In case a sufficient number of creditors do not attend the meeting mentioned in the last preceding section, or fail to give directions with reference with<sup>1)</sup> the disposal of the estate, any of the Judges aforesaid may give all necessary directions in that behalf.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 18 (2).

Voting at meeting. 21. At any meeting of creditors the creditors may vote in person, or by proxy authorized in writing; but no creditor whose vote is disputed shall be entitled to vote until he has filed with the assignee an affidavit in proof of his claim, stating the amount and nature thereof.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 19.

Scale of votes. Claims acquired after assignment. Casting vote. 22. Subject to the provisions of the sixteenth and twentieth sections hereof, all questions discussed at meetings of creditors shall be decided by the majority of votes, and for such purpose the votes of creditors shall be calculated as follows: For every claim of or over one hundred dollars, and less than two hundred dollars, one vote. For every claim of or over two hundred dollars, and less than five hundred dollars, two votes. For every claim of or over five hundred dollars, and less than one thousand dollars, three votes. For every additional one thousand dollars, or fraction thereof, one vote: a) No person shall be entitled to vote on a claim acquired after the assignment unless the entire claim is acquired, but this shall not apply to persons acquiring notes, bills or other securities upon which they are liable; b) In case of a tie the assignee, or, if there are two assignees, then the assignee nominated for that purpose by creditors (or by the Judge if none has been nominated by the creditors), shall have a casting vote.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 20 (1-3).

Creditors' claims.

Proof of claim. 23. Every person claiming to be entitled to rank on the estate assigned shall furnish to the assignee particulars of his claim, proved by affidavit and such vouchers as the nature of the case admits of.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 21 (1).

Limiting time for proof of claim. Not to interfere with Trustee Act. 24. In case a person claiming to be entitled to rank on the estate assigned does not, within a reasonable time after receiving notice of the assignment and of the name and address of the assignee, furnish to the assignee satisfactory proofs of his claim, as provided by this and the preceding sections of this Act, a Judge of the Court of King's Bench may, upon a summary application by the assignee or by any other person interested in the debtor's estate (of which application at least three days' notice shall be given to the person alleged to have made default in proving a claim as aforesaid), order that, unless the claim be proved to the satisfaction of the Judge within a time to be limited by the order, the person so making default shall no longer be deemed a creditor of the estate assigned, and shall be wholly barred of any right to share in the proceeds thereof; and, if the claim is not so proved within the time so limited, or within such further time as the said Judge may by subsequent order allow, the same shall be wholly barred, and the assignee shall be at liberty to distribute the proceeds of the estate as if no such claim existed, but without prejudice to the liability of the debtor therefor. a) This section is not intended to interfere with the protection afforded to assignees by the fortieth and forty-first sections of The Manitoba Trustee Act.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 21 (2, 3).

Creditor may prove claim not due. 25. A person whose claim has not accrued due shall nevertheless be entitled to prove under the assignment and vote at meetings of creditors, but in ascertaining the amount of any such claim a deduction for interest shall be made for the time which has to run until the claim becomes due.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 21 (4).

Set-off. 26. The law of set-off shall apply to all claims made against the estate and also to all actions instituted by the assignee for the recovery of debts due to the assignor, in the same manner and to the same extent as if the assignor were plaintiff or defendant, as the case may be, except in so far as any claim for set-off shall be affected by the provisions respecting frauds or fraudulent preferences of this or any other Act.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 26.

How claims are to rank where different estates. 27. If any assignor or assignors executing an assignment under this Act for the general benefit of his or their creditors owes or owed debts both individually and as a member of different co-partnerships, the claims shall rank first upon the estate by which the debts they represent were contracted, and shall only rank upon the other or others after all the creditors of such other estate or estates have been paid in full.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 7.

Workmen's wages not exceeding three months privileged claims under assignment for benefit of creditors. Provisions applicable to all wages. 28. [As amended by Acts, 1909, c. 1, § 1.] In case of an assignment under this Act, the assignee shall pay, in priority to the claims of the ordinary or general creditors of the person making the same, the wages or salary of all persons in the employ of such person at the time of the making of such assignment, or within one month before the making thereof, not exceeding three months' wages or salary, such wages or salary to be for arrears only and not for any unearned portion, and such persons shall be entitled to rank as ordinary or general creditors for the residue, if any, of their claims for arrears of such wages or salary. The provisions of this section shall apply to wages or salary, whether the employment in respect of which the same may be payable be by the day, week, month or year, or by the hour or other period of time.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 4, 9 Edw. 7, c. 1. — a) Where any employer has entered into a contract with any insurers, in respect of any liability under this Act to any workman, then in the event of the employer becoming insolvent or making an assignment for the benefit of, or a composition or arrangement with his creditors, or, if the employer is a company, in the event of the company having commenced to be wound up, the rights of the employer against the insurers as respects that liability shall be transferred to and vest in the workman, and upon any such transfer the insurers shall have the same rights and remedies, and be subject to the same liabilities, as if they were the employer, so, however, that the insurers shall not be under any greater liability to the workman than they would have been under to the employer; b) If the liability aforesaid of the insurers to the workman is less than the liability of the employer to the workman, the workman may prove for the balance in the assignment or liquidation proceedings; c) There shall be included among the debts which, under The Assignments Act and The Joint Stock Companies Winding-Up Act, are in the distribution of the property in the case of an assignment, and in the distribution of the assets of a company being wound up, under the said Acts respectively, to be paid in priority to all other debts, the amount, not exceeding in any individual case five hundred dollars, due in respect of any compensation the liability for which accrued before the date of the assignment or the date of the commencement of the winding-up, and the said Acts shall have effect accordingly. When the compensation is a weekly payment, the amount due in respect thereof shall, for the purposes of this provision, be taken to be the amount of the lump sum for which the weekly payment could, if redeemable, be redeemed if the employer made an application for that purpose under the first Schedule to this Act; d) The provisions of the foregoing sub-section with respect to the preferences and priorities shall not apply where the assignor or insolvent or the company being wound up has entered into such a contract with insurers as aforesaid; e) This section shall not apply where a company is wound up voluntarily merely for the purpose of reconstruction or amalgamation with another company. — Acts 1910, c. 81, § 8.

Creditors to value securities. 29. Every creditor in his proof of claim shall state whether he holds any security for his claim or any part thereof; and if such security is on the estate of the debtor, or on the estate of a third party for whom such debtor is only secondarily liable, he shall put a specified value thereon; and the assignee, under the authority of the creditors, may either consent to the right of the creditor to rank for the claim after deducting such valuation, or he may require from the creditor an assignment of the security at an advance of ten per cent. upon the specified value to be paid out of the estate; and in such case the difference between the value at which the security is retained and the amount of the gross claim of the creditor shall be the amount for which he shall rank and vote in respect of the estate.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 20 (4).

Right to re-value in certain cases. 30. If a creditor holds a claim based upon negotiable instruments upon which the debtor is only indirectly or secondarily liable, and which is not mature and exigible, such creditor shall be considered to hold security within the meaning of the last preceding section, and shall put a value on the liability of the party primarily liable thereon as being his security for the payment thereof; but after the maturity of such liability and its non-payment he shall be entitled to amend and re-value his claim.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 20 (5).

When creditor holding security fails to value same. 31. In case a person claiming to be entitled to rank on the estate assigned holds security for his claim or any part thereof, of such a nature that he is required by this Act to value the same, and he fails to value such security, a Judge of the Court of King's Bench may, upon summary application by the assignee or by any other person interested in the debtor's estate, of which application three days' notice shall be given to such claimant, order that, unless a specified value shall be placed on such security and notified in writing to the assignee within a time to be limited by the order, such claimant shall, in respect of the claim or the part thereof for which the security is held, in case the security is held for part only of the claim, be wholly barred of any right to share in the proceeds of such estate; and if a specified value is not placed on such security, and notified in writing to the assignee according to the exigency of the said order, or within such further time as the said Judge may by subsequent order allow, the said claim or the said part, as the case may be, shall be wholly barred as against such estate, but without prejudice to the liability of the debtor therefor.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 20 (6).

Contestation of claim. Service of process on solicitors. 32. At any time after the assignee receives from any person claiming to be entitled to rank on the estate proof of his claim, notice of contestation of the claim may be served by the assignee upon the claimant. Within thirty days after the receipt of the notice, or such further time as a Judge of the Court of King's Bench may on application allow, an action shall be brought by the claimant against the assignee to establish the claim, and a copy of the statement of claim in the action, or summons in case the action is brought in a County Court, shall be served on the assignee; and, in default of such action being brought and statement of claim or summons served within the time aforesaid, the claim to rank on the estate shall be forever barred. a) The notice by the assignee shall contain the name and place of business of one of the solicitors of the Court of King's Bench for Manitoba, upon whom service of the statement of claim or summons may be made; and service upon such solicitor shall be deemed sufficient service of the statement of claim or summons.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 22.

Procedure where assignee is satisfied with proof of claim and debtor desires to dispute same. 33. In case the assignee is satisfied with the proof adduced in support of a claim, but the debtor disputes the same, such debtor shall do so by notice in writing to the assignee, stating the grounds upon which he disputes the claim; and such notice shall be given within ten days of such debtor being notified in writing by the assignee that he is satisfied with the proof adduced as aforesaid, and not afterwards unless by special leave of a Judge of the Court of King's Bench. a) If upon receiving such notice of dispute the assignee does not deem it proper to require the claimant to bring an action to establish his claim, he shall notify the debtor in writing of this fact, and the debtor may thereupon, and within ten days of his receiving such notice, apply to the said Judge for an order requiring the assignee to serve a notice of contestation. The Judge shall only make such order if, after notice to the assignee, the Judge is of opinion that there are good grounds for contesting the claim. In case the debtor does not make an application as aforesaid, the decision of the assignee shall as against him be final and conclusive so far as regards the distribution of the assigned estate. b) If upon the application the claimant consents in writing, the Judge may, in a summary manner, decide the question of the validity of the claim. c) If an action is brought by the claimant against the assignee, the debtor may intervene at the trial, either personally or by counsel, for the purpose of calling and examining or cross-examining witnesses.

Dividends.

Dividends, when to be paid. 34. As large a dividend as can with safety be paid shall be paid by every assignee under this Act within six months from the date of any assignment made hereunder, and earlier if required by the inspectors; and thereafter a further dividend shall be paid every six months, and more frequently if required by the inspectors, until the estate is wound up and disposed of.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 28.

Notice of dividend sheet. 35. So soon as a dividend sheet is prepared, notice thereof shall be given by letter posted to each creditor, inclosing an abstract of receipts and disbursements, showing what interest has been received by the assignee for moneys in his hands, together with a copy of the dividend sheet, noting thereon the claims objected to, and stating whether any reservation has or has not been made therefor; and, after the expiry of eight days from the day of mailing such notice, abstract, and dividend sheet as aforesaid, dividends on all claims not objected to within that period shall be paid.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 29.

Administration of estate.

Assets not to be removed out of the Province, and moneys to be deposited in a bank. Penalty. Application of section limited. 36. No property or assets of an estate assigned under the provisions of this Act shall be removed out of the Province without the order of a Judge of the Court of King's Bench; and the proceeds of the sale of any such property or assets and all moneys received on account of any estate shall be deposited by the assignee in one of the incorporated banks within this Province, and shall not be withdrawn or removed without the order of such Judge, except in payment of dividends and other charges incidental to the winding-up of the estate, which shall include rent, wages, mortgages, secured and preferred and partly secured and preferred claims. a) Any assignee or other person acting in his stead or on his behalf violating the provisions of this section shall be liable to a penalty of five hundred dollars, which may be recovered summarily with costs before any of the Judges aforesaid, and one-half of the said penalty shall go to the person suing therefor, and the other half shall belong to the said estate; but, in default of payment of the said penalty and all costs which may be incurred in any action or proceeding for the recovery thereof, such assignee or other person may be imprisoned for any period not exceeding thirty days, and shall be disqualified from acting as assignee of any estate while such default continues. b) This section shall not apply to any assignment executed before the first day of March in the year one thousand nine hundred and two, or to any proceedings thereunder.

1 & 2 Edw. 7. c. 2, § 24.

Accounts to be kept accessible. 37. Upon the expiration of one month from the first meeting of creditors, or as soon as may be after the expiration of such period, and afterwards from time to time at intervals of not more than three months, the assignee shall prepare, and keep constantly accessible to the creditors, accounts and statements of his doings as such assignee, and of the position of the estate.

1 & 2 Edw. 7. c. 2, § 25.

Fraudulent or preferential transfers.

Gifts, transfers, etc., made by insolvents which defeat or prejudice creditors to be void. 38. Subject to the provisions of the forty-fourth, forty-fifth, forty-sixth, and forty-seventh sections of this Act, every gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer, delivery over or payment of goods, chattels, or effects, or of bills, bonds, notes, or securities, or of shares, dividends, premiums, or bonus in any bank, company, or corporation, or of any other property, real or personal, made by a person at a time when he is in insolvent circumstances, or is unable to pay his debts in full, or knows that he is on the eve of insolvency, with intent to defeat, hinder, delay, or prejudice his creditors, or any one or more of them, shall, as against the creditor or creditors injured, delayed, or prejudiced, be utterly void.

1 & 2 Edw. 7. c. 2, § 2 (1).

Transfers with intent to prefer creditors. 39. Subject to the provisions of the forty-fourth, forty-fifth, forty-sixth, and forty-seventh sections of this Act, every gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer, delivery over or payment of goods, chattels, or effects, or of bills, bonds, notes, or securities, or of shares, dividends, premiums, or bonus in any bank, company, or corporation, or of any other property, real or personal, made by a person at a time when he is in insolvent circumstances, or is unable to pay his debts in full, or knows that he is on the eve of insolvency, to or for a creditor, with intent to give such creditor preference over his other creditors, or over any one or more of them, shall, as against the creditor or creditors injured, delayed, prejudiced, or postponed, be utterly void.

1 & 2 Edw. 7. c. 2, § 2 (2).

Transfers having effect of preference void, if attacked within sixty days. 40. Subject to the provisions of the forty-fourth, forty-fifth, forty-sixth, and forty-seventh sections of this Act, every such gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer, delivery over, or payment as aforesaid, made to or for a creditor by a person at any time when he is in insolvent circumstances, or is unable to pay his debts in full or knows that he is on the eve of insolvency, and which has the effect of giving such creditor a preference over the other creditors of the debtor, or over one or more of them, shall, in and with respect to any action or proceedings which, within sixty days thereafter, is brought, had, or taken to impeach or set aside such transaction, be utterly void as against the creditor or creditors injured, delayed, prejudiced, or postponed.

1 & 2 Edw. 7. c. 2, § 2 (3).

Or if assignment made within sixty days. 41. Subject to the provisions of the forty-fourth, forty-fifth, forty-sixth, and forty-seventh sections of this Act, every such gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer, delivery over, or payment as aforesaid, made to or for a creditor by a person at any time when he is in insolvent circumstances, or is unable to pay his debts in full, or knows that he is on the eve of insolvency, and which has the effect of giving such creditor a preference over the other creditors of the debtor or over one or more of them, shall, if the debtor, within sixty days after the transaction, makes an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, be utterly void as against the assignee or any creditor authorized to take proceedings to avoid the same under the forty-eighth section hereof.

1 & 2 Edw. 7. c. 2, § 2 (4).

What transactions to be deemed preferential. Intent or motive immaterial. Pressure or want of knowledge on part of creditor not to save the transaction. 42. A transaction shall be deemed to be one which has the effect of giving a creditor a preference over other creditors within the meaning of the two last preceding sections, if by such transaction a creditor is given or realizes, or is placed in a position to realize, payment, satisfaction or security for the debtor's indebtedness to him, or a portion thereof, greater proportionately than could be realized by or for the unsecured creditors generally of such debtor, or for the unsecured portion of his liabilities, out of the assets of the debtor left available and subject to judgment, execution, attachment or other process; and such effect shall not be deemed dependent upon the intent or motive of the debtor or upon the transaction being entered into voluntarily or under pressure; and no pressure by a creditor, or want of notice to the creditor alleged to have been so preferred of the debtor's circumstances, inability or knowledge as aforesaid, or of the effect of the transaction, shall avail to protect the transaction, except as provided by the forty-fourth and forty-seventh sections hereof.

1 & 2 Edw. 7. c. 2. § 2 (5).

"Creditor" for certain purposes to include surety and indorser. 43. When the word "creditor" or "creditors" occurs in any of the last four preceding sections, such word shall be deemed to include any surety and the indorser of any promissory note or bill of exchange who would, upon payment by him of the debt, promissory note, or bill of exchange, in respect of which such suretyship was entered into or such indorsement was given, become a creditor of the person giving the preference within the meaning of said subsections, and such word shall include a cestui que trust or other person to whom the liability is equitable only.

1 & 2 Edw. 7. c. 2. § 2 (6).

Assignments for benefit of creditors and bona fide sales, etc., protected. 44. Nothing in the last six preceding sections shall apply to any assignment made to an official assignee or, with the consent of a majority of the creditors having claims of one hundred dollars and upwards, computed according to the provisions of the twenty-second section of this Act, to any other person, for the purpose in each of the said cases of paying rateably and proportionately and without preference or priority all the creditors of the debtor their just debts; nor to any bona fide sale or payment made in the ordinary course of trade or calling to innocent purchasers or parties; nor to any payment of money to a creditor, nor to any bona fide conveyance, assignment, transfer, or delivery over, of any goods, securities, or property of any kind, as above mentioned, which is made in consideration of any present actual bona fide payment in money, or by way of security for any present actual bona fide advance of money, or which is made in consideration of any present actual bona fide sale or delivery of goods or other property; provided that the money paid, or the goods or other property sold or delivered, bear a fair and reasonable relative value to the consideration therefor.

1 & 2 Edw. 7. c. 2. § 3 (1).

Transfer to creditor of consideration for sale invalid. 45. In case of a valid sale of goods, securities, or property, and payment or transfer of the consideration or part thereof by the purchaser to a creditor of the vendor, under circumstances which would render void such a payment or transfer by the debtor personally and directly, the payment or transfer, even though valid as respects the purchaser, shall be void as respects the creditor to whom the same is made.

1 & 2 Edw. 7. c. 2. § 3 (2).

Security given up upon void payment to be returned. 46. In case a payment has been made which is void under this Act, and any valuable security was given up in consideration of the payment, the creditor shall be entitled to have the security restored or its value made good to him before, or as a condition of the return of the payment.

1 & 2 Edw. 7. c. 2. § 3 (4).

Payment of wages protected. Exchange of securities protected. Certain assignments to be valid. 47. Nothing herein contained shall affect the priority of a claim for wages or salary under the twenty-eighth section of this Act, or shall prevent a debtor providing for payment of wages or salary due by him in accordance with the provisions of the said section. Nor shall anything herein contained affect any payment of money to a creditor where such creditor, by reason or on account of such payment, has lost or been deprived of or has in good faith given up any valid security which he held for the payment of the debt so paid, unless the value of the security is restored to the creditor, nor the substitution in good faith of one security for another security for the same debt, so far as the debtor's estate is not thereby lessened in value to the other creditors. Nor shall anything herein contained invalidate a security given to a creditor for a pre-existing debt where, by reason or on account of the giving of the security, an advance in money is made to the debtor by the creditor in the bona fide belief that the advance will enable the debtor to continue his trade or business and to pay his debts in full.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 3 (5).

Rights of action of assignee. Creditor may proceed in certain cases, if assignee refuses. Creditors suing for rescission of void transactions for benefit of creditors generally. Delivery over and sale of property affected. Distribution of proceeds of property amongst creditors pro rata. 48. Except as is hereinafter otherwise provided, the assignee shall have an exclusive right of suing for the rescission of agreements, deeds and instruments or other transactions made or entered into in fraud of creditors, or made or entered into in fraud of creditors, or made or entered into in violation of this Act. a) If at any time a creditor desires to cause any proceeding to be taken which, in his opinion, would be for the benefit of the estate, and the assignee, under the authority of the creditors or inspectors, refuses or neglects to take such proceeding, after being duly required so to do, the creditor shall have the right to obtain an order of a Judge of the Court of King's Bench authorizing him to take the proceedings in the name of the assignee, but at his own expense and risk, upon such terms and conditions as to indemnity to the assignee as the Judge may prescribe; and thereupon any benefit derived from the proceedings shall, to the extent of his claim and full costs, belong exclusively to the creditor instituting the same for his benefit; but if, before such order is granted, the assignee shall signify to the Judge his readiness to institute the proceedings for the benefit of the creditors, the order shall prescribe the time within which he shall do so, and in that case the advantage derived from the proceeding, if instituted within such time, shall belong to the estate. b) Where there is no valid assignment for the benefit of creditors, one or more creditors may, for the benefit of creditors generally, or for the benefit of such creditors as have been injured, delayed, prejudiced, or postponed by the impeached transaction, sue for the rescission of or to have declared void agreements, deeds, instruments, or other transactions made or entered into in fraud of creditors or in violation of this Act or thereby declared void; and in case any amendment of the statement of claim be made, the same shall relate back to the commencement of the action for the purpose of the time limited by the fortieth section hereof. c) In any action under this section the Court may direct delivery of any property in question to the assignee or a sheriff or a receiver, and may order a sale thereof and such distribution of the proceeds as may seem equitable, either through the assignee or through a sheriff or receiver or otherwise as may seem proper. d) In case of a transaction void under this Act as entered into with intent to give a preference or having the effect of giving a preference, the subject matters shall not be seizable or attachable or liable to sale for the satisfaction, according to priorities otherwise prevailing, of judgments, attachments, or other process, except executions; but where not realized under execution so as to be distributable by a sheriff or bailiff among creditors, the Court shall have and exercise jurisdiction to realize the same for the benefit of all the creditors, and to distribute the proceeds among them rateably and proportionately.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 9.

Following proceeds of property fraudulently transferred. Taking proceeds under execution. Creditor suing on behalf of himself and other creditors. Protection of innocent purchasers. 49. In the case of a gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer of any property, real or personal, which in law is invalid against creditors, if the person to whom the gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer was made shall have sold or disposed of, realized, or collected, the property or any part thereof, the money or other proceeds or the amount thereof, whether further disposed of or not, may be seized or recovered in any action by a person who would be entitled to seize and recover the property if it had remained in the possession or control of the debtor or of the person to whom the gift, conveyance, transfer, delivery, or payment was made, and such right to seize and recover shall belong, not only to an assignee for the general benefit of the creditors of the said debtor, but, in case there is no such assignment, shall exist in favour of all creditors of such debtor. a) Where there has been no valid assignment for the benefit of creditors, and the proceeds are of a character to be seizable under execution, they may be seized under the execution of any creditor, and shall be distributable rateably amongst the creditors under

The Executions Act or The County Courts Act or otherwise. b) Where there has been no valid assignment for the benefit of creditors, and whether the proceeds realized as aforesaid are or are not of a character to be seized under execution, an action may be brought therefore or to recover the amount thereof by a creditor (whether a judgment creditor or not) on behalf of himself and all other creditors, or such other proceedings may be taken as may be necessary to render the said proceeds or the amount thereof available for the general benefit of the creditors. c) This section shall not apply as against innocent purchasers of any such property.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 10.

Examination of assignors and others.

Examination of assignor or employees. 50. (As amended by Acts, 1907, c. 1, § 1.) Where there has been an assignment for the benefit of creditors, the assignee or assignees, upon resolution passed by a majority vote of the creditors present or represented at a meeting of the creditors of the assignor regularly called, or upon the written request or resolution of the majority of the inspectors of the estate, may, without an order, examine the assignor or any person who is or has been an agent, clerk, servant, officer, or employee of any kind of the assignor, upon oath, before a master or local master or a special examiner of the Court of King's Bench, or before a deputy clerk of the Crown of the Court of King's Bench, or before the Judge of the County Court of the judicial division within which such assignor resides, or may, by the order of a Judge of any Court aforesaid, examine the assignor on oath before any other person to be specially named in such order, touching the estate and effects of the assignor, and as to the property and means he had when the earliest of the debts or liabilities of the assignor existing at the date of the assignment was incurred, and as to the property and means he still has of discharging his debts and liabilities, and as to the disposal he has made of any property since contracting such debt or incurring such liability, and as to any and what debts are owing to or by him.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 33; 6 & 7 Edw. 7, c. 1.

Procedure upon examination of an assignor. 51. The rules and procedure from time to time in force in the Court of King's Bench for the examination of judgment debtors shall, as far as may be, apply to an examination under this Act of an assignor in all respects as if the assignor were a judgment debtor.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 34.

When assignor does not attend or refuses to answer questions. 52. In case such assignor does not attend as required by any appointment, or appointment and order, as the case may be, served on him, and does not allege a sufficient excuse for not attending, or, if attending, refuses to disclose his property or his transactions respecting the same, or does not make satisfactory answers respecting the same, or, if it appears from such examination of the assignor that such assignor has concealed or made away with any part of his property in order to defeat or defraud his creditors or any of them, any Judge of any of the Courts aforesaid may order the assignor to be committed to the common gaol of the judicial district in which he resides for any term not exceeding twelve months.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 35.

Service of appointment. 53. Any person liable to be examined under the fiftieth section of this Act may be served with an appointment signed by the Judge or officer mentioned in the fiftieth section of this Act, or a copy thereof, and, where the examination is to take place under an order, also with a copy of the order; such service to be made at least forty-eight hours before the time appointed for the examination; and the person to be examined is to be paid the same fees as a witness.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 36 (1).

Conduct of examination. 54. The examination under the fiftieth section of this Act shall be conducted in the same manner as in the case of an oral examination of an opposite party, in a suit or action.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 36 (2).

Compelling attendance and production of books. 55. Any person liable to be examined under the fiftieth section hereof may be compelled to attend and testify and to produce books and documents, in the same manner and subject to the same rules of examination, and the same consequences of neglecting to attend or refusing to disclose the matters in respect of which he may be examined, as in the case of a witness in an action in the Court of King's Bench.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 37.

Calling upon persons having information as to assignor's affairs to give evidence and produce documents, etc. Examination of person failing to produce documents or to deliver property. Enforcing attendance and production. 56. In case any person has, or is believed or suspected to have, in his possession or power any of the assignor's property, or any book, document, or paper of any kind relating in whole or in part to the assignor, his dealings or property, such person may, upon resolution passed by a majority vote of the creditors present or represented at a regularly called meeting of the creditors of the assignor (exclusive of such person, if he is a creditor), or upon the written request or resolution of the majority of the inspectors of the estate, be required by the assignee to produce such books, documents, or papers for the information of such assignee, or to deliver over to him any such property of the debtor.

a) In case such person fails to produce the said book, document, or other paper, or to deliver over such property, within four days of his being served with a copy of the said resolution and a request of the assignee in that behalf, or in case the assignee or the majority of the inspectors is or are not satisfied that full production or delivery has been made, the assignee may, without an order, examine the said person before any of the officers mentioned in the fiftieth section of this Act touching any such property or document or other paper which he is supposed to have received.

b) Any such person may be compelled to attend and testify, and to produce upon his examination any book, document, or other paper which under this section he is liable to produce, in the same manner and subject to the same rules of examination, and the same consequences of neglecting to attend or refusing to disclose the matters in respect of which he may be examined, as in the case of a witness in an action in the Court of King's Bench.

Remuneration of assignee and inspectors.

Remuneration of assignee. 57. The assignee shall receive such remuneration as shall be voted to him by the creditors at any meeting called for the purpose after the first dividend sheet has been prepared, or by the inspectors in case of the creditors failing to provide therefor, subject to the review of a Judge of the Court of King's Bench if complained of by the assignee or any of the creditors.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 30.

Where remuneration not fixed before the final dividend. 58. In case the remuneration of the assignee has not been fixed under the last preceding section before the final dividend, the assignee may insert in the final dividend sheet and retain as his remuneration a sum not exceeding five per cent. of the cash receipts, subject to review by a Judge as hereinbefore provided; but no application by the assignee to review the said allowance shall be entertained unless, previous to the preparation of the final dividend sheet, the question of his remuneration has been brought before a meeting of creditors competent to decide the same.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 31.

Remuneration of inspectors. 59. The assignee may pay or allow to each inspector appointed under this Act a reasonable charge or sum for the due performance of his duties as such inspector, but no such payment or allowance to an inspector in any estate shall exceed the sum of twenty-five dollars.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 32.

Affidavits.

Affidavits. 60. Any affidavit authorized or required under this Act may be sworn before any person authorized by The Manitoba Evidence Act to administer affidavits, or before a justice of the peace, or, if sworn out in Manitoba, before a notary public or other functionary authorized to administer oaths outside of this Province under any statute thereof.

1 & 2 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 27.

IV. New Brunswick.

Introduction.

Law in force.

New Brunswick formed a part of Nova Scotia until 1784, and consequently until that date the law of Nova Scotia was in force. This law continued in force after the separation, except that it is now provided that no law of the Nova Scotia legislature passed prior to the creation of the Province is in force<sup>1)</sup>. The law at present in force is the English common law as it existed at the time of the settlement, in so far as applicable to local conditions, except in so far as it has been modified by Imperial legislation extended to the Province, Dominion legislation, and Provincial Acts. As to the applicability of English statutes Clement says<sup>2)</sup>: "Although it is difficult to classify the New Brunswick authorities upon this question, in every case the Judges of the Courts there have exercised their best judgment as to the applicability of the Imperial statute to the circumstances of the Colony. If any distinction in principle can be drawn between the decisions in New Brunswick and those in Nova Scotia, it would appear to be this: that Imperial statutes have been denied operative force in Nova Scotia unless clearly applicable, while in New Brunswick the tendency, at least of earlier authorities, seems to have been not to reject them unless clearly inapplicable. At the same time it must be confessed that this distinction can not be clearly pointed out in every case<sup>3)</sup>."

Statutes.<sup>4)</sup>

Application of Law.

Con. St. 1903, c. 1. Respecting the Form and Interpretation of Statutes.

Acts of Nova Scotia legislature not in force here. 3. No law of the Nova Scotia Legislature passed prior to the erection of the Province of New Brunswick shall have any force herein.

See section on Law in force, supra.

Partnership.

Cons. St. 1903, c. 144. Respecting Partnerships.<sup>5)</sup>

[1—19. Relate to limited partnerships. Such a partnership may be formed by two or more persons, and may consist of one or more general partners, with full liability, and of a special partner or special partners without personal liability. The partners must sign and acknowledge a certificate of partnership, which must be registered in the office of the Registrar of Deeds in the county of the principal place of business. Where the business is carried on in several counties there must be a registration in each county. The certificate must state the firm name, the nature of the business, the names of the general and special partners, distinguishing between them, the amount of capital contributed by the special partners and the date when the partnership is to commence and when it is to terminate. The certificates must be published; certificates of withdrawal of partners, must be registered and published in the same manner. The name of a special partner must not form part of the firm name unless with the addition thereto of the words "Special partner," "limited partner," or words to the like effect. Capital contributed by a special partner must not be withdrawn, but he may receive interest thereon, or dividends, provided the firm capital is not thereby impaired. A special partner may loan money to the firm, and transact business on behalf of the firm, but such transactions are not binding upon the firm until approved by a general partner, or a majority of the general partners. But, except in this case, the special partner may not transact business on behalf of the firm or act as agent thereof, under pain of incurring the responsibility of a general partner. A special partner may lease premises to his firm. Actions arising out of transactions with the firm must be brought by or against the general partners only, except where the special partner has incurred the liability of a general partner. In the event of insolvency, the special partners, except in respect of loans made to the firm, may not rank as creditors, until the claims of other creditors are satisfied. Limited partnerships are dissolved by lapse of time or operation of law. If otherwise dissolved a notice thereof must be registered and published. Alterations in the nature of the business, or in the capital contributed by the special partners, or the death of any partner, general or special, works a dissolution of the firm, and must be registered and published.]

<sup>3)</sup> Hazen v. Rector, etc., (1879), 18 N. B. 479, (Statute of Mortmain, 9 Geo. 2, c. 36, not in force); Hanington v. McFadden, (1836), 2 N. B. 260, (Statute of Uses and Statute of Enrolments, 27 Hen. 8, c. 16, in force). — <sup>4)</sup> As in force 1st January, 1912. — <sup>5)</sup> As amended by Acts, 1906, c. 7. The law relating to general partnerships is not codified. Promises to answer for the debt of another to a firm or for the debt of a firm to another cease to be binding upon a change in the firm unless a contrary intention appears. — Cons. St. 1903, c. 140, § 3.

[20—30. Relate to the registration of general partnerships. All partnerships must be registered, as well as the dissolution or any change in the membership of a firm. Certificates are published in the Royal Gazette. A failure to comply with this requirement subjects the offender to a fine.]

Companies.

a) Cons. St. 1903, c. 85. Respecting the Incorporation of Joint Stock Companies by Letters Patent.<sup>1)</sup>

[1—94. Five or more persons may incorporate under this Act for any object within the authority of the Provincial Legislature, except the operation and construction of railways, the business of insurance, or the management of trades unions, friendly societies, building societies, and similar associations. Except when the capital stock does not exceed $ 5000, the applicants for letters patent must give two weeks' previous notice by publication in the Royal Gazette of their intention to apply for the same, stating in such application the proposed name, objects, head office, capital (which in the cases of trading companies must not be less than $ 2000 actually subscribed), number and amount of shares, and the names and addresses of the applicants. The petition for letters patent must be presented not more than one month after the last publication of the notice. Such petition must, in addition to the facts recited in the notice, state the amount of stock taken by each applicant, and the amount, if any, paid in upon the stock of each applicant. The aggregate of the stock taken must be at least one-half of the total amount of stock of the company. The petition must also state whether such amount is paid in cash, or by the transfer of property, or how otherwise. Where the petition is not signed by all the shareholders whose names are proposed to be inserted in the letters patent, it must be accompanied by a memorandum of association, signed by all the persons whose names are to be inserted. Cash payments on account of stock must have been paid in to the credit of the company or of trustees therefor, and must be standing to such credit in some chartered bank in the Province. Companies may provide for the issue of preferred stock, giving to the holders priority as respects dividends, in the distribution of assets, or the election of directors. Where the issue of preferred stock is provided for by by-law, the by-law must be adopted unanimously by the shareholders present at a meeting convened for the purpose. Companies have power to acquire and hold real estate necessary for the corporate purposes. The name of a company may be changed, and by a two-thirds vote at a special general meeting held for the purpose the directors may be authorized to apply for supplementary letters patent extending the powers of the company. The board of directors must consist of not less than three members. Directors must be shareholders, and elected annually by ballot. The company may by a two-thirds vote alter the number of directors or the place of business of the company. The directors have the usual powers in regard to the administration of the affairs of the company, including the allotment of stock, calls, dividends, meetings, etc. By-laws authorizing the sale of unissued stock at a discount must be confirmed at an annual meeting or at a general meeting duly called for that purpose. Every share in a company is deemed to have been issued and to be held subject to the payment of the whole amount thereof in cash, unless otherwise determined by a contract in writing filed with the Provincial Secretary at or before the issuing of the shares. But a subscription for shares by any applicant upon any application for incorporation filed by the grant of letters patent therefor is not deemed to constitute an issue of shares within this section. The contract of subscription may provide for the payment of shares by property or other valuable consideration. The court may grant relief in proper cases for a failure to comply with the provisions in reference to the filing of the contract. The prospectus of the company and every notice inviting persons to subscribe for shares must specify the date and names of the parties to the contract. The capital stock may be increased or decreased, provided the by-laws authorizing the same be confirmed by a two-thirds vote of the shareholders. Supplementary letters patent must be petitioned for confirming such by-law. The directors may make calls upon shares, subject to the provisions of the letters patent and the by-laws, but not less than ten per cent. upon the allotted stock must be called in within one year from the incorporation of the company. No share is transferable until all previous calls have been fully paid in; and the directors may decline to register a transfer of shares belonging to a member who is indebted to the company. Shares may be transferred by personal representatives. Shareholders in arrears in respect of calls are not entitled to vote. The company is not bound to see to the execution of any trust in respect of shares. Shareholders are liable to creditors for the unpaid balance on shares held by them. Dividends must not be paid out of capital. Where the profits of the company warrant the declaring of a dividend, but such earnings are invested so as to increase the value of the property of the company the company may, if authorized so to do by a vote of not less than two-thirds in value of the shareholders present in person or by proxy at any annual meeting or general meeting duly called for the purpose, issue scrip certificates in lieu of dividends. The company may deduct from the dividends payable to any member such sums of money as may be due from him to the company on account of calls or otherwise. Directors declaring and paying dividends when the company is insolvent, or where the company becomes insolvent by reason of such dividend, become jointly and severally liable as well to the company as to the individual shareholders and creditors thereof for all the debts of the company then existing and for all debts contracted during their continuance in office. A director may avoid such personal liability by protest duly made. Service of process on the company is effected by leaving the same at the office of the company or by service on the president or secretary thereof. Companies are forbidden to make loans to shareholders. In case a by-law authorizing the same is sanctioned by a vote of not less than two-thirds in value of the shareholders then present in person, or represented by proxy, at a special general meeting duly called for considering the by-law, the directors may borrow money upon the credit of the company, and issue bonds or debentures, and may sell, pledge, or hypothecate the same for any sum borrowed, or deposit the same as collateral security for any promissory note or over-draft of the company, at such prices and for such amounts, as may be deemed expedient or necessary, but no such debentures or bonds shall be for a less sum than one hundred dollars; and the directors may, under the like sanction, hypothecate or pledge the real or personal property of the company to secure any sums borrowed by the company, and may secure any bonds or debentures of the company by the said real or personal property, or both; "provided always, that the amount to be borrowed, or for which such bonds or debentures may be pledged or hypothecated shall not at any time be greater than seventy-five per cent of the actual paid up stock; provided always, that the limitation and restrictions on the borrowing powers of the company contained in this section, shall not apply to or include moneys borrowed by the company on bills of exchange or promissory notes made, accepted, or endorsed by the company, or by over-draft, or otherwise than on the bonds or debentures of the company". Debentures may be issued or re-issued, pledged, etc., and may be cancelled and new debentures issued.]

b) Cons. St. 1903, c. 90. Respecting the Winding-up of Incorporated Companies.<sup>1)</sup>

[1—26. This chapter is applicable to all companies heretofore or hereafter incorporated by the Province, and whose incorporation and affairs are subject to the legislative authority of the Province, but does not apply to railway companies nor to any company whose act of incorporation contains express provisions for the mode of winding-up such company. A company may be wound up by the Court: 1. Where the company at a general meeting has passed a special resolution, concurred in by a majority in number and value of the shareholders, requiring the company to be wound up; 2. whenever the company has forfeited its charter by non-user or otherwise or suspended its business for a whole year or become dissolved by effluxion of time; 3. where the event has occurred upon the occurrence of which it is provided that the company is to be dissolved; 4. when the capital stock is impaired to the extent of twenty-five per cent., although the company is solvent within the meaning of the Dominion Winding-up Act; 5. when the Court is of opinion that it is just and equitable that the company be wound up. An application for the winding-up of the company may be made by or on behalf of any contributory and shall be verified by affidavit or other sufficient evidence. Notice of the intended presentation of the petition must be served on the company and advertised in the Royal Gazette and in some newspaper published in the county in which the chief place of business of the company is situated. Upon hearing the petition the Court may make an order for the winding-up of the company, which order must be forthwith published in the Royal Gazette, fixing a day for the appointment of a curator to such company, and requiring the creditors and members of such company to appear before the Court on such day to give their advice as to such appointment. The curator is appointed by the Court and must give security for the due performance of his duties. Upon the completion of such security the estate of the company vests in the curator. The curator must give twelve days' notice of his appointment and of the order for winding-up in the Royal Gazette and must in such notice call upon all persons indebted to the company to pay up and all creditors to file with him their claims against the company, verified by oath. Such claims must be filed within three months, and the dividends declared from time to time are paid to those creditors whose accounts have been filed at the time mentioned in such notice. Other creditors may file their claims, but are only entitled to the dividends thereafter ordered, unless on the final distribution there are sufficient assets to pay all the liabilities and the expenses of the winding-up. After the appointment of the curator all suits against the company are stayed unless the court orders otherwise. Transfers of shares or other interest in the company made after the appointment of the curator are invalid. No transfer of any share or claim in any company made by any shareholder or contributory within three months next before the application for the winding-up can relieve any shareholder or contributory from liability to the company or its curator for calls which may be made by orders of the court for unpaid stock or for which, by virtue of the charter or act of incorporation the transferor would have been liable had he not transferred the same. Calls on unpaid stock may be made by order of the Court and the curator may recover the amount of such call by an action of debt. The curator must as soon as possible convert the moveable assets of the company into money.

The immoveable property may be sold by the curator when so ordered by the Court. The curator must file a semi-annual statement of assets in his hands and of claims filed with him. Whenever the amount of moneys realized from the assets of any company shall appear to the Court to warrant a dividend the Court must make an order for such dividend. If there is any surplus from the funds realized from the assets of any company after the payment of all creditors in full such surplus must be devoted first to the adjustment of the rights of contributories among themselves, and afterwards must be distributed pro rata among the contributories. The Court may at any time make calls on the contributories to the extent of their respective liabilities in so far as necessary to specify the debts of the company and the expenses of the winding-up, and in making such calls may take into consideration the probability of some assets not then collected being realized and some liabilities not then ascertained becoming debts. Contributories are not entitled to set off any claims against the company against unpaid balances of stock, unless such set-off has been allowed and credited to them on the books of the company on account of such unpaid balance previous to the application for the order to wind up. The curator is entitled to such salary or remuneration by way of percentage or otherwise as the Court may direct. When the affairs of the company have been completely wound up the Court must make an order declaring the company to be dissolved from the date of such order and thereupon the company is deemed dissolved<sup>1)</sup>].

[The law relating to the sale of goods is not codified. Contracts for the sale of goods for the price of $ 40, or upwards must be in writing<sup>2)</sup>].

Assignments and Creditors' Relief.

a) Cons. St. 1903, c. 141. Respecting Assignments and Preferences by Insolvent Persons.<sup>3)</sup>

[1—33. Confessions of judgment, cognovits actionem, gifts and conveyances, etc., made by a person in insolvent circumstances, or knowing himself to be on the eve of insolvency, voluntarily or by collusion to defeat or delay creditors, or to give any preferences are void as against creditors. Where the effect of the transaction is to give a preference to a creditor, if the same is impeached within sixty days, it will be presumed to have been made with that intent, whether made voluntarily or under pressure. The Act does not apply to assignments made for the purpose of paying rateably and proportionately, and without preference or priority, all the creditors, nor to bona fide sales or payments in the course of trade to innocent parties, nor to the payment of money to a creditor, nor to transfers made in consideration of any present actual bona fide transfer in payment, or by way of security for any present actual bona fide advance of money, provided that the consideration is fair and reasonable. Where an assignor owes debts both individually and as a member of a partnership the claims rank first upon the estate by which the debts they represent were contracted, and only rank upon the other after all the creditors of that other have been paid in full. A majority in number and value of the creditors who have proved claims to the amount of $ 100 or upwards may change the assignee, and an assignee may also be removed and another substituted, or an additional assignee appointed by the Court. The assignee may sue for the rescission of contracts made in fraud of creditors. Assignments are not within the Bills of Sale Act, but a notice thereof must be published; but the validity of an assignment is not affected by omission to publish. The assignee must convene a meeting of creditors, and must call meetings upon the written demand of the majority of creditors who have proved claims of $ 100 or upwards. The estate is to be disposed of by tender or public auction, unless the creditors otherwise order. Where the Court so orders, the assignee may continue the business. Creditors may vote at meetings in person or by proxy. Votes are calculated on the basis of one vote for each $ 100 of claims. Secured creditors must value their security. Notice to file claim must be published in the Royal Gazette, and claims must be filed within three months of the date of such notice, unless the Court extends such time. Creditors not proving within the time allowed lose the right to participate in the distribution of the assets; but without prejudice to the liability of the debtor therefor. Creditors who have unaccrued claims may prove them, deducting interest. The doctrine of set-off applies. The assignor may be examined and be required to produce books and documents.]

V. North-West Territories.

Law in force.

The law of England relating to civil and criminal matters as the same existed on 15th July, 1870, is in force, in so far as applicable and in so far as it has not been amended or repealed by any Imperial or Dominion Act applicable to the Territories or by local Ordinances. Dominion Acts unless inapplicable are in force, and the Governor in Council may by Proclamation extend any Dominion Act or part thereof not then in force in the Territories to the same<sup>2)</sup>.

Statutes.<sup>3)</sup>

Application of Law.

R. S. C. 1906, c. 62. An Act respecting the North-West Territories.

Laws of England. 12. Subject to the provisions of this Act the laws of England relating to civil and criminal matters, as the same existed on the fifteenth day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy, shall be in force in the Territories, in so far as the same are applicable to the Territories, and in so far as the same have not been, or are not hereafter, as regards the Territories, repealed, altered, varied, modified, or affected by any Act of the Parliament of the United Kingdom or of the Parliament of Canada, applicable to the Territories, or by any Ordinance of the Territories.

Laws and Ordinances in force continued. 13. All laws and Ordinances in force in the Territories, and not inconsistent with this Act, or repealed by the operation of the Act passed in the third year of His Majesty's reign, chapter sixty-one, and intituled "An Act respecting the Revised Statutes of Canada," shall remain in force until it is otherwise provided or ordered by the Parliament of Canada, or by the Governor in Council or the Commissioner in Council.

<sup>1)</sup> As amended by Acts, 1909, c. 30, and 1910, c. 27. — <sup>2)</sup> R. S. C. 1906, c. 62, §§ 12—15, reprinted in full, in/ra. — <sup>3)</sup> As in force 1st May, 1911. There has been no local legislation since 1905.

Application of Acts of Canada. 14. Every Act of the Parliament of Canada, except in so far as otherwise provided in any such Act, and except in so far as the same is, by its terms, applicable only to one or more of the Provinces of Canada, or is, for any reason inapplicable to the Territories, shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, apply to and be in force in the Territories.

Governor in Council may extend Acts to Territories. 15. The Governor in Council may by proclamation, from time to time, direct that any Act of the Parliament of Canada, or any part or parts thereof, or any one or more of the sections of any one or more of any such Acts, not then in force in the Territories, shall be in force in the Territories generally, or in any part or parts thereof mentioned in such proclamation.

Ordinances relating to Commercial Matters.

The law relating to partnership, companies, sale of goods, factors, and assignments is codified. With the exception of the Ordinance relating to preferential assignments, the Ordinances of the North-West Territories relating to the topics above named form the basis of the statutes of Alberta and Saskatchewan. The law is essentially similar to the law in force in those Provinces.

VI. Nova Scotia.

Law in force.

Nova Scotia is regarded as a Colony acquired by settlement by the English, although originally discovered and settled by the French. The law of England is recognized as in force, in so far as applicable to local conditions. There is some doubt as to the extent to which English statute law is applicable. In the leading case, Uniacke v. Dickson<sup>1</sup>), Halliburton, C. J., says: "To what extent the laws of the mother country prevail in the colonies settled by her descendants is a question which has occasioned much discussion, without producing any rule approaching to precision for our guidance. . . Among the colonists themselves there has generally existed a strong disposition to draw a distinction between the common and the statute law. As a code, they have been disposed to adopt the whole of the former, with the exception of such parts only as were obviously inconsistent with their new situation; whilst, far from being inclined to adopt the whole body of the statute law, they thought that such parts of them only were in force among them as were obviously applicable to, and necessary for, them. As it respects the common law, any exclusion formed the exception; whereas, in the statute law, the reception formed the exception. . . We must hold it to be quite clear that an English statute is applicable and necessary for us before we decide that it is in force here<sup>2</sup>)."

<sup>1</sup>) (1848), 2 N. S. 287. — <sup>2</sup>) "Upon a review of the Nova Scotia decisions it appears that the admission of Imperial Statutes has been the exception; those which have been held to be in force being, in the main, statutes in amelioration of the rigours of the common law, acts in curtailment of prerogative, or in enlargement of the liberty of the subject. To a greater extent than has been the case in either New Brunswick or Ontario, the judges of Nova Scotia have deemed it the office of legislation rather than of judicial decision to bring into operation within the Province the provision of Imperial statutes not originally capable of being made operative, but which might be thought suitable to the changed circumstances of the Colony." — Clement, Canadian constitution (2d ed.) p. 45. See also the following cases holding certain English statutes in force. — Meisner v. Fanning, (1842), 3 N. S. 97, (Magna Charta and Charters of Henry III.); Wheelock v. McKown, (1835), 1 N. S. 41 (statutes relating to land grants); Shey v. Chisholm, (1853), 2 N. S. 52 (Statute of Uses); Doane v. McKenny, (1854), 2 N. S. 328 (Acts Henry VIII. relating to partition between joint tenants and tenants in common); The Dart (1812), Stew. 304 (Statute of Staples); Tarrant v. Sawyer, (1835), 1 N. S. 46; Moore v. Moore (1880), 1 N. S. 525; Graham v. Bell (1884), 17 N. S. 90 (all relating to Statutes of Elizabeth against fraudulent conveyances). Certain statutes have been held not to be in force: Berry v. Berry, (1882), 16 N. S. 66 (Statute of Enrolments); Regina v. Burdell, (1861), 5 N. S. 126. (jury de medietate lingue); Regina v. Porter, (1887), 20 N. S. 352 (13 Geo. 2, c. 18).

Partnership.

a) Acts, 1911, c. 1. An Act respecting the Law of Partnership (31st March, 1911).

(This Act is identical in all material respects with the Imperial Partnership Act, 1890, (53 & 54 Vic. c. 39).

A communion of profit and loss of a business between two parties constitutes a partnership as to that business. — Bank of Nova Scotia v. Haliburton, (1855), 2 N. S. 350. Where three persons enter into a contract to perform certain work as partners, and one partner is excluded from all participation in the work, the person so excluded may recover, by way of damages, the profits that might reasonably be expected to result from the undertaking. — Grant v. Creelman, (1856), 3 N. S. 37. A stipulation in a partnership agreement providing that "it shall be lawful for the said E. H. to terminate the same at the end of the first year without any notice if the business shall not prove satisfactory to him," gives to such person an uncontrolled discretion and entitles him to dissolve the partnership at the end of the period named. — Whitehead v. Howard, (1876), 11 N. S. 423. It is not necessary that all the partners should contribute money or in equal proportions in order that they should share equally the profits and loss. — The Herkimer, (1804), Stew. 17. A partner is not entitled to remuneration for his services in winding-up the business of the firm. — Butler v. Butler, (1896) 29 N. S. 145. The acknowledgment in reference to a debt due by the firm of one partner made after the partnership has been dissolved is sufficient to prevent the operation of the Statute of Limitations. — Bank of Nova Scotia v. Haliburton, (1855), 2 N. S. 350. As to the authority of a partner to bind his co-partners under a warrant to confess judgment, see Pitfield v. Oakes, (1893), 25 N. S. 116. As to partner's liability for sums misappropriated by the firm, where he shared in the misappropriation, see McSweeney v. Wallace, (1870), 8 N. S. 83; see also Silver v. Silver, (1870), Russ. Eq. 169. A member of a partnership who assents to the giving of an acceptance in the firm name for a private debt is bound thereby and is not entitled to be regarded as a surety who can be discharged under the ordinary rules governing the contract of suretyship. — Pitfield v. Trotter, (1899), 32 N. S. 125. A separate debt due by one member of a firm in his individual capacity can not be set off against a joint debt due to the firm. — Lordly v. Beckwith, (1865), 5 N. S. 632. The members of a foreign firm can not be sued in the Nova Scotia Courts in the firm name, as such action would involve the assumption of personal jurisdiction over non-residents, but a foreign firm may sue in the firm name. — Knauth Nachod v. Stern, (1897), 30 N. S. 251.

b) Rev. St. 1900, c. 143. Of the Registration of Partnerships.

All persons associated in partnership for trading, manufacturing, or mining purposes, shall file in the registry of deeds for the registration district in which they carry on or intend to carry on business a declaration in writing signed by the several members of such partnership. 2. Such declaration shall be filed within three months from the date when such firm name or style was first used.

R. S., c. 83, §§ 10, 11, 12.

Allegation in declaration not to be controverted in certain cases. 8. 1. No allegation contained in any such declaration shall be controverted by any person who, either by himself or his specially authorized attorney, agent, or representative, signed such declaration. 2. Except as against the other members of the partnership in any such declaration mentioned, no allegation in such declaration contained shall be controverted by any person who was a member of such partnership at the time such declaration was made, but who has not signed the same.

R. S., c. 83, § 6.

Signer of declaration deemed to continue partner until new declaration filed. 9. Every person who has made and filed such a declaration shall be deemed to continue a partner as in such declaration stated, until the filing of a new declaration signed by himself, or by his partners, or by the attorney, agent, or other representative of a non-resident partner, as in this Chapter provided.

R. S., c. 83, § 7.

Chapter not to exempt from other liabilities. 10. Nothing in this Chapter contained shall exempt from liability any person who, being a partner, fails to declare the same as already provided, and such person may, notwithstanding such omission, be sued jointly with the partners mentioned in the declaration, or such partners may be sued alone, and if judgment is recovered against them, any other partner or partners may be sued jointly or severally, in an action on the original cause of action upon which such judgment was obtained; nor shall anything in this Chapter be construed to affect the rights of any partners with regard to each other, except that no such declaration as aforesaid shall be controverted by any signer thereof.

R. S., c. 83, § 7.

Action, how brought if no declaration filed. Judgment, how enforced. All parties to instrument in writing to be joined. 11. 1. If any persons are associated as partners for the purpose of trade or other business, and no declaration is filed under this Chapter with regard to such partnership, any action which might be brought against all the members of the partnership may also be brought against any one or more of such partners, as carrying on or as having carried on business jointly with others, without naming such others in the writ of summons, under the name and style of their said co-partnership firm; and if judgment is recovered against him or them, any other partner or partners may be sued jointly or severally on the original cause of action on which such judgment was obtained. 2. Any judgment obtained against any member of such existing co-partnership for a partnership debt or liability may be enforced by process against all and every the partnership stock, property, and effects in the same manner and to the same extent as if such judgment had been obtained against such partnership. 3. If any such action is founded on any obligation or instrument in writing in which all or any of the partners bound by it are named, then all the partners named therein shall be made parties to such action.

R. S., c. 83, § 9.

Firm's name to be on bill heads, etc. 12. In all cases in which a firm name or style is used, the name or names of the persons composing the firm shall be distinctly written or printed on all the bill-heads and letter-heads used by such firm.

R. S., c. 83, § 13.

Registrar of Deeds to enter declarations. 14. The Registrar of Deeds shall enter all declarations made under this Chapter, in the order in which the same are received, in a book to be kept by him for that purpose, which shall at all times during office hours be open to the inspection of the public gratuitously.

c) Rev. St. 1900, c. 144. Of Limited Partnerships and Sureties to Firms.

Limited partnerships, how formed. Objects. General and special partners.

1. 1. Two or more persons may enter into and form limited partnerships for the transaction of mercantile, mechanical, or manufacturing business, upon the terms, with the rights and powers, and subject to the conditions and liabilities, hereinafter prescribed. Nothing in this Chapter shall authorize any such partnerships to engage in any banking operation, or to become insurers upon any marine risk, or upon loss by fire, or upon any life. 2. Such partnerships may consist of one or more persons called general partners, who shall be responsible as general partners now are, and of one or more persons, who shall contribute in actual cash payments a specific sum as capital to the common stock, called special partners. Special partners shall not be liable for the debts of the partnership beyond the fund so contributed by them to the capital, except in cases hereinafter mentioned. The general partners only shall be authorized to transact the business of the partnership and bind the same by the signature of the partnership name or otherwise.

R. S., c. 83, § 32.

Certificate and preliminary proceedings in case of limited partnerships. 2. 1. Persons desirous of forming such partnerships shall, before the same shall go into operation, make and severally sign a certificate containing the name of the firm under which such partnership is to be conducted, the nature of the business to be transacted, the names of all the partners interested therein, distinguishing which are general and which special partners, and their respective places of residence, the amount of capital which each special partner has contributed to the common stock, the period at which the partnership is to commence and at which it will terminate. Such certificate shall be acknowledged by the several persons signing the same before a Judge of the Supreme or County Court or justice of the peace; and such acknowledgment shall be certified in writing on such certificate by the person before whom the same is made. 2. The certificate so acknowledged and certified shall be filed in the office of the Registrar of Deeds for the registration district where the principal place of business of the partnership is situated, and shall be recorded by him at large in a book to be kept for that purpose, open to public inspection; and if the partnership has places of business situated in different districts, a transcript of the certificate and of the acknowledgment thereof, duly certified by such Registrar, shall be filed and recorded in like manner in the office of the Registrar of every such district.

R. S., c. 83, § 33.

Certificate to be verified under oath. 3. An affidavit of one or more of the general partners and also of one or more of the special partners, shall also at the same time be filed in the same office, stating that the sums specified in the certificate to have been contributed by each of the special partners to the common stock have been actually and in good faith paid in cash; and no such partnership shall be deemed to have been formed until a certificate has been made, acknowledged, filed, and recorded, and an affidavit filed as above directed; and if any false statement is made in such certificate or affidavit, all persons interested in such partnership shall be liable as general partners.

R. S., c. 83, § 34.

Publication in newspapers and by handbills. 4. The terms of every such partnership when registered shall immediately be published at least six weeks in the Royal Gazette and one other newspaper published in Halifax, and by handbills posted up in some public place in the places in which the business of the partnership is carried on. If such publication is not so made, such partnership shall be deemed general. Affidavits taken before a justice of the publication of such notice by the printers of newspapers who have published the same, and by the persons who have posted the handbills, may be filed with the Registrar with whom the certificate of the partnership has been filed, and shall be evidence thereof.

R. S., c. 83, § 35.

Renewals of limited partnerships, how provided for. 5. Every renewal or continuance of any such partnership beyond the time originally fixed for its duration shall be certified, acknowledged, and recorded, and an affidavit of a general and special partner made and filed, and notice given in the manner herein required for its original formation; every such partnership otherwise renewed or continued shall be deemed a general partnership.

R. S., c. 83, § 36.

Alterations in business to constitute general partnership, unless in case of renewal. 6. Every alteration made in the names of the partners, the nature of the business, or the capital or shares thereof, or in any other matter specified in the original certificate, shall be deemed a dissolution of the partnership; and every such partnership carried on after any alteration shall be deemed a general partnership, unless renewed as a special partnership according to the provisions of the next preceding section.

R. S., c. 83, § 37.

Limited partnerships, under what names conducted. 7. The business of the partnership shall be conducted under a firm in the names of the general partners only, without the addition of the word "company" or any other general term; and any special partner whose name is used in such firm with his privity shall be deemed a general partner.

R. S., c. 83, § 38.

Actions to be in names of general partners. 8. Actions in relation to the business of the partnership may be brought and conducted by and against the general partners, as if there were no special partners.

R. S., c. 83, § 39.

Regulations as to capital stock and distribution of profits. 9. No part of the sum contributed by a special partner to the capital stock shall be withdrawn by him or paid or transferred to him in the shape of dividends, profits, or otherwise, at any time during the continuance of the partnership; but a partner may annually receive lawful interest on the sum so contributed by him, if payment thereof will not reduce the original capital; and if after the payment of such interest any profit remains to be divided, he may also receive his portion of such profit; but if it appears that by the payment of interest or profits to any special partner the original capital has been reduced, the partner receiving the same shall restore the amount necessary to make good his share of capital, with interest.

R. S., c. 83, § 40.

Special partners may advise but shall not transact business for partnership. 10. A special partner may from time to time examine into the state and progress of the partnership concerns, and may advise as to their management, but he shall not transact any business on account of the partnership, nor be employed for that purpose as agent, attorney, or otherwise; and if he interferes contrary to these provisions he shall be deemed a general partner. General partners shall be liable to account to each other and to the special partners for their management of the concern, as other partners now are.

R. S., c. 83, § 41.

Liability of partner for fraud. 11. A partner guilty of any fraud in the affairs of such partnership shall be liable civilly to the person injured to the extent of the damage.

R. S., c. 83, § 42.

Preferential assignment void as against creditors. 12. Every sale, assignment, or transfer of any of the property or effects of such partnership, or of a general or special partner, made by such partnership or a general or special partner, when insolvent or in contemplation of insolvency, with intent of giving a preference to any creditor of such partnership or insolvent partner over other creditors of such partnership, and every warrant of attorney executed, and every judgment confessed, lien created, or security given by such partnership, or general or special partner, under the like circumstances and with the like intent, shall be void, as against the creditors of the partnership. A special partner who violates any provision of this Chapter, or concurs in, or assents to any such violation by the partnership, or by any individual partner, shall be liable as a general partner.

R. S., c. 83, § 43.

Creditors' claims preferred. 13. In case of the insolvency or bankruptcy of the partnership, no special partner shall, under any circumstances, be allowed to claim as a creditor, until the claims of all other creditors of the partnership are satisfied.

R. S., c. 83, § 44.

Dissolution, how effected. 14. No dissolution of such partnership by the acts of the parties shall take place previous to the time specified in the certificate of its formation or in the certificate of its renewal, until a notice of such dissolution, has been filed and recorded in the Registrar's office in which the original certificate was recorded, and published once in each week for four weeks in the Royal Gazette, and in some other newspaper printed in each of the counties in which the partnership has places of business.

R. S., c. 83, § 45.

Sureties to or for firms.

Sureties to or for firms not answerable after change in partnership. 15. No promise made to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another, made to a firm consisting of two or more persons, or to a single person trading under the name of a firm, and no promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of a firm, consisting of two or more persons, or of a single person trading under the name of a firm, shall be binding on the person making such promise in respect to anything done or omitted to be done after a change has taken place in any one or more of the persons constituting the firm, or in the person trading under the name of a firm, unless the intention of the parties that such promise shall continue to be binding notwithstanding such change appears either by express stipulation, or by necessary implication from the nature of the firm, or otherwise.

R. S., c. 83, § 46.

Companies.*a) Rev. St. 1900, c. 127. Of General Provisions respecting Domestic and Foreign Companies.

Corporations; their powers and privileges. 1. Every company shall, where no other provision is specially made, be capable in its corporate name to sue and be sued, to prosecute and defend actions, to have a common seal which it may alter at pleasure, to elect in such manner as it deems proper all necessary officers, and to fix their compensation and to define their duties, and to make by-laws and regulations, not contrary to law nor repugnant to the charter or Act by which any such company is created, for its own government and the due management of its affairs.

R. S., c. 78, § 1. Plaintiff agreed with certain other persons to subscribe a certain amount towards a steamship enterprise and assist in getting a suitable ship, provided he should be master. He was appointed master, and subsequently the company was incorporated, the plaintiff receiving stock to the amount of his contribution. Plaintiff was dismissed by the directors of the company for failure to obey the instructions of the directors. It was held that the fact of the master being a shareholder in the corporation owning the vessel had no bearing on the case, and under appropriate circumstances the directors were entitled to dismiss him. He occupied the position both of shareholder and employee of the company. He was not a part owner of the vessel. — Guildford v. Anglo-French Steamship Co., (1882), 9 S. C. R. 303; reversing s. c. (1881), 14 N. S. 54. Semble, a company is not responsible for representations made prior to incorporation unless such representations are expressly adopted by the company after incorporation. — Gourlie v. Chandler, (1907), 41 N. S. 341. Where a statutory duty is imposed on a company it is liable for any damage caused to the property of another through the negligent performance of that duty, even though the negligence was primarily that of an independent contractor employed by the company. — McRury v. Dominion Coal Co., (1896), 40 N. S. 89. A company is liable to conviction under the Summary Convictions Act. — The King v. Dominion Coal Co., (1907), 41 N. S. 137. A company authorized to carry on a general mercantile business and to buy and sell and otherwise deal in real and personal property has the power to make and accept notes, bills of exchange, etc. — Ryan v. Terminal City Co., (1893), 25 N. S. 131.

By-laws, and proceedings to be regulated thereby. 2. Every company may by its by-laws, where no other provision is specially made, determine the manner of calling and conducting meetings, the number of members which shall constitute a quorum, the number of shares which shall entitle the members to one or more votes, the mode of voting by proxy, the mode of selling shares for the non-payment of instalments and of transferring shares generally, the tenure of office of the several officers, and the purchase, conveyance and sale of its real and personal property; and may annex penalties to its by-laws not exceeding in any case the sum of twenty dollars for any one offence.

First meeting, how called. 3. The first meeting of every company, shall, unless otherwise provided in the charter or Act of incorporation, be called by notice signed by any one or more of the persons named as incorporators in the charter or Act of incorporation, and setting forth the time, place, and purposes of the meeting, and such notice shall, seven days at least before the meeting, be delivered to each member, or left at his place, of residence, or published in some newspaper of the county in which the company is established or proposed to be established, or where its principal place of business is situated or proposed to be situated, or if there is no newspaper in the county then in two newspapers published in the city of Halifax.

R. S., c. 78, § 4.

Meeting, how called in special cases. 4. Whenever by reason of the death, absence, or disability of the officers of any company there is no person authorized to call or preside at a meeting of the members thereof, any three or more of the members may call such meeting by giving the notice as required by law.

R. S., c. 78, § 5.

Powers of corporation when assembled. 5. The members when so assembled may choose a chairman, and may elect officers to fill all vacancies then existing, and may transact such other business as might by law be transacted at a regular meeting of the company.

R. S., c. 78, § 6.

Shares, personal property. 6. The shares or stock of every company shall be deemed to be personal property for all purposes.

R. S., c. 78, § 7.

Real estate sold as personal property. 7. The real property of any company may be sold under execution in the same manner as its personal property.

R. S., c. 78, § 8.

Acts to expire unless put in operation within three years. 8. Every charter or Act of incorporation shall expire unless the company thereby incorporated goes into operation within three years from the passing thereof, unless otherwise specially provided therein.

R. S., c. 78, § 9.

Expiring company continued for three years to wind up business. 9. Every company, the charter or Act of incorporation of which, after such company has gone into operation, expires or is annulled by forfeiture or otherwise, shall nevertheless be continued as a body corporate for the term of three years after the time when such charter or Act of incorporation has so expired or been annulled, for the purpose of prosecuting and defending actions by or against it, and of enabling it to settle and close its business, to dispose of its property, and to divide its capital stock; but not for the purpose of continuing the business for which such company was established.

R. S., c. 78, § 10.

Trustees may be appointed to wind up business within the three years. 10. When the charter of any company so expires or is annulled, the Supreme Court, on application of any creditor of such company or of any member thereof at any time within the three years, may appoint a trustee or trustees to take charge of the estate and effects of the company and to collect the debts and property due and belonging thereto, with power to prosecute and defend actions in the name of the company, to appoint agents and to do all other acts which might be done by such company that are necessary for the final settlement of the unfinished business of the company; and the power of such trustees may be continued beyond the three years if the Court thinks necessary.

R. S., c. 78, § 11.

Liability of individual members. 11. No member of any company shall be relieved from individual liability for its debts or obligations; but each member thereof shall be liable as a partner to the same extent as if no company existed; and in case any execution issued on any judgment against the company is returned unsatisfied the individual real and personal property of every member of the company shall be liable to respond such judgment under execution issued thereon in the same manner as if the same was a private debt due by such member, unless the special Act creating the company exempts its members from such liability; and any member who is compelled to pay any moneys on account of the debts of the company may recover the same by action against the company.

R. S., c. 78, § 13.

Liability of directors, etc., personal in certain cases. 12. The directors or board of managers of any company the liability of whose members is limited by the charter or Act of incorporation, unless otherwise specially directed therein, shall in all cases be personally liable for any debt incurred by them on account of the company beyond the amount of the stock subscribed, without the sanction of the company obtained at a meeting thereof held in accordance with the by-laws, unless such larger amount of dealing is specially authorized by the charter or Act of incorporation; but this section shall not extend to insurance companies.

R. S., c. 78, § 14.

Act of incorporation of companies valid without seal. 13. The acts of any company performed within the scope of its charter or Act of incorporation shall be valid, notwithstanding they are not done under or authenticated by the seal of such company.

R. S., c. 78, § 15.

Resident manager to be appointed for purposes of service. Name to be filed. Service in default of appointment. 14. [As amended by Acts, 1904, c. 24, § 3.]

1. Every incorporated company doing business within the Province shall appoint a recognized manager or agent resident within the Province, service upon whom of any process, notice, or other document shall be deemed sufficient service upon the company. 2. A statement shewing the name and address of such manager or agent shall be filed in the office of the Provincial Secretary by every such company. 3. In default of such appointment, or of the filing of such statement by any such company, or in case of the absence or death of such manager or agent, any process, notice, or document may be served on any officer or employee of the company, or for want of such officer or employee may be posted on a principal building of the company, and such service or posting shall be deemed a sufficient service on the company.

"Arbitration Act" to apply. 17. Whenever by any charter or Act of incorporation it is provided that any dispute or matter of controversy in which the corporation is interested or any damages to which it is liable shall be settled or ascertained by arbitration, such provision shall be deemed a "submission to arbitration" within the meaning of that expression in The Arbitration Act.

R. S., c. 78, § 17.

Foreign company to file statement. 18. [As amended by Acts, 1904, c. 24, § 5.] 1. Every company not incorporated by or under the authority of an Act of the Legislature of Nova Scotia which carries on business in Nova Scotia, having gain for its purpose or object shall, before beginning business in Nova Scotia, make out and transmit to the Provincial Secretary a statement under oath shewing: a) The corporate name of the company; b) How and under what special or general Act the company was incorporated; c) Where the head office of the company is situated; d) The amount of the authorized capital stock; e) The amount of stock subscribed or issued, and the amount paid up thereon; f) The nature of each kind of business the company is empowered to carry on, and what kind or kinds of business is or are carried on or intended to be carried on in Nova Scotia; g) The names of the directors and officers of the company. 2. Every such company shall also transmit to the Provincial Secretary in the month of January in each year a statement, certified under the hand of its recognized manager or agent, resident within the Province, shewing the names of the directors and officers of the company, and the amount of the authorized capital stock, and the amount of stock subscribed or issued, and the amount paid up thereon. 3. Every such company which fails to comply with the provisions of this section shall be liable to a penalty of ten dollars for every day during which such default continues, and every director, manager, secretary, agent, traveller, or salesman of such company, who with notice of such default transacts within Nova Scotia any business whatever for such company shall for each day on which he so transacts such business be liable to a penalty of ten dollars, to be recovered in the name of the Provincial Secretary in the Supreme Court or in the County Court. 4. The Governor-in-Council may, after such statement has been received by the Provincial Secretary, relieve in whole or in part any company or person from any penalty incurred by reason of default in transmitting the same.

A single transaction within Nova Scotia is not a "carrying on business" within the Province within the meaning of Order 47, r. 6. — Halifax Hotel Co. v. Canadian Fire Engine Co., (1906), 41 N. S. 97. And, semble, under this section. A failure to comply with the Provincial statute relating to the registration of foreign companies does not render invalid contracts entered into by the company within the Province, or prevent it from recovering thereon. — American Hotel Supply Co. v. Fairbanks, (1907), 41 N. S. 444.

Execution of trusts. 19. [Added by Acts, 1903, c. 17, § 1.] No company shall be bound to see to the execution of any trust, whether express, implied, or constructive, in respect of any of its shares, and the receipt of a shareholder in whose name the same stands on the books of the company shall be a valid and binding discharge to the company for any dividend or money payable in respect of such share, whether or not notice of the trust has been given to the company, and the company shall not be bound to see to the application of the money paid on such receipt.

Application of section 19. 20 [Added by Acts, 1903, c. 17, § 1.] The provisions of section 19 shall apply to all companies heretofore incorporated, and to all transfers of stock of such companies heretofore made, and to all payments of and receipts taken for any dividend or money payable in respect to any share or shares heretofore made or given as well as to companies hereafter incorporated.

Commissions for subscriptions of shares. 21. [Added by Acts, 1903, c. 17, § 1.] 1. It shall be lawful for any company to pay a commission to any person in consideration of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any shares in the company, or for procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions for any shares in the company, if such commission paid or agreed to be paid does not exceed ten per cent. of the price at which such shares are sold. 2. Save as aforesaid, no company shall apply any of its shares or capital money, either directly or indirectly, in payment of any commission, discounts, or allowances to any person in consideration of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any shares of the company, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any shares of the company, whether the shares or moneys be so applied by being added to the purchase money of any property acquired by the company, or to the contract price of any work to be executed for the company, or the money being paid out of a nominal purchase money or contract price or otherwise. 3. The provisions of this section shall apply to every company heretofore incorporated or that may hereafter be incorporated, and all commissions heretofore paid out of capital account or income for underwriting which would have been legal and valid under the provisions of this section if the same had then been in force, are legalized and declared to be and to have been legal and valid.

Fees. 22. [Added by Acts, 1904, c. 24, § 6.] Every incorporated company doing business in Nova Scotia, and having gain for its purpose or object, shall, in the month of January in each year, transmit to the Provincial Secretary a registration fee according to the following scale, that is to say, annual registration fees for companies incorporated by or under the authority of an Act of the Legislature of Nova Scotia, or of the Parliament of Canada, having a nominal capital:

Notice of every such alteration shall be given to the Registrar within fifteen days from the passing of the resolution authorizing the same, and in case of default in giving such notice: a) every company so in default, and b) every director, manager, secretary, or other officer of any such company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits such default, shall be liable to a penalty of twenty dollars for each and every day during which such default continues.

Subject to the provisions of this Chapter, any company registered under this Chapter may, by special resolution, alter the provisions of its memorandum of association, with respect to the object of the company, so far as is required for any of the purposes hereinafter specified, but in no case shall any such alteration take effect until confirmed on petition by the Supreme Court. 2. Before confirming any such alteration the Supreme Court must be satisfied: a) that sufficient notice has been given to every holder of bonds or debentures, or debenture stock of the company, and any person or class of persons whose interest will, in the opinion of the Court, be affected by the alteration, and b) that with respect to every creditor who, in the opinion of the Court, is entitled to object, and who signifies his objection in manner directed by the Court, either his consent to the alteration has been obtained or his debt or claim has been discharged or has determined, or has been secured to the satisfaction of the Court. Provided that the Court may, in the case of any person or class of persons, for special reasons, dispense with the notice required by this section. 3. An order confirming any such alteration may be made on such terms and subject to such conditions as to the Court seems fit, and the Court may make such orders as to costs as it deems proper. 4. The Court shall, in exercising its discretion under the provisions of this section, have regard to the rights and interests of the members of the company, or of any class of those members, as well as to the rights and interests of the creditors, and may, if it thinks fit, adjourn the proceedings in order that an arrangement may be made to the satisfaction of the Court for the purchase of the interest of dissentient members; and the Court may give such directions and make such orders as it thinks expedient for the purpose of facilitating any such arrangement or carrying the same into effect; provided always, that it shall not be lawful to expend any part of the capital of the company in any such purchase. 5. The Court may confirm, either wholly or in part, any such alteration as aforesaid with respect to the objects of the company, if it appears that the alteration is required in order to enable the company: a) to carry on its business more economically or more efficiently, or b) to attain its main purpose by new or improved means, or c) to enlarge and change the local area of its operations, or d) to carry on some business which, under existing circumstances, may conveniently or advantageously be combined with the business of the company, or e) to restrict or abandon any of the objects specified in the memorandum of association.

Imp. § 9.

Registration of altered memorandum of association. Penalty. 27. 1. Where a company has altered the provisions of its memorandum of association with respect to the objects of the company, and such alteration has been confirmed by the Court, a copy of the order confirming such alteration, together with a printed copy of the memorandum of association so altered, shall be delivered by the company to the Registrar within fifteen days from the date of the order, and the Registrar shall register the same, and shall certify under his hand the registration thereof, and his certificate shall be conclusive evidence that all the requisitions of this Chapter with respect to such alteration and the confirmation thereof have been complied with, and thenceforth (but subject to the provisions of this Chapter) the memorandum so altered shall be the memorandum of association of the company. 2. If a company makes default in delivering to the Registrar any document required by this section to be delivered to him, the company shall, upon summary conviction, be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars for every day during which it is in default, and every director, manager, secretary, and officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits such default, shall upon summary conviction, be liable to the like penalty.

Imp. § 9.

Reduction of capital.

Reduction of capital. Power to reduce. 28. 1. Any company limited by shares may, by special resolution, so far modify the conditions contained in its memorandum of association, if authorized so to do by its regulations as originally framed or as altered by special resolution, as to reduce its capital; but no such resolution for reducing the capital of any company shall come into operation until an order of the Court is registered by the Registrar as is hereinafter mentioned. 2. The power to reduce capital conferred by this section shall include the power to reduce paid up capital, and also the power to cancel any lost capital, or any capital unrepresented by available assets, or to pay off any capital which is in excess of the wants of the company; and paid up capital may be reduced either with or without extinguishing or reducing the liability (if any) remaining on the shares of the company, and to the extent to which such liability is not extinguished or reduced it shall be deemed to be preserved.

Imp. § 46.

After such reduction "and reduced" added to name. 29. Every company shall, after the date of the passing of any special resolution for reducing its capital, add to its name, until such date as the Court fixes, the words "and reduced" as the last words in its name, and those words shall, until such date, be deemed to be part of the name of the company.

Imp. § 48.

Company to apply for order confirming reduction. 30. 1. A company which has passed a special resolution for reducing its capital may apply to the Court, by petition, for an order confirming the reduction, and on the hearing of the petition the Court, if satisfied that with respect to every creditor of the company who under the provisions of this Chapter is entitled to object to the reduction, either his consent to the reduction has been obtained, or his debt or claim has been discharged or has determined, or has been secured as in this Chapter provided, may make an order confirming the reduction on such terms and subject to such conditions as to it seems fit. 2. Where the reduction of the capital of a company does not involve either the diminution of any liability in respect to unpaid capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid up capital: a) the creditors of the company shall not, unless the Court otherwise directs, be entitled to object or required to consent to the reduction; and b) it shall not be necessary before the presentation of the petition for confirming the reduction to add, and the Court may, if it thinks it expedient so to do, dispense altogether with the addition of, the words "and reduced." 3. In any case in which the Court thinks fit so to do, it may require the company to publish in such manner as the Court directs the reasons for the reduction of its capital, or such other information in regard to the reduction of its capital as the Court thinks expedient, with a view to give proper information to the public in relation to the reduction of its capital by a company, and if the Court thinks fit, the causes which lead to such reduction.

Imp. § 47.

Right of creditors to object. List of objecting creditors to be settled by Court.

31. 1. Where a company proposes to reduce its capital every creditor of the company who at the date fixed by the Court is entitled to any debt or claim which, if that date were the commencement of the winding-up of the company, would be admissible in proof against the company, shall be entitled to object to the proposed reduction, and to be entered in the list of creditors who are so entitled to object. 2. The Court shall settle a list of such creditors, and for that purpose shall ascertain as far as possible, without requiring an application from any creditor, the names of such creditors, and the nature and amounts of their debts or claims, and may publish notices fixing a certain day or days within which creditors of the company who are not entered on the list are to claim to be so entered, or to be excluded from the right of objecting to the proposed reduction.

Imp. § 49.

Court may dispense with consent of creditors on security given. 32. Where a creditor whose name is entered on the list of creditors and whose debt or claim is not discharged or determined, does not consent to the proposed reduction, the Court may, if it thinks fit, dispense with such consent on the company securing the payment of the debt or claim of such creditor by setting apart and appropriating in such manner as the Court directs, a sum of such amount as is hereinafter mentioned, that is to say: a) if the full amount of the debt or claim of the creditor is admitted by the company, or though not admitted is such as the company is willing to set apart and appropriate, then the full amount of the debt or claim shall be set apart and appropriated; b) if the full amount of the debt or claim of the creditor is not admitted by the company, and is not such as the company is willing to set apart and appropriate, or if the amount is contingent or not ascertained, then the Court may, if it thinks fit, inquire into and adjudicate upon the validity of such debt or claim, and the amount for which the company is liable in respect thereto, in the same manner as if the company were being wound up by the Court, and the amount fixed by the Court on such inquiry and adjudication shall be set apart and appropriated.

Imp. § 49.

Order and minute to be registered. 33. 1. The Registrar upon the production to him of an order of the Court confirming the reduction of the capital of a company, and the delivery to him of a copy of the order, and of a minute, approved by the Court, shewing with respect to the capital of the company, as altered by the order, the amount of such capital, the number of shares into which it is divided, the amount of each share and the amount, if any, at the date of the registration of the minute proposed to be deemed to have been paid up on each share, shall register the order and minute, and on registration the special resolution confirmed by the order so registered shall take effect. 2. Notice of such registration shall be published in such manner as the Court directs. 3. The Registrar shall certify under his hand the registration of the order and minute, and his certificate shall be conclusive evidence that all the requisitions of this Chapter with respect to the reduction of capital have been complied with, and that the capital of the company is such as is stated in the minute.

Imp. § 51.

Saving right of creditors ignorant of proceedings. 34. If any creditor who is entitled, in respect to any debt or claim, to object to the reduction of the capital of a company under this Chapter is, in consequence of his ignorance of the proceedings taken with a view to such reduction, or of their nature and effect with respect to his claim, not entered on the list of creditors, and after such reduction the company is unable, within the space of three weeks after demand made, to pay to the creditor the amount of such debt or claim, every person who was a member of the company at the date of the registration of the order and minute relating to the reduction of the capital of the company, shall be liable to contribute for the payment of such debt or claim an amount not exceeding the amount which he would have been liable to contribute if the company had commenced to be wound up on the day prior to such registration; and, on the company being wound up, the Court, on the application of such creditor, and on proof that he was ignorant of the proceedings taken with a view to the reduction, or of their nature and effect with respect to his claim, may, if it thinks fit, settle a list of such contributories accordingly, and make and enforce calls and orders on the contributories settled on such list in the same manner in all respects as if they were ordinary contributories in a winding-up; but the provisions of this section shall not affect the rights of the contributories of the company among themselves.

Imp. § 53.

Minute to form part of memorandum of association. 35. The minute when registered shall be deemed to be substituted for the corresponding part of the memorandum of association of the company, and shall be of the same validity and subject to the same alterations as if it had been originally contained in the memorandum of association; and, subject as in this Chapter mentioned, no member of the company, whether past or present, shall be liable in respect to any share to any call or contribution exceeding in amount the difference (if any) between the amount which has been paid on such share and the amount of the share as fixed by the minute.

Imp. § 52.

Copy of minute, when registered, to be embodied in every copy of memorandum of association issued after its registration. 36. A copy of the minute when registered shall be embodied in every copy of the memorandum of association issued after its registration; and if any company makes default in complying with the provisions of this section it shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five dollars for each copy in respect to which such default is made, and every director, manager, secretary, or officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits such default shall, upon summary conviction, be liable to the like penalty.

Imp. § 52.

Penalty for concealing name of creditor entitled to object. 37. If any director, manager, or officer of a company wilfully conceals the name of any creditor of the company who is entitled to object to the proposed reduction, or wilfully misrepresents the nature or amount of the debt or claim of any creditor of the company, or if any director or manager of the company aids or abets in or is privy to any such concealment or misrepresentation as aforesaid, every such director, manager, or officer shall, for every such offence, be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars.

Imp. § 54.

Reduction by cancelling of unissued shares. 38. Any company limited by shares may so far modify the conditions contained in its memorandum of association, if authorized so to do by its regulations as originally framed, or as altered by special resolution, as to reduce its capital by cancelling any shares which, at the date of the passing of such resolution have not been taken or agreed to be taken by any person, and it shall not be necessary that a resolution for the reduction of such capital shall be confirmed by the Court, but a minute thereof shall be registered and embodied in the memorandum of association in the manner in this Chapter provided in the cases of other reductions of capital.

Imp. § 41.

Division of capital by sub-division of shares. Proviso. 39. 1. Any company limited by shares may, by special resolution, so far modify the conditions contained in its memorandum of association, if authorized so to do by its regulations as originally framed or as altered by special resolution, as by subdivision of its existing shares, or any of them, to divide its capital, or any part thereof, into shares of smaller amount than is fixed by its memorandum of association. 2. In the subdivision of its existing shares, the proportion between the amount which is paid and the amount (if any) which is unpaid on each share of reduced amount shall be the same as it was in the case of the existing share or shares from which the share of reduced amount is derived.

Imp. § 41.

Statement of subdivision of shares to be in accordance with resolution passed. 40. The statement of the number and amount of the shares into which the capital of the company is divided, contained in every copy of the memorandum of association, or other official document issued after the passing of any such special resolution for the division of its capital, shall be in accordance with such resolution; and any company which makes default in complying with the provisions of this section, and every director, manager, secretary, or other officer of any such company who knowingly or wilfully authorizes or permits any such default, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five dollars for each copy in respect to which such default is made.
